Bourassa shouldn't talk as much as he did on that occasion. He at least has something to say, and he says it amazingly well in French or in English. He seems to enjoy unpopularity, which is not what most people expect in an orator. With the gift of tongues there must go a certain indifference to popular favor, otherwise it would be only the gift of the gab. Bourassa is a true orator. Upon him there presses a certain destinated compulsion, which explains alike his refusal, at a very early age, of a place in the Cabinet, and his periodical retreat from Le Devoir for communion with the Unreportable.

Unpopularity is a relative term. Bourassa seems to revel in a minority bath, near which there is always a congregation. There have gathered round Bourassa a faithful band to whom he is the Master. The orator pours his gifts upon those who come to listen. He is not governed by those who remain afar to scoff at what they cannot hear.

His Style of Eloquence

If you have ever seen Bourassa in action, in English or in French, you will know that the golden gift is his. On the preservation of the French culture in Canada he speaks with glowing unction to his own people. His voice is not mellifluous, but the impetuosity, clarity, and glow of the eloquence that comes from him makes the audience his willing captives. When he sits down and the final applause comes, he smiles uncontrollably all over his face.

His Dangerous Equipment

The dangerous thing about Bourassa is his equipment. He has spent more energy on the historical and constitutional developments of Canadian politics than any of his condemners. Bourassa is very much alive to the dominance of India in the Imperial scheme. He does not conceive it to be the mission of the Canadian citizen to bother about the convergence and divergence of English, German and Russian interests in the Persian Gulf hinterland. He knows how grievously British Columbia has vexed the India Office. He has no love for the Jingoes of Piccadilly. Bourassa likes to make your flesh creep—in which he acts sometimes like a genius and sometimes like a child.

WEATHER VANE LEGEND

The City of London has some peculiar weather vanes on the spires of some of its churches. The most curious of all are the grasshopper vane on the Royal Exchange and the dragon on the lofty steeple of Bow Church in Cheapside. The golden grasshopper was the crest of Sir Thomas Gresham, the great merchant of Queen Elizabeth's reign. He it was who built the first Royal Exchange, and so it was quite appropriate that the tower of the present buildings should still display his device. A legend prophesied disasters to the City of London when the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange and the dragon of Bow Church should meet. This seemed to be so unlikely ever to happen that it was regarded as an exceptionally quaint kind of joke as much as if would be if we were to imagine the Monument in the City side by side with the Albert Memorial in Kensington Gardens. But the meeting took place about 1840 when the dragon and the grasshopper were taken down at the same time, to be regilded, and reposed side by side in the same yard, but nothing happened.

GUARDING THE HOARD

Extraordinary Precautions Taken at Bank of England

The Bank of England is quite the best guarded institution in the world. No burglar or bank thief has ever succeeded in making it part with a penny. The great outer doors are so finely balanced that a clerk can, by pressing a knob under his desk, instantly shut them in the face of anyone making a dash for the street. They cannot be opened except by special machinery. In recesses near the doors are hidden four guardians, who, without being seen themselves, watch all visitors through mirrors.

Special and costly precautions are taken to guard the bullion department, where the gold is stored. It has been stated that the whole department is submerged every night in several feet of water by machinery. The same machinery would be also set in action automatically, if at any time during the day the place were tampered with.

Rustless Steel For Cycles

The discovery of rustless steel may yet come to have an important bearing on the making of bicycles. It is, of course, the ideal aim to obtain a machine which shall be impervious to weather conditions, and although we have gone some distance towards that end with "all black" models, no one would describe the practice as entirely satisfactory. The rustless steel bicycle, however, is still a long way off, for it seems that at present rustlessness can only be imparted to steel of high carbon.

TOMMY HUNTS THE HUNS

Brilliant Raiding Shows Careful Study of Terrain

We must congratulate the men of the British army on the vigor with which they conduct their very strong and effective feelers into the enemy lines, writes M. Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris. A close study of the raids accomplished shows with what care the local commands have studied the terrain and made their arrangements for attack. Having chosen the sector to be raided—the extent of which varies between 400 and 600 yards and is selected with a view to the elements of the enemy trenches demolished by rapid and efficacious bombardment being reached at small cost by the charging infantry—over the parapets come the men like a hurricane. The surprised enemy, not having time to start a barrage fire for fear of bombarding his own men, resigns himself to the inevitable, and the Tommies "regain their lines like men returning from a football match, bringing back with them prisoners and numerous trophies."

Britain's Modern "Drake"

Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, among his other accomplishments, is an expert on the ice, says a London paper. He was admitted a member of the London Skating Club, after going through the rigid and exacting qualification test demanded by that exclusive body. THE CLOCK OF DEATH

The clock at Hampton Court Palace derived its unpleasant title of "The Clock of Death" by reason of a superstition that whenever anyone long resident in the Palace dies the clock immediately stops. It is on record that when Anne of Denmark, the Queen of James I., died, the old timepiece was striking four, and that it stopped almost before the last stroke sounded. Since that time it is said to have repeated this grisly proceeding each time a Royal personage within its jurisdiction died.

At any rate the clock has an interesting history quite aside from this. It was the first astronomical timepiece made in England, being constructed in 1540 for Henry VIII. In 1885 it was brought out of a shed wherein it had lain neglected for nearly half a century, and by order of the then Secretary of the Office of Works it was re-erected in the courtyard opposite the entrance to the State apartments.

PRINTERS WIN THREE FROM THE KING PINS IN CITY BOWLING LEAGUE

Last night the Printers annexed three games from the King Pins in the Peterborough Bowling League. Henderson for the Printers was high man for three games with a total of 541, being the only man to reach the 500 mark. Solomon for the King Pins had a count of 469. Hard spares were pulled off by Ross and Moffatt for the King Pins, who were somewhat handicapped by the absence of "Bob" Stewart, who is now out of the city. The scores:

Lockie vs. Township of North Monaghan

PLAINTIFF GETS $100 DAMAGES AND BOTH PARTIES PAY COSTS.

Judgment was given yesterday in the Divisional Court upon the appeal of the defendants and cross-appeal of the plaintiffs from the judgment of the County Judge.

The judgment finds that the plaintiff, Lockie, failed to prove his claim in respect of the road in dispute, and that his action in this respect should be dismissed and that liberty to him to bring further action in this matter should not be permitted.

The injunction requiring the defendant to furnish water to the plaintiff's land is set aside on the ground that the plaintiff failed to show his riparian rights had been invaded.

The damages which had been fixed at the trial at $350.00 were reduced to $100.00, the court considering that some damages should be allowed the plaintiff owing to the fact that the culverts on the highway had been permitted by the township to get out of repair.

No costs of action or of appeal were allowed to either party, and in result the plaintiff gets $100.00 damages, and each party pay their own costs of the litigation.

TO ORGANIZE A UNION OF LOCAL TEXTILE WORKERS

Miss M. J. Kelleher to Address Mass Meeting in This City May 7---Meeting of Educational Association at London.

A mass meeting of the working people of Peterborough, men and women, will be held in Labor Hall Monday evening, May 7th. The speaker of the evening will be Miss M. J. Kelleher, of Scranton, Penn., organizer in the United States and Canada of the United Textile Workers of America. Mr. T. A. Stevenson, secretary of the District Trades Council of Toronto, is billed to make an address.

Educational Council.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario will be held in London on May 24th. Charles P. Doughty of the Guelph Herald is president of the organization, and G. L. Myland of this city is one of the vice-presidents.

In the announcement sent out by Secretary-Treasurer Jos. T. Marks, of Toronto, he says that so many requests have been received by him asking that the organization deal with the question of independent political action at the coming convention, that after giving the matter full consideration the executive has decided that the said requests should not be ignored.

It is pointed out that while a motion to turn the association into a political organization or labor party at the Kitchener convention last year failed to carry, yet it was clearly evident that the sentiment of the delegates was practically unanimous in favor of independent political action, and it was openly expressed that until labor was in a position to elect men to represent it on the floor of the Federal Parliament and the Provincial Legislature, it was vain to expect that it would receive the consideration its numbers entitled it to.

The executive, therefore, was satisfied that any action it might take during the year to further this object would receive the approval of the organizations represented at last year's gathering, and for that purpose it was decided to accord the secretary, who is also the editor of The Industrial Banner, the official organ of the association, its full co-operation in backing up any effort he might put forth to give the matter the fullest publicity through the columns of the paper.

As its readers are aware, The Banner for months has persistently and unceasingly, week after week, had special leading articles urging its readers to bring up the matter in their central labor unions and local organizations and have it discussed and action taken thereon in order to get a virile movement under way.

This action was further supplemented by the sending out of innumerable letters to all parts of the province, which entailed an enormous amount of work, which has, however, been attended with the most satisfactory results, and, as is now well known, independent politcal action has become a live questionin the labor movement throughout the entire province.

As one result of this persistent agitation, independent political organizations are being formed in many of the different industrial centres, and it is now imperative that their representatives get in touch without delay.

The political question will be one of the most important to come before the association.

FARMING AND DEMOCRAC

Importance of Basic Industry Fo Canada Emphasized

An interesting essay on farming an national life was given by W. C. Goo B.A., of Paris, Ont. He said in pa that agriculture as an industry mig be called domestic -the entire fami co-operating in carrying on the wor little children having opportunity assist parents, and through these operations learning how to do thin and how to think, thus establish right habits of life. In these respe farming contrasts sharply with c life. Again farm work is season and the farmer must work with na ture, and be governed largely b weather conditions, hence his work very varied, and calls for an unusu degree of adaptability, initiative an resourcefulness. It thus contras with routine work in the city.

Country life is also quiet, and pr motes continuity of thought and strength of character. Lastly, the continuance of democracy is large dependent on agriculture. The pe petuation of a sturdy and independen yeomanry is one of the best guaran tees we have for the perpetuation o democracy, which is the only thing that is destined to last; it may have its faults, but it is the only system of government which contains within itself a continuity of life. From that point of view, the maintenance of a independent and intelligent class in the rural districts is of vital import ance to any country.

Canada especially needs strong agri cultural interests in order to maintain its financial credit and progress. Mr. Good quoted from Sir George Paish, the financial expert, showing that the burden of interest on the enormous cost of railways in Canada, which are sufficient to deal with at least twice, if not three times, the present output —will be enormous until the productive power of the country is greatly increased. The welfare of the Canadian people, individually and collectively, depends absolutely on the rapid increase of the agricultural and mineral output; hence land must be tilled to capacity.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

There has been continued activity in the flour market during the week, a further advance of 5 cents per barrel having been recorded over the price chronicled last week. Wheat prices held up well during the week and flour was naturally strong in sympathy with the grain. Sugar held steady at the advance recorded last week, but there was a weakening in the raw market in New York during the week. Wholesalers report the demand for sugar has been exceptionally heavy from the consumers, which to them indicates that the householders have been stocking up in anticipation of high prices. They point out that until these supplies are used up there may later be a [illegible] demand.

[illegible] of various kinds have been in a generally firmer market. Eggs have advanced slightly in view of the fact that commission men have started to place some in storage. There is a disposition on the part of some commission men not to place eggs in storage this year owing to the uncertainty of being able to export them through lack of tonnage. Maple syrup is reaching the market in larger quantities and prices have been firmer, owing to the increased demand.

In dried fruits dates have registered an advance. Prunes are quoted higher, and a firmer increase has been announced by importers of candied peel. Tea continues in very firm position. Advices received state [illegible] some supplies have left Calcutta [illegible] these shipments are considered only a very small [illegible] of the tea that should be on the way to Canada if relief could be looked for. Much higher prices for Indian and Ceylon teas are expected. Shipments of fresh halibut from the West Coast are now being made to Eastern points. Apples are scarce, [illegible] the only kind in the market being the American box apples.

Advances have been recorded in cleaning powder, jams, baking powder, icing sugars, clothes lines, condensed milk, [illegible] and shelled walnuts. Business has been very good during the week.

GOOD PRICE FOR HENS

A Whitby woman living just west of Oshawa got back on a chicken thief the other day in neat style. On getting up one morning she found all her hens gone. Looking around for traces, she picked up a hundred dollar roll of bills. A day later the presumed thief called and offered to give her $50 and take the other $50 if she would keep her mouth shut. "No," she answered, "you keep your mouth shut; I'm well paid for my hens."

OBITUARY

ROBERT GEORGE DETCHER

George Detcher, who for some years has conducted the old Yelland carriage and blacksmith shop on George Street, died at his residence, 215 Reid Street, after a relapse following what appeared to be a successful operation.

He was born in Peterboro 39 years ago, and was a son of the late Joseph Detcher. Like his father he was a strong Conservative and took an active interest in the welfare of the party. He was a member of Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F., the Ancient Order of Foresters, and the Nassau Orange Lodge. He is survived by his wife and two children, three brothers, Messrs. Frank, Thomas, and Joseph, and one sister, Lillian, all of Peterboro.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, 215 Reid Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. R. B. Grobb.

MRS. HENRY BILLINGTON.

The death occurred in Winnipeg on April 23rd of Annie Billington, widow of the late Henry Billington, of Peterborough. The deceased was the mother of Messrs. Thomas and James Billington, formerly of Peterborough, and Mrs. D. Woodhouse, of Winnipeg.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

The fire department were given a quiet call to No. 12 Kirk street this morning where a chimney fire was giving a little trouble. The Chief responded with his rig, and the small chemical engine, and easily extinguished the blaze. There was no damage caused.

FAVORS MEATLESS DAY.

Women's Organization Recommends Economy in Food Stuff.

The Women's Institute lecturers of the province, who have been meeting the past two days in the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, to discuss their work for the coming season, passed a resolution requesting the Organization of Resources Committee to ask the people of Canada to voluntarily adopt stated weights of staples per capita ration, such as just so much sugar, meat and flour, and also for the institution of a meatless day. In the first resolution presented given amounts were stated, but this was felt, after some discussion, to be impracticable. However, all were agreed that every effort should be made to conserve what we have and to produce all we can

Church Officers Entertain Choir

COMPLIMENTARY LUNCHEON EXTENDED TO SINGERS.

The officers of the Murray Street Church and their wives entertained the choir last night at the close of the weekly rehearsal to a dainty luncheon in the Sunday school room. Mr. Joseph Wearing, chairman of the choir committee, presided over the gathering and interspersed the speeches with several clever anecdotes and worthy stories. Rev. R. J. Webb spoke in terms of highest appreciation of the work of the choir and took everyone completely by surprise by displaying a remarkable knowledge of musical terms which was most learned and highly informative.

Brief sympathetic speeches were made by Mr. Chas. Parsons, Dr. Scott, Mr. Carl Brown, Chief Thompson, Miss Sanderson, Mr. Moule and Mr. Harding. Mr. Asa Huycke, choirmaster, on behalf of his assistants, thanked those responsible for the luncheon and for the kond and appreciative words spoken of the choir's work. There wer about fifty at table.

The Murray Street Baptist Church choir is one of the largest and most efficient in the city. They will give a concert in the near future, and at this entertainment the songs our mothers sang will be a featur.

TAGS FOR DOGS.

An inquiry at the police headquarters this morning brought out the news that up to date the number of dog licenses issued are about 150 more than on the same date last year. There have been issued 210 tags up till noon.

The last day for getting tags is Tuesday. After that date the police intend to rigorously enforce the by-law.

The Teutons have two and a quarter million men on the Russian front, but it is evident their real concern is with the western front.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Rev. A. G. Baker to Speak in Murray Street Church.

On Sunday evening Rev. A. G. Baker, M.A., of LaPaz, Bolivia, will speak briefly at Murray Street Baptist Church. Mr. Baker and his wife have spent sixteen years in South America and have just returned to this country. This will be his first appearance on a platform in Canada. The family are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, 576 Shebrooke street. Rev. Mr. Webb will conduct the services. The work among the natives of Bolivia has been most encouraging and fruitful.

CARD OF THANKS

Miss Pearl Crouter and sister, Miss Rose Crouter, desire to thank the many friends for their kind and practical sympathy during their recent bereavement in the loss of their mother, Mrs. George W. Crouter. They also desire to thank the employees of the Canadian General Electric Company for the beautiful wreath and also cheque. Pte. Geo. Crouter, husband of the deceased, is overseas.

COAL MAN'S WARNING

No Drop in Price of $20.00 Coal in Sight

"Are the coal men putting coal into their own cellars?" a reporter asked H. A. Harrington, secretary of the Coal Section Retail Merchants' Association in Toronto, yesterday.

"You bet I've got mine in," was the reply. This is the summer price we have now. The first crack out of the box will be a dollar increase, possibly May 1, and if people don't get their coal in now we shall be having $15 and $20 coal by the end of next winter."

THE ACT IN TORONTO.

Prohibition Violations Source of Revenue to the City.

The Toronto police court clerk's department records show that fines for breaches of the Temperance Act are becoming the source of considerable revenue. For the period ending March 31 a sum approximating $88,000 was turned over to the civic officials from this source. Seventy-seven of those convicted for a breach of the Act paid fines amounting to over $15,000. The fines for drunkenness amount to nearly $10,000. Over 700 citizens who did not have the necessary $10 and costs went to jail.

FIRE MARSHAL KEPT BUSY

Has Now Fourteen Fires in Province Being Investigated

At the present time the Provincial Fire Marshal has under investigation no less than eleven fires which have occurred in Ontario since the beginning of April and today has started an investigation into three other fires.

The car barns at Windsor which were damaged to the extent of $150,000, is being investigated, the fire in the Fulford block at Brockville, which is believed to have been caused from the same thing as the fire last June, defective electric wiring, is being investigated, and a vacant house, which was destroyed at Deseronto, is being looked into.

The Canadian authorities are asking the removal by Great Britain of the embargo against live Canadian cattle.

OBITUARY

ROBERT GEORGE DETCHER

George Detcher, who for some years has conducted the old Yelland carriage and blacksmith shop on George Street, died at his residence, 215 Reid Street, after a relapse following what appeared to be a successful operation.

He was born in Peterboro 39 years ago, and was a son of the late Joseph Detcher. Like his father he was a strong Conservative and took an active interest in the welfare of the party. He was a member of Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F., the Ancient Order of Foresters, and the Nassau Orange Lodge. He is survived by his wife and two children, three brothers, Messrs. Frank, Thomas, and Joseph, and one sister, Lilian, all of Peterboro.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, 215 Reid Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. R. B. Grobb.

MRS. HENRY BILLINGTON.

The death occurred in Winnipeg on April 23rd of Annie Billington, widow of the late Henry Billington, of Peterborough. The deceased was the mother of Messrs. Thomas and James Billington, formerly of Peterborough, and Mrs. D. Woodhouse, of Winnipeg.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

The fire department were given a quiet call to No. 12 Kirk street this morning where a chimney fire was giving a little trouble. The Chief responded with his rig, and the small chemical engine, and easily extinguished the blaze. There was no damage caused.

FAVORS MEATLESS DAY.

Women's Organization Recommends Economy in Food Stuff.

The Women's Institute lecturers of the province, who have been meeting the past two days in the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, to discuss their work for the coming season, passed a resolution requesting the Organization of Resources Committee to ask the people of Canada to voluntarily adopt stated weights of staples per capita ration, such as just so much sugar, meat and flour, and also for the institution of a meatless day. In the first resolution presented given amounts were stated, but this was felt, after some discussion, to be impracticable. However, all were agreed that every effort should be made to conserve what we have and to produce all we can

Church Officers Entertain Choir

COMPLIMENTARY LUNCHEON EXTENDED TO SINGERS.

The officers of the Murray Street Church and their wives entertained the choir last night at the close of the weekly rehearsal to a dainty luncheon in the Sunday school room. Mr. Joseph Wearing, chairman of the choir committee, presided over the gathering and interspersed the speeches with several clever anecdotes and worthy stories. Rev. R. J. Webb spoke in terms of highest appreciation of the work of the choir and took everyone completely by surprise by displaying a remarkable knowledge of musical terms which was most learned and highly informative.

Brief sympathetic speeches were made by Mr. Chas. Parsons, Dr. Scott, Mr. Carl Brown, Chief Thompson, Miss Sanderson, Mr. Moule and Mr. Harding. Mr. Asa Huycke, choirmaster, on behalf of his assistants, thanked those responsible for the luncheon and for the kond and appreciative words spoken of the choir's work. There wer about fifty at table.

The Murray Street Baptist Church choir is one of the largest and most efficient in the city. They will give a concert in the near future, and at this entertainment the songs our mothers sang will be a featur.

TAGS FOR DOGS.

An inquiry at the police headquarters this morning brought out the news that up to date the number of dog licenses issued are about 150 more than on the same date last year. There have been issued 210 tags up till noon.

The last day for getting tags is Tuesday. After that date the police intend to rigorously enforce the by-law.

The Teutons have two and a quarter million men on the Russian front, but it is evident their real concern is with the western front.

LYNCH—McCABE.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Mary's Church, Weyburn, Sask., at 8 a.m. on April 17th, when Miss Marion Irene McCabe, of Peterborough, Ont., was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Joseph Lynch, of Hastings, Ont., by Rev. Fr. T. Morard, M.L.

LOCKIE—McQUAIG

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday April 25, at seven o'clock p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David McQuaig, 474 Sherbbrooke Street, when their second eldest daughter, Margaret J., was united in marriage to Mr. J. R Lockie, also of this city.

The bride, looking pretty in an alice blue silk dress, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations entered the drawing-room leaning upon the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Edythe Lockie, 496 Chamberlain Street, sister of the groom.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Kathleen McQuaig, while the groom was supported by Mr. Roy Post, of this city.

After the signing of the register the guests adjourned to the dining room and partook of a most dainty dinner.

The presents were both numerous and useful, among them being a beautiful present from the employees of Barries, Limited, where the bride was employed. The bride's travelling suit was of blue serge, and she wore a black picture hat.

LOUGHLIN—MARKLE.

On Wednesday afternoon, April 25th, at he home of Mrs. Markle, New Lowell, her eldest daughter, Bertira Ellen, was married to James H. Loughlin, of New Lowell. Rev. C. Sheppard officiated. The drawing-room and dining-room were decorated with flowers and palms. The bride was given away by her brother, Russell, and was unattended. Mrs. J. Hughes, of Peterborough, played the Wedding March. The bride was gowned in white silk georgette and crepe over which was draped silk lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and wore the bridegroom's gift, a pearl necklace.

Mr. and Mrs. Loughlin left after dinner for Buffalo. The bride travelled in a champagne silk suit, with hat to match.

His Honor Judge Ruddy, of Whitby, has been elected honorary president of the Whitby Bowling Club.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Elliott were in Lindsay yesterday.

Mrs. A. Madden and children have returned after visiting friends in Tweed.

Mrs. D. McQuaig of Belleville was in the city attending the wedding of her niece, Miss Maggie J. McQuaig.

Mr. Burnham, M.P., who goes to Lindsay on Saturday morning to attend the nomination convention of Sir Sam Hughes, will remain over in Peterborough for a few days.

The many friends of Mr. S. W. English will regret to learn that he was taken to Nicholls Hospital suffering with an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. T. Douglas of Millbrook was a visitor to the city today.

Mr. C. G. Rose of Renfrew was in the city.

Capt. M. G. Hamilton of the 15th Regt. C. D. F., Belleville, is home for the week-end.

Mr. D. F. Robertson of Campbellford is in the city for the Motor Show.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sherin of Lakefield were in the city last night and took in the Motor Show.

Miss Huycke, Tweed, is visiting in the city.

Mr. F Jamieson, Dominion Express agent at St. Thomas, is visiting friends in the city over Sunday.

Mrs. Caldwell and Miss Ethel Caldwell of Toronto were in the city attending the funeral of the late F J Might.

Mr. Wesley Might, Brantford, and Mr. James Might, Milford, are in the city attending the funeral of the late F. J. Might.

Rev. Dr S. D Chown, D.D., superintendent of the Methodist Church, arrived in the city at noon. He will dedicate the new St. James' Methodist Church tomorrow.

MOTOR SHOW NOTES.

At 9 o'clock this evening there will be an auction sale of a tire which has been donated to the Red Cross Society by the Gutta Percha Rubber Co, through their local dealer, Mr. J. J. Duffus.

The Motor League booth had a most successful day yesterday, the best yet. The new members secured were numerous. The ladies in charge were Mrs. Burbidge, Mrs. W. H. Waram, Mrs. W. H. Lytle, and Mrs Haslam, who were kept busy disposing of the red and green colors.

SEE ELECTRA AT MOTOR SHOW

Electric Ranges by Alexander & Miller

The Electric Range has become as popular as the motor, gives pleasure to the cook and the family. After a long drive, think of what it means to be able to come home to a good meal on the hottest day and know that in preparing same neither you nor the cook has to suffer over a red hot stove.

The Electra Range gives heat only where required; produces

No Soot, Smoke, Grease or Odor

Needs no blackening to keep it in perfect condition; does not blacken up the pots and pans. Why not have this comfort by installing

The Sunshine of the Home, "Moffat's Electria"

The manufacture's representative is in attendance and will be pleased to meet any prospective purchasers. Although prices have advanced this week, we intend to hold the former prices until the end of the show. The representative also informs us that the Electra Range is in the same class as the Automobile inasmuch as the output for the year is practically sold.

Do not delay purchasing your Electra.

"CAMPBELL CROFT" OR "GARDEN HILL?"

It is the general opinion of people doing business with the G.T.R. that the people of Garden Hill will have the popular name, Garden Hill, resplendent on their station in the course of a month or so. Few people tried out Campbell Croft, but found that shipments went to Campbellford very often, and now they are having nearly everything addressed to Garden Hill.

TROPHY PRESENTED.

At the opening service of George Street Methodist Sunday School tomorrow afternoon th trophy cup given by the Ministerial Association of the city will be presented to the winning team of the George Street S. The Car with the Half Million Dollar Motor

MADE IN CANADA

$895 FULLY EQUIPPED

The Car You can Afford to Buy and Use

HERE, at last, is a Real Car—roomy, luxurious, artistic—a car of the highest class at a price within reach of the family of moderate means—a light car that is easy on tires—an economical car, making possible 30 to 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

A long-stroke motor, with a relatively small bore, means greater economy, because it gets more explosive force out of the gas. The famous BRISCOE motor has a 5⅛-inch stroke and a 3 3/16-inch bore. That's why it costs less to own a BRISCOE.

The price includes everything—Electric Lighting and Starting System—Speedometer—Gasoline Gauge—Ammeter—Trouble Light Socket—Automatic Switch with Key Lock—Horn—and all other important accessories usually classed as "extras." See abbreviated specifications in accompanying panel.

PRICE: BRISCOE "B 4-24" Touring Car or 4-Passenger Roadster, 105-in. Wheel Base, $895 f.o.b. Brockville, Ont.

Write for Benjamin Briscoe's own story of the "Half Million Dollar Motor" or call at your local BRISCOE Garage and let the car "show" you.

BENEFIT RED CROSS

Artesian Water in Australia.

Over a very large area of Australia—and especially where the rainfall is light—it is possible to tap an apparently inexhaustible supply of artesian water by boring. In this way much has been added to the value of large tracts of country, both for stock-carrying and general productive purposes. Latest developments would seem to indicate that the artesian area is even greater than was at first supposed. For some time the South Australian Government has been boring for water on the southern limits of the artesian basin in the neighbourhood of Lake Frome, and recently a supply of good quality water was tapped equal to two hundred and thirty thousand gallons a day. The ground passed through in the latest bore is identical with the blue shale of the artesian basin, and the result obtained justifies the conclusion that the basin extends a considerable distance farther south.

A Sterner Word.

The term "gentlemen," as used in public address or public notices, is passing, it seems, in England, and "men," with a following peremptory command, is coming in. An English correspondent of Motor Travel dislikes the change. When one has been publicly addressed, in the plural, as "Gentlemen" all his life, he says, the words of the average sergeant, when he shouts at a disorderly herd of English gentlemen, "You—men!" seem almost insulting in their abruptness. But "men" and "women" certainly appear to be more fitting terms of address in these stern times than the softer words "ladies" and "gentlemen," and the British public will doubtless learn to like them.

Baby's Own Tablets Cure Constipation

Childhood constipation can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets never fail to regulate the bowels and stomach, thus curing constipation, colic, indigestion and the many other minor ills of little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Louis Nicole, St. Paul du Buton, Que., writes:—"My baby suffered from constipation, but thanks to Baby's Own Tablets he is a fine, healthy boy to-day. It gives me much pleasure in recommending the Tablets to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BUSINESS BOOM IN PETERBORO

ALL CLASSES OF INDUSTRY NOW UNUSUALLY ACTIVE.

In its monthly review of the industrial situation the Labor Gazette says:—

At Peterborough manufacturers of metal products were very active. There was a heavy demand for machinists and tool makers, which was somewhat relieved by the closing of the Ross Rifle works, as a number of that company's hands came to Peterborough. The foundries were also very active, besides their own work they were working on castings for the Canadian General Electric Company. The Quaker Oats Company were re-modelling their old mill and have also decided to rebuild their plant which was destroyed by fire last December. The other two mills were very busy. Milk Products, Limited, a new concern, is an extension of the Peterborough Creamery; they will manufacture condensed and evaporated milk. The Auburn Woolen mills and the Bonner-Worth wool factory were active. Carpet and silk workers were well employed during the month. Printing and allied trades had a good month. Planing mills and box factories were active. Leather workers were busy. The Utilities Commission, which has charge of the waterworks and electric light plant, decided to do very little improvement work this year, owing to the high cost of materials and the scarcity of labor. Shipping men were finding difficulty in securing hands; firemen deck hands and watchmen being especially scarce. Wages for this class of work will average much higher than last year.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE

It is quite likely that at the next session of the Legislature some legislation will be sought to amend the Loans Corporation Act so that loan companies can purchase Government bonds and that these should be considered as cash.

COMING SOON—
THE WHIP
THE WORLD'S GREATEST MOTION PICTURE

"THE WHIP" ORIGINALLY PRODUCED IN THE FAMOUS DRURY LANE THEATRE

"The Whip" was originally produced in the famous Drury Lane Theatre in London, and it made the most sensational success ever recorded in that home of sensational successes. For over two years the throngs surged into the theatre day in and day out to see this wonderful production. Then "The Whip" was brought to this country by William A. Brady and produced in the Manhattan Opera House, and there it repeated its tremendous English success. Later "The Whip" was presented in Australia and ran for two years there, and it was then translated into foreign languages and presented with equal success on the continent.

There are many reasons for this wonderful success of this play—reasons that make it even more successful as a motion picture. For instance, it is modern; it is about people of today; it is mammoth scenes the biggest ever seen in motion pictures; it is smart, its people are well dressed; it has a thrilling intense story; it is consistent; it has scores of "punches" and it tells a love story and a story of villainy that cannot fail to grip and hold the attention of every spectator.

It is a real treat that is in store for everyone who can see "The Whip". It will be a treat to see the tremendous scenic effects, the gorgeous gowns, the wonderful interior views and to see and enter into the enthralling and thrilling story revolving around "The Whip," the famous racehorse, whose success in a great race means so much to many people.

Some people think the present retirement of the Germans is made with the object of upsetting the plans on our railways. The present retirement of the Germans was due to the fact that they received four shells to one.—Lord Northcliffe.

SPECIFICATIONS-SIX

The average owner is not interested in Specifications, but we want to call your attention to those big features of Studebaker specifications which make the car stand out as such exceptional value.

Genuine long-grain high-grade leather in the upholstering, the same as you find in cars costing from $400.00 to $600.00 more—a reversible front seat, which can be adjusted backward or forward, and reversed in an instant so the passenger may face the tonneau; individual arm chair auxiliary seats with plenty of room for the comfort of the passengers, and you can fold them and slide them under the tonneau seat, leaving the back of the car as free and unobstructed as that of a five-passenger car, with no ugly gash in the carpets or recess in the back of the front seat.

Big 50 H. P. motor of wonderful efficiency and economy.

Plenty of room for seven passengers with the light weight and economy of five passengers.

These are the features of the highest priced cars that you obtain in the Studebaker car at the Studebaker price.

QUEEN'S IVORY CARDS

Royalties Receive Many Strange But Valuable Presents

The miniature cricket bat of pure gold presented by Etonians to Queen Mary is a reminder that the late Duke of Clarence, an enthusiastic cricketer in his day, was once given a cricket bat constructed of walnut and valued at nearly $250. Moreover, it is not many years ago that the Prince of Wales was made a present of a silver oar, weighing nearly 74 ounces, by the Dartmouth Corporation, and the Queen-mother of Spain much prizes a peculiar pack of cards—each card being beautifully worked in ivory—that inseparably accompanied the great Prince Eugène on his many campaigns.

But the present Queen of Spain has what is probably the most elaborate telephone receiver and transmitter in the world. It is made of solid silver, and was presented to her by the employes of the National Telephone Company. Most artistically designed, the leading feature is a small boy supporting the Spanish arms—who is represented as in telephonic communication with a daintily modelled English girl, beside whom crouches the British lion.

MUSKRATS WERE PLENTIFUL

Nichols Family Secure over 1,200 Skins

There were a large nuumber of muskrats trapped here this year, the Nichols family, of Bobcaygeon, alone getting well over twelve hundred. There were other trappers at the game also and hundreds more were caught. The prices paid were 66½c and 67c each. The prices offered locally is said to have been 60c and no more. The entry into the buying of the Omemee man brought prices up to 66½ and 67c. Some buyers state that the price was too high, and that no money could be made on them at this price, if the buyers could even get out on it.

Hon. G. P. Graham characterized as wholly untrue the allegations made against him Wednesday night by Mr. R. B. Bennett respecting the I.C.R. and the C.N.R.

MARKET PRICES

The market this morning was not very large, the farmers taking advantage of the weather to get their land in shape.

There were several interesting sales by the auctioneers, the principal one being the sale of the Matthews-Blackwell delivery rigs and horses.

Eggs were a little firmer and sold at 30 to 33 cents per dozen, and the ladies that were well known had no difficulty in disposing of the produce.

Butter remains about the same as last week, 43 cents being the average, with 42 and 45 cents being the other extremes.

Maple syrup sold at $2 a gallon.

There is quite a demand for little pigs, and what were offered sold at good prices considering the size of them.

Hogs have taken another jump, and the local price for next week is $16.25 per hundred for selects.

HOW TO MAKE BATH BUNS.

As Well as a Recipe For Sweet Milk Rolls That Excel.

To make bath buns take one pound of dry, sifted flour, one cake of compressed yeast, half a cupful of lukewarm milk, half a cupful of sugar, three-quarters of a cupful of softened butter, a pinch of salt, grating of lemon rind, four eggs. Soften the yeast in the liquid and stir it into the flour to make a sponge. Add the other ingredients, knead for half an hour, add more flour if required, but keep the dough soft.

When risen to double its bulk in a covered pan in a warm place shape into balls, brush over with sugar dissolved in milk and bake for about twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Brush over again and sprinkle with crushed lump sugar. Stand in the oven again until well glazed.

Here, too, is a recipe for sweet milk rolls: Take half a pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch of salt, one ounce of butter, a teacupful of cold milk. Sift flour and baking powder and salt together. Rub in the butter with floured fingers, mix with the milk, add a dessertspoonful of sugar, make into rolls, bake at once. Brush over with milk when half baked and then finish.

The Linoleum Rug.

If you have an irregularly shaped kitchen and rent your house instead of owning it do not try to cover the entire kitchen floor with linoleum. Probably it will not fit the new kitchen when you move, and it is rather expensive to have it cut to fit the kitchen where you are. Instead, have a large linoleum rug made, just as you would have in any other room, and have it bound with dark tape. Leave a border around it two feet or so, and have this oiled and finished so that the floor can be wiped with a mop and dusted.

Horses! Horses!

THE HORSE SHIPPERS' ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO will hold a MONTHLY FAIR on the Fourth Wednesday of Each Month throughout the year in the Market Square, Peterborough.

Fifty buyers of the Association represented at these Fairs each month will buy heavy, chunky, general purpose horses, also aged mares and geldings.

Remember the Third Fair will be held on FOURTH WEDNESDAY in MAY 23rd.

Be sure and bring in your horses. You can dispose of all kinds of horses, especially the heavy ones, on the MARKET SQUARE, PETERBOROUGH.

Needs No Excuse.

It is natural, when one studies the situation, that the farmers of the country should now be buying half the automobiles that are on the market. Aside from the fact that the farmer has had a year of exceptional prosperity and that the distances he travels make some vehicle an economic necessity, he is in a better position to keep an auto at a minimum expense than is the city man. In the first place, he is likely to be something of a machinist and will do a good deal of his own repair work, being forced by his distance from town to rely on his own resources. Then he is likely to have a barn or a shed already built, and will be put to no expense for the building or rent of a garage. Almost every time he goes anywhere he saves time that is an asset in his business. If he is wise, possession of the auto enables him to reduce the number of his horses sufficiently to pay for the gasoline he consumes. The city man has no such offsets, and unless he uses the auto in his business he must figure on a clear added expense.

Two hundred and fifty students of women's colleges of the University of Toronto have expressed their willingness to enter employment upon fruit farms of Ontario as fruit pickers during the coming summer. Women students of Queen's University to the number of probably one hundred will also volunteer, as well as the girls of MacDonald Hall, Guelph, making a total of probably 400 available. They will sign up for five months' employment.

RED CROSS LADY

Major General Leonard Wood's Wife Is Also Busy.

MOTHER OF TWO BOYS.

Made a Reputation as a Hostess When Her Husband Was Military Governor of Cuba, and Is Now Enthusiastic About Red Cross Work.

Mrs. Wood's position in Cuba when the general was military governor of the island was unique, and her opportunity to observe conditions and to study the character of the Cubans as individuals a rare one. Here is what she once said about the Cubans:

"They are a very good sort of people indeed, only in the United States they are not understood. Among the educated are as charming men and women as one would meet anywhere. And their feeling toward the United States is extremely friendly. Indeed, it is more than that, because there is a sincere gratitude at the bottom of it. But how can they feel otherwise after all that our government has done for them?"

MRS. LEONARD WOOD.

It is easy to believe the testimony of travelers that Mrs. Wood was a thoroughly tactful hostess in her Santiago home. Above all, she is a devoted admirer of her husband.

Mrs. Wood's personality is all her own, while her social adaptability is doubtless partly due to her training as a girl in the social life of Washington's diplomatic circles.

Mrs. Wood has many points of personal attraction. She is tall, with a strongly built figure that suggests athletic tastes; her face in repose is keenly intelligent and when she smiles is most attractive; she has good, honest gray eyes and plenty of soft, reddish brown hair.

It is probably because of Mrs. Wood's force, determination and executive capacity that the report of her being an accomplished medical student arose in Cuba. She declares, however, that she has had no medical training, is not a college woman and has never considered a profession of any sort.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

To Keep Liquids.

Grape juice, ginger ale, fruit juice or any kind of liquid of like nature may be kept for any period if laid upon its side or placed bottom up. Thus if the liquid covers the cork, the moisture will keep the cork expanded and there will be no room for the air to find its way in and ruin it.

To remove stains from earthenware dishes and plates caused by putting them in the oven, soak in strong borax and hot water.

To ship a mirror without breaking the glass, paste narrow strips of paper diagonally across the glass. This breaks the vibration and prevents the damage that often results.

When weighing molasses for cooking purposes, flour the scale well and the molasses will run off quite easily.

COULD FEED THE EMPIRE.

Ability of the Dominion as a Producer of Food.

It is put down, by those who have given thought to the subject, as beyond dispute that Canada, of itself, is perfectly capable of feeding the entire British Empire. As the Dominion is neither prepared nor disposed to enter upon any such contract at the present time, however, it will probably be content with the knowledge that it could do so if it would. What it is prepared to do, and what it appears to be bent on doing, is more to the purpose. East and West there is another call, the third since the outbreak of the war, for an increase of acreage and of cultivation this spring, and the response promises a bumper harvest.

Everybody in Canada, it may be said broadly, has learned something useful in the last two and a half years, and the Canadian farmer is no exception to the rule. He knew as little of the real resources of his country in August, 1914, as did the miner, the manufacturer, the merchant, or the financier. Canada has been a surprise to one and all, and a revelation.

But what Canada is doing in soil production to-day is only an earnest of what it can and will do in the near future. The chairman of the Georgian Bay Canal Commission, Mr. W. Sanford Evans, has recently been addressing the farmers of Alberta on the agricultural opportunities of the country, and his remarks exhibit that comprehensive grasp of the question which is typical of the newer and bigger Canadian view. Aside from the qualities of the soil, which are beyond dispute, and the possibility of almost unlimited expansion of acreage, Mr. Evans has been dealing with the Canadian transportation question in its relation to world markets. Passing quickly over the possible rivals of the Dominion as raisers of breadstuffs, he points out the great advantages in Canada's favor. For example, a grain-carrying vessel plying between a Canadian Atlantic port and Liverpool could deliver twice as much wheat in a shipping season as if it ran from either an Argentine port or a port in British India to the same market. This advantage puts Canada in a position to outbid all competitors for agricultural immigrants.

There are confronting Canada at the present time problems of more immediate interest than that of immigration, but there is no secondary question of greater magnitude in the Dominion than that of peopling, and peopling rightly, the immense domains that stretch from the Great Lakes to the Pacific. Canada has found herself, and nothing can be more certain than that with the return of peace an expansion movement will set in for which no parallel, other than that which took place south of the line in the decades immediately following the war between the states, is recorded in me-

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About the Early Life of a Forest Tree.

HOW THE SEED WAS PLANTED

Many of Its Comrades Had Planned in Advance What They Were Going to Do, but Most of Them Perished—Good Work of a Squirrel.

Well, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, tonight I am going to tell the story of

THE LITTLE ACORN.

Once there was a beautiful big oak tree. It grew in the woods, and it was the only oak around there.

The oak was lonely, and so when fall came and the little acorns went pattering to the ground each was anxious to hide in a nice, safe place, so that when spring came they might send up little green shoots and grow up to be oak trees themselves.

Each little acorn as it swung on its branch looked about carefully for a nice place in which to fall.

"I'm going to drop right in the midst of that pile of leaves," said one. "The leaves will keep me warm when the winds blow and the snows fall, as they say they do in the winter."

"I am going to fall in the midst of that bank of soft earth. Then I can work my way down into the soil," said another acorn.

"I shall choose that marshy place over yonder," said a third acorn.

Every acorn had something to say except a little thing that grew on the lower limb. There wasn't much choice for him. By and by when the wind loosened his hold on the tree all he could do would be to fall on the rocks. There he had little chance of finding a place in which to grow, and there, without a cover, the first frosts of winter would pinch him to death. The other acorns did not even think it worth while to ask him where he meant to fall.

One morning the biggest acorn gave a groan.

"There's a squirrel coming up the tree," he said. And the tree began to shake so that the squirrel could not climb up and steal the acorns. The little gray squirrel had just got as far as the lower limb, and he grabbed the first acorn he could see and darted down the trunk with it. He ran to the little hole he had dug in the ground and popped the acorn in. But the squirrel did not bother going back to the tree that was so hard to climb.

After awhile the other acorns began to drop off, but the pile of leaves blew away and left that one to freeze. Another found the soil that looked so soft very hard to pierce, and a third rotted in the swamp.

When the spring came the only one that was alive was the acorn which the squirrel had buried in his little cellar and forgotten to dig up.

That acorn sent up a little green shoot, which became a tall sapling and in time an oak tree, the pride of the forest.

An Interesting Pair.

Recently there was held a great dog show in New York city. It is one of the largest and most popular held anywhere and there were on exhibition dogs of every imaginable breed. Large dogs and small dogs were there to be seen. Some won prizes and others did not, to the grief of their owners. Among the happy ones at the show was little Miss Iris de la Torre Bueno, whose Pekinese Alcelias Chum Chum, won a ribbon. Their pictures are here shown.

LITTLE GIRL AND HER PET.

These Glees and Glums Again.

"Now," said the Glums, "it's a dark, rainy day, and we'll just make little girl and little boy dull and cross!"

"No, you won't," answered the Glees, who happened to overhear the conversation. "We're just on the way to the nursery ourselves, and we're going to remind them of a whole lot of merry, pleasant things to do!"—Philadelphia Record.

Charade.

Before your relatives place a tree;
In astonishment you may ask,
What is the meaning of this I see?
Behold it is naught but a cask.
Answer. Fir, kin—Firkin.

BOWSER'S BLUSTER

Bangs the Gate and Enters Home in an Accusing Attitude.

THE wife who catches her husband's footsteps at the gate and cannot tell from them his state of mind has not studied him as she ought. When the listening Mrs. Bowser heard Mr. Bowser coming down the walk the other evening she heard him striking solidly on his heels. There was note of grim determination in his stride. There was a menace in the way he came on.

Halfway between the gate and the steps he paused.

Then fate ascended the steps and gave the doorknob a twist and a rattle and the door a bang, and Mr. Bowser was in the hall. He held in his hand the broken handle of a snow shovel, and his attitude was that of an accuser. He accused in his posture, with his eyes, with his outstretched arm.

"So you are home?" she said as she reached to help him off with his overcoat.

He waved her off with the handle and removed his own coat. There was deliberation, danger, in the removal.

"Dinner is all ready."

Mr. Bowser leaned the handle against the wall and followed her down to the basement, but did not seat himself at the table. Instead of that, he continued down to the cellar and took a look into the coal bin. When he came up and sat down Mrs. Bowser asked:

"Did you think a water pipe had burst down there?"

"Madam, I shall have something to say to you after dinner."

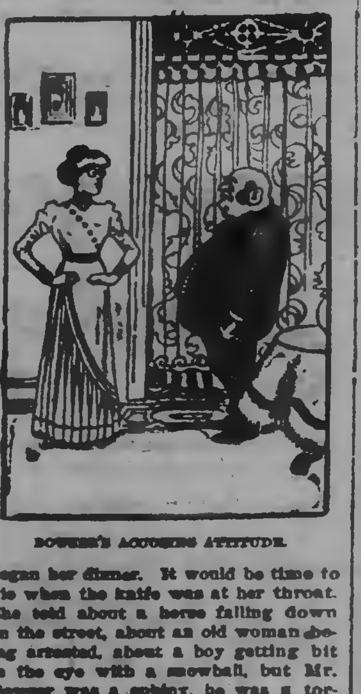
Mrs. Bowser repeated the child's prayer of "Now I lay me" and then began her dinner. It would be time to die when the knife was at her throat. She told about a horse falling down on the street, about an old woman being arrested, about a boy getting hit in the eye with a snowball, but Mr. Bowser was a sphinx, he was a torpedo, he was a can of dynamite, he was a volcano waiting its time to break out and devastate the country for miles around—never a word, never a change of attitude.



BOWSER'S ACCUSING ATTITUDE.

After three-quarters of an hour on the gallows platform Mrs. Bowser arose, and he followed her up to the sitting room. There she drew a long breath and turned to say:

"Well, if I am to be killed let the blow ran."

But he was in no hurry. He was the cat and she the mouse. He lighted a cigar and smoked and paced. It was all of ten minutes before he went into the hall and returned with that snow shovel handle, and, holding it up to her gaze, he hoarsely demanded:

"Woman, do you see this?"

"I do."

"It is the handle of a snow shovel that cost me $2 only last week. You or the cook was using it on the front steps and gave it a whack that wrought this ruin. It was done to spite me."

"In the first place, Mr. Bowser, there is no snow shovel costing the sum you name. One would have to be hand painted and nickel trimmed to cost even a dollar. In the next place, the shovel belonged to little Charley Gray. He was digging snow in our yard and broke it. You come home and find the fragments and I am to be slaughtered for it. Proceed with the next accusation."

Mr. Bowser discovered that he had lost his wind, but he rallied and said:

"Two weeks ago I ordered two tons of furnace coal. I come home tonight, and, though it is not a freezing night outdoors, I find the temperature of the house at least 82 degrees. I go down to the cellar and find two-thirds of the coal gone. The idea is to run me into the poorhouse."

"The temperature of the house is exactly as it was when you flounced your way into it. There hangs the thermometer. It registers 70. You say you ordered two tons of coal. On the desk there is the bill. It is for one ton, and receipted. I have made a half ton last two weeks, and the other half will last as long. We will now proceed to the third accusation!"

Mr. Bowser was floored again, but he had not played out all his rope yet.

Renews the Row.

"Mrs. Bowser," he said as he whirled on her and pointed an accusing finger, "the gas bill—where is the gas bill? You have hidden it away, thinking I would not call for it. I want to see your extravagance for the last month."

"So you shall. It is here in the desk. Please notice that, although last month was longer than the month previous, the bill calls for a dollar less. You see, I have not sold or wasted any of the gas."

Mr. Bowser took the bill and stared at it for fully five minutes. It was a witness against him. He turned purple as he realized it, and, laying it down, he thundered:

"Woman, I discovered a broken milk bottle at the basement door the other morning! That means 20 cents out of my pocket. How many thousand milk bottles have you broken in the last year?"

"The cook may have broken three or four bottles, but they have not cost you anything. The dairy stands the loss."

Another whack on the head for Mr. Bowser. But he had something in reserve. Mr. Bowser never brings all his troops into action at once.

"But what about the refrigerator?" he hissed. "Last night I noticed that it had been knocked all to pieces. It is your duty to notice such things. Have you done so? That refrigerator cost me $40 a year ago. It is now hardly worth 40 cents. Did you take the ax and deliberately hit and hit and hit until you made a wreck of it?"

"That refrigerator," replied Mrs. Bowser, "was bought seven years ago, and the cost was $16. It is not a wreck. No one has hit and hit and hit it with an ax. In moving it out the other day to be cleaned a caster gave way. I sent the cook to the hardware store this morning for another, and it is in place. Go down and look at it."

Mr. Bowser was now breathing like a horse after running up a long hill. Some husbands would have kicked the cat and sat down and shut up, but he refused to. He walked and walked and then said:

"By thunder, but I don't wonder that some husbands are driven to drink!"

"I am driving you, am I?"

"There are two buttons off my vest. I discovered it on the street car this morning. I saw a man grinning at me, and when I asked him the reason he whispered to me to pull down my vest. Think of his daring to say that to me—Bowser! I tell you, Mrs. Bowser"—

Routed in the Finale.

"Let me see your vest," she interrupted as she approached him. "Yes, I thought so. It's your old working vest. There are missing buttons and paint spots. If you will get up in the morning and hunt up old clothes to put on don't blame me."

"And this collar! The blamed thing has choked me all day!"

"That's because your shirt is hunched up in a big wad between your shoulders. Haven't you learned to dress yourself yet?"

"And my socks—great Scott, my socks!"

"Holes in them?"

"Why, they are all holes!"

"And you have six pairs of new ones upstairs! You must have had to look in the rag bag to find these."

"Woman"—

"Yes, dear."

"I—I won't stand it—no, I won't! No, sir, I won't stand it another minute!"

And Mr. Bowser rushed to the hall tree, got into his hat and overcoat and was gone. In the darkness of the winter's night he slipped and slid and sat down and got up to walk and walk, but consolation came not to him. He had raised a row and come out second best.

Nervous Diseases in the Spring

Cured by Toning the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves.

It is the opinion of the best medical authorities, after long observation that nervous diseases are more common and more serious in the spring than at any other time of the year. Vital changes in the system, after long winter months, may cause much more trouble than the familiar spring weakness and weariness from which most people suffer as the result of indoor life, in poorly ventilated and often over-heated buildings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsey and other forms of nerve troubles are at their worst, and that then, more than any other time, a blood-making, nerve-restoring tonic is needed.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening while purgatives only gallop through the bowels, leaving you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine, for they actually make the new, rich, red blood that feeds the starved nerves, and thus cure the many forms of nervous disorders. They cure also such other forms of spring troubles as headaches, poor appetite, weakness in the limbs, as well as remove unsightly pimples and eruptions. In fact they unfailingly bring new health and strength to weak, tired and depressed men, women and children.

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Doctor Grenfell's Mission.

"We were off the northern coast of Newfoundland, just two weeks away from Boston harbor; the log said 1,300 miles—1,300 merry, miserable, wonderful, rolling miles. And we all fell to singing:

"It's a long way to Grenfell Mission;
It's a long way, I know.
And it's no fun being seasick,
With a thousand miles to go.
Speed on, good ship Cluett,
Come on Wind, blow fair;
It's a long way to Grenfell Mission,
But we're almost there!"

"Some days later I chanced to meet the Harvard freshman. He was shoveling coal back of the hospital, and I heard him say as he pitched into the coal, 'Gee, I could eat ten dinners.' Up the path came Billy, the ox, drawing a load of the Cluett's freight, and the Yale freshman, lately arrived from New York, was endeavoring to make old Billy step lively. A Williams man steadied the freight. Between the mission buildings were scraggly fields of grass and patches of open ground ready to be harrowed—a job for Billy and the freshmen.

"During the summer months all the men and older boys of St. Anthony are busy with the fishery, so that extra hands are needed for the work on the mission, and, these hands are gladly lent by the student lads, or 'wops,' as they fondly call themselves. If a drain must be dug or a roof mended, if help is called for in an overburdened hospital ward, the mission [illegible] has to fetch a doctor twenty miles down the coast, there's always a husky 'wop' on hand with an 'All right, sir.'"—Alice Chamberlain Kendall in St. Nicholas.

Escaped From Germany.

Privates 16347 Thurgood, Vancouver, and 24351 Sam Gordon, Montreal, taken prisoners in April, 1915, and members of the original Canadian contingent, have succeeded in escaping and have reached England. The men state that there was not much difficulty in escaping, as the rivers were frozen. Parcels were reaching the prisoners much more regularly lately. It was evident that Germany's difficulties of transport were increasing, and the conditions of the prisoners' camps were not as good as once was the case, but these two think this is not due to the guards, who are anxious to treat the prisoners as well as possible in order to avoid trouble in the camp. When trouble does arise, the guards are packed off to the western front. Every German soldier admits he fervently hopes to avoid such a fate. Thurgood and Gordon were taken care of well after crossing the frontiers, and were sent to England with seven other British prisoners, who also escaped, with nearly two hundred and fifty Russians. The latter, say these Canadians, escape in large numbers.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

WHAT THE KIDNEYS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR

The function of the kidneys is to purify the blood. Every three minutes, the entire blood stream passes through the kidneys and is relieved of its impurities by these busy organs. When the kidneys fail in their work, poison accumulates in the blood—pains are felt in the back, the head aches, the urinary system is deranged, the joints and ankles are apt to swell and there is grave danger of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago.

Gin Pills restore the kidneys to their normal activity, and should be taken as soon as any of the symptoms indicated above are felt. Gin Pills sooth and heal the kidneys. Don't neglect kidney trouble—you will only suffer needless pain.

Famine and World-Hunger Are On Our Threshold

ONTARIO

"——— in the nation's honor, heed! Acquit yourselves like men. As workers on the land, do your duty with all your strength!"

—Lloyd George

THE CRISIS

France, England and Italy in peace times did not depend upon America, but on Russia, Roumania and Bulgaria for most of their breadstuffs. With these sources closed, the crisis of the hour demands that we see that our soldiers and the Motherland are fed.

Everyone in Great Britain has been put on limited rations! Meat is prohibited one day a week, and the making of cakes and pastry has been stopped. Further restrictions are anticipated.

• Bread has gone to 28c per four-pound loaf in England, for the first time since the Crimean War.

Lord Devonport, British Food Comptroller, proposes taking authority to search the houses of Great Britain to prevent food hoarding.

Forty million men, less the casualties, are now on active service.

Twenty million men and women are supporting them by service in other war activities.

One million tons of food-carrying ships have been torpedoed since February 1st, 1917.

Germany's hope for victory is in the starvation of Britain through the submarine.

Canada's sons will have died in vain if hunger compels the Motherland to surrender.

The land is waiting—the plough is ready—will we make the plough mightier than the sword?

Will we help the acres to save the flag?

World-Hunger Stares Us in the Face

David Lubin, representative of the United States to the International Institute of Agriculture—maintained by forty Governments—reports officially to Washington that the food grains of the world on March 31st, 1917, showed a shortage of 150,000,000 bushels below the amount necessary to feed the world until August, 1917. He declares it is beyond question that unless a greater acreage is put to crop in 1917 there will be WORLD-HUNGER before the 1918 crop is harvested.

The failure of the grain crop, in the Argentine Republic, which is ordinarily a great grain-exporting nation, resulted in an embargo being placed, in March, 1917, upon the export of grains from that country to avert local famine.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its official report, announces the condition of the fall wheat crop (which is two-thirds of their total wheat crop), on April 1st, 1917, to be the poorest ever recorded, and predicts a yield of 244,000,000 bushels below the crop of 1915. The 1916 crop was poor. Even with favorable weather, the wheat crop of the United States is likely to be the smallest in thirty-five years, not more than 64% of the normal crop.

Under date of April 10th, Ogden Armour, executive head of Armour & Company, one of the world's largest dealers in food products, stated that unless the United States wishes to walk deliberately into a catastrophe, the best brains of the country, under Government supervision, must immediately devise means of increasing and conserving food supplies. Armour urged the cultivation of every available acre. The food shortage, he said, is world-wide. European production is cut in half, the Argentine Republic has suffered droughts. Canada and the United States must wake up!

Hunger Tightening His Grip

—New York Evening Mail.

People are starving to-day in Belgium, in Serbia, in Poland, in Armenia, in many quarters of the globe.

Famine conditions are becoming more widespread every day.

On these alarming food conditions becoming known, President Wilson immediately appointed a Food Comptroller for the United States. He selected Herbert C. Hoover, to whom the world is indebted, as Chairman of the International Belgium Relief Commission, for his personal direction of the distribution of food among the starving Belgians.

Mr. Hoover is already urging sacrifice and food restrictions, for, as he states, "The war will probably last another year, and we shall have all we can do to supply the necessary food to carry our Allies through with their full fighting stamina."

The Problem for Ontario

The land under cultivation in Ontario in 1916 was 365,000 acres less than in 1915.

Consider how much LESS Ontario produced in 1916 than she raised in 1915.

Other crops show as critical decline.

As there is an average of not more than one man on each hundred acres of farm land in Ontario, the prospects indicate even a still smaller acreage under cultivation in 1917 unless extra labor is supplied.

Food Production is the Greatest Problem the World Faces To-day

Owing to destruction by submarines, ocean ships are scarce.

It is much easier to protect shipping between Canada and England than on the longer voyages from India or Australia.

One vessel can make twice as many trips from Canada to Britain as from India, and four times as many as from Australia.

Therefore, every ton of food stuffs grown in Canada is worth to the Motherland two tons grown in India or four tons grown in Australia.

Why the Call to Canada is So Urgent

If this country does not raise a big crop this year, not only will the people of Canada suffer, but the Motherand and her Allies will suffer, and their military power will be weakened if not paralyzed. Therefore, the right solution of the present war problem comes back to the farm, as to a foundation upon which our whole national and international structure must be built and maintained.

The farmers know that they are the last reserve, and that the soil on which crops are grown is the strategic ground on which wars are decided. To their care is entrusted the base of supplies.

The Second-Line Trenches

—McCay, in The New York American.

To enable the farm to do the work two factors are essential. The first is Time. Whatever we are to do must be done at once. Nature waits for no man. The second is Labor. Many farmers cannot plant the acres they would because they cannot get the necessary help. Many are afraid to increase their acreage because they fear they would not be able to cultivate and harvest an unusual crop after they had raised it. If they are to do the work that is essential for them to do, the last man in each city, town and village must be mobilized at once.

Every man not on Active Service can help. In every city, town and vilage are men who, by their training on the farm, or by their present occupation, can readily adapt themselves to farm work. These can render no greater service to the Empire at the present time than by answering the call of the farm. Capable men and boys willing to learn should not allow their lack of farm experience to stand in the way.

Can the employer render a more signal service in this crisis than by encouraging these men to help the farmer to cultivate every available acre, and by making it easy for them to go?

Ontario's farm lands are waiting—the implements are ready—the equipment is complete—the farmer is willing—all he needs is labor.

So short is the world's food supply that without increased production many in Canada must go hungry, and even with enormously increased production we cannot expect cheap food. The world is waiting for our harvest.

If peace should be declared within a year, the food conditions will be no better, for the accumulated hunger of the Central Empires must be met. This will absorb a large part of the world's supply.

We do not know when this war shall cease. It is endless—its lengthening out has paralyzed the thought and conception of all men who thought about it and its possible time of conclusion. Three months—six months, we said; nine months, a year, we said; and yet two years and eight months have passed their long, dreary and sanguinary length, and there is no man who can tell how long this gigantic struggle may yet last.

Lloyd George, in a letter addressed to farmers throughout the Empire, said:

> "The line which the British Empire holds against "the Germans is held by those who WORK ON THE "LAND as well as by those who fight on land and sea. If "it breaks at any point it breaks everywhere. In the face "of the enemy the seamen of our Royal naval and mercantile marine and the soldiers gathered from every part "of our Empire hold our line firstly. You workers on land "must hold your part of our line as strongly. Every full "day's labor you do helps to shorten the struggle and "brings us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loitering, "lengthens the struggle and makes defeat more possible. "Therefore, in the nation's honor, heed! Acquit yourselves like men, and as workers on land do your duty "with all your strength!"

So, for the honor of Canada's soldiers in France—and for the glory of our New-born Nationhood—let it be said of Ontario's citizens that, in the hour of our greatest need, their response was worthy of their sons.

We owe a great debt to those who are fighting for us.

ST. JAMES CHURCH DEDICATED WITH IMPOSING CEREMONIES

Rev. Dr. Chown Conducted Services Attended by a Large Congregation---The Result of Tireless Work in the Cause.

The beautiful St. James' Methodist Church was formally dedicated yesterday morning by Rev S. D. Chown, D.D., L.L.D., General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, in the presence of a very large congregation. The impressive ceremonies that always attend the dedication of a new building drew a host of the friends of the Rev. Benj. Greatrix, the pastor, and members of St. James' congregation. In fact, long before the hour set for the opening prayer the capacity of the edifice was at its limit, and over three hundred persons had to be turned away, despite the aisles being filled with chairs.

The seats in the front and in the centre were reserved for the City Council and trustees, the members of the building committee and the quarterly board.

Draped over the organ were the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes while in front of the pulpit were placed magnificent palms and other floral decorations which enhanced the natural beauty of the interior.

While the organist was playing the opening prelude the clergy invited to assist in the opening festivities took their seats on the pulpit platform. They were Rev. Dr. Chown, Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, Rev. Dr. Wilson, Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. R. A. Whattam and the pastor, Rev. Benj. Greatrix. After the singing of the Doxology Rev. Dr. Chown offered the opening prayer, in which he asked the Lord's blessing on the services held in the church, and he implored that peace would soon be on earth and the terrible war at an end.

REV. B. GREATRIX
Pastor of the new St. James'

The first Scripture lesson was read by Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., of Trinity Church, who selected the seventh chapter of the second book of Chronicles.

Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., of the George Street Methodist Church, chose for the second lesson the tenth chapter of Hebrews.

The prayers leading up to the dedication were started by Rev. Dr. Chown, followed by Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Then followed the Dedication Hymn, No. 676, "Great King of Glory, Come."

THE DEDICATION SERMON.

Rev. Dr. Chown selected for the text of his sermon the 63rd verse of the 6th chapter of St. John, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life." The speaker then went on to explain that he did not think that the words were to be taken literally, but the two words "spiritual life" should be run together, and read, "The words that I speak unto you are spiritual life." The wonderful sayings of the Lord, such as "I am the resurrection and the life," "I wisdom say unto thee," had made the people marvel and say, "Who is this man that utters such high words?" There was no egotism in the words of Jesus. He spoke with the deepest intention, never corrected anything he said, and though he spoke only for three years, he answered every question concerning the great problems of life. It was no wonder that the officers went back to their king and said, "Never man spake like this man." The Roman soldiers were afraid of him.

The great theologians of the world had tried in vain to find words to describe what Jesus is. Emmerson Strauss and others beheld the feet of Jesus standing on the top of their psychological heights and brought forth the diadem and crowned him Lord of All.

One man had said, "If Shakespeare were to appear we would all rise, but if Christ should appear we must all kneel. The Son of God rises to give strength to those who are sorely tempted, and laid a pathway from hell to the throne of God. Put confidence in Jesus, for he appeals to you in the words of the text, "The words that I speak unto you they are the Spirit and the Life." Open your hearts and take in the Spiritual Life.

REV. DR. CHOWN
Who preached the dedicatory sermon

St. James' Methodist Church is now one of the beauty buildings of the city. Standing on the southeast corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets, it will give service to that great and growing southern section of the municipality and at the same time take in part of North Monaghan, which sooner or later will be taken into the folds of the city by the process of time. The old St. James' Church is now the Sunday school room, but it is really an annex to the church, as the design of Architect Blackwell drew both together in a very uniform manner.

The building is of pressed brick, and the stone is from the Longford quarries. The towers and turrets give a beautiful effect to the Gothic design. The interior of the edifice has been finely arranged. As one enters the building a vestibule the full width of the structure is found, and the galleries are to be reached from stairways at either end. The entrance to the church proper is through four swinging doors to the aisles, which have been laid with carpet, the gift of three ladies of the city, who also furnished the vestry with its beautiful fumed oak fittings.

Three beautiful decorative windows are to be seen. The front one depicts "Christ in the Temple" and was presented by the Brotherhood of the church. On the west side the subject is "Christ Blessing the Children," presented by the Sunday school. The east window is "Christ at His Last Spuper," the gift of the Ladies' Aid.

The seating capacity of the church is seven hundred and fifty, which can be easily increased should the necessity arise.

The entire construction of the building has been under the supervision of Mr. J. H. Frye, who gave close attention to the carrying out of the plans of Architect Blackwell. With the gifts from the old Charlotte Street Church and the free labor given by the members of the congregation, the present structure represents an outlay of about $50,000. The total cost to the congregation is about $22,000. Those who had the contracts for parts of the construction were: Stonework, Mr. Herb Sherwood; foundation, Mr. Fred. Mahood; brickwork, Cuffe Bros.; slate roofing, Mr. Alex McLeod; heating, Mr. W. R. Turner; plastering, Messrs. Jos. and Jas. Wolstenholm; wiring, Alexander & Miller; concrete steps, Mr. H. Shurter; plumbing, Messrs. Adamson & Dobbin. The frames and lumber were purchased from the McDonald Estate, and the glass from the Peterborough Hardware Co.

HINDENBURG IS FOE'S LAST HOPE

NAME IS USED IN EFFORT TO RESTORE MORALE OF GERMANS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

British Headquarters in France, April 30. — There are increasing evidences daily of how the German higher command is using the name of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in an effort to sustain the morale of the German fighting men which was lowered by the retreat from the Somme and the successful launching of the British and French offensive. Prisoners recently taken also tell of how Hindenburg continues to be held up to the German population as the only man in whom it must repose confidence and hope of final victory. The recent retreat was explained by the desire of the German commander to take up a position on the famous Hindenburg line, and prisoners now say that when it becomes known in Germany that the British have turned this position and taken possession of several miles of it there will be great depression.

SUB LOSSES ON THE INCREASE

STATEMENT MADE IN PARLIAMENT BY SIR EDWARD CARSON.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 30. — Sir Edward Carson in the Commons said that as the number of German submarines increased, the danger to shipping must be expected to increase in proportion. During April, he said, the loss to shipping in the English Channel had been less than in any of the preceding three months. This was partly due to the increase of submarines in other areas and partly as a result of the increased number of patrol boats in the English Channel. Generally, the first lord said, the losses are increasing.

GERMANS BEGIN TO FEEL SCARCITY OF MUNITIONS AND ECONOMY IS ADVISED

Troops Are Ordered to Waste no Shells and Worn Out Guns Must be Brought Into Use---Dearth of Material Serious Handicaps Production of Military Supplies.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, April 30. — Heavy fighting continues along the front between Arras and Lens, with very little change in the situation reported, Reuter's correspondent telegraphs today. The Germans continue to bring up fresh troops and to deliver counter-attacks. They hold a windmill northeast of Oppy and have improved their posts along the southwestern slope of Greenland Hill. Continuous fighting is in progress around the Roeux chemical works.

In a general way the situation this morning along the front of attack which began at daybreak on Saturday is that we hold the German front line from the point where the Bailleul-Biache loop line crosses the trenches northwest of Gavrelle to a fork in the Oppy line betewen that place and Arleux. Beyond this fork we hold the German support line for a length of about twelve hundred yards. Thence our front continues just east of Arleux.

The weather was too hazy this morning for good air work, and artillery observation was correspondingly poor, but the gunners on both sides have plenty of registered targets and the old familiar thunder waxes and wanes. Various German documents captured urgently emphasize the necessity of economizing strictly in the expenditure of shells of all types, as a dearth of material is seriously minimizing the output of supplies. It is also urged that artillery officers be trained to employ guns the inner tubes of which are worn out, upon targets which do not necessitate very accurae shooting, as the output of new guns is limited.

AVIATORS FIRE BARRACKS.

PARIS, April 30. — Violent artillery fighting occurred during the night south of St. Quentin in the region of Troyon, Hurtebise and Craonne. Our batteries continued their destruction against the German defences on the heights near Moronvillers. Several German attacks on our trenches and small posts in the sector of Hurtebise, near Mount Cornillet, and in the vicinity of Mount Chambrettes, were broken up by our artillery and machine gun fire. Everywhere else the night was calm.

Enemy aviators last night threw down several bombs in the regions of Dunkirk, Nacy, and Belfort. There were no casualties and the damage was insignificant. Chalons and Epernay also were bombarded, and there were several victims among the civilian population. Saturday night our aviators carried out several bombarding expeditions effectually. A captive balloon was brought down and a barracks containing troops was bombarded, a fire being observed. The railroad stations at Pont-Faverger and Betheniville, and bivouacs near Epoise were also bombarded.

OIL STEAMER TORPEDOED.

LONDON, April 30. — The American oil steamer Vacuum has been sunk. The captain and part of the crew, the naval lieutenant and nine American naval gunners are missing.

GERMANY'S LONE HOPE.

AMSTERDAM, April 30. — Dr. Karl Helfferich told the German Reichstag on Saturday that it was clear the British merchant fleet could not long bear the present rate of submarine attrition, as there are still available for the British trade only seven to ten million tons, and adequate replacement by new building is not possible, as British shipbuilding last year was not enough to make up for ordinary peace time losses.

BRAZIL IS NEUTRAL.

RIO JANEIRO, April 30. — The Brazilian Government on Saturday issued a proclamation of neutrality between the Unitd States and Germany.

LARGE HOSPITALS ARE NEEDED FOR THE WOUNDED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

The Review is informed by the Federal member that on account of the increasing number of wounded that are being returned from the front, and the continued duration of the war, a new policy has for some months been adopted by the Federal Government, which will not open hospitals for the returned wounded unless the building will accommodate 200 beds or more, besides ample room for administration quarters, medical offices, etc. Plenty of room for exercise and suitable grounds for the convales.

FREE RUSSIA WILL NOT MAKE SEPARATE PEACE WITH TEUTONS

Premier Lvoff Says That Even Among the Socialist Party Leaders No One Has Gone So Far as to Propose Such an Agreement.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, April 30. — Even among the most advanced socialistic factions in Russia there is no talk of a separate peace. Speaking on this subject Premier Lvoff said: "There has been up to the present no mention anywhere in Russia of the possibility of concluding a separate peace between free Russia and the powers of Teuton militarism. Among our socialist party leaders no one has ever gone so far as to suppose that any agreement in this direction is advisable. Representative opinion abroad should take more calmly some isolated verses that are asking for immediate steps in preparation for peace. Any Russian proposal to this end will hold it essential that Russia shall act in complete harmony with all the allied nations."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1917

THE LETTER THAT NEVER CAME.

"I WILL WRITE AGAIN in a few days," wrote Lieut. George Noble Milburn to his parents in Smith Township, from the trenches in Flanders. But he never did. Four days after he sent that promise the brave young man fell in battle, and the next his anxious parents heard from him was a despatch from the Record Office containing the announcement of his death.

The last letter written home by Lieut. Milburn shows some of the admirable characteristics of the Canadian soldier—an utter disregard of self, an optimism as to the result of the work in which they are engaged, and a deep interest in those whom they have left behind. Surrounded as they are with dangers of every description, with all the chances for life against them, they do not dwell upon their own case. Lieut. Milburn every day must have seen death in its most ghastly form, and yet he grieved over the demise of friends at home.

The rural districts, as well as the city, have their rolls of honorable dead. Rachel is weeping for her children, gone never to return, in all parts of the district. Whatever may have been their station in life, whatever their rank in the service, those who fell have all attained the same proud degree in that they were devoted soldiers of their king. And among them all, none had a brighter record than the young man who promised to write again to his parents but never did.

THE SCARCITY OF HOUSES.

THE LOCAL EMPLOYERS of labor complain of the scarcity of houses suitable for the accommodation of workingmen and their families. Under present conditions it is all but impossible to get married men to come from outside, as this would mean separation from their wives and children until such time as they would be able to get a house in this city.

The Greater Peterborough Association has for one of its objects the securing of new industries for the city. There may be a matter even more urgent worthy of their attention, the housing of those who are already here and who are required in this city. Builders could be induced to take this matter up and erect the houses that are so badly needed. It is claimed that leased property is not a good investment, but this applies to the more expensive style of residence rather than to the domiciles of the working classes. A Housing Association has been formed in Toronto and other large cities and is working out satisfactorily.

Factories are useless anywhere unless fully manned, and it is impossible to get a full working staff if there is no place where the workmen can be housed. It is a cheering sign that the population of Peterborough appears to be growing despite the war, and the right public spirit should be aroused to take care of these new arrivals in the city and to encourage the influx of outsiders.

THE GOLDEN POTATO SKINS.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Sun has set the people of that city thinking. He calls attention to the fact that on a fair estimate every one of the five million residents of the American metropolis eat at least one potato a day, and that the skins of the tubers are thrown away. The outer covering of a potato will provide seed for the planting of five hills, so that New York, according to these figures, is daily wasting sufficient seed to plant twenty-five million hills of potatoes.

If the New York statistician is right and the same set of figures are applied to the city of Peterborough, local residents are daily throwing into the garbage can sufficient seed to plant one hundred thousand hills of potatoes. This would be ample to seed at least ten acres of land with potatoes and should go a long way toward removing the difficulty with regard to seed.

One agricultural authority says that potato skins will keep a reasonable time without any preparation. If they are packed in ashes, the eyes will begin to grow, and if planted near the top of fertile soil will be through the surface five to ten days ahead of whole potatoes planted.

FAVORS CONSCRIPTION.

TWO EVENTS occurred Saturday that are peculiarly significant in view of the question that is claiming so much public attention in Canada today. Both branches of the American Congress voted by large majorities in favor of conscription. In an election in New Zealand all the candidates opposed to compulsory military service were defeated.

The opponents of conscription in Canada claim that the principle is undemocratic. As an answer to this we see the legislators of the leading democracy in the world adopt it in the interests of all the people. Conscription is the very reverse of undemocratic. In a republic founded on the principles of common justice, all the people are supposed to share the responsibilities and duties as well as the privileges of citizenship. One of the gravest responsibilities, one of the highest duties, is to protect the commonwealth from internal and external dangers. The only fair means of raising an army is by conscription, or the selective draft, as the Americans call it. The trouble and expense and the overlapping that has attended the work in Canada will be avoided in the United States. Those who can best be spared will be taken. The reverse condition has largely prevailed and is prevailing in Canada. The United States will be spared the spectacle of a staff of efficient officers waiting for recruits and waiting in vain, appealing for volunteers from the platform, the press and posters, and by band parades, all to little purpose, spending money that under different arrangements could be devoted to some other object. The selective draft will leave at home those who are most required there.

Miss Rankin, the only woman who has a seat in Congress, voted against war and against conscription when the latter question came up, and anti-suffragists are making much of the circumstance. Miss Rankin, however, is only one woman in several million, and cannot justly be taken as a type of her sex. If her country were actually at war, if she had a father, a husband, a brother, a son, or a lover at the front, while hundreds of others in all ways as eligible loafed at home, the chances are that her vote would have been recorded on the majority side last Saturday.

Peterborough women who have relatives at the front would certainly vote for conscription if they were elected to Parliament or if a referendum on the question were submitted to the people.

There is no gainsaying the fact that all efforts to raise more recruits in Canada under the voluntary system, either for home defence or for overseas service, are so much energy, time and money wasted. In the meantime Canada's forces at the front are unfortunately being sadly thinned in every engagement. The casualties at Vimy Ridge so far reported amount to nearly eleven thousand. Who is to take the places of the men who are in the military cemeteries or in the hospitals? Certainly not those still at home who remain deaf to the call.

GUATEMALA, TOO.

GUATEMALA is the latest nation to drop into line by severing diplomatic relations with Germany and suspending the authority of all the German consuls within her borders. The little Central American republic may not be able to render the Allies very formidable assistance in the struggle now pending, but every little helps, and there is nothing like moral support when in trouble. At all events, Guatemala has placed herself on record as a champion of freedom and civilization.

The population of Guatemala is only a trifle over a million and a half. The president is chosen for a term of sixteen years, and is not eligible for re-election. He is assisted in the government of the country by a national assembly of eighty-two members, who are elected for four years by universal suffrage.

The State recognises no religious creed, all denominations having complete liberty of worship, the Roman Catholics predominating. Education is free and compulsory. The little nation has had no war on its hands since 1906, when it became embroiled with its neighbors, Salvador and Honduras, but peace was soon brought about by the intervention of the United States.

AUSTRALIA BUILDS TRANSCONTINENTAL

Five Capitals United by Great Railway Project—Many Gauges and Delays

In 1916 only 41 miles of the Australian Transcontinental Railway awaited completion. The immediate effect will be to link up the capitals of the five continental states of the Australian Commonwealth by establishing an unbroken line of communication from Brisbane, on the east, through Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide, to Perth, on the west, a distance just a little short of 3,500 miles. The Australian Transcontinental Railway has been long in the building, and is the result of the linking up of isolated stretches of lines constructed in and by the different states rather than of a carefully matured program of development.

Commonwealth Got Busy

Nothing was done looking toward the tracking of this 1,063-mile gap between Port Augusta, in South Australia, and Kalgoorlie, in Western Australia, until 1907, when the Commonwealth Government ordered a preliminary survey of a line to connect these extremities of the existing lines from the east and west. As a result of that survey the Commonwealth decided, four years later, to construct the railway as a Government line. Work was started at both ends in September, 1912.

It was held probable that the opening of the first Australian Transcontinental line would have the same immediate effect as did the opening of the first African transcontinental line. The Australian railway, and more particularly the thousand mile stretch between Port Augusta and Kalgoorlie, passes through a relatively poor and barren land, which does not now seem susceptible of the same agricultural development as the land pierced by the Union Pacific. And again, the largest results cannot be anticipated from the Australian trunk line because of the lack of uniformity or gauge throughout its length, a defect traceable to the different gauges adopted by the different states in the first days of railroad building.

Four Transfers Needed

In the trip from Brisbane to Perth four transfers of passengers and freight will be necessary and the trouble, delay and added expense of these transfers, already of appreciable magnitude along the eastern section of the line, will naturally become more serious along the entire line as the volume of business increases. Notwithstanding the existence of this present defect, which the Commonwealth Government is already to remedy the completion of the Australian Transcontinental railway will undoubtedly facilitate interstate trade and, in conjunction with its principal branches, will allow the produce of inland areas to find its natural outlet at the nearest port.

DUTY OF CANADIANS

"As it is the people's privilege to govern themselves, it is the people's duty to defend themselves, and, for this, military training should form part of the education of every boy and girl. Speculators holding vacant lands should be compelled to cultivate them or dispose of them at reasonable terms. Many causes, after the war, will combine to multiply farm produce, but prices will be lower in all countries. You must lower the cost of production.

"There should be compulsory farming education in the schools. After the war, simple living and economy will be imperative, for Canada will be pitched into a vortex of nations struggling desperately to recover themselves."—Sir James Aikins, Winnipeg.

WRIST IS PART OF HAND

Peculiarities of Arms of Civilized Peoples Are Explained

In the higher races of mankind the upper bone of the arm is twisted in a peculiar way, so as to make the hand a better tool by bringing the thumb into a more favorable position. This is one of the most curious of Nature's anatomical adaptations. Furthermore, the muscles of the thumb are so arranged as to give to that member more independent action than is enjoyed by any of the other fingers. There is a flexor and an extensor for each joint, which is not the case with the other fingers, and the thumb muscles are extraordinarily strong.

The real wrist, as one might say, is the elbow joint. It is all hand, practically speaking, from that point to the tips of the fingers. When you turn your wrist, it is the whole forearm that makes the twist; and every movement of the fingers is controlled by the muscles of the forearm.

The power to turn the wrist to and fro at the elbow joint is possessed only by human beings and monkeys, and even the higher apes are not able to do the trick nearly as well as we can. In this movement the great "biceps" muscle in the upper arm is importantly concerned, its powerful action in turning the forearm outward being accountable for the fact that we are able to put so much more strength into a twist in that direction than the opposite way. Many of our most familiar tools, indeed, such as the screw-driver, are made with reference to the anatomical peculiarity in question. It is for this reason, and no other, that all screws turn to the right.

For the Motorist

Always keep the car in motion while turning the steering wheel. Otherwise you subject the steering gear to a severe strain. If you have not much room let in the clutch just a trifle—only enough to give the car a push. The wheel will be easier to turn and so the strain will be relieved to a great extent.

Rubber nails for places where metal ones would corrode are a novelty.

CHILDREN OFTEN DESTROY TO CREATE

Spirit of Invention in Children—Always Seeking to Know—Study the Mind of Your Child

A mother writes: We approve the child's creative instinct. We let him make his sand castle, and his tower of bricks, and his mud pies; but we punish him for pulling his toy engine to pieces, and for disembowelling the clockwork mouse. We fail altogether to see that the destructive instinct is after all only a modification of that which leads the child to create. The destruction leads to creation. A child will pull to pieces a very expensive and elaborate toy, possibly in order to make something that he desires to make—something which, when it is finished, is not in the least pleasing to the eye. It is crude in conception, and faulty in execution; but after all, it is the work of the child. It is his creation, and he feels pride and pleasure in the contemplation of it.

Natural Curiosity

There is yet another reason why children destroy. We have seen that they pull things to pieces in order to reconstruct them, or to make from the resulting pieces some other toy more interesting to themselves. They also destroy their toys to satisfy that natural curiosity which we realise is so helpful a factor in their education.

"I wonder what makes it go?" says the child, looking wide-eyed at the performing engine, that goes so fast when you have wound it up, and stands so still when you haven't. Can we wonder that the child, after a time, loses patience with the engine that will not explain its tricks. Can we marvel that a ruthless taking to pieces results? The child is eager to know why the engine goes, and so he breaks it to find out.

The Exploring Spirit

In a man this thirst for exact knowledge is commended. We admire the enterprise that led to the construction of all the scientific experiments which were needed before the important truth could be unearthed and given to the world. The inventor who tries and tries again, is a man we revere. The intrepid explorer, risking life and limb, is the object of our veneration.

But we fail to see that in our nursery at home the child, pulling his toys to pieces to find out things about them, is, after all, only a scientist, an inventor, or an explorer in the making. He is seeking to know. That the means he takes to discover the truths he desires are not in themselves commendable, is, after all, not the child's fault.

Some children destroy in order to make anew, others destroy in order to see why, or how. It is only occasionally that we find a child breaking for the pure pleasure of breaking. It is, in reality, open to question if this is ever done. It is not easy for the average grown-up person to see into the mind of the child. "Why did you do this You naughty boy!" The first clause is the only one needed in the above sentence. That is to say, if we ask, "Why did yo do this?" we may with reason hope for a true answer.

Fish Cake

Half pound cooked fish, 5 ounces mashed potatoes, 1 ounce melted butter, half teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, two tablespoonful milk, salt, pepper, nutmeg, and breadcrumbs, one egg. Take all skin and bone from the fish and mix with the potatoes. Melt butter and mix all together. Form into round cakes. Cover with egg and breadcrumbs and fry in hot fat.

Clean Motor Leather

Go over the leather on the car occasionally with special leather dressing and the difference in the appearance of the upholstery will repay you a thousand times. It also keeps the leather soft and pliable, helps to resist rain, and prevents it from wearing out so rapidly.

Carelessness Comes First

Fire Commissioner Adamson, of New York city, in an annual report, says that carelessness holds first place as the cause of fires. Of a total of 11,455 fires in buildings, 8,960 were in homes and 2,495 in other buildings. The remedy for this is obvious—greater care in the home.

London's "Big Ben"

Apropos of Britain's efforts to save daylight and the consequent putting on of all clocks one hours, does anyone realize what the speeding up of "Big Ben," the great clock in the tower of the House of Parliament, by a single hour really means? The minute hand of this enormous timepiece is no less than 14 feet in length and weighs a couple of hundredweight. The minute spaces on the dial are each 1 foot in length, so that the big hand will have to be pushed forward a distance of 5 feet.

LONDONERS ARE LIONS; NEED GREAT REVIVAL

Words From Sir William Robertson and Bishop of London—"Blood Again Redeems the World"

The Bishop of London, who preached at a service at St Michael's Cornhill, in memory of the men from offices in the parish who had fallen during the war, read the following letter from General Sir William Robertson: "This is to wish you complete success in your national mission work. I fear that even yet too many of us are putting an undue amount of trust on 'chariots and horses.' We may confidently rely on our soldiers and sailors fighting bravely, and count upon having abundant ammunition, but we must not stop at that. I am old fashioned enough to think that this great war, like those of which we read in the Old Testament, is intended to teach us a necessary lesson, and if this be so it follows that we ought to examine ourselves and take the lesson to heart.

"Seek Divine Help"

"A serious determination on the part of the nation to seek and deserve Divine help would, we may hope, enable us to take a true perspective of the war, and it would undoubtedly furnish valuable help to our gallant sailors and soldiers at the front, as well as lighten the heavy burden of responsibility now carried by the various authorities at home and abroad."

Bishop on His Londoners

There, said the Bishop, was their answer to the frothy demagogues who talked and did nothing; who tried to substitute jingoism for patriotism and foster a spirit of national swagger instead of humble confidence in God. This was what the men thought who did the work. The great heads of the city firms had discovered something they hardly knew in this war, and that was the marvellous manhood and courage of their young clerks, a race of heroes. A fine saying had come from the battlefield: "A Londoner has the heart of a lion." Two thousand men from that parish were serving and 200 had laid down their lives. He believed that the world was again being redeemed by precious blood.

CANDID ABOUT ONTARIO

Westerners Think Easterners Love to Exploit Them

An Ontario writer, discussing the views of Hon. George Brown of Saskatchewan, says: You should hear this Westerner enlarge on the attributes of Ontario. He is somewhat like George Bell, lately retired from the secretaryship of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Bell is an old Ontarian who inveighs against the Ontario man on forty years' Western experience pretty much in the same way as the Ontario man has discussed the average Englishman who used to come to Ontario in the "We owns 'em" spirit. The Ontario fellow imagines that over the plainsman he has cast his shoe, that the Saskatchewan is his washpot; that there is none like unto Ontario, no, not one; Governor Brown is an old Ontarian, but he knows us for what we are capable of doing to the West.

"MAKING OVER OF MRS. MATT."

MAY ROBSON CHARMS BIG AUDIENCE AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

They used to call it "Matt's Wife," but they have changed the name to "The taking over of Mrs. Matt," and introduced some new faces into the cast, but May Robson, the star, remains, and the play is as healthy and sparkling and entertaining as ever.

A Western capitalist struck it rich and, shifting to a new scene of operations, blossomed out as one of the big men in Wall Street. The making of money did not satisfy him. He was ambitious that his wife should be a social leader and that his son should contract a brilliant marriage, but all his plans go wrong. Mrs. Matt cannot work up any enthusiasm in the new role that has been chosen for her. She is a simple, impetuous, brainy, home-loving and democratic woman who feels vastly more at home in a kitchen than a drawing-room. The son, too, kicks over the paternal plans and falls in love with the capable stenographer in his father's office. The play abounds with rich humor, quaint incidents and homely philosophy and shows that the mother is always ready to take the side of her son rather than that of her husband.

The audience at the Grand Saturday night was charmed with the performance and the stage band who manipulates the curtain was worked overtime after every act.

EDITOR'S MAIL

We have received for publication a letter signed only with the phrase "I Am a Britisher." Had the writer failed to volunteer information as to his nationality we would never have suspected it from the tone of his epistle. Of course, the communication cannot be published, lacking all evidence, as it does, of good faith, but we would very much like to have the writer call upon us, for various reasons, all of which it may not be necessary to give. One of these reasons, however, is that we would like to have an opportunity to satisfy ourselves by personal investigation whether the writer of that letter is merely a harmless imbecile or just a plain, inordinate dub liar.—Ed. ROMANCE OF ALFALFA.

Journeyed From Ancient Persia to Peaceful Ontario.

The story of alfalfa is one of the romances of agriculture. Five hundred years before Christ the plant was recognized in Persia, but it was not until a little over half a century ago that it first became generally known in North America.

In the interval between these periods the history of alfalfa is interwoven with the rise and fall of Empires and the movements of armed hosts. Alfalfa furnished fodder for the war horses of the Persians when Greece was invaded by the latter. Carried to northern Africa, possibly by one of the followers of the Queen of Sheba, it was later taken to Italy and still later the Moors left it in Spain as the only really beneficent legacy of the Arab conquest. When the Spaniards themselves became conquerors, in turn they took the plant with them to Mexico in North America and Chile in South America, and from Mexico it has spread, via California, all over the western and middle western States, and from Chile it has crossed the Andes to feed the herds of Argentina.

While the Spaniards are chiefly responsible for the introduction of alfalfa into the warmer States of the neighboring Union, the growing of the crop in Canada and the northern States appears to have been made possible by the introduction of seed from Germany. Alfalfa was first taken to Germany by the Spaniards, and in time it became hardened by its environment. From Germany Wendelin Grimm in 1857 brought a 20-pound package of this hardy seed to America, and from that 20-pound packet most of the alfalfa grown in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana originated. About the same time another German brought to the Niagara district other hardy seed, and from this has sprung the Ontario variegated of to-day, a variety which has given as satisfactory results in Ontario as Grimm has given in Minnesota.

But what a story! From Persia to Greece, from northern Africa to Spain, from Spain to Germany on one side and Mexico on the other, and then from Germany to Ontario and Minnesota.

The Country's Finances.

Near approach of the end of the fiscal year finds Canada's financial position sound. The Customs revenue, which may be regarded as a fairly reliable barometer of trade conditions throughout the country continues to break records. The figures for February showed an increase of more than ten per cent. over the corresponding figures for 1916; and there is reason to expect that equally satisfactory advances will be shown in March.

This is satisfactory in a double sense: it shows that despite the war the country's prosperity continues on the upgrade, and it acts as an incentive to the nation to lift that prosperity to a still higher level.

During the past two and a half years the nation's energies have been chiefly devoted to the war, and rightly so, because the whole future of the Dominion and the Empire depends upon the success of the vast issue in Europe. But it is nevertheless important, if not vital, that the commercial and industrial activities of the country be maintained and extended in every possible way, if only to bring about a condition whereby the Dominion will be in a stronger position to meet the heavy burdens that will necessarily be imposed upon it as a result of the war.

And, in addition to that important aspect, there is the future development of the country to be borne in mind. After the war there will be an unloosening of the national energies now concentrated upon a temporary but vital enterprise. The great armies now battling in Europe will be forged into industrial armies and concentrated upon the task of regenerating the devastated industrialism of most of the nations now dedicated to war. There will have to be great reorganizations, and there will necessarily be great upheavals, and it would be folly on the part of Canada, if, while expending her energies now upon the supreme issue in Europe, she did not, at the same time, make some preparation to maintain for herself after the coming of peace, the splendid position she has so dearly won in this war.

"Ever been locked up?" demanded counsel.

"I have been," admitted the witness.

"Aha! And what had you been doing to get yourself locked up?"

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About an Interesting Little Insect.

HOW IT IS FED AND REARED.

Queer Home In Which It Begins Its Career—Baby Food That Would Not Appeal to Children—How a Small Boy Became a Hero.

This evening, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about

WASPS AND A BOY.

Once when I was a small boy I knew a little fellow named Tommy Tompkins.

Tommy was a wonderful boy, and he did his best to make the rest of us think he was one.

Every spring the wasps had a great time building more cells and new houses.

In each cell, we were told, the mother wasp would lay an egg, which would hatch out after awhile into a baby wasp, and we were told also that before the little white cover was fastened to the opening in the cell so that the baby wasp would be kept nice and warm until it was able to take care of itself the pantry would be stored with food for the babies to eat.

And what do you think the wasps feed their babies? Well, they give them nice fat spiders. Spiders are just as much afraid of wasps as flies are afraid of spiders.

When the wasps catch a spider they sting him so he cannot fight. Then they drag him to their nest and stuff him into one of the egg cells. By and by, when the cell is full of spiders, the mother wasp will lay an egg in it. Then a warm curtain is spun over the mouth of the cell. When the baby wasp comes out of the egg it will eat these spiders.

You know how a wasp can sting. Boys and girls are generally afraid of them, and they have good reason to be so.

Little Tommy Tompkins, however, became quite a hero in the neighborhood because he said he was not afraid of wasps and bees.

"They don't bite me, wasps don't. Bees don't neither," he would say.

If you made it very pleasant for Tommy Tompkins he would come over into your yard and when a bee came along hold out his little hand and let the insect settle there. The bees and wasps didn't sting Tommy, but now that I am grown up and know more about insects I don't think it so strange. The reason was he kept perfectly still, so that he did not frighten or anger them.

While there are some cross insects that sting folks without any seeming reason, usually if you stand perfectly still the bee or wasp won't hurt you. Of course if he has been stirred up by somebody or something before you come along he is going to take it out on you, so it is just as well to keep away from stinging bugs and not try to be a Tommy Tompkins.

Numerical Puzzle.

I am the name of a book that one reads very often, but never reads through, and I am composed of ten letters. My 3, 8, 7, 8, 9 and 10 is the name of a bird and also of islands; my 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 4, 6 and 9 is the name of a person who is superior to all other rule in wartime; my 5, 9, 6 and 7 is the name of a metal.

A Little Rich Boy.

Not many little people are obliged to pay rent for the house they live in. Papa usually attends to that. Not so Master John Jacob Astor, who was four years old last August. His father, the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, who was lost on the steamship Titanic, provided in his will that young John should inherit a great fortune. So he is able to pay his own way, although his mother attends to all the details. Young John doesn't know nor care about it. Last year it cost over $37,000 to support the four-year-old baby.

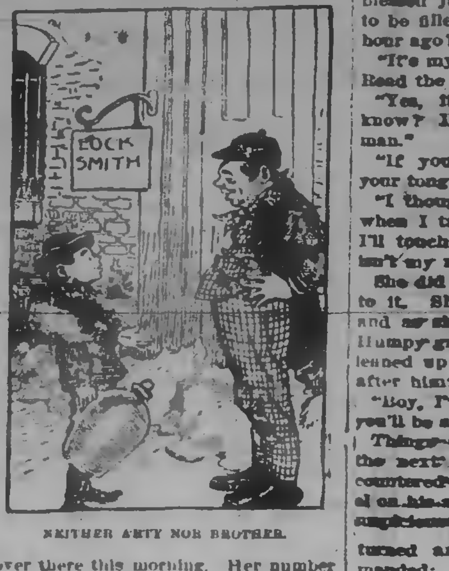
"HUMPY" SKINNER

Starts on His His Mother's Orders to Deliver a Jug of Dye.

"HUMPY," said Mrs. Skinner to her eldest and only the other Saturday morning, "Mrs. Pond, who used to live next door to us and moved over on Glover street last summer, is making a rag carpet. She is going to have five different colors in it. Red is one of them, but she hasn't had good luck with her dye. I told her the other day I'd make her some. I've got it made and in a jug, and I want you to carry it over there this morning. Her number is 221. It's right next to an old graveyard, and you can't miss it."



NEITHER ARTY NOR BROTHER.

"But I don't want to carry a jug through the streets," protested Humpy.

"I'd like to know why!"

"Folks will think I'm carrying whisky."

"Folks won't think any such thing. I've written a label and pasted it on the jug. It says 'Dye.' Anybody that can read won't take it for whisky."

"If I meet a policeman he won't believe it's dye."

"Then he can taste and see. Don't make any further excuses, but run right along. She wants to get the carpet done on her birthday."

"Can I go skating when I come home?"

"I'll see about it. Tell Mrs. Pond it's cherry red and she'll have to use soft soap to get it off her hands afterward."

It was a gallon jug and quite full. Humpy started out in a doubtful way, and he had gone just two blocks when a carpenter with a board on his shoulder halted him to say:

"Young man, who are you, and what have you got in that jug?"

"I'm carrying it somewhere," was the reply.

"Yes, you are carrying it somewhere, but I want to know where and all about it. I've had a jug stolen."

"But this can't be the one."

"I don't know about that. I had a gallon of stuff for my rheumatism put up at the drug store, but left it at the door while I talked with a man, and when I turned around it was gone. What's that label there?"

"It says dye, and it is dye. Mother made it."

The Carpenter Tastes It.

The man took the jug, shook it, pulled the cork and tasted the contents and then said:

"It may be as you say, but if you are lying to me I shall find it out sooner or later. A boy who will steal a man's rheumatic cure will break into a house and murder a whole family—in [illegible] beds. If you have a guilty conscience beware of me!"

Just around the next corner was an old woman at her gate. She grinned as she saw Humpy coming, and when he had come up she reached out her hand for the jug and said:

"Thank you, bub. I see that you haven't stopped to play by the way."

"You can't have this jug," replied Humpy as he twisted it away.

"It's my jug, and it's full of red dye. Read the label."

"Yes, it says dye, but how do I know? I'm going to call for a policeman."

"I thought you wouldn't be so bold when I talked about the police. Yes, I'll touch my tongue to it, and if it isn't my molasses"—

She did more than touch her tongue to it. She took two good swallows, and as she began to spit and sputter Humpy grabbed the jug and fled. She leaned up against the gate and called after him:

"Boy, I'm a dyed-dead woman, and you'll be shocked to death for it!"

Things went well with the jug for the next five minutes. Then it encountered an Italian with a snow shovel on his shoulder. He gave Humpy a suspicious look as he passed and then turned and ran after him and demanded:

Italian Takes It For a Bomba.

"Boy, whatta you gotta in dat jug?"

"What is that to you?"

"He was mucha to me. You tells me quick!"

"It's dye for carpet rags."

"He was diea, was he? Den you was some Black Hand, eh? You like blowa me uppa with a bomba!"

"Don't you know what dye is?" asked Humpy in contempt.

"It was Black Hand. You lighta de fuse and she go booma!"

The man was getting ready to swipe the jug with his snow shovel when a teamster jumped down and came running up and said:

"Here, you banana peeler, you get along or I'll roll you in the snow! What's in the jug, boy?"

"Red dye for carpet rags."

He took the jug, removed the cork and sipped of the dye and said:

"Anybody that sold that stuff to your father for A1 ought to be prosecuted, but one can't be too particular such hard times as these."

"If it kills you I shan't be to blame," said Humpy as he received the jug.

"Don't fear for me, sonny. Tastes kinder queer, but the dye was never made that can down me. Why, I drink carbolic acid when I can find nothing else."

Two blocks farther on a tramp had been thrown out of a saloon into a snowdrift. He had just picked himself up and was looking around him in a discouraged way when his eyes lighted on Humpy and the jug, and he smiled and said:

"If it hain't my little brother Arthur then I'm a goat!"

"But I'm not your brother Arthur," protested Humpy.

"Arty, don't go back on your brother Napoleon. Just a little taste of that claret."

"It's dye for carpet rags."

"What color?"

"Red."

"Glory! That's what I've been waiting for a whole year—a long, guzzling drink of red dye. I think my vitals are changing to blue, and I want to dye them back to red. Just one drink, Brother Arty."

"It'll poison you, for sure!" said Humpy.

"Then welcome poison—welcome death! I shall die a martyr to dye. Yes, Arty, it's my old favorite beverage, the drink I've longed for, and here goes."

And the man lifted up the jug and seemed to swallow a full pint of the contents before he stopped to breathe. Humpy grabbed for the jug and prepared to run, but at that moment a policeman turned the corner and saw and exclaimed:

Up Against the Cop.

"Doing a saloon business out in the street, are you? We'll see about this."

"It's dye for carpet rags," explained the boy.

"Oh, it is, is it? Boy, hand over that"—

He made a dive for the jug, and Humpy made a jump to get away with it, and it fell to the walk and broke, and a great red spot began to spread over the snow. The officer shouted, the tramp cried out at the waste, and Humpy took to his heels. Half an hour later he had told his mother all about it, and she was replying:

"Humpy, dear, you wanted to go skating after doing your errand."

"And can I go?"

"Oh, yes. I have a nice little rink out here in the woodshed, [illegible] and do your skating while I put on the gad."

Tokio Began to Assume Its Present Importance in the Middle Sixties

IN a way almost unique, Tokio represents an epoch in the history of the country of which it is the capital. When, in the middle '60s, the Japanese made their momentous decision definitely to throw in their lot with the West in the matter of civilization, they set about achieving their purpose with all that thoroughness so characteristic of them as a people. If there was to be a change, then they would make it whole-hearted. Kyoto, the ancient of the country, was irretrievably bound up with the ancient regime, and the ablest men in Japan at that time saw clearly enough that, if the Court was to take its proper place in the country, and if the Emperor was to become a real ruler, and not the mere mouthpiece he had been, for many centuries, under the rule of the Shoguns, a clean sweep would have to be made of the past. It was, therefore, in this spirit that Okubo Toshimichi of Satsuma, one of the greatest statesmen of the new era, made, in 1868, a novel and startling proposition. He proposed nothing less than that the Emperor should abandon the traditions which had grown up respecting his person and his Court, and rule his Empire not merely in theory but in practice. To do this successfully, he recommended that the capital be transferred "from the place of its degrading superstitions," namely Kyoto, to a new home.

A few years before, such a proposition would have been regarded as something like a sacrilege; but those few years had made all the difference. The proposal was received with favor by the Emperor, and the place ultimately chosen for the new capital was Yedo, where for 250 years the family of Tokugawa, the last of the Shogun dynasties, had lived and guided the destinies of the Empire. And so, on November 29, 1869, the Emperor arrived at Yedo, and took up his residence at the famous castle, built there centuries before by Tokugawa Iyeyasu, the hero of Sekigahara. He left behind him in Kyoto something very like consternation. To many people, the removal of the Emperor from the ancient capital was the end of all things. For a thousand years and more, Kyoto had been the capital of Dai Nippon, and, for over twenty-five centuries, according to tradition, the emperors had ruled from some spot near the sacred city. All the powers of religious fanaticism were drawn upon to prevent the Emperor from carrying out his purpose, but in vain. Yedo was not only chosen the capital, but, to make assurance doubly sure, its name was changed to Tokio, which interpreted, means "eastern capital." As some compensation to the disappointed and much-distressed citizens of Kyoto, their city was called Saikyo the "western capital." The severance, however, was definite and final, and marked for Japan, perhaps in the most forcible way possible, the final break with the past.

Thus Tokio is far and away the youngest amongst the world's capital cities. Its history, however, stretches back far beyond 1869. Two hundred and fifty years before that date the Shogun Ieyasu had built there a great city, and not many years after that time Yedo had attained the position of first city of the Empire in point of population. As to the modern Tokio, it finds a full expression in the Imperial Palace, which stands on the site of the ancient castle of Yedo, formerly the residence of the Shoguns. It is half European and half Japanese in its style of architecture. So Tokio, itself, is a mixture of the two. The numerous houses of the daimios, or vassals, the chief characteristic of the old town, have been largely swept away, and Government offices and new houses, lining new streets, have taken their places. Tokio, in short, like the Imperial Palace, like all Japan, is a strange mixture of East and West.

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. Robt. Ploughs Work at Night.

Giving up the horse, England is devoting her attention to the motor tractor as a means of ploughing the new tracts of land intended for cultivation. England is ploughing not only in the day time, but at night also.

The first real attempt at night ploughing was made at a village in Buckinghamshire with a four-furrow plough harnessed to one of the new motor-tractors. It was manned by two persons, a mechanic at the wheel of the tractor and a gentleman volunteer seated on the plough behind to guide it. The tractor was lighted up with a powerful motor-car acetylene headlight. All through the night hours the ploughing went on, and in the morning the most expert ploughman could not have distinguished between the day and the night work.

The owner of the farm where this experiment was made said that the motor-tractor had been at work less than five days and three nights and had ploughed forty-two acres. To plough the same acreage with a horse-plough would take fifty-six days, while with a motor-tractor working the average eight-hour day it would have taken twelve days.

The men are ploughing twenty hours out of twenty-four. They work in five-hour shifts, with intervals of an hour between each for oiling up and adjusting the tractor.

Asking Too Much.

The mother of little six-year-old Mary had told her a number of times not to hitch her sled to passing sleighs, feeling that it was a dangerous practice. It was such a fascinating sport, however, that Mary could not resist it, and one day her mother saw her go skimming past the house behind a farmer's bob.

When she came in from play she was taken to task, her mother saying severely: "Mary, haven't I told you that you must not hitch on to bobs? Besides, you know it is against the law."

Mary tossed her head. "Oh," she said, "don't talk to me about the law! It's all I can do to keep the Ten Commandments!"—Woman's Home Companion.

Don't Mention It.

The politest man in Boston collided violently with another man on the street. The second man was angry. "My dear sir," said the polite one, with a bow, "I don't know which of us is to blame for this encounter. If I ran into you I beg your pardon; if you ran into me don't mention it."—Success Magazine.

THE GOOD WORK OF THE I.O.D.E.

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Regent Chapter, I. O. D. E., was held in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon, April 26th, the regent, Mrs. Walker, presiding.

It was decided to hold a rummage sale on May 18-19. It is hoped all friends of the chapter will help to make it a success.

The visiting committee reported having made thirty-four visits since the last meeting.

Mrs. May of the hospital committee made 23 visits. Flowers were sent to the homes of any members who have suffered bereavement.

A Union Jack has been presented to the War Veterans' Association by the chapter.

Mrs. Turner reported that the scrap paper committee had collected the paper from the C. G. E., the schools and private residences.

Thanks for Favors.

The members wish to thank the Toronto Loan and Savings Co. for the use of a warehouse; Mr. R. Denne and the Bonnie-Worth for generous contributions of bags; the C. G. E., the schools, the stores and those citizens who are giving a splendid monthly contribution of baled paper and the merchants who so kindly collected the first paper.

It is hoped the members of the chapter will try to interest as many as possible in the saving of scrap paper, so that collections may increase each month.

Knitting Committee.

The knitting committee reported as follows:

Letters acknowledging receipt of socks were received from Signaller Chas. Sharpe, 48th How. Bty.; Corp. W. Miller, 4th Bn.; Bugler R. Taylor, 6th Reserve Bn.; J. J. Barraclough, 3rd Can. Field Amb., Mech. Transport; Corp. Hensley, C. A. S. C. Mech. Transport; Capt. Garnet Greer, 12th Can. Field Amb., 4th Can. Div.

At the Armories on the morning of April 9th we gave socks to all officers and men of the 247th Bn. that were leaving for overseas; 156 pairs, and sent 20 pairs to Ottawa for the Peterborough men in 235th Bn. that were leaving for overseas.

One hundred and nineteen pairs of socks were received during the month.

Socks donated: rMs. V. Eastwood, two pair; Mrs. Abbott, two pair; Mrs. J. McDermid, one pair; Mrs. J. McIntyre, one pair; Mrs. Miller, one pair; Mrs. D. Walker, three pair.

Seven spindles of wool have been purchased.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. Cottrell, Convenor.

From Nursing Sister Mowry.

No. 7 Can. General Hospital,
Army P. O. S., Hospital,
B. E. F., France.

Dear Mrs. Walker;

I received a parcel from you some time ago containing property bags and a scrap book. Will you thank the ladies of Bridgenorth for me? I distributed the bags in my ward, and gave the few remaining to our Red Cross Society. All acceptable and can be made use of. The bags are a bit smaller than the usual property bag, but are just the correct size for shaving apparatus.

Am sure you would be repaid for all the work you are doing at home if you could see how our boys appreciate everything. I explained to the ward that these things came from my home town, and immediately one of the patients said, "Let me write 'a thank you' on behalf of the boys." You will probably receive it with this letter.

I have never asked our Red Cross for anything I could not get, even when we have admitted seven hundred patients in twenty-four hours. We can get socks, scarfs, wristlets, caps, pyjamas, night shirts, handkerchiefs, shaving soap, razors, writing paper, envelopes, cigarettes, tobacco, pipes, etc. Our dressings are beautifully made and the supply unlimited. I often wonder in our busy days how the supply is kept up, but even through the biggest "push" it has never failed. Just now we are so busy and preparing for the hard summer we al realize is ahead of us. Our present capacity is one thousand three hundred. We expect to open our marques in a week or two and this will mean seven hundred and fifty more beds for No. 7.

It is just one big hospital city here. English, Canadians and Australians. Within an area of three square miles there are twenty-three hospitals with accommodation for thirty-five thousand patients. This will give you an idea of the work and the great need for supplies. Then we are only one little spot—hundreds such in France.

Pte. Mackenzie Writes.

In addition, letters were received from Pte. G. B. Mackenzie, an Australian soldier, and from Capt. W. H. Munro. The letter from the former was as follows:

Dear Mrs. Walker:

On behalf of the boys at present under Sister Mowry's care I am forwarding this little note of thanks for that parcel of useful little bags you sent to her. She has not many of them now; we all froze on to them like "one thing," they're so handy, just the right size for one's shaving gear, brush and comb and any other little necessities we may be carrying. Will you kindly inform those thoughtful ladies of Bridgenorth we are indeed grateful to them.

The scrap book, too, was more than welcome. It is quite the best I've seen, so full of bright, snappy pars, and so well put together. Kindly convey our thanks to Mrs. Magee for it.

We have only one complaint here, that is, it's for too nice and comfortable here to leave, and it is with troubled minds we contemplate the day of our departure. I am an Australian, and have been at different times at inmate of English and Australian as well as Canadian hospitals, and the treatment and attention we receive here is far and a long way ahead of that we received in either of the others. I'm not "swanking" to you because this is your hospital and I'm writing you from it. To use an Australian expression "I'm dinkum" (honest).

In conclusion we send our united good wishes for the future welfare and prosperity of yourself and the chapter. I remain.

Sincerely yours,

Capt. Munro's Letter.

Dear Mrs. Walker:

The six pair of leather mitts the I. O. D. E., Peterborough, sent for the use of the men in this unit were received, and assuredly were appreciated by those to whom they were served out. During the latter part of January and the month of February the weather in the north of France was very severe, the worst they have experienced in two generations, it is said. In Canada we would have called it average winter weather, but when there is no reliable place to go to, it is anywhere from serious to inconvenient, according to the shelter a man gets. Our men got through with no serious cases, but there was very little inflammable material which could be borrowed or stolen in the neighborhood toward the end of it. The drivers are issued mitts, but not the repair gang, who need them worse, if anything. Your parcel, along with others I got, fitted them out and helped to keep them well, in addition to making it possible to get out more work.

Yours sincerely,
Hamilton Munro.

After the meeting, tea was served, during which the members were given an opportunity to meet their former regent, Mrs. E. B. Clegg, who has recently returned from England.

Roosevelt's Offer is Rejected by Congress

HE WILL NOT BE SENT TO EUROPE AT HEAD OF VOLUNTEERS.

WASHINGTIN, April 30. — Congress rejected by a vote of 170 to 106 an amendment offered by Representaive Austin, Republican of Tennessee, authorizing the President to accept the services of Theodore Roosevelt and a division of volunteers for immediate active duty in France. No roll call on the amendment was taken, as the House was sitting "in committee of the whole."

North Monaghan Council Meeting

The North Monaghan Council met at the Court House April 26th with all the members present and Reeve Rye in the chair.

After the reading of the minutes, communications were read from Mrs. Knowels and Mrs. Smith re errors in back taxes of 1914. On motion of Councillors Bell and Williams Mrs. Knowles was voted a refund of $5.51 on the 1914 taxes paid twice.

Messrs. J. Ozias de Laplante and Alex. Gordon were present to ask for the opening of the East end of Braidwood avenue to the full width of the street. At the present time the road allowances between the fences is only 33 feet wide. They asked that the township engage the services of an engineer to determine where the proper street line is and have the thoroughfare opened to the proper width.

On motion of Councillors Bell and Henry it was decided to have the township engineer establish the east end proper street line between the Brinton Carpet Co. and the property of Mr. Alex. Gordon.

A communication was received from J. H. Burnham, M.P., with regard to the high water in the river and asking the Council to appoint a representative to meet the superintendent of the Trent Canal with a view to investigating the height of the water here and at Hastings.

Councillors Bell and Dobbin moved that Clerk Johnston be instructed to write Mr. Burnham and state that owing to the dearth of labor and the demand for greater production the farmers will not have time at present to take the matter up, but will be pleased to do so at some time in the near future.

Assessor Bert Sanderson sent in a communication re the assessment of Lot 94, Plan 56, and on motion of Councillors Dobbin and Williams this lot was changed to Lot 94, Plan 58, and the assessor was instructed to so notify the present owner.

Other communications received and fyled were one from the Ontario Department of Public Highways re the appointment of a road superintendent, and another from the National Sanitarium Association asking for a grant.

The Council, on motion of Councillors Dobbin and Bell, adjourned to meet at the Court House on Saturday, May 5th, at 2 p.m.

There are more than 5,000 electric light companies now serving the public in the United States.

MOVING YEAR FOR METHODISTS

This is "moving year" for the Methodist Church, and on that account the annual conference, held in June, will be of additional interest. Every four years the shuffle of ministers takes place, and the chief interest of the conference centres around the designation of the clergy.

Palace of Greek King Is at Beautiful Tatoi, Recalling Ancient Days

IN the new summer palace at Tatoi, 16 miles north of Athens by way of Kephisia, King Constantine has spent much of the last few uneasy months. In strong contrast to the harsh and stormy political situation which has encompassed the members of the royal family, their physical environment has been wholly delightful, for Tatoi is one of the most beautiful spots at Attica, nestling almost at the foot of the Parnes mountains, while in the distance towers the famous Pentelikon, from whose summit one may obtain the finest view to be had from any of the Attic hills.

If Constantine has allowed his mind to revert to the ancient history of his distraught adopted country he could not have found a spot more freighted with unhappy associations than Tatoi, for in this vicinity stands the ruins of an old fort, known as the Kastro, which marks the centre of the deme (township) of Decelea.

It was at Decelea, 12 miles in an airline north or Athens, that the traitor Alcibiades, he of whom Aristophanes wrote that they (the Athenian soldiers) love, they hate, but cannot live without them,' counselled the Spartans to construct strong fortifications in order to intercept the caravans of grain from Eubœa, which supplied the capital with food. Alcibiades, by his betrayal of the Athenian navy, which had invested Syracuse in Sicily, had already fulfilled the prophecy of the misanthrope Timon who had said upon one of the many occasions when the young Athenian's rash proposals had been indorsed by the populace, 'Go on, my brave boy, and prosper; for your prosperity will bring on the ruin of all this crowd.' His advice to seize and fortify Decelea in 412 B.C. brought irretrievable ruin on his native city and resulted in an inestimable loss to the human race, for it crushed Athens.

By one of the strange whims of 'the crowd,' the Athenian army in its darkest hour sent a message to Alcibiades inviting him to desert the Spartans into whose power he had betrayed his own people. And by an equally strange whim Alcibiades accepted the invitation, rushing to Samos to assume command of his old associates. But it was too late. Athens was doomed. Lysander, commanding the Spartan navy, administered a crushing defeat to Athenian sea power at Aegospotami, on the Hellespont. Three thousand of the defeated Athenians were massacred, and Xenophon, the historian, with tragic simplicity, relates that when the news reached the capital, "That night no man slept."

Lysander's subsequent operations against Athens were effected with the aid of a Spartan army whose base was in the neighborhood of modern Tatoi. When the city finally fell (404 B. C.) there were many Hellenic cities which urged the conquerors to destroy the capital completely and convert the site into pasture land, just as they had done at Plataea, but the Spartans declared with seeming magnanimity, but secretly, perhaps, with the shrewd desire to maintain a check against Thebes and Corinth, that they could not put out one of the eyes of Greece." So, the ruins of the Parthenon, of the temple of the Olympian Zeus, of the Theatre of Dionyos and other priceless remains were preserved to guide modern students of Attic civilization and to amaze the æsthetic sense of countless generations.

Perhaps Tatoi would never have had such rueful associations had the impetuous young Alcibiades only listened to the teachings of his master, Socrates, but the boy, as he himself relates, "was forced to stop his ears and flee away, that he might not sit down by the side of the Great teacher and growold in listening.' Tatoi is reached to-day by a railway journey of eight and a half miles to Kephisia, and a carriage drive of seven and a half miles from that point. The new summer palace is occupied by the king and the old palace is the residence of the Crown Prince. A beautiful park and a venerable oak grove surround the royal homes. A short distance to the north is the barracks of the rural police, known as the Chorophylakes.

European Opinion of U. S.

With regard to the United States, Mr. H. G. Wells, the English author, in an article published in The New York Sun, favors rather hesitatingly the idea that America should propose the peace settlement, saying that in making the suggestion he runs counter to European feeling:

"Nowhere in Europe now do people seem to be in love with the United States. There is a very strong disposition in all European countries to believe America fundamentally indifferent to the rights and wrongs of the European struggle; sentimentally interested, perhaps, but fundamentally indifferent. President Wilson is regarded as a mere 'academic sentimentalist by a great number of Europeans. There is a very widespread disposition to treat America lightly and contemptuously, to believe that America, as one man put it to me recently, 'hasn't the heart to do anything great or the guts to do anything wicked.' There is a strong current of hostility therefore to the idea of America having any voice whatever in the final settlement after the war. . . . I wouldn't like to be an American travelling in Europe now, and those I meet here and there have some of the air of men who at any moment may be dunned for a debt. They explode without provocation into excuses and expostulations."

NEW S. A. CORPS IS OPENED AT BYERSVILLE BRANCH

Yesterday Was Notable Day in History of Salvation Army---How the Work Has Developed Under Present Leaders.

The opening of the new corps of the Salvation Army at Byersville, which took place yesterday, was an evolution from a very small beginning indeed. The young people's work at the Simcoe St. Temple so increased the first year of Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney's command that the attendance went from 170 to 465. There was now no more room at the Temple for further advances, so that a small Sunday school to relieve the situation was started both at Byersville, in the Orange Hall, and at Brailey's school.

The work at Byersville has developed, and the opportunity was so inviting that it was decided to put up a building. About two years ago the corner stone of the new building was laid by Mr. Hugh Waddell, and a very creditable structure went up under the supervision of Mr. R. C. Braund, who is superintendent of the Temple Sunday school, one of the largest in the Salvation Army.

The work demanded more and more attention until the past week has seen the opening of a new corps from an outpost opened up of necessity, and this will to some extent relieve the tension on Adjt. and Mrs. McElhiney, giving them more time for the affairs at the Simcoe Street Temple and at Brailey's. The new corps will have a number of transfers from the mother corps and a splendid Sunday school work thoroughly organized with Scouts, Guards, etc.

The welcome meeting for the new officers, Capt. Hargraves and Lieut. Kent, was conducted by Adjt. Burton at the Simcoe St. Temple Saturday night. A united meeting Sunday at 11 a.m. proved very profitable. A big attendance at the Sunday school at 2:30 and an openair meeting at 6:15, followed by a salvation meeting at night wound up a very happy and profitable day.

Six men and women professed conversion. The new officers will live in the district, and will no doubt forge ahead with the work.

Adjt. Burton will lead a united meeting tonight at the new corps. The duets and talks by the new officers were much enjoyed.

RICE COOKERY

For a hot supper dish rice croquettes will be relished by everyone. To make them, take two cupfuls of cold boiled rice, two teaspoonfuls each of sugar and butter, a little salt, a beaten egg, and just enough milk to make a firm paste after all is thoroughly mixed. Shape the rice into oval balls, dip in beaten egg and afterward in bread or cracker crumbs. Fry in lard till a golden brown. Care must be used in turning them. It is better to use a regular pancake turner for this purpose.

Rice Pyramids—Instead of a plain boiled rice pudding try, if the family is not too large, making rice pyramids. Boil the rice and sweeten and flavor to taste. Mould it in small cups. These may be kept warm if desired. When ready to serve prepare a soft boiled custard. Turn the pyramids out on a platter and pour over them the custard. Or the custard may be omitted and strawberries used instead.

Rice Cream—Make a rich custard, using one cupful each of sweet milk and cream, the yolk of an egg, sugar and flavoring. When this is cooked stir into it a half ounce of gelatin which has been dissolved in cold water. Add a scant half cupful of boiled rice. Stir well and turn into a jelly mould. Serve with whipped cream or strawberries.

Danger in Raw Vegetables

Lettuce and other vegetables eaten raw are a common source of infection with certain forms of intestinal parasites. They should never be used without thorough washing and disinfection by immersion for five minutes in a solution of one part of peroxide of hydrogen to ten parts of water.

Skin Tonic

Make a bag of cheesecloth, double thickness, and fill it with bran, a teaspoonful of orris root and a half cake of castile soap, chopped up fine. This bag may be used in the bath and on the face, and makes the skin smooth, white and firm.

Buttermilk Johnnycake

Mix two cups each of buttermilk, cornmeal and flour. Add half a cup of sugar, one-fourth of a cup of lard, two teaspoons of soda dissolved in a little water, and a little salt. Bake in a moderate oven.

When Peeling Onions

If you have many onions to peel, as is the case in pickling time, the onions may be peeled under water and thus save your eyes. Unfortunately, this method saves the eyes but spoils the hands. A better way is to cut a fairly thick slice from a raw potato and stick it on the tip of the knife you intend to use in peeling the onions. You will find the potato absorbs the onion fumes.

Pretty Rag Rug

A good color scheme for blue rugs is to sew the rags in the following order: Dark blue, light blue, dark blue and white. The rugs will not be too light colored. To be serviceable, yet will be satisfactory for a blue room. Have all the rags of uniform width, about one inch, and also of nearly uniform length. Braid and sew into a mat.

Pear and Quince Preserve

To three pints of ripe quinces allow one pint of firm pears. Peel and cut both fruits in pieces. Cover the quinces with boiling water and [illegible], for half an hour; then add the pears. For each pint of liquor add half a pint of sugar and simmer until the fruit is tender and the syrup thick. Seal while hot as for any other preserved fruit.

THE BIBLE A LIVE WIRE.

The speaker went into a strict definition of the word Truth from a spiritual standpoint. Have you never read the Bible and felt that you had touched a live wire? That was a response to the Word of God. An example was taken from Nature showing how the Lord had culled everything but the truth out of the Bible as carefully as a horse eats the nutritious grass and rejects the weeds. That was the Truth that the Methodist Church is called on to hold up. It makes no difference what it does for social service. You must make a man a Christian,, not by opinion but by conviction. You must be sure of what is under you or that is where your faith is not founded on Truth.

The Bible is inspired because God's Spirit put it there. Spiritual life produces perfection in the man just the same as blood produces perfection in the horse. The blooded horse is full of life and needs no urging, while the other one you have to whip into life. It has not the real thing in it. If you want to have life, you will have to follow John Wesley, said Dr. Chown. If you want to, you will have to jump one hundred and fifty years ahead of the times. When we teach our children theology, we do so that they may grasp the highest ideals of life. It teaches them the duty of repeating the Divine voice to others. Hence comes the testimony meeting. Every Christian becomes the prophet of God. "O that my people were prophets."

The teaching of the class meeting was also referred to. It should be a feast of love, if the words of the text are to be realized. The words of the preacher will always be the words of Spiritual Life. If a child of ten should get stinted and intellectually die, it would be the greatest setback to your social service. We are going to learn things. We are like Adam and Eve after they left the Garden of Eden, "in a transition state."

WAR RE-MAKING THE WORLD.

The present war would be an education to the world. The world is in the re-making. The great spirit of democracy is prevailing, and we should rejoice that the bottles are bursting with the wine of tomorrow. The teaching of Jesus had forecast the age, and we must now take larger inspiration and fuller duties. The meaning of the Gospel only half appears to the civilization of our fathtres. How many of us believe the words, "You cannot serve God and mammon"? We don't half believe our teachings yet. The Gospel has not been half tried yet.

A TOWN ON PAPER.

The speaker then referred to men who robbed the people under a form of law. He told of visiting the Peace River district, and had previously seen a prospectus of a town site which had shown a beautiful town with fine hotels and residences. When he visited this place there was nothing there but one shack, and never would be, and yet men had taken the savings of working girls who were at present slaving their flesh off to make a second payment on something that did not exist. The land sharks protected themselves under a form of law. They would have to disgorge sooner or later, as the wrong had not been forgotten by the people.

In conclusion, Dr. Chown dedicated the church to the service of God, and in doing so he paid tribute to Rev. Mr. Greatrix, the pastor, for his self-denial, zeal, energy and skill. He wanted it to be a people's church. No autocracy should rule it. He invoked the Divine blessing on the services to be held in the church, and asked that prosperity should reign over it for centuries to come.

CHURCH HANDED OVER

After the offertory had been received Rev. Benj. Greatrix, the Pastor, read the announcements for the week. Mr. H. Ward took the solo during the offertory, which was followed by a short responsive reading.

The trustees then stepped forward before the pulpit and the formal handing over of the church by the trustees was made on their behalf by Mr. W. A. Creasman, which was followed by the closing benediction formalities. The singing of the National Anthem and the dedication by Rev. Mr. Whattam brought to a close the very successful opening.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETS

In the afternoon, at three o'clock, the teachers, parents, scholars, and their friends assembled at the Sunday School, and had a special service appropriate for the occasion. Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, B.A., LL.B., president of this conference, delivered an address on "Building on the foundation." The different reports of the Sunday School officers were also presented, and a number of the young people were heceived into the church.

EVENING SERVICE

The attendance at the evening service was just as great as in the morning, and the sermon was preached again by Rev. Dr. Chown.

PUBLIC MEETING TONIGHT

President Sexsmith of the Conference one of the Speakers

This evening from five until 8 o'clock the Ladies' Aid will serve supper, after which there will be a platform meeting, at which addresses will be given by Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, B.A., LL.B., President of the Bay of Quinte Conferences, as well as by the resident clergymen. Music will be furnished by the choir.

The officers of the Ladies' Aid Society who did so much for the new church building are:

Hon. President, Mrs. B. Greatrix.
President, Mrs. A. Wilson.
Vice-President, Mrs. J. T. Palmer.
Secretary, Mr. W. Sargent
Assist. Sec., Mrs. H. Fry.
Treasurer, Mrs. Thos. Brown

MR. BURNHAM SAYS ALMIGHTY IS NOT A PROHIBITIONIST

Defends Canada's Soldiers From the Charge of Excessive Drinking and Warns Public of the Danger From Diseases.

The following is the text of Capt. J. H. Burnham's address on the subject of army canteens when the matter was under discussion in Parliament:—

I think that as one who spent six months in England and a few days in France, I am called upon to say something on behalf of the soldiers. I certainly do not agree with St. Paul and my superior officers, that all things are not expedient. I think that we should discuss things like this in this House as well as elsewhere. I have yet to learn that it is unwise to discuss a matter which so intimately concerns our people. The case of the canteen is a very simple one. You believe in the dry canteen for Canada; those who believe in the wet canteen somewhere may rise in their places. You cannot believe in both a dry canteen and a wet canteen at one and the same time. But I wish to say this very definitely—the Canadian soldier in England as in Canada is a sober man. Knowing humanity as I do—and I have lived quite a few years now; and I may tell you that I was connected with the 93rd Battalion from its inception and was with it in Englang until it was dispersed and sent to France—a more sober, orderly, upright, and thoroughly decent lot of men I never saw, even amongst the politicians.

We have got to bear in mind that we are not in Heaven. And we have got to bear in mind that God Almighty is not a prohibitionist. But I have seen enough of humanity to lead me to believe that our restrictions must be of the strongest. We must put restrictions upon ourselves.

Pray, what man is so confident of himself that he can give rein to himself and go where he likes and do what he likes? And what is true of each of us is true of humanity in the aggregate; we must do everything we can do to restrict the tendency of humanity to go astray. Therefore, it seems to me, the argument is rather academic than practical. And I cannot repeat too often that having seen a very large number of troops, both Canadian and Imperials, as they call those of Great Britain—and having been at the camps at Otterpool, East Sandling and West Sandling as well as elsewhere, and having heard the reports of others, the Canadian soldier is an upright, sober, and decent man, as men go. When we went to France—and I may say for benefit of those who take an interest in these things, that we paid our own expenses—we made inquiries there also. And it would be a splendid thing if all the members of this House were sent to England and France to investigate conditions. I was advocating that with the Minister of Finance the other day. They could do no greater service to Canada and the Canadian Army than to go and look into these matters. It would be a good thing for Canada and a good thing for them.

The Soldier's Work

When we investigated things in France we found that men were being called upon to exert themselves to the utmost not only physically, but nervously; that is, they had to draw upon their nerve power. We found that men, who, before, perhaps, had not been very great men, after they had gone to France, had become really great. They were able to stand the stress and storm, the horror and danger of war. We were right where it is going on. We were amidst the thunders of it and we saw these men bear themselves casually; they were not afraid. Was there drunkenness there? There was not. I have seen no less than one million soldiers since I left this country, and I must confess that I do not thing that out of the 500,000 of them whom I saw frequently, I beheld five men whom I would call the worse for liquor.

Danger from Disease

But there are other things that must engage our attention, because much of Canada will be in danger of disease if we do not look to it. There are things that we do not want to talk about, but it is not blinked in Britain, and it will go through this country as it will through the world generally if we do not take some means to counteract it. There were cases by the thousand in the hospitals. Liquor is not in it for one minute with veneral disease. Statistics show that they are twenty-five times worse than alcohol ever was. We must look these things in the face, because we must protect our country. Ordinary contact, even indirect, in bad cases anybody who is at all acquainted with these matters knows, is almost as serious as the act itself. To shake hands with a person who has syphillis may give a person who is entirely innocent syphillis. That, as Scripture tells us, will go down to even the third and fourth generation. This country is in some danger. We must exert ourselves in every way. Now let me say, with reference to a thing that I do know something about, that is, the liquor question, that the Canadian soldiers are not by any means drunken, but are, indeed, a most sober lot of men. Canada may well be proud of them, and the mothers and fathers of this country need not fear if they send their sons to the front that they will be destroyed by license in drink.

VEGETABLES NOW FILL

Many Window Boxes of London's Fine Homes

LONDON, April 30.—Many London people have followed the example of Sir Samuel Evans, and are planting turnips in their window boxes instead of spring flowers, or, if not turnips, then some other useful vegetable. Those who won't forego their flowers are planting carrots in white sand in large boxes in their cellars or unused rooms, and mustard, cress, parsley and other herbs, are being grown in kitchen windows or in sheltered places in the areas.

Swiss Steak

Take two round steak and cut in pieces. Pound thoroughly, dredge in flour and fry until each side is brown. Then put the dish on the back of the stove and allow it to simmer for two ro three hours. Add a bit of water occasionally, just enough to keep the meat simmering. Cover tightly.

Cranberry Catsup

Five lbs. cranberries, 1 pint vinegar, 2½ lbs. brown sugar, 3 tablespoons cinnamon, ½ tablespoon cloves (ground), ¼ tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika. Cook the cranberries and vinegar about 5 minutes. Press through a sieve, add other ingredients and let simmer until thick.

Banana Pie

Beat the yolks of two eggs with half a cup of granulated sugar. Peel and mash two bananas, beat into the sugar and eggs mixture, add a pinch of salt, two cups of milk, and turn into a pie plate lined with rich pie crust.

Apple and Banana Salad

Slice bananas and roll in lemon juice and sugar; mix with an equal amount of sliced apples. Serve with boiled dressing or with mayonnnaise dressing.

When part of an onion has been used it is more profitable to throw the remaining part away, unless you wrap it in paper, as a cut onion is a natural disinfectant, absorbing all that can be drawn from its surroundings, thus making itself unfit for use.

BREAK GERMAN FRONT

Sir Douglas Haig's Confident Prediction—The Decisive Year

Sir Douglas Haig in giving an interview to a London newspaper correspondent, spoke on the outcome of operations on the Western front as follows: What we have been doing and are mainly doing now in England is a great effort to ensure that the army behind shall be equal in power to that in front. Already in the matter of the production of munitions we have reached the output we had wanted. On that count we have every security.

What we want now in greater quantity are guns and railways. We shall never have too many guns. The same with rails—that invaluable auxiliary of the armies in the field. Some time ago our network of railways behind our lines was notoriously inadequate. The disproportion between the tonnage landed at our base and the tonnage which our railways were capable of carrying was of a character to hamper our operations. At my request directors of the English railway companies came over to investigate our requirements, and they all told me, "Whatever you want we shall give you." Indeed, I got everything I asked for and even more.

We are furnishing material of all sorts to our friends, and particularly Russia, Italy and Roumania. Unity of front and a solid front is the principle. There is another matter which must not be lost sight of and it is that the Western front is and will remain the principal front of operations. I am convinced that the decision of the war will take place on the Western front, and that is why we must devote all our pains to making that front defensively and offensively the best.

COMB-OUT IN 1538

Old Time Methods Left no Hopes For Slackers

An extract from a London paper says: "Cuthbert," in the comparative safety of his fireside dug-out, would have had little opportunity of evading service had he lived a few hundred years ago. Major W. W. Grantham, barrister and Military Representative at the East Sussex Appeal Tribunal has come across the following ancient document, and suggests that the adoption of paragraph 3 might, in some places, bring "to the front" some who say they are "lacking ability, strength and health":

"A Letter Patent. King Henry VIII to the Earl of Hertford and Viscount Lyale, Deputy of our Town and Castle of Calais and others: Requiring the Town and Castle of Calais 'with the fortresses adjoining' to be furnished with able men, well harnessed, and armed for the defence of the same.

"All men to be able of strength well arrayed, and furnished with sufficient horses, harness, and weapons.

"All lacking ability, strength, or health are to be marked, and their names set down in a book.

"Given under our Privy Seal at our Palace of Westminster II., March 30th year of our reign (1538). Thomas Cromwell."

British Strong Man

Back to the Land

Sir Douglas Haig once asked the army commanders in France to make inquiries in certain regiments as to whether any of their men contemplate settling on the land when their soldiering is over; and out of 97,000 men to whom the question was put, 17,000 answered in the affirmative. There will be land in plenty for them all. Australia alone is prepared to spend $100,000,000 on this object, and Canada and South Africa are equally ready to welcome the boys; while in England 8,000 acres of Crown lands have already been set apart for this purpose.

Old Artilleryman Dead

The death occurred at Wimborne (Dorset) at the age of 91 years of Mr William Zebedee, who served as a gunner with the Royal Marine Artillery in the Baltic in 1854, in the Crimea, 1855, and was present at the capture of Sebastopol, Kinburn, and the operations in the Sea of Azoff.

Gifts from the navy were presented at Hull to the officers and crew of the Danish steamship Vidar for rescuing survivors of the Shark after the battle of Jutland.

A Dover resident collected 200 walking sticks, 4,000 cigarettes, and piles of books for wounded soldiers on arrival at port.

BUT LIEUTENANT MILBURN NEVER WROTE HOME AGAIN

Gallant Officer Penned Letter to Parent a Few Days Before His Death---Buried in Military Cemetery.

Mr. T. T. Milburn, of Smith, received a letter from his son, the late Lieut. George Noble Milburn, who was killed in action at the battle of Vimy Ridge on April 5th. The letter was written on April 1st, just five days previous to the battle in which so many Canadians fell. Dr. Kelly, a cousin of the slain officer, was present at the burial and his letter which was written on the 7th inst., and which is printed below, speaks for itself of the esteem in which the popular 93rd officer was held by his men.

His brother officers have nothing but the highest praise to give Lieut. Milburn, and his former associates who are back home join in the general regrets over the loss sustained by Canada and the empire in his death.

The letter to his parents is as follows:—

Dear mother:—Here it is, April 1st, and I suppose you are having nice spring weather now. I was sory to hear of Uncle Thomas' death. There seems to be a lot of trouble at home. I hear of so many deaths. I was very much pleased to see so many of my old boys the other night, I guess I told you in my last letter, at any rate, I saw nearly all the Indians. They are looking well. Albert Ball, young Manning, Vic. Sweeting, along with a lot others.

It was the first time we were ever near the 18th and 20th Battalions, and a lot of them are there. We also met the old 93rd officers, Eastwood, Worth, Watt, and Capt. Marling, who has come to the 2nd Battalion. He is looking well. It is fine to meet the old bunch again.

At present we are in support, but move a few yards nearer the front tonight. We have very good trenches here, and good dugouts, and all the troops are very comfortable; we have no complaints.

Last night I had a working party up to the line, and saw one of the fine barrages which our artillery put on at times. My! they are active, and it is wonderful how accurate their guns are, and how many there are of them. As Lloyd George said at one time, "We will put them wheel to wheel." The British are a wonderful race, and what has been accomplished by the Canadian and British manufacturers in the short space of time is marvellous. When one thinks that some thirty months ago we had very little amunition or artillery and now——

I wish the parcel post of the army was a little better. I have not received your parcel yet, and another one which was sent Feb. 15th has not been seen; however, we may get them yet, as one of my Xmas parcels just arrived a week ago.

Now I must close for this time. Trusting you are all well. I will write again in a few days, so good bye.

NOBLE.

DR. KELLY'S LETTER

April 17.

Dear Uncle and Auntie:—I send you my deepest sympathy in the loss of your brave son. It will be of some comfort for you to know he was buried in a military cemetery with military honors. It is hard for me to write these kind of letters, for when I see such men of the calibre which Noble was (for there was no better officer anywhere), I feel guilty of being alive at all. I was able and glad to attend his funeral, and I thought, as the "Last Post" was sounded, and we stood at the salute, "This surely was a man." His men worshipped him, as they always do anyone who leads them like he did. I felt sory for Lieut. Hughes, who seemed to feel it most of all. Soldiers with tears in their eyes about a grave. He surely was respected.

I have registered a parcel containing his watch and a few trinkets which were in his pockets, and again I tender you my deepest sympathy. In a little while I will be able to send you the exact location of his grave.

Yours,
B. E. KELLY.

SUNDAY STORY OF WAR

TORONTO, April 29.—Canadians, who have had more or less rest since sweeping the Germans off both slopes of Vimy Ridge, made a brilliant assault and captured Arleux and held it against all counter-attacks. They also crossed German lines west of Oppy, and there was fierce fighting about the village all day.

The Germans are fighting desperately through instructions from Von Hindenburg to hold the lines at all cost, making a more stubborn resistance than heretofore encountered. In some places terrific hand to hand encounters occurred. When the Associated correspondent left the front lines late at night over five hundred prisoners had passed to the rear, and many more were coming, and hard fighting was still going on. Everywhere it was a fight to the death.

Three German airplanes shot down and a fourth badly disabled. One hostile observation balloon was destroyed. Three British machines failed to return.

By overwhelming majorities both houses of Congress voted last night to raise an army by the selective draft.

The Russians have re-captured all the ground lost south-east of Erzing, and on the Caucasian front.

GERMANS FAIL

TORONTO, April 29.—Sunday's official French statement says:—We attacked the German position near Courcy, north-west of Rheims. We gained considerable ground and took one hundred and fifty prisoners. German attacks in Champagne failed. In upper Alsace we advanced as far as the German second line in several places inflicting heavy losses and bringing in many prisoners.

General Joffre, in a statement at Washington, Sunday, said, "The essential thing is that an efficient unit be sent as quickly as possible to France. It is of the greatest possible importance that the American flag shall soon fly in france.

German statement, Sunday, says: British forces have occupied Arleux and Oppy. They state, however, that the British were defeated at other points with heavy losses.

The British have taken nearly one thousand prisoners since Saturday morning. German counter-attacks all failed.

WHEN MILADY BUYS SHOES.

A Comedy Which Ends to the Satisfaction of All Concerned.

"WHEN a woman has a new pair of shoes sent home," said the cynical salesman, "she goes to work at 'em very unlike a man under similar circumstances.

"She never shoves her toes into them and yanks at 'em till she's red in the face, nor after getting them on at last does she go stamping around, telling those shoes with great frankness what his opinion is of 'em and of herself for ever countenancing 'em. No.

"She pulls 'em carefully part way on, twitches 'em off again to take another look at 'em to see whether she has got the right shoe on the left foot and the left shoe on the right foot, pulls 'em all the way on, looks at 'em dreamily, says they seem to fit so well that she's afraid they'll get too big by and by, takes another look at 'em, twists 'em around to take a side view, gives a little scream and exclaims:

"'Oh, my! There's a wrinkle already! Mercy! How loose they are!'

"Then she looks at 'em again, square in front, works the feet around to find if she can't induce the shoes not to hurt quite so much, takes the shoes off, looks at the heels, the toes, the soles and the interior, puts 'em on again, walks up and down the room once or twice and declares positively to her husband, sitting by:

"'They're horrid! I won't have them at any price!'

"Then she tilts down the looking glass on the dresser so she can see how they appear viewed from all the positions the mirror will reflect 'em to her, backs off, trips sidewise, steps nearer, nearly dislocates her neck trying to see how they look from impossible points of view, takes a farewell glance at 'em, moves away, takes another farewell glance at 'em from all positions, sits down and says:

"'They make my feet look too horrid for anything and as if I were wearing at least threes and a half. They never will do in the world.'

"Then she takes 'em off, turns 'em over, inspects heel, toe, sole and inside all over again, smooths out a wrinkle, pulls at the buttons and says:

"'Every button on them will drop off the first time I go out in them, I know. And those heels! They look almost ridiculously low enough to be common sense heels. The idea!'

"Then she draws 'em on again, takes 'em off, puts 'em on, looks 'em over again in the mirror this, that and the other way, takes 'em off and says:

"'John, dear, won't you give me your idea about these shoes? You have such excellent taste and judgment in such things.'

"Then if John is wise he will look 'em over and say that they look to him absurdly high as to heel, thin as to sole and too tight around the instep.

"'Oh, do you, dear?' she will say and thank him sweetly.

"Then she will try 'em on again, show them off before the mirror, sit down, run her hand over 'em gently, smile, ring for the maid and say to her:

"'You may tell the messenger, Jane, that I will keep the shoes.'

"And everybody is satisfied. So much better than a man's is the way of a woman with a pair of new shoes."

THE FARMER.

THE farmer is a man of wit.
There's simply no denying it.
He leads a life of pampered ease
And is as happy as you please.

At nine o'clock he's ready for
His morning rolls and cafe noir,
And when the gourmet thus is fed
His valet helps him out of bed

From ten to one he reads the news,
The market tips and trade reviews,
To corn and wheat his heed he gives,
For 'tis by these the farmer lives.

So, having figured for the day
Which way the market he will play,
His batch of daily bread is made
By dealings on the board of trade.

His daily labors being through,
The farmer takes his lunch at two;
Then, donning riding garb, he'll call
His favorite motor from the stall.

He rides about to view his farm
And feel the restful country's charm.
His wife, with paints and sketching pad
And all the trinkets of her fad,

Her easel sets beneath a tree
And paints the view from two to three.
At six o'clock they dine in state.
The farming life is simply great!

The products of the earth and air
Are on the table groaning there
Sweet milk is always at their hand,
Bought by the case, all neatly canned.

The trolley line that rattles down,
It brings them butter fresh from town
And eggs and luscious chicken fries,
The best the city's mart supplies.

Green truck and fruit all crisp and nice,
Just taken from cold storage ice,
And juicy, luscious ham, oh, my,
The best the packers can supply.

No wonder life upon the farm
Has always held so rare a charm'
The cry of "Rube!" which town folks shout
Is only envy inside out.

—Kansas City Star.

His View.

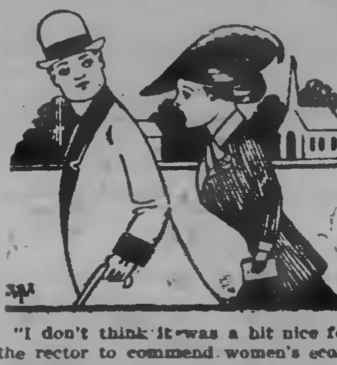
"Why so?" demanded the man who had used it.

"Because no duty could really be pleasant if it's actually a duty."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Cause For Complaint.



"I don't think it was a bit nice for the rector to commend women's economy in dress," said the wife to her husband after the service.

"That shouldn't have annoyed you, my dear," was the reply. "Your gown is plain enough."

A Festive Appellation.

A little girl was trying to read the inscription at the bottom of a picture in a book of Bible stories.

"Mother," she asked, "what does o-x c-a-r-t-spell? Cow buggy?"—New York Times.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TO PASS COMFORTABLY THROUGH MENSTRUATION.

RATIONAL METHOD is all that is necessary, excepting in those cases where correction of anatomical defects may exist. Woman's early training teaches that bathing must not be done during the menstrual period. Therefore, at the time she needs it most bathing is done the least. In inquiring into the cause of this very general rule I find that in most instances girls and women have lived under conditions where cold water was the only kind obtainable, with extra trouble, and not much privacy in the home was possible. If anyone they ever heard about had bathed at such times, such practice was held to be the cause of any illness, from dropsy to tuberculosis, which might develop. Therefore modesty and fear were the prevailing first causes of personal uncleanliness at this time. They were the foundations on which the teaching was based.

Conditions of living have improved. Hot water arrangements are almost as general and necessary as cold water arrangements. A special room is now set aside for toilet purposes where the individual occupant can isolate herself. Not only can she have hot water, but she has a bathtub especially adapted for her purposes, and, most important, she can regulate the temperature of the bathroom to suit her needs. Even if it has no special heating apparatus, she can heat it by running the tub full of hot water first and cool the water down after the steam has heated the room. Temperature is the most important element at the menstrual times and the factor which should entirely dissolve any persisting fear. It was the cold water and the probable cold room that prolonged the fear of bathing at this time.

The woman of to-day not only can use a warm bathroom, but she has hot water or water tempered as she wishes it. Many bathrooms have a special tub for her—the Sitz bath—but where this is missing she can get the same effect, though somewhat less conveniently, by using the ordinary tub.

During ten days of every month of a woman's menstrual life there is an increasing activity of the ovaries and the glandular structures of the uterus. A portion of this activity is in preparation for and a portion of it is a part of menstruation. This means increased blood in the structures involved, slower circulation through the parts, their size and weight, accompanied by feelings of tension and heaviness, varying from slight unconsciousness to aches or acute pain, as the case may be.

Behind the uterus lies a plexus of nerves, sometimes called the abdominal brain, which controls sensation and blood supply and connects up with the bladder, rectum, uterus, and appendages, and even the external genitals. Any irritation to one or another of the pelvic organs supplied by this nerve counteracts on the entire group of organs. The uterus itself is in part a gland, its mucous lining being rich in glands. Here are also the terminations of minute blood spaces. It is also in part a muscle, the muscle bands lying in layers. In each layer the muscle bands are distributed in such a manner that the size, shape, and length of the layer can be absolutely changed by the kind of stimulus to which it reacts.

Just before a menstruation the uterus is very irritable, and its muscular fibres act to their physiological limit. At the beginning of menstruation the glands act to a point where the secretions and the blood supply to the lining membrane is exhausted. Then the muscular activity again comes into prominence.

This should be the predominating factor during the intramenstrual period. The activity is as rhythmic as is breathing and should be as painless. Anything which affects its rhythm is disturbing to the other pelvic organs. For this reason any agent which will equalize the circulation or which will produce congestion in the periphery of the body and which will stimulate rhythm is indicated.

Nothing is so efficient as the Sitz bath to accomplish all purposes desired—cleanliness, loss of symptoms, and limitation of time involved. It is best taken when a woman can rest for a short time afterward. The bath should be begun at body temperature—that is, so that she feels practically no difference between the temperature of the body uncovered, the water, and the room. The water should cover the hips, come about to the navel, but never above the waist line. The temperature should then be increased to the point of tolerance from time to time until the skin of the abdomen is deeply reddened. Then the water should be allowed to run out and the cold to run in at the same time until comfortably cool. A general bath at this time—that is, the immersion of the whole body—should not be taken.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

WHITE PINE MENACED

Strange German Disease Invades Canada—Prospects Dark

Through the invasion of the "white pine blister rust," a virulent fungus disease imported from Germany, Canada is seriously threatened with the extermination of her white pine resources, probably the most valuable forest asset of Eastern Canada. This disease has destroyed the white pine in Europe, has made serious ravages in the pineries in the northeastern States, and is spreading in Ontario and Quebec. Centres of invasion are scattered from Maine to Minnesota in the United States, and from southwestern Ontario to southern Quebec in Canada, the Niagara peninsula being the most seriously infected district in the Dominion.

For its full development and for transmission to the pine, the disease is dependent on the currant and gooseberry bushes. The fact that it cannot spread directly from one pine to another offers a means of control and no effort should be spared to combat the rust by exterminating the currant and gooseberry bushes in infected or exposed districts, or at least by prohibiting the shipment from these regions of all currant and gooseberry bushes and fruit and by placing an embargo on the importation of such stock. Unfortunately, the wild gooseberry is equally dangerous as an intermediary in spreading the disease.

Any loss entailed by even the total destruction of the whole currant family is insignificant compared to the value of the white pine in Canada. In 1914 the white pine production of Eastern Canada, including logs and sawn lumber, totalled $16,160,000. The cutting and manufacture of this timber furnishes employment to thousands of men and supplies hundreds of industries with raw material for which no satisfactory substitute can be secured. The white pine is one of the most important tax-payers in Canada and contributes no less than $1,250,000 to the total revenue of about $4,000,000 which the four eastern provinces derive annually from their forests. In view of these facts it is evident that drastic measures should be taken at once to eradicate the disease which threatens this resource.

INCREASE IS ALL PROFIT

Better Seed Means Higher Proportion of Profit Per Acre

The quality of the seed grain sown on the farm in the spring depends upon the farmer himself. This is a matter which is entirely in his own hands. If good crops are to be expected, good seed must be sown. The farmer should prepare the seed in mid winter for the spring sowing. During the winter months, when other farm work is not pressing, is the best time to clean the grain for seed. The best grain grown on the farm should be used and it should be put through the fanning mill two or three times at least, or until all of the light or shrunken grain and the weed seeds are removed. There is a distinct loss in sowing weak seed and it is much more profitable to screen out the shrunken and weak grain and feed it than to sow it and lose it. It is also essential that weed seeds be not sown if weed growth is to be prevented.

The increase in total yield is practically all profit. A crop of wheat from ordinary seed may yield 25 bushels per acre, and cost 20 bushels per acre to produce, leaving five bushels per acre as net profit. If, by sowing well cleaned seed, the yield is increased one bushel per acre, the increase in net profit is 20 per cent. The cleaning of the seed in spare time during the winter does not add one cent to the cost of production. When well cleaned seed is sown in place of ordinary grain, the gain in yield is, of course, much more than one bushel per acre. The net profit has often been increased 50 per cent. or even doubled. This is one way of increasing production and profit.

TEETH WIDE AND HARD

Elephant Has Huge and Peculiarly-Placed Set of Grinders

Whoever has looked inside an elephant's mouth has seen a strange sight. Elephants have no front teeth, and they never eat flesh or any food that requires tearing apart. Eight teeth are all they have, two above and two below on each side, huge yellow molars as wide as a man's hand. Over these hay or fodder is shifted by the queerest, ugliest tongue in the whole animal kingdom, a tongue that is literally hung at both ends, having no power of movement except in the middle, where it shifts back and forth from the side, arching up against the roof of the big mouth like an immense, wrinkled, pink serpent.

Elephants have two sets of teeth. The milk teeth, which are smaller than the permanent molars, fall out when the animals are about fourteen years old. These baby teeth—which are, nevertheless, enormous—are occasionally picked up by circus men among the fodder and preserved as curiosities.

When Stages Rolled

Few Ontarioans will remember that in the Forties Dundas street, built first as a military road, was of great importance. Twice a day each way the stage running between Toronto and Dundas swung by with its twenty-five or thirty passengers, the guard's horn sounding cheerily as the four horses galloped along. Postville, in Halton County, was then an important stage centre. There the Toronto and Dundas stages met and exchanged passengers with the Oakville-Georgetown and other stages. A stable was erected at Postville with sixty horse stalls. Since then the village is almost deserted.

The Bishop of London asserted that despite his income of $50,000, he was after fifteen years, $10,000 poorer than when he became Bishop.

PROFESSOR WAS CUNNING

Philosopher Cheated Slot-machine and Then Philosophized

Professor Charles Gray Shaw, instructor of philosophy at New York University, in one of his lectures to a class described how philosophy fell before the wiles of a penny-in-the-slot machine, and how he hopes to get even before he dies. Professor Shaw, who possesses an unlimited fund of humor, said: "The chief difference between ourselves and insane people is that we restrain ourselves, while they do not. If an insane person feels like killing a man he immediately proceeds to kill him. We doubtless know many people we would be more than glad to kill, but we do not do it.

"Just once before I die I propose to be insane. I intend to wreck a slot machine—the kind whose chin you tickle after inserting a cent—but do not get the chocolate or gum. But sometimes the law of compensation works to the advantage of the loser. Once I not only actually got the chocolate, but my penny also was returned. To get even for many disappointments I again inserted, and re- and re- inserted that penny, getting it and a bar of chocolate each time, until the box was empty. And I still had the cent. What I got did not make up for all my losses, but it helped."

ECCENTRIC EGG-EATERS

Spaniards Will Not Eat Them With Spoons

Is there any corner of the earth where the homely egg has not found its way? It forms a substantial food to all nations, and it is not curious that different nationalities have different ways of demolishing this eatable. Eating an egg with a spoon would be sacrilege to a Spaniard. He boils his egg just one minute, then breaks the contents into a glass, and drinks it as if it were wine. The Italians place their egg in cold water and remove it just as the water boils. Then they break it on a plate and eat it with bread.

English cooking prevails in France in regard to the egg. Three minutes in boiling water is the rule. It is then broken into a glass and mixed together with salt, pepper, and butter. Hard boiled eggs, plentifully mixed with pepper, butter, and salt are beloved of the Americans.

HOW EXPLOSION LOOKED

Force and Glow of Burst in Great Chemical Works

London in 1917 had a fire and explosion in a war chemical works which killed forty and did immense damage. Here is what the city saw and heard: The explosion occurred almost exactly at ten minutes to seven. All over London the streets were thronged with thousands of people hurrying homewards. A pale, pinkish glow appeared suddenly in the sky towards the southeast. "Fire!" exclaimed everybody. In a twinkling the glow turned to a dull, angry red, and then in a flash the whole sky seemed to burst into a blinding glare of light. The night became as day for the moment. And in a moment came the roar of an explosion, one big, appalling thunder-clap. As the reverberations died, the light in the sky faded with the same dramatic swiftness with which it had blazed out. All around was plunged into darkness again.

"I was on point duty a quarter of a mile away," said a policeman. "The explosion lifted me clean off my feet. I should think I went a yard into the air, and my helmet, which was torn off, seemed to go sky-high. The crash of glass was deafening. The huge cloud of fire that filled the sky immediately after the explosion was the most wonderful sight I ever saw."

SIR WILLIAM PETERSON

Head of McGill University, Montreal, Was Great Classicist

Sir William Peterson took over the principalship of McGill University in 1895. His record in Old Country educational annals had been brilliant. Entering the University of Edinburgh in 1872, his name headed the list of honors in classics in graduating; and as he was then only eighteen years old, he was too young to receive his degree. It was at first his intention to follow law, but being invited to teach classics at Edinburgh he accepted, later becoming at the age of twenty-five, head of the newly-founded College of Dundee. There he showed not only great executive ability, but built up a reputation as a scholar which caused him to be known as "one of the finest Latin men of his time." An able writer and speaker, Sir William's regime at McGill was marked by notable progress along general lines.

SIR WILLIAM PETERSON

SKULLS FOR HAMLET

Liverpool Theatre Had Gruesome Resources—Situated in Graveyard

In the old days, when Kelly's Liverpool theatre was known as the Colosseum, the audience had to pass through a graveyard which partly encircled the building, amongst the more superstitious frequenters the belief gained ground that the vicinity was haunted by some spirit "doomed for a certain term to walk the night." Let this be as it may, there is no doubt that the property man of the theatre was, prior to the removal of the remains for re-internment elsewhere, never at his wits' end for a skull for Hamlet. When "Eugene Aram" was being played at one time it is reported that a real skeleton from the adjoining graveyard was, in fact, requisitioned to do duty for the bones of Aram's victim!

LONE BRITON FOILED FIERCE HUN ATTACK

Unsupported He Shouted, "Come On, Men," When His Firing Failed —French Account

The Paris Liberte's correspondent in Northern France gives an account of a simple but impressive ceremony at P——, not far from the Somme front, where General W——, in the presence of a large number of high British and French officers, presented the Military Medal and the War Cross with palms to a British private who, by his coolness, courage and resource frustrated a German attack. The correspondent, who gives the soldier's name as "Jack," says: "Jack belonged to a battalion which had arrived in the sector of —— to relieve two French companies in the trenches. The operation proceeded at first without incident, the Boches confining themselves to shelling freely the communication trenches, but when the French troops were getting out, after wishing their British comrades 'Good luck,' the Germans hurled half a battalion to the attack.

Faced Waves of Them

"Jack by this time was in an advanced post well beyond our line, to which he had gone as a volunteer to watch the German lines. When the Boches came over the top Jack sent up a flare to give the alarm and prepared to sell his life dearly. Crouching behind his parapet with his rifle he calmly awaited the first wave. Jack allowed the attackers to come within thirty yards and then opened fire, killing six Germans. The wave broke, but there was still danger, for a second wave came on. Jack once more proved himself an excellent marksman, accounting for three Germans.

"Nerve Did Not Fail"

"Now, however, the post was being surrounded and the solitary guardian gave up hope. But his nerve did not fail him. He dashed from his shelter and shouting, 'Come on, men,' as if he were leading troops to the assault, the Boches, fearing an attack in the rear, fell back hurriedly. They soon saw how they had been fooled and returned to the charge, but this time our 75's mowed them down, the splendid coolness of the British private having given them time to come up and smash the enemy's attack.

"Some time later a patrol went out to the post and found Jack lying in front of the parapet with a bullet wound in his breast. He is now well on his way to recovery. At the ceremony he was supported on either side by two of his comrades."

A New and Distinctive
DOMINION TREAD
Anti-skid efficiency and low mileage cost are two outstanding features of this new DOMINION Tread Tire. The illustration shows how admirably it is suited to resist side slip or loss of traction. The moderate price makes its mileage cost very low, and its dependable anti-skid properties fit it for all-round service.
Because there are so many different kinds of cars and roads and drivers, and no one type of tire can possibly suit all needs, we make four distinct types:
DOMINION TREADS—new, but already they have "made good".
PLAIN TREADS—economical and serviceable.
CHAIN TREADS—the famous, efficient anti-skids.
Choose with judgment the DOMINION Type that suits your needs, and you will get the most satisfactory service you ever had.

Red Cross Richer By Over $1400

The Motor Show closed Saturday night after three days of a very successful exhibition. The Red Cross Society will have at least $1400 added to its funds as a result of the splendid work of the ladies in charge. The committee desire to express to all who in any way assisted to make the show so successful the thanks of the Red Cross as well as themselves.

It is hoped this will be an annual event, and if the same enthusiasm is shown by the ladies in the shows of the future, Peterborough's motor exhibition will be the best outside Toronto and Montreal.

Telephone Operators May Strike

Phones Were Idle Today While Employes Held Session.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WINNIPEG, May 1.—Telephone lines in Winnipeg and throughout the province were idle from 8 to 11 this morning while a mass meeting of Government telephone operators decided whether to strike or accede to the Government request to wait 48 hours. They finally decided to return to the switch boards pending further negotiations. It is expected an increase will be granted, otherwise operators will strike tomorrow.

Council Denies Request Sent in by Canoeists.

City Solicitor Gordon advised the Legal Committee of the City Council that it would increase the liability of the city if they built a boom from the portage at the locks, and the committee decided last night that they would not be a party to the work.

Some time ago John Watt, acting for a number of canoeists, asked the City Council to furnish the booms to be placed from the portage at the locks to a point twenty feet or more below the long pier below the lock. They claimed that this would eliminate the dangerous eddy at this point and make the passing from the lower river to the Little Lake comfortably safe. Last year the Department of Railways and Canals refused a similar request from the canoeists.

CITIZENS ASKED TO DECORATE IN HONOR OF VICE REGAL PARTY

Reception Committee at Meeting Last Night Make Further Arrangements

The city Legal and Reception Committee met last night, together with the special committee having in charge the reception of the Governor-General and his party on the occasion of their visit to the city on the 25th inst. School Inspector Mowat reported that the school children were being trained in the public and separate schools so as to be able to sing patriotic songs at the public reception in the Central Park. The purchasing of the necessary flags was left with Inspector Mowat and Chairman Duncan, with power to act.

Lieut. Gliddon has promised to have the 57th Band ready for the reception, and that item was marked off the list as cared for.

Mayor Duffus and Chairman Duncan had the proposed menu cards before the meeting, and after a few suggestions they were given power to make the final arrangements.

The War Veterans will be asked to name two members of their organization to be members of the reception committee.

The arranging for a guard of honor was left in the hands of a subcommittee composed of Lt.-Col. D Walker and Messrs. J. J. Hartley and J. J. Turner.

The most important matter before the committee was arranging to get the property owners along the route of march to have their places decorated with flags and bunting for the day. It was advised that the people get their decorations at once as flags are very scarce, and if the matter is left till the last minute it may be impossible to secure them.

City Clerk Armstrong and Alderman Dobbin were entrusted with the task of preparing the address and having it engrossed.

The outline of the program and a copy of the address was ordered sent to the Governor-General for his approval.

A copy of the minutes will be sent to the chairmen of the sub-committees so that they will be fully cognizant of what they have too ttend to.

The committee will meet again at the call of the chairman.

HIGH COST OF LIVING FELT BY PRESBYTERIAN PASTORS

Members of Hamilton and London Synod Will Memoralize General Assembly to Increase Mininum Stipend to $1200 a Year.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BRANTFORD, May 1. — The high cost of living came up for discussion at the meeting of the Synod of Hamilton and London this morning when the Maitland Presbytery presented a resolution favoring the advancement of the minimum stipend in this synod from $1000 to $1200.

By a unanimous vote the recommendation was approved and will be forwarded to the General Assembly.

The synod also agreed that the body should pay the railway fares of all delegates attending in future, this being bound to increase the representation. At present all delegates bear their own expenses to the meetings.

PASTOR GIVES PRACTICAL AID TO PRODUCTION MOVE

Rev. J. A. McKenzie of Knox Church Works Every Day Helping a North Monagha Farmer Put in His Spring Crop.

While the Governments of Britain and Canada are calling upon the people to interest themselves in the campaign for greater production, while the Resources Committee at Toronto is appealing to the ministers of the province to preach sermons urging their people to act in this matter, Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, pastor of Knox Church, has taken practical action. Mr. MacKenzie has not preached to his congregation on the necessity for further production, but has confined himself to reading the notices sent out dealing with the subject. He has, however, set an example worthy of emulation.

There is among Mr. MacKenzie's congregation, one farmer, Mr. Geo. Fowler, who is up against the labor problem like so many others engaged in the same calling. He has a large farm in North Monaghan, five miles out from the city, and no one to assist him. Mr. MacKenzie came to his rescue by utilizing the practical knowledge he gained of farming and handling horses when he was a boy. Every day after he has attended to his pastoral duties he wheels out to the farm of Mr. Fowler, reaching there about eleven o'clock and putting in the rest of the day driving the farm team. Mr. Fowler is accordingly left free to attend to many of the other duties of a farmer. It makes no difference what style of farm implement the team may be attached to, Mr. MacKenzie is equal to the occasion. A plow, a seed drill or cultivator are alike familiar to him. Of course, he receives nothing for his services except the undying gratitude of his parishioner. He is doing this work for what it means in the way of production, and it is understood between himself and Mr. Fowler than when his pastoral duties conflict with those he has assumed, then the former must be given the preference. Physically he has been benefited by the change of work.

Mr. MacKenzie has been quietly engaged in this new line for some days, and was surprised when The Review spoke to him about it. He is the kind of man who likes to accomplish a worthy act without any clash of cymbals or burst of brass band accompaniment, keeping his right hand in the dark as to what his left may be engaged in.

He does not regard his work on the farm as anything out of the ordinary, but something that present conditions demand. He refuses to regard it as a sacrifice, but says it is a small matter when compared to what the men in uniform are doing.

His consent to publish the matter was obtained only on the representation that his act was something unusual and that the example which he has set would rouse others in the city and all over the country to do likewise.

One single action is worth a volume of high-sounding precepts. Recently a cynical citizen wrote the local press in a sarcastic vein calling upon the preachers of the city to lend practical aid to the production campaign. To some extent at least he has been answered.

Broke Young Colts.

Mr. Fowler had a pair of colts to break in this spring. He would never have been able to do this alone, but with his pastor's assistance the task was comparatively easy. The colts are now at work every day, driven in turn by Mr. MacKenzie and their owner.

AUSTRIA READY TO MAKE PEACE

ALLIES MAY MAKE SEPARATE TERMS WITH THE DUAL MONARCHY.

(By Herbert Bailey.)

PETROGRAD, May 1. — I am in a position to state that the question of the future of Austria is now regarded as one of purely military expediency, even by the most marked anti-Austrian elements here.

It would appear, therefore, that the time has arrived when the Entente might decide on an Austrian policy, with the object of securing a separate peace, with real guarantees for the rights of European nationalities and of the Dual Monarcny. It is recognized here now that such a peace would facilitate the defeat of Germany, and for this reason, and not for love of Austria, modifications of views have taken place.

TURKS' HEAVY LOSSES IN FIGHTING IN MESOPOTAMIA

LONDON, May 1. — Turkish losses during the fighting against the British in Mesopotamia from April 18 to April 22 are estimated in an official statement today to have been about four thousands. The announcement reports the Turks entrenching fifteen miles north of Samara, after their recent defeat by the British in the fighting around that place. The the fighting around that place.

BRITISH TRIUMPH IN RAID NORTH OF YPRES

Quiet Day Reported All Along Battle Front German Counter Attacks Repulsed--- Three Persons Killed by Air Raid.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 1. — "We made a successful raid last night north of Ypres," says today's official announcement from the Franco-Belgian front, "and captured a few prisoners. Elsewhere there was nothing of special importance."

FRENCH TAKE 400 PRISONERS

PARIS, May 1.—The French are reorganizing positions captured in the Champagne, and no heavy fighting occurred last night.

"South of the Oise we repulsed a German attack on one of our small posts in the region of Barosis. Along the Chemin-des-Dames artillery fighting was rather violent. In the sector between Troyon and Hurtebise patrol encounters occurred.

"A German reconnoitering party which attempted to approach our lines east of Hurtebise was driven back by our fire.

"In the Champagne the night passed in relative quiet in the sector of our attack where our troops are organizing captured positions.

"The number of prisoners captured by us in the fighting yesterday and actually enumerated is more than four hundred.

"There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front."

THREE KILLED BY AIRPLANE.

THE HAGUE, May 1. —Bombs were dropped by airplane Sunday night on Zieriksee, in the Province of Zeeland. Three persons were killed and much damage done.

BRITISH REPULSE ATTACKS.

LONDON, May 1. — Little news concerning the situation along the front from Lens to St. Quentin, where the British for several weeks have made notable gains, has been vouchsafed in the latest official communications. The London war office on Monday night mentioned the repulse of a German attack east of Arras between Monchy-le-Preu and the Scarpe River. The Berlin communication dismisses the Arras sector with the assertion that Monday saw only an artillery engagement of varying intensity, but it goes to considerable extent into the sanguinary engagements of Saturday at Oppy, which it is asserted still remains in German hands, and north of the Douai-Arras line.

MAY DAY MARKS STRIKE OF GERMAN MUNITION WORKERS

Krupp Works Isolated to Prevent News of Trouble Leaking out

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 1. — In the Rhine provinces more than half the munition workers decided to strike today, wires the correspondent at The Hague of the Exchange Telegraph Company. "Essen, the home of the great Krupp works, is shut off from the rest of Germany and completely isolated from the world in order to prevent the slightest information about the strikes at the Krupp works from leaking out. Strikes are general in the small towns near the Dutch frontier."

NEW ST. JAMES CHURCH BUILDING ALMOST ENTIRELY FREE OF DEBT

Members and Friends of Congregation Subscribe $4329 at Meeting Last Night.

The congregation of St. James' Church begin their new campaign with the splendid edifice practically free of debt. At an entertainment given last night the members and friends, listening to the persuasive powers of Dr. Baker of Albert College, Belleville, subscribed $4,392 toward the payment of the debt.

Before subscriptions were called for, the Rev. B. Greatrix, the pastor, explained that the new building had cost $20,000. The donations from the old Charlotte Street Church had amounted to $4,725, and labor valued at $1500 had been rendered free of charge. The total debt remaining was $7500.

Dr. Baker then called for subscriptions, beginning with a request for five of $200, each to be paid in semi-annual instalments of $20. Responses were prompt, as they were to the call for smaller amounts all the way down to $5. Considerable cash was handed in.

When the result was announced as $4329 Mr. Greatrix surprised the congregation by announcing that he had in reserve contributions amounting to $1555, of which the people knew nothing. This leaves on the church a debt of a trifle over $1000, and it is hoped that this, too, will soon be disposed of.

Last night's entertainment, after supper had been served by the ladies of the congregation, was a veritable interchange of felicitations among the different denominations in the city. Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' Church, and president of the Ministerial Association, extended greetings on behalf of the Anglicans; Rev. R. J. Webb for the Baptists, and Rev. R. Pogue appeared for the Presbyterians. The other speakers were Dr. Baker, and Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and Dr. J. P. Wilson.

The choir rendered appropriate music, and Miss Etta Kemp of the George Street choir, sang a solo, which was highly appreciated.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1917

CARING FOR DISABLED SOLDIERS.

AS SOME SLIGHT MEASURE of appreciation of what they have done for their fellow-men, the soldiers from this city and county who return disabled permanently, or who are still suffering from the effects of wounds or disease contracted in the service, should be cared for at home. The place of a sick man, especially during the period of convalescence, is among his friends in the old familiar home surroundings. A man's thoughts invariably turn in that direction when his health fails.

Almost every day Peterborough soldiers return to Canada from Europe, men who have done their duty and paid the price. Some of them will never recover their former physical vigor. Others have been crippled for the rest of their lives. Are these men to be left among strangers or are they to be cared for among their own friends?

Peterborough is an ideal place for the establishment of a convalescent hospital. As a health resort it possesses advantages unsurpassed by any inland city in the Dominion. The Government has informed the citizens who took this matter up that what is required is an institution that will accommodate at least two hundred invalids, with quarters for the medical and the administrative staffs.

Other cities in Ontario are moving in this direction, and Peterborough should act at once. The Federal representative for London has furnished his constituents with the same information that has been supplied to Peterborough residents by Capt. Burnham. If any means can be suggested for taking care of the invalid soldiers at London, they will be sent there. Mr. Glass, the representative from the Forest City, has offered a sketch plan of proposed enlargements at the Victoria Hospital that could be built jointly by the Hospital Commission, the Provincial Government and the city of London. After the war the new buildings would become the property of the city. The proposal is receiving favorable consideration, and definite action is likely to be taken at once.

The returned soldier, the man who has done his duty to the limit of his capabilities, is ceretainly entitled to everything in the way of appreciation that can be devised. This can take no more practical form than extending care to him until he has recovered so far as recovery is possible.

OWNERS OF DROWNED LANDS.

FARMERS WHO OWN property along the Otonabee River have this spring the same grievance that they have had for years. Owing to construction work on the Trent Canal—as they claim—the water is kept at so high a level that portions of their arable land are flooded at the opening of every season. When the water finally retreats to the natural confines of the river it requires so long a time for the land to dry out that it is too late to seed it for that particular year, and the result is a serious loss to the farmers and a big falling off in local production.

Thte farmers who have been compensated by the Government for damage to their holdings are not satisfied, but claim that the amount allowed them is far below the real value of the land. They would prefer to have conditions as they originally existed before this work of public improvement was undertaken.

The Federal member for West Peterborough has always championed the cause of the farmers in this regard. At the last meeting of the North Monaghan council he sent a communication asking the members to appoint a representative to wait upon the superintendent of the canal to investigate the question of the yearly overflow of the river. For various reasons the council declined to take action. In the first place time is valuable at present; the land, or such of it as has not been submerged, is ready for working, and the seed must be sown. Labor is scarce, and no farmer can afford to devote even a single day to a conference even with Federal officials.

Another reason for declining the offer is that it is too late to do anything this season to remedy the conditions complained of. If damage has resulted, it has already been done. The time to act is during the fall or winter, when something like preventative measures can be taken.

SOME FORMS OF CONSCRIPTION.

IF ONE OF THE LOCAL police attempted to make an arrest in a public place and the offender was getting the best of him in the physical encounter that resulted, it is the privilege of the officer to call to his assistance any citizen who may be present. When his services are so demanded, the citizen has no alternative but to comply. If he refuses to act, he is liable to a penalty.

In case of a local riot that got beyond the powers of the police to control, Chief Thompson could call for volunteers on the spot. All of which is conscription. With the majority of men, the new duties thrust upon them would probably not be congenial, but there is no escape. Every man, whether he wears a uniform and official badge or is garbed in civilian attire, is supposed to be a champion of law and order and a preserver of the peace of the community.

Then why should there be any objection, based either on principle or expediency, to conscripting men for the wider and more important work of defending the nation from the menace of an alien foe? If a citizen can be compelled to take a hand in the arrest of an ordinary drunk or a common street brawler, why should he object if the same service is required of him when there is an urgent demand and the very existence of the nation depends upon the help he is asked to render?

A NEW ORDER ISSUED.

THE CITY HAS BEEN winking at infractions of the Provincial Health Act ever since the law went into effect five years ago. In that Act it is distinctly stated that every householder shall keep his garbage in a metal receptacle tightly covered. This is not an unreasonable demand, and the object of it is obviously in the interests of public health.

But the tub, the dilapidated barrel and the superannuated bucket has been made to do duty all these years. Every such receptacle is a blot on the landscape when set out on the street waiting the arrival of the collector Now it seems that the law is to be enforced and the citizens compelled to provide themselves with receptacles such as the Act demands.

The high cost of living has affected the garbage collector by lessening the amount of his collections. The cost of food of every description has forced the housekeepers to avoid waste. Articles left over from one meal and which were formerly thrown into the discard, are now saved and refitted for a succeeding repast. There is little difference now between the cost of a quart of potatoes and the same measure of strawberries, even the imported variety. The people are beginning to grow alarmed over the prospect of famine, and if there is one thing more than another which the public regard with horror it is the probability that they may at any time be called upon to go hungry.

PDOPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION.

MR. J. G. TURRIFF, one of the Western members, has a bill in Parliament which revives the agitation in favor of proportional representation in the House, instead of the present system of one-sided elections by party majorities in the various ridings. This matter has been brought up before, only to be voted down. It is likely to meet with the same fate, so long as it is left to members who are selected under the present system. Men chosen for places in power are apt to regard as perfect a plan which results in their choice.

Proportional representation does not mean representation for an inconsequential minority, as some may claim. The aim is to give all parties a voice in the management of public affairs. Under its operation it would be impossible either for a large proportion of the population to be deprived of a representative, but would render it equally impossible for any government to so gerrymander the constituencies as to win a snap verdict.

Proportional representation is no untried theory. In England a committee appointed by the Speaker of the House of Commons has investigated and reported in favor of the change. The President of France has proposed it as one of the reforms when the time comes to reconstruct that republic after the war. Belgium and Sweden have adopted the system, and it has given strength and stability to their governments.

Under proportional representation the so-called pivotal province in our Confederation would cease to be an entity in determining the result of an election. No government could hold office by the grace of one section of the Dominion, but the majority of the entire country would count, with the minority not entirely left out of the reckoning.

PROFITEERS CHANCES SMALL IN BRITAIN

One of the clearest indications of the difference between this war and all previous wars in England is to be seen in the restrictions which have been placed around the ancient and once honorable art of "profiteering." The chances of making a war-fortune in England out of anything supplied directly to the Government may be regarded as decidedly slim, writes William Hard. Imagine, for instance, that you are manufacturing something that can be construed to be among "munitions of war." Along comes a notice from the Government tagging you and saying that you are now a "controlled establishment." Such plants now include all important and several thousand relatively unimportant factories furnishing the Government with those supplies which are peculiarly "fighting" supplies

You at once come under Part 2, Section 5, of the Munitions of War Act of July 2, 1915. Your increased profits, due to your increased sales of, say, telegraph instruments needed in war, begin to suffer a serious decline. The Government examines these profits. It compares them with the profits you used to make. Let us suppose that in the two years before the war your profits on the average were £10,000 a year. Let us suppose your present profits are £20,000 a year. Very well, you are allowed to keep your old £10,000. You are also allowed to keep an additional 20 per cent on your old £10,000. That is, you are allowed to keep an additional £2,000. Ten thousand pounds plus £2,000 is £12,000 and £12,000 is £8,000. The Chancellor of the Exchequer comes along and takes that £8,000 to carry on the war. You take your £12,000 and congratulate yourself. In a few minutes, however, you again meet the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He wants your income tax. Your income tax on £12,000 figures out £4,129 3 shillings and 4 pence. Call it £4,000. It is just one-third of your net income. You now have £8,000 left. You started off with twenty. You are now down to eight.

Over Half For Income Tax

But you still have to face your local government. You still, of course, have to pay your local "rates." These depend much on the kind of house you choose to live in and on the amount of ground you choose to have around it. I know a man, not excessively wealthy, whose national and local taxes put together amount to 12 shillings and 6 pence in the pound. That means five-eighths of every pound he makes. It means that out of every dollar he makes he pays taxes amounting to 62½ cents.

Must Get Rich Elsewhere

Let us imagine that you happen to be not quite so unfortunate as he is. Let us imagine that your total of taxes is not five-eighths of your net income, but only one-half. Your net income was £12,000. Your total of taxes is £6,000. Your spending money, taxes deducted, is £6,000 final. It is clear now, I hope, that if you want to get millions suddenly and keep them permanently by manufacturing "fighting" supplies for the British Government, the thing to do is to manufacture them outside of Britain.

ITALY'S GREAT STRIDES

Italian Army a Year Ago and Now—High Confidence

Dr. Mario-Borsa writes in a London paper as follows: My visit to the Italian front has convinced me that the military situation may now be viewed with full confidence, considering especially the great work that has been done. But if our war machine is satisfactory, the spirit of our men is even more so. What a difference to what it was a year ago!

That, indeed, was the period that saw our heaviest losses and the greatest deeds of personal bravery. On the Isonzo front we were pitched against the formidable bridgehead of Gorizia. Our infantry had reached the lowest spurs of Mount San Michele, Podgora, and Sabotino, the three strongholds barring the gate of the city. Night after night, month after month, our soldiers would throw themselves against the entanglements, only to be checked and repulsed by the enemy's heavy artillery.

In the Alpine region it was practically the same tragic story. Our natural frontier, the great chain of commanding mountains, was in the hands of the Austrians. They had made it impregnable. Yet it was in the Alpine region that the course of the war turned in our favor. The enemy's attempt in the Trentino has been our good fortune. Our troops, as I have said, were then fighting with bravery but with a growing feeling of scepticism as to the tangible results of their sacrifices. Could we ever attain the efficiency of our opponents in artillery and ammunition? The answer came from the Trentino and Gorizia. In May, 1916 the Austrians attacked in force all along the Trentino front. Under the first heavy onslaught the centre gave way, but both flanks stood magnificently, and General Cadorna did the rest.

Royal Collector of Relics

When the Prince of Wales came home on short leave he brought with him an interesting lot of battlefield relics to add to his already unique collection. His Royal Highness has put aside a special cabinet for the reception of his trophies, in which he takes a great pride. His latest collection is a varied assortment of things curious and wonderful, from the great Somme offensive; and these he has ticketed and put in their places. At the present rate of progress, the collection bids fair to become historic.

The time will come when treaties will be more than truces, when it will again be possible for them to be observed with religious faith and sacred inviolability.—Lord Robert Cecil.

HORROR IN POLAND UNDER HINDENBURG

Drunken Egotist's Reign of Terror Described by an Unhappy Eyewitness—Poland's Martyrdom Revealed

Mme. Turczynowicz, who was Laura Blackwell of New York, is the wife of a Pole who is serving in the Russian army as Inspector-in-Chief of the Sanitary Engineers, and through nearly the whole of the first fourteen months of the war she lived with her three little children in their home in Poland, near the borders of East Prussia. Through her town the tide of war swayed back and forth, finally leaving the German army in full control. In her house almost constantly German officers were quartered, Hindenburg himself living under her roof for a time, and she was compelled to wait upon them while her children lay almost dying of typhus, and to give them the food needed by the little ones as they began to recover.

Slavery in Poland

Later she escaped and told her experiences in a book. The author had to interpose her own body to prevent the flogging of her six-year-old son, just recovered from typhus, by a German officer because the child would not say that the Russians were beaten From her windows she saw the endless procession on the road to East Prussia, which passed her house, of wagons carrying away to that country the goods, the utensils, the household treasures, the crops, the seed grain of the Poles, and the weeping companies of men and women who were being sent to East Prussia as laborers. For Germany's deportation and enslavement of the civilian population did not begin with Belgium. It had first been tried upon Poland.

Cruelty and Deceit

Heartrending is her account of the treatment of the Russian prisoners of war, whose unbelievable miseries she was constantly trying to alleviate, thereby winning the suspicion and ill-feeling of the German authorities. When it was known that some attaches from neutral countries were to inspect the prisoners' hospitals there was a sudden scrubbing and overhauling of that in the author's town.

Of Hindenburg, who used her house as headquarters for a little while and whom she had to serve at table, she says: "He drank copiously; in fact, I have never seen such a capacity for schnapps, ate tremendously, and the only topic of conversation was what he had done or was about to do."

LETTER FROM A GERMAN

Bitter Renunciation of Their Superior Officers

The following is an extract from a German soldier's letter: "The officers we have up to the rank of captain are mostly boys who have no idea of anything. They draw high pay and have food and drink in abundance. We, on the other hand, live miserably. We do not receive by a long way what we should. One can hardly help being ashamed of being a German. Dear Grete, if I should happen not to return, then think how I have written to you about it all, that the gang has caused us to be killed for fun and for sport. It is very different from the English.

"The officers here live in great luxury. In the line the officers live in bomb-proof dug-outs. We, on the other hand, have filthy, wet, tumbledown holes. The officers and others have it in their hands to take away our food, which we ought to have, but do not get. I have heard it only too often from non-commissioned officers and old soldiers that if we had better leadership we should often have been able to do something without heavy losses, but we are generally too late, or do it in the wrong way and with heavy loss. If the young officers did not swank so much and treated the men like human beings we should be more content and more would be accomplished; but we hate our officers. We are bound to, for what miserable grub we get, while those swine live on the fat of the land! Here in Tenbrielen, where the airmen throw bombs and where we shall get artillery fire very shortly, there is a dug-out for the officers, but none for the men. In this wholesale murder we get to know completely how much we are under the knout."

HOME HINTS

To drive away ants—It is said that ants may be driven away by keeping a cloth saturated with oil of sassafras on the shelves or wherever the ants bother. Renew the sassafras every other day.

Handy boot polish—If you happen to have run out of boot polish a few drops of lemon juice rubbed on briskly will give a brilliant polish.

A sweeping hint—Tear newspapers into small bits, dampen them and scatter plentifully over the carpet before sweeping. They will collect most of the dust.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review:—I am so constituted that I anticipate public wants. Indeed, I go further, when permitted, and forestall public needs.

That motive is my motive for intrusion at this critical time. I wish to apply for the position of Official Dog Catcher. Not a catcher of official dogs, d'ye mind, or understand, but to officially corral the canines of the general public.

I am advised that there is large needs for such an official. I further hasten my application that the position may not be offered to others. I am so impressed with a desire to forestall such a proposition that I offer myself holus bolus (if I may be permitted the expression in this great and emergent public service.

I believe that I am possessed of the attributes to make a success of such a profession. I have speed, endurance, both fore and hind sight, and elastic constitution, much assurance and a firm purpose to succeed. In short, I am the man from Galway.

The function of overtaking recalcitrant dogs should not be thrust upon our police. Such duty would not, it seems to me, enhance the dignity of the force. The spectacle of one of the very finest charging along the street, head up and tail over the dashboard, if I may be again allowed the expression, would not be nice; anyway, it is proverbial, the police would have no clue.

I am sure, after careful study, that I see possibilities and perplexities of this crusade that are not apparent to others. For instance, my view is that I shall make speed, even hurry, after a dog, decorously, of course, not in unseemly haste so as to alarm the neighbourhood. It strikes me that such course is a judicious one, lest the owner come out with a club or the matron with fervent water. I shall throw over the dog a species of net, quite a complicated affair, but efficient in my hands, and reason with him or her, as the case may be. I am persuaded that gentleness will prove a surprising factor in success. You will perceive that I wish to retain the esteem of the dogs, with many of which I am personally acquainted. Having caught my dog, it will be for others to annihiliate. I positively refuse to be either executioner or an incinerator.

I shall require all motor traffic in proximity where I am carrying on the duties of my profession to be stopped instantly. If the people incarcerated in the cars will halt, sit tight and contemplate the scenery and things in the shop windows I sall have a very fair field for the practice of the niceties of the art. Success and dogs must both follow.

I can promise that I shall be more than discreet. If a dog manifest strenuous objections—and there may be dogs lost to all sense of what is decent—that he be not caught, why, I, in a gentlemanly way, will not press my attentions on him further. To all owners of dogs destroyed or decapitated, I will send a note of personal regret, and in some very accentuated cases, accompany my regrets with flowers. I wish to set an example in this great public service that will reverberate from the Atlantic, roll across the Western Provinces and make a splash in the Pacific, if it ever gets there.

Please assist me and I will at once take it up. If I cannot make it I will pass, turn it down, or call for a new deal. I make use of the simile of the game in which I have no doubt, as any gentleman may, you are versed or possibly an expert.

With a profusion of thanks in advance.

Impulsively yours,
CATCHEM AND KEEPEM.

BUILDING HOUSES.

Editor Review: I see by an article in your paper last night that there is a dearth of houses for workingmen in this city, and it is suggested that some good-natured citizen should come to the rescue and for the welfare of the city proceed at once to put up houses.

Such citizen should not only be good-natured, but light-headed. No sane man would build houses to rent in this city under present conditions, when it is cheaper to live in a rented domicile than to own your own home, as you showed in an editorial only a few days ago.

It was not always thus. It is only a few years since it was the ambition of every man to have a place he could call his own, and this was easily possible. Taxes then were not so much of a burden. Now the rate has gone up, and one of the reasons for this is our generous and elastic system of charity. People who do not care to work at all or who will work only at some particular calling are cared for by the city.

Is it not a fact that during the hard times of a few years ago there were able-bodied young people in this city who refused to take any kind of work offered them, but were not too proud to accept financial assistance from the city?

CREEDS BECOME UNITED.

A mingling of creeds and a broader, more practical brotherhood mark the religion of to-day. Men of all creeds Protestant and Catholic and other faiths—are together in the army. The illusion of separating the secular and sacred no longer generally prevails. In the true life all things are sacred. So it is of duty in this great struggle. Hence it is that church auditoriums are thrown open for recruiting and national service meetings, and in these side by side are Catholic and Protestant speakers.

A great factor in all this has been the Y. M. C. A. in every camp from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with its broad program centering about the "Red Triangle" and its almost endless ramifications. Here business of every kind is transacted for the soldiers, wholesome athletics fostered, and social, educational, and religious needs ministered to. Here, too, under the same roof the Roman Catholics meet for mass, the Anglicans for Holy Communion, and battalions representing various faiths for church parade. Surely one outcome will be a religious brotherhood never yet experienced, with a full-orbed religion never before realized. The old narrowness and exclusion will be buried never to rise again.

A summary of all experiences, then, must show a manifest ennobling of life and character. In claiming this there is no gainsaying the fact that the war is dehumanizing, brutal, and all that is evil. In its support not a syllable of good can be uttered. The present awful struggle will more than ever brand it as a veritable hell. And yet because these conceptions prevail in Canada even in a much less intensified form than now, and because of an utter absence of the war spirit, it is possible, in spite of war's savagery, to reach out to a higher goal than before this cruel struggle was thrust upon the Allies. The goals already indicated in temperance and other things evidence this.

There have been untold sorrow and suffering, but out of the many, many times heated furnace of affliction is coming the refined gold. There have been incalculable sacrifices in the giving of all that is noblest and best, but it is the giving which bringeth an increase more and more. Canada is surely reaching a higher and better life, and will continue on to yet nobler and more worthy goals and aims.—From "The Dominion in War Time," by J. P. Gerrie, in The American Review of Reviews.

Did This Chipmunk Reason?

On our return to camp rather late one August afternoon, my partner and I found a chipmunk rummaging about our grub boxes. A little observation revealed the object of his search—prune pits, which, careless of the camp law to destroy all waste, we had scattered quite freely about the ground. It was pretty to see Chippie sit up on his haunches, bite the rim off and stow the pit in his cheek pouch. When he had a full load, he would scamper away, only to return in a few minutes to the store that we had inadvertently provided for him. As it was growing dusk, we helped him by tossing him the pits.

Though at first a bit frightened, he soon gained enough confidence in us to run forward for the treasure.

When he returned for what proved to be his final trip for the day, we plied him with pits to find his capacity. After he had stowed away four he looked as though he had a serious attack of mumps. But he was game for another; and when five proved to be an overload he brought up the fourth, trimmed it closer, tucked it away again, and followed it with the fifth.

Now, let nature students determine if the Chippie's conduct implies the exercise of reason.—All Outdoors.

Ants as House-Destroyers.

It is reported that a species of white ant has attacked the country home of an Indiana farmer, and in a short time has eaten away many of the sills and the floors of the house. These ants, according to the State entomologist, have no eyes, can live only in darkness, and their food is wood. The entomologist also said that in many respects they resemble bees.

Preparing For the Inevitable.

Jonah was on his memorable voyage.

"Captain," he said to the commander of the Phoenician tub, "I want you to give me a receipt in black and white for my passage money."

"What's gnawing you?" inquired the bluff old Mediterranean sea dog. "Ain't the fact that I don't put you ashore proof enough that you've come across with th' plunks?"

"Nope," he said. "I want a receipt in full that can be put on record. If I don't get it some Boston muck raker will be pretty sure to set it down in a book that you threw me to th' whale 'cause I was tryin' to beat my passage. See?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CROP TO PLANT LATER

Provide for Winter as Well as Immediate Needs.

CABBAGE AND OTHER THINGS

(By S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Besides growing many vegetables for immediate use the backyard garden should produce some vegetables which can be stored for consumption during winter months. Some, of course, do not need to be planted as early as the plants which were described last week. Possibly a week should elapse from the time the lettuce is planted before these should be sown.

BEETS, CARROTS, PARSNIPS, AND SALSIFY. These include the most important members of the root vegetables. They are usually grown for winter purposes, though beets and carrots are relished by many in their earlier stages of growth. All these demand practically the same attention. The seeds should be sown in straight rows at a depth of about three-quarters of an inch. When the plants have reached a height of two inches they should be carefully thinned out so that they stand, beets and parsnips three to four inches apart, carrots and salsify two or three inches apart. It will be found that the parsnips are very slow growers, and for this reason it is sometimes advisable to plant a few seeds of lettuce with the parsnip seeds so that they will serve as a marker. The young beet plants may be used as spring greens. It is necessary that the soil be cultivated at intervals during the summer months so that the crops may grow. They do not as a general rule require as heavy watering as some of the other vegetable crops. In the fall the beets should be pulled up and the tops twisted off close to the head, not cut off with a knife as in the case of carrots, parsnips, or salsify, which should have the tops cut about one-half inch from the roots preparatory to storing for winter use.

CORN. In planting corn holes about two or three inches deep should be made with a hoe. Five or six kernels of corn should be dropped in this and covered with soil, which should be gently firmed by tramping on it. When the shoots are about three inches high all excepting the three sturdiest should be pulled out. The soil should be drawn up around the stalks as they grow, to give them support. When the kernels on the cob appear full of milk they are ready to use. It is also a good practice to cultivate the soil often around the corn, for expert growers claim that the crops corn and cabbage faster and better when plenty of cultivation is given.

CABBAGE. Cabbage is one of the most widely grown vegetables. The cabbage plant requires a supply of moisture, and yet if the cabbage soil is too wet the plant will be injured. Cabbage does particularly well on new land, and some growers claim that the cabbage grows without an abundant supply of manure in the soil better than many other vegetables. It is considered a good practice for backyard gardeners to purchase plants which have been grown in hot-beds or hot-houses and transplant them directly into the permanent bed. This saves considerable trouble. It is necessary when setting cabbage plants to set them fairly deep so that they will not be whipped about by the wind. They may be set eighteen inches apart, and there should be quite a good deal of soil around the roots. When they are ready to be set out a hole may be made with a dibber or a sharpened stick. The roots may be watered after they have been set. One of the most important features of growing cabbage consists in the attention given to cultivation of the soil. There may be some occasions when the head will split, this may be stopped or prevented if the head is taken in the hands and turned forcibly from one side to another.

CAULIFLOWER. The cauliflower is treated in much the same way as cabbage, the plants being grown and set out in the same manner outside. They are treated practically the same as cabbage until it is noticed that a little white flower has commenced to grow. The dry leaves of the plant should be brought together at the top and tied with a piece of string so that these little white flowers are protected from the rays of the sun and the rain. All cauliflower heads should be treated in this manner when they are about two inches in diameter.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS. Brussels sprouts are perhaps the most hardy of the cabbage family. If it is impossible to secure brussels sprouts plants a few seeds may be planted about May 15 at a depth of about one inch. These should be transplanted to the permanent bed about the 15th of June. They should be set eighteen inches in the row and two feet between the rows. It is well to keep the patch clean, and the surface soil should be stirred frequently. It is unnecessary to trim off the leaves as the plants grown in the garden.

SWISS CHARD. Swiss chard can be grown easily from seed, in rows twelve inches apart, the young plants being thinned to six or eight inches apart. The advantage of this plant is that the leaves may be pulled off close to the root and new leaves shoot up, which may be consumed during the season. The roots are used for greens and the stem of the leaf as asparagus. A few plants should be sufficient for a small family.

Gallant General Nivelle, Who Commands the French, Earned That High Honor

GENERAL NIVELLE seems to have been predestined to be the supreme commander of the western front by the fact that he is, so to speak, an incarnation of Anglo-French friendship, being the son of a French father and an English mother. He was colonel of an artillery regiment at the time of the battle of the Marne and fought in that part of it known as the battle of the Ourcq, signalizing himself by a feat of arms which is strikingly illustrative of the spirit of daring and successful initiative which is to dominate the western front henceforth. The infantry in his section was giving way under terrific assaults and had been thrown across the Ourcq when Neville, gathering some eighteen pieces of artillery, calmly rode up with them, lined them up in front of the enemy, and fired into the German ranks point blank as fast as the guns could use up the shrapnel shells. The effect was instantaneous. The Germans who had crossed the Ourcq in pursuit were cut to pieces; those beyond the river fled in disorder, and a whole German division was decimated as the French infantry, taking heart from the extraordinary feat, reformed and regained the ground lost.

GENERAL NIVELLE

Nivelle repeated this same exploit shortly afterwards at the Aisne and thereafter became brigadier-general. After distinguishing himself before Soissons, where he stopped a German rush, and at Quennevieres where he broke the German line, he was called in hot haste to Verdun in March of last year when the offensive of the German Crown Prince was at its height. At first under the direction of Petain and from May 2nd on as commander of the Verdun army, Nivelle was the heart and soul of the French resistance whose watchword was from the first, "They shall not pass!" Onslaught followed onslaught, yet Nivelle and that army of heroes remained undaunted, fighting back and giving up ground foot by foot at a cost which made each square yard represent the value of at least one enemy life given for its purchase. The wise, those to whom human events are translated in market terms, had "discounted" the surrender of Verdun. Not so with him. The offensive on the Somme, launched in July, coincided with the supreme effort of the Crown Prince's forces, which almost reached Souville. By July 11th the tide had turned. Nivelle set himself to work to prepare the offensive after having been so long upon the defensive, a defensive which had turned the brilliant artillery officer into a veritable genius in the conduct of the war of to-day, which is pre-eminently a war of artillery.

SOLDIER GETS POSTOFFICE.

Corp. Ernest A. V. Carr Lost Both Legs at St. Eloi.

Corp. Ernest A. V. Carr has been recommended by Mr. W. B. Northrup, M. P. for East Hastings, to fill the vacant postmastership at Corbyville. Corporal Carr is a Belleville boy, who until a few days ago was an inmate of the Military Hospital in Toronto. He is at the present time on two months' leave of absence, but before taking over his duties with the Government he will return to the hospital in Toronto for treatment. Corporal Carr lost both legs while fighting with the Canadians in the salient at St. Eloi, and he has to be taken around in an invalid's chair.

The plucky young corporal, who is only 24 years of age, had a narrow escape from death when the high explosive landed in his immediate vicinity. Both legs were so badly crushed and splintered that the next day, June 10th, 1916, amputation was considered necessary. The corporal's system was shattered by the shock. When he returned to Canada young Carr brought back with him to Mrs. G. N. Barnett, of Belleville, a mud-bespattered flag belonging to her son, who was killed in action on the salient.

Corporal Carr has the distinction of having signed on for active service four days after the declaration of war. On August 8, 1914, he offered himself for service, and proceded to Valcartier, whence he crossed to England and eventually to Salisbury as a member of the 2nd Battalion. With this unit he took the field early in 1915, and for more than a year held down a portion of the line in the salient where the Canadians suffered so severely. On being wounded on June 9th, 1916, he was removed to the General Hospital at Boulogne, and the next six months he spent in hospitals and convalescent homes at Northampton, Dunston, Peterboro, and Shorncliffe, being then returned to Canada, and landing in Quebec on February 22.

Prior to enlisting Carr was employed as a railway fireman. He also served for a time in the militia as a member of a battery of artillery.

One Humane German.

The nuns were very nice to me. One particularly, a sweet old nun with marked Silesian accent, always tried to get me into conversation with her. I did not understand all she meant, for I was half deaf, and in her conversation she was not always loyal to High German. She used to insist good-naturedly on my eating some of the fare that was provided for us—soups so thick that the spoon could stand erect in the plate, potatoes half mashed by too much boiling, sauerkraut with sausage, and, at eight in the morning, a horrid mixture passing by the name of coffee and milk. I simply could not absorb any of that stuff, much to the disappointment of the sister, who used to shrug her awkward shoulders affectionately, sigh deeply, insist again, and finally go to the kitchen, and bring back a pint of milk instead of the food which I could not eat.—Lieutenant F. S., in the Atlantic.

Waistcoats of Every Sort.

Waistcoats of all kinds, shapes and materials are being worn. Two very attractive ones are of Chinese embroidery, one of black satin having a wide edging of the embroidery. Imitation caracul is worn, too, but the effect of this is rather heavy. On the whole, the most effective waistcoats are those of the embroidery.

The Fichu Is Back.

The fichu style in neckwear has been revived and shows a novelty made of black tulle edged with fur. This piece of neckwear takes the form of a deep sailor collar in the back with fichu effect in front, crossing over at waistline and tying on side front, forming long sash ends.

IN ARCTIC SIBERIA.

Among the strange and little known peoples dwelling in remote and trackless regions of the far North are the primitive native races of Arctic Siberia, says a writer in St. Nicholas. Their vast habitat extends from the extreme corner of north-eastern Asia, for thousands of miles inland and along the Arctic ocean. Two of these peoples, the Yakuts and Koryaks, are especially interesting.

The Yakuts are the largest and most cultivated of all the primitive races of Siberia. They live in a territory five times larger than that of Texas together with all the New England states. The extreme northern part of their country is the coldest region on earth, the temperature falling to 80 and 90 degrees below zero. Here the soil is eternally frozen for hundreds of feet below the surface; even at the height of summer, only a yard of unfrozen soil veneers the admixture of earth and ice, affording foothold for the gray tundra moss and occasional patches of grass and dwarf willow.

The natives live in yourtas, or semi-underground huts, and a few one-story log-cottages, as do the Russian administrative officials. For ten months the country is a dreary, trackless sea of driven snow, with far lower temperatures than the regions about the north and south poles. During the brief summer thaw of two months, the tundra, as the open country is called, is an impassable swamp.

The Yakuts are the most numerous tribe of eastern Siberia, numbering some 250,000, and are typical representatives of the culture of the Turkish tribes of Central Asia. In spite of their present isolation from the other branches of the Turkish race and their probable mixture with Mongols and others, the Yakuts, in the course of their migrations, have preserved one of the oldest and purest dialects of the language spoken by the Kirkhiz, the Tatars, and other Turkish peoples.

What King Edward Missed.

Many interesting reminiscences of famous people are given by Mr. F. Townsend Martin in "Things I Remember." The author recalls an interview which he had with Pope Leo the Thirteenth:

"The Chamberlain conducted me to a cushion close to the Papal chair. I knelt down, and Leo the Thirteenth looked at me gravely.

"'My son, are you of my faith?' he asked.

"'No, your Holiness,' I replied. 'I am a Protestant.'

"'Then why,' said the Pope somewhat sternly, 'do you seek an interview with me?'

"'Your Holiness,' I answered, 'my reason in asking for this interview arose from my wish to receive the blessing of a good man.'

"'My son, I will give you my blessing most willingly, but first I should like to talk to you.'"

Speaking of the late King Edward, the author says:

"Lady Burton once told me an amusing incident which occurred when the late King Edward stayed at Glenquoich.

"'I hope, sir, that you have found everything to your liking?' she said to the Royal visitor.

"'Yes,' answered the King; 'but, if I may make a suggestion, one little thing would add greatly to the comfort of your guests.'

"'Oh, sir, what can that be?'

"'Well, Lady Burton,' said his Majesty, 'the one thing needful is a hook on the bathroom door.'"

Tanks of 1860.

French "tanks" existed as far back as 1860, or rather they were invented then by a Frenchman named Balbi, and submitted for the approval of Napoleon III. Balbi called them "moving fortresses" and, in the absence of explosion motors, used steam as a driving power.

They were much smaller affairs than the present "tanks," mounting only two guns, but fitted so that quite a number of men could ride in them and use their rifles. They were iron-clad and sufficiently armed to resist any artillery of those days.

They were provided with lances and shears worked by steam, and which when put into movement revolved rapidly and continuously around the base of the fortress in a manner to cut anything to pieces that got in its way.

A special system of flexible axles was employed, enabling the contrivance to go over any kind of ground and to manœuvre in any direction.

Notwithstanding that the few machines made of this pattern gave every promise of success in a series of exhaustive trials, they were never adopted by the army, and those that were constructed now figure, dilapidated and neglected, among the relics of the artillery museum.

The Torpedo Car.

Although the use of modern artillery has worked a revolution in battle practice, preparing the way for an infantry charge entails a staggering cost. For that reason inventors have tried and indeed still are trying, to substitute some agency which will replace the big guns and do their work cheaper but no less efficiently.

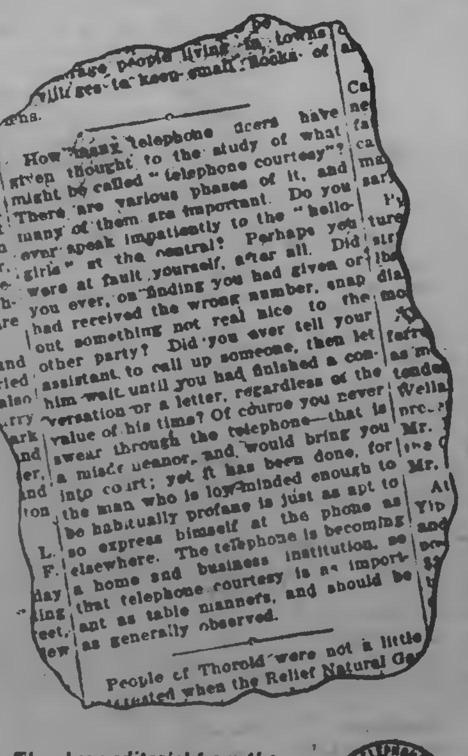
The torpedo car is said to be such an agency. It consists of a torpedo carrying several hundreds pounds of high explosive mounted on a chassis. It may be propelled either by gas, steam, compressed air of a storage battery and electric motor, all depending on its contemplated use and the estimated range of action.

The car is guided and fired by means of cables and wires in the hands of the attacking party. The control cable is attached to a valve in the supply pipe connecting the cylinders of the engine with the boiler, operating the speed of the car. The charge is fired by means of a wire attached to the trigger.

If it is found that the torpedo cannot reach the enemy because of rough ground, the control cable may be used to close the valve and to draw the machine back to the trench, for aiming it in a new direction. A windlass is provided for this purpose. Spiked wheels insure traction.

Compounding Ointments.

In biblical times a person whose business it was to compound ointments was called an "apothecary" (Nehemiah iii., 8; Ecclesiastes x, 1). The work was sometimes carried on by women "confectionaries" (I. Samuel viii., 13).



How many telephone users have given thought to the study of what might be called "telephone courtesy"? There are various phases of it, and many of them are important. Do you ever speak impatiently to the "hello-girls" at the central? Perhaps you were at fault yourself, after all. Did you ever, on finding you had given or had received the wrong number, snap out something not real nice to the other party? Did you ever tell your assistant to call up someone, then let him wait until you had finished a conversation or a letter, regardless of the value of his time? Of course you never swear through the telephone—that is a misdemeanor, and would bring you into court; yet it has been done, for the man who is low-minded enough to be habitually profane is just as apt to so express himself at the phone as elsewhere. The telephone is becoming a home and business institution, so that telephone courtesy is as important as table manners, and should be as generally observed.

People of Thorold were not a little

Telephone Courtesy--

A CORDIAL, kindly manner and a cheerful, smiling voice—everywhere people are awakening to the value of these in telephoning.

Not that anyone ever meant to be rude or discourteous. Many of us were just thoughtless, forgetting how sensitive the telephone is, reflecting our every mood.

And in addition to telephone courtesy, it is very helpful to speak distinctly and directly into the mouthpiece of the telephone, with the lips about half an inch from its rim.

And then, of course, we should always make sure of the number by consulting the directory before calling.

NEW CORPS OPENED.

Successful Meeting at Byersville Last Night.

The final meeting of the series of the opening of the new corps of the Salvation Army at Byersville was very successfully carried through last night with Adjutant Burton at the helm. The new officers, Capt. Hargraves and Lieut. Kent, now have the reins, and will drive ahead at a breakneck speed with the opportunity afforded them in their new field of labor.

They got a little closer to their new comrades over a cup of tea before the meeting last night. Bro. G. Leggott of the Brailey Sunday school assisted in the service. A very full program has been arranged for the balance of the week.

Mrs. Jarvis Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured Her Delicate Child When Nothing Else Could

Mrs. Jarvis, Box 286, Penetang P.O., Ontario, writes: "It is a pleasure to tell you what Dr. Cassell's Tablets have done for my baby. When only five months old he fell ill, and though I had medical advice for him he got worse. I tried several special foods, but none of them would stay on his stomach and he became so thin that he seemed just skin and bone. He only weighed 10 pounds, and we never thought he could live. But chancing to hear of Dr. Cassell's Tablets I got some for baby, and am thankful I did. He is a bonny boy now, quite cured, and weighs 25 pounds at twelve months old."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 McCaul Street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis, Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same.

GEN. WILLIAM IN SWITZERLAND IS ON PAROLE

BELONGS TO WELL-KNOWN PORT HOPE FAMILY.

General Victor Williams, the well-known Canadian Officer, who fell into the hands of the Germans in a badly wounded condition at the time General Mercer met his death, is now on permanent parole in Switzerland with his family, according to a message which had ben received by his brother, Mr. Leo Williams, of Calgary. It was during the fight at Zillebeke, while conducting operations from the front line trenches, that Generals Mercer and Williams received the wounds which resulted in the death of the former and the capture of his brother commander. General Williams belongs to a Port Hope family, and from 1893 to 1907 he was stationed in Toronto with the Royal Canadian Regiment.

TREATING ILLEGAL.

New Liquor Regulations in Effect in Quebec.

MONTREAL, May 1.—Beginning today the new Quebec liquor legislation banning treating and closing saloons at 9 p.m. comes into effect. The new legislation applies to hotels and restaurants. The problem as to whether the new law applies to clubs will be settled by a test case. The open bar system will be abolished in Quebec on May 1, 1918, and the cafe substituted.

HOW PETERBOROUGH GROWS

Another point that bears out the statement that Peterborough is progressing develops from the monthly returns of the Peterborough Clearing House.

The clearings increased over April of last year by nearly three-quarters of a million dollars, and nearly a million over two years ago.

April, 1917	$2,622,597.00
April, 1916	1,918,514.00
Increase	$ 704,083.00
April, 1915	$1,695,271.00

TO BUILD SHIP EVERY TEN DAYS

U. S. GOVERNMENT CONTRACT MAY DEFEAT SUB. CAMPAIGN.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The United States Government awarded to the Foundation Company of this city a contract for building an indefinite number of wooden ships, part of the fleet which is to "bridge" the seas, carrying food, munitions and supplies to our allies. Today more than 1,000 men were were put to work building the plant near this city, which, when it is running at maximum capacity will be able to turn out one ship ready for service every ten days. The plant will occupy 55 acres, with 1,500 feet of water frontage.

Action Taken in Case of Local Interest

Woodbeck v. Waller.—C. W. Kerr, for execution creditors, moved for payment of moneys out of court. No one contra. Having regard to provisions of creditors' Relief Act, R.S.O., cap. 31, sec. 224, and succeeding sections, and to the provisions of the Absconding Debtors Act, R.S.O., cap. 32, and to the case of re Horstall, 17, P.R. 201, the fund in couurt, with accrued interest must be paid out of the Sheriff of Peterboro' for distribution pursuant to the Creditors' Relief Act. An accountant's certificate should be filed.

RECRUITING IN WINDSOR

Recruiting at Windsor Appears to be Even Slower than at the Local Armouries

While recruiting for overseas units during the month of April set a record for this year, 450 enlisting in 30 days, not a single recruit has been attested for the Canadian Home Defence Force since Wednesday, when recruiting for that service commenced. "Men who are physically fit and want to become soldiers, are signing for overseas service," stated an officer at Windsor Armouries.

" If men are to be obtained for home defence the Government should lower the physical standard."

Another obstacle in the way of recruiting for home defence is that the Militia Department has not complied with the request of Windsor manufacturers that training at outside camps be limited to one month. Manufacturers say factory workers cannot be spared for the three month period proposed.

NO CONSCRIPTION LIKELY

That it has never been the intention of the Dominion Government up to the present time to bring about conscription in Canada, despite statements encouraging the hope that this step would be taken is made perfectly clear in a return tabled in Parliament relative to the importation into Western Canada of farm laborers from the United States.

The statement includes a letter written for general circulation in the United States by Hon. W. J. Roche on January 8, 1916, in which he said: "I beg to advise you that all troops from Canada for the war have gone voluntary; that, while the Government has the power to enforce conscription, such action has not been considered advisable or necesary, and even were conscription introduuced, it would apply to Canadian citizens only."

The inclusion of this leter in the recent return is taken as a pretty certain indication that the Government's policy is just the same today as it was in January, 1916.

BETTER PAY FOR U.S. SOLDIERS

SENATE AND HOUSE BOTH IN FAVOR OF AN INCREASE.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Both Senate and House adopted amendments greatly increasing the pay of enlisted men during the war. The House provision would make their pay $30 a month, and that approved by the Senate would fix it at $29 a month. The present pay is only $15.

ACTIVITIES AT Y.M.C.A.

The members of the Y.M.C.A boys' garden club held a meeting in the "Y" parlors last night, and decided that in order for the club to be the success that it ought to be, that officers should be elected and a strong committee formed to carry on the business of the club.

The following officers were accordingly chosen:—

Honorary president Mr. Walter Oak.

President—Earl Barele.

Vice-president—Ralph Turner.

Secretary—Fred Ash.

A special meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening, May 2, at 7.30, when Mr. C. E. Smith, of the Farm and Dairy, will address the boys on the subject of garden plots and outline the rules for the back yard garden competition.

All boys who are competing in the Oke potato competition are requested to attend this meeting, as the rules for the competition will be explained.

Parents are reminded that the boys' swimming campaign will commence today and now is the time for the boys to learn the art of swimming.

There is always the danger of boys who cannot swim going to the river or lakes and meeting with an accident, and that is the reason that the Y. M. C. A. has set an early date for their swimming campaign. The Physical director will be glad to receive the names of boys who wish to learn to swim.

The following school boys have received a prize of a Y.M.C.A. button for regular attendance at Gymnasium classes: Stewart Fleming, Robert Breckenridge, Arthur McFarlane, Bruce Copping, Jack Turner.

Recently invented kitchen dishes made of glass reinforced with wire are intended to be durable as well as sanitary.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WATCH NATURE CHANGE THE EARTH'S CLOTHES

Spring is the time of the most wonderful changes the earth sees in the year. The beauties of the green foliage slowly unfold, and it is a pleasure, indeed, to watch the process. To really enjoy it the eyesight should be at its best, and if there is any dimness it can be quickly remedied by letting Dr Fowler fit you with a pair of his "PEBLO" Glasses. They can make the near or distant vision perfect and you are then equipped right for business or pleasure.

RESTORE THE NATURAL SIGHT

YOUR BEDROOM.

No matter how attractively one's bedroom may be furnished one cannot help growing tired of one's surroundings. Then, too, as the season changes from extreme cold to extreme warm weather it is advisable to change the furnishings of the bedroom. For many years cretonne and sprigged materials have been chosen for the summer hangings and coverings. According to predictions, plain chambray will be sold extensively next summer. An example displayed in an artistic shop showed the bed cover, bolster sham, rest pillow, covers for dressing table and chiffonier and hangings for the window of blue chambray, combined with white. The bed cover, or spread, being the largest piece, showed more white than any of the other pieces. In fact, the spread was of white sheeting, fringed along all its edges. On the center was appliqued a square of blue chambray, which was embroidered in white. A noticeable point about the blue square was that the hem was turned up on the right side and held down with white tape, which looked very much like white seam binding. If one desires to make the set a little more elaborate hand crocheted lace or imitation cluny might be used to edge the various articles.

Old rose, pink green or yellow chambray would be equally as effective as the blue. If you will begin now to make a set you will have plenty of time to do the work, and the result will be better than if it is done in a hurry. Think of the joy you will experience if you will be able to produce a complete set for your bedroom or your guest room when spring housecleaning is over and the winter draperies are put away.

HELPFUL HINTS.

When making starch try mixing the starch with cold water and pouring this into the boiling water. Boil the usual time, and if used when warm will not need to be strained.

If sheets are wrung first by the selvage and next by the hem there will be no more bother with selvages turning in when you iron them.

If a teaspoonful of saleratus is added to the water in which onions are cooking and the water poured off and new added and this is repeated after they have cooked a short time longer, you will find onions more tender and digestible.

Try baking your pork chops, sausage and bacon. No more tiresome turning them over and saves the stove from being covered with grease. You will find that the fat that cooked out of them is clear and can be used in a great many ways.

To make oranges juicier and sweeter pour boiling hot water over them and let stand for half an hour.

Pockets Are a Feature.

In fact, principally in the pockets lies the variety of the sport suits and separate sport skirts. There are crescent pockets which start from the waistline down. There are also patch pockets of any shape your fancy can imagine and of considerable size, enough always to be conspicuously decorative, or if you can invent a new pocket for a sport suit so much the better. Otherwise the skirts seem to be made with two or three seams and of striped, coin spotted or plain goods. Plain short coats of rajah or tussore have their collars and coat fronts faced with a contrasting color, as a ... blue coat faced with ivory white.

WORKERS URGED NOT TO STRIKE

ALLIED VICTORY MEANS ENSLAVEMENT OF WAGE-EARNERS.

BERLIN, May 1.—Nearly all the big German organizations are issuing strict prohibitions to the members against participation in any strike movement on May 1—not for love of the German Government or to save any trouble, but in order that Hindenburg may have all the munitions and other war material necessary for the defeat of the foe whose triumph, as one of the bills distributed in the factories reads, "would mean the enslavement of generations of German workmen."

DETROIT BOY LOST

The Detroit police have asked the Provincial police department to be on the watch for Ellis Finster, a 15-year old boy, who has been missing from his home, 283 Virginia Park Detroit, for some weeks. The lost lad has dark brown hair, dark eyes. When last seen he was wearing a brown cap, grey raincoat, and blue suit.

FROM "SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE"

Lady Who Sent Socks Receives a Letter of Thanks.

A number of young ladies in the city took up the worthy work of knitting socks for the soldiers overseas, and some of them sent their names and addresses with their gifts, adding a few words of cheer. One of these ladies was surprised the other day, and agreeably so, to receive the following letter from "Somewhere in France":

Just half a dozen lines to thank you for a pair of socks received today through the Kitchener League. One of the 93rd boys, who is in "C" Co. of the 5th C. M. R., just brought several pairs in to us, and the pair I got had your name and address, so I must show you that we appreciate them very much.

We have had a great many socks from the K. L. Just now the weather is miserable, and it is impossible to have dry feet; but the folks left behind are certainly doing their bit towards helping us.

Well, I have exceeded half a dozen lines, but you must forgive me.

Hope you will be able to read this scribble; it is a difficult proposition to write in the position in which I am. Our dugout is rather crowded, so we have to manage as best we can.

Sincerely,

Prevention of Coal Shortage.

This winter we have had a coal "famine" and that suffering has accompanied the shortage of this necessity is undeniable. The average citizen has a notoriously short memory, but now is the time to impress upon him that, in many cases, the suffering was due to lack of foresight. In Canada many people buy in small quantities—often only one ton. If, for any cause, there is a shortage of coal, improvident householders demand that the coal dealers do the impossible, namely, that they supply fuel that is unobtainable. Whereas, had they purchased their coal in the summer or autumn, there would be ample supplies available.

While some large consumers, such as manufacturers, cannot store a six months' supply, most householders can, with their present bins or with enlarged bins, store coal to meet their requirements till March or April.

In recent years, we have had two coal "famines," first in 1901-2, the year of the coal miners' strike, and, second, this year, when the severity of the weather and the extraordinary prosperity in the United States caused an unprecedented congestion of freight. A survey of conditions in the United States demonstrates that in the future there will be more coal "famines" than in the past and that they will occur at shorter intervals. For this there is only one remedy:

Buy your coal in the summer. If you have not sufficient storage, enlarge your coal bin.

True Vigilance.

In a place in New Ontario a town building caught fire, and the extinguishers failed to do their work. A few days later at the town meeting some citizens tried to learn the reason. After they had freely discussed the subject, one of them said: "Mr. Chairman, I make a motion that the fire-extinguishers be examined ten days before every fire."

COAL IS SCARCE PRICES HIGHER FREIGHT IS UP

ORDERS FOR FUTURE DELIVERY ARE REFUSED IN SOME PLACES.

Orders for future delivery of coal at the prevailing prices are being refused by the majority of the coal dealers outside the city, their stand being the outcome of a rush of orders from citizens desirous of getting in their supplies for next winter. The dealers have limited quantities only in their yards at the present time, the coal supply over the country is scarce, and many of the wholesalers and retailers have orders now on hand that will keep them busy for some time.

The coal situation is such now that the American roads are charging 20 cents a ton additional to transport the fuel to Canada. The Canadian roads, too, are asking for an increase of 15 cents a ton. A total increase of 95 cents in the price of a ton of coal to the consumer is looked for, and it is with a view to stocking up before further increases come that the public is trying to place its orders.

Since the famine of last winter the dealers have not fully regained their feet so that they are not as competent to deal with the trouble today as they expect to be later on.

SAVED COMRADE AT GREAT RISK; TO GET HONORS

LT. MULLIGAN OF OMEMEE DISPLAYS GREAT PRESENCE OF MIND.

Mr. R. J. Mulligan, of Omemee, ex-warden of the county, stated that his son, Lieut. Mulligan, who sailed overseas with the 109th. Batt. is slated for recognition for bravery and presence of mind. It appears that while in the trenches a comrade went to throw a bomb over the enemy's lines. It slipped and fell back among his comrades. The bomber went to crush the fuse out with his foot when Lieut. Mulligan dashed forward, grabbed the bomb in his hands and had just time to throw it over the side of the trench when it exploded with terrific force. By this act of bravery Lieut. Mulligan saved the lives of of a number of his fellow soldiers in the trenches.

TO SPARE THE FARMERS

Only One Session of Supreme Court Here This Fall.

The Ontario Supreme Court will hold only one sitting here this fall, according to the list issued at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday. The judges do not wish to interfere with the farmers, so far as jury service is concerned, any more than they can help. The Fall Assizes will therefore be a combination of a jury and non-jury sittings.

The date for the court here is fixed as October 30th and the trial Judge will be Hon. Mr. Justice Latchford

MANITOBA'S RESOURCES.

Sir James Aikins Tells of Needed Reforms.

If the persons who took up homesteads and pre-emptions had been really interested in farming, and qualified to farm, the policy of the Federal Government crystallized forty years ago in the Dominion Lands Act would have shown much better results. Its purpose was to give to actual settlers and their families 160 or 320 acres for residence and continuous cultivation. Let me give you some figures:

Military homesteads, pre-emptions and purchased homesteads increase this to 62,775,510.

The following statement shows estimate of areas under crop in the three prairie provinces in 1916, according to the Census and Statistics Monthly of the Department of Trade and Commerce, July, 1916:

	Acres.
Wheat	10,593,200
Oats	6,283,000
Barley	936,000
Other grains	487,290
Total acreage	18,199,490

In proper farming a portion of the cultivated land should be rested, allow then one-third more for fallow, making a total of 24,265,000. And one-third more of last-mentioned acreage for pasturage, making a total of 32,354,000 acres.

Can you estimate the loss to the prairie provinces by reason of the non-use of over thirty millions of acres of the very best land specifically granted to persons for residence and cultivation. That is not all of this mistaken policy, for the Crown has alienated other lands.

	Acres.
Railways, Hudson's Bay Co., school lands sale	36,647,996
Sales, special and half-breed grants	7,129,066
Mining lands sold	101,701
Mounted Police, etc.	33,078
	43,911,841
	37,030,150

The total, without Hudson's Bay Company and mining lands, is 99,805,750 acres; of the estimated arable lands in the three Provinces granted in freehold, only about 32,354,000 acres are used for farming—less than one-third of the granted land.

Manitoba and all its citizens should recognize the fact that the useful occupation of the land is the chief of all its economic questions. New Zealand does. About one-third of the land there is held on permanent leasehold from the State. Moreover, the State has purchased from grantees some million and a quarter of acres, and leased it in the same way to settlers, so 13,000 souls have been thus settled on the land, and the Government has not been the loser in the transaction. These permanent leaseholds for, say, 999 years are really freeholds, but they can be made subject to suitable regulations of residence and cultivation, so the Government can see that the land is occupied and kept productive, and not held by speculators, unused, to the detriment of the people. The same damage results from speculators securing possession of our other natural resources—for example, our water-powers, coal fields, minerals, fishing rights, and the like. Surely these natural resources were intended for the benefit of the people of Manitoba and not for people residing elsewhere, or speculation. If single individuals have not the capital to develop them under Government control, the Government representing the people has the capital and will have the support of the people in owning and using for our advantage. I am not urging that the western Provinces give up their Dominion subsidies granted in lieu of natural resources, but may not the Governments acquire those found useful on a basis similar to that on which private enterprise does or speculators do, and so keep and administer them for the people? The people on our farms need cheap fuel, cheap power for farm purposes, and cheap fish. These would contribute not only to comfort but profit on the farm. You active-minded men of this association can give your attention to this problem, and you can assist in providing proper education and training for farm life, and for the profitable use of those other natural

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

MARRIAGE BY PROXY

Privilege For Australian Soldiers and Distant Sweethearts

In the House of Representatives in Australia Mr. Hughes introduced a Bill legalizing marriage by proxy among Australians on active service. The system of marriage by proxy had been in force in the French army for some time and had been found to work well. Australian soldiers in London, however, were puzzled to understand the meaning of this legislative move and declared that they would rather not marry at all than by proxy. "When I marry I am taking my girl to the altar myself," remarked one mischievous-eyed Anzac. "I am not troubling any pal to act in my place."

An Australian staff officer who belonged to the original Expeditionary Army, remarked that he had never had any demand from his men for marriage by proxy, but there was not the slightest doubt as to the meaning of the proposed legislation. "It is," he said, "to get Australians to marry Australian girls. When an Australian comes over to England he may be tempted to forget the sweetheart he has left behind him and marry an English girl. That is all very well from his point of view, but it is jolly hard on the lass waiting for him in Australia and worrying her heart out whether he will be killed or not.

"There have been so many cases of Australians marrying English girls and disappointing their own sweethearts that I suppose the Australian girls in self-defence have been making representations to the Commonwealth Government. On the other hand, one of our boys, badly wounded and with an even chance of dying or recovering, may feel he would like to marry his sweetheart and secure to her the pension to which the widow of an Australian soldier is entitled. Thousands of miles away, his only chance of achieving his desire is to marry her by proxy. Again, there are any number of Australian soldiers who would, no doubt, welcome the opportunity of marrying their sweethearts and making sure that no rivals estrange their affections."

FOR THE THRIFTY

Bread and Milk Form a Perfectly Balanced Diet

The position of bread on the table is interesting. The bread, like the prepared breakfast foods, is ready to serve; and one dollar, even at 16 cents for the large loaf, will purchase approximately twice as much actual food as if spent on these prepared cereals. It stands first in our list of cooked foods. It is worthy of note, however, that while a dollar expended on spring wheat flour furnishes 91.4 cents' worth of food material, bread only supplies 52.6. The difference presumably is what it costs to make and deliver the bread. Skim milk and buttermilk at 10 cents a gallon hold a good position in the list of common foods, and too little of these cheap foods is used. At present prices they furnish the cheapest source of food protein. Milk and corn meal or milk and bread form an almost perfectly balanced diet. It may not be the most appetising diet, and it may be too bulky for the adult, but it is one that will be sustaining

MUNITIONS IN 1856 AND 1917

Three Muskets in Three Months—Victoria's Protest

The statement that the output of guns and shells in 1917 was more in a single week than it was in the whole of 1917 recalls a letter written by Queen Victoria to Lord Panmure in 1856, says a London paper. Her Majesty was still young in those days, and what a Minister of Munitions she would have made! "The returns of the different departments for the last quarter," she wrote, "show a lamentable deficiency in small arms. Fifty-two thousand three hundred and twenty-two for the whole of the United Kingdom is a sadly small reserve to have in store; we should never be short of 500,000." The Queen was struck also with the little work done at Enfield: "It appears that during the whole quarter this new and extensive establishment has completed only three muskets!"

Lord Mayor at Drill

The Lord Mayor presided over a drill display given in the Guildhall by the London Division Church Lads' Brigade. It was stated that 7,000 officers and cadets or ex cadets of this brigade were known to be serving in his Majesty's forces.

Washing Doeskin Gloves

Plunge the gloves into a basin of warm soapy water and squeeze, rubbing gently till quite clean. Rinse in warm soapy water. Squeeze out and place to dry in the air or a warm room but never near a fire. When dry open out the fingers carefully with glove stretchers, and then slip the gloves on the hand. Brown doeskin gloves should have a little tea added to the water in which they are washed and rinsed.

Celery Relish

One quart celery, 1 quart cabbage, 1 quart green cucumbers, 1 quart onions, 1 quart green tomatoes, 3 large green peppers, all chopped fine; 1 cup salt, ½ lb. mustard, 1 lb. brown sugar, ½ gal. vinegar, 1 cup flour, 5 cents' worth curry powder. Mix dry ingredients to a paste in 1 pint of the vinegar, and when the rest is cooked stir this in and stir for 20 minutes.

A Honey Drink

Honey, like any other sweet, should not be used straight but should be diluted with water or milk, either mixing milk with it or drinking copiously of water after eating it. A delightful drink for children is to put one or two teaspoonfuls in a glass of milk and thoroughly mix.

A Question of Tact

The good hostess is one who gives you just enough attention. If she presses her society upon you constantly you wish you hadn't come to her party. If she has no eyes for you, you feel neglected. Truly, just enoughness is another term for tact.

Cleaning Hair Brushes

To wash brushes and combs put a teaspoonful of ammonia into a basin of hot water and dip the brush up and down in it, letting the comb remain in the water for a few minutes. Afterwards rinse in cold water.

SUBMARINES DESCRIBED

Latest Type of U-Boat Equipped Also For Mine-Laying

The latest U-boats, as is well known, are much larger than their predecessors, writes the London Daily Mail. One sometimes sees them described as submersible cruisers. Whether that description may be regarded as accurate or not depends upon what one understands by "submersible cruiser." There is no evidence that Germany has yet sent out U-boats to which a naval man would apply this name. But this must not be taken as implying that her under-water craft are to be lightly regarded. Quite the other way about. So much has their displacement been increased that they are capable of a wide radius of action, and by husbanding their fuel supplies can keep the sea for a long time. Moreover, they possess high speed (high for a submarine, which, of course, must be judged by standards different from those applied to surface ships), and they can dive very quickly. Guns equal in power to those carried by some destroyers are now being mounted in them. These weapons are placed on a disappearing mounting; that is, are raised from the interior when she dives. Over the gun emplacement is an armored hatch which lifts with the gun and forms a strong, protective hood above the gun and its crew while the weapon is in action. As the gun lowers, so this hatch automatically sinks back until it falls into place again as a part of the hull. Their torpedoes are mostly short-range weapons loaded with a very heavy explosive charge. Shortness of range enables them to carry a much more powerful war-head than they would be able to do if they were engined to travel a longer distance. On their boat-shaped bows is fitted a cutter designed to enable the boat to shear its way through any obstacle it may encounter. They are equipped also for mine-laying and, in fact, include this among their regular activities. With a view to enable them better to resist attack, they are built with two hulls, one outside the other, somewhat like a steel cylinder enclosed in the hull of a boat. And living conditions for their crews are far better than they were in the earlier types of U-boat.

HELPING WIN THE WAR

Inventors' Paradise Found in Ministry of Munitions

The Ministry of Munitions has an Invention Department, the business of which is to see that no invention or suggestion that may help towards victory is refused. Since its inception the Department has dealt with 29,000 projects—many of them belonging to the category of the obviously impossible. On the other hand, if the invention contains even the nucleus of a useful plan, the author has placed at his disposal the advice of examiners, who are all specialists drafted from the Patent Office, and of the military advisers of the Department. He is given the facilities of the drawing office and workshop actually on the premises, together with those which are afforded by the experimental ground. He has also the resources of various scientific laboratories placed at his service, and generally is afforded an amount of technical assistance which it would be impossible for him to obtain elsewhere at the present time, even at great expense.

The Department also has an organisation for keeping in touch with the actual requirements and problems that are encountered in the field, and with the similar work to its own that is carried on by the French and Russian Governments.

An avalanche in the Trentino buried two heavy guns and 150 Austrian artillerymen.

To Relieve Fatigue

When a woman is very tired she will find one of the best processes of refreshing herself is to wring out hot cloths and lay them over her eyes and forehead. A hot water bag does not [illegible] as a substitute for this, and the treatment is a little trouble. The simplest way is to have two cloths and a basin of hot water ready to wring out and replace on the head the one that becomes cool.

Keep a Bag of Bran Handy

Bathing in hard water is bad for the skin and is apt to make it course. Rainwater makes a wonderful bath but is hard to get, and when that is impossible the water should be softened by throwing into it a small bag of bran or a teaspoonful of baking soda. Even a bag containing ordinary yellow cornmeal will take away the harshness of the water.

SOME GOOD RECIPES FOR SWEET PICKLES

Spiced sweet pickles may be made of pears, grapes, cherries, apples, peaches, watermelon rinds, mangoes or ripe cucumbers. The delicate fruits are seeded or not according to preference and put directly into the spiced vinegar. The tougher material is soaked in brine, drained, scalded in alum water and then in the spiced vinegar.

By the old method, the spiced vinegar is heated and poured over the pickles, which are covered and allowed to cool. Each morning for nine days the vinegar is drained off, reheated and poured over the pickles. They are then scalded or covered closely and set away. The vinegar is delicious for mince pies and in "sweet pickle jelly" to be used as a relish with meats.

Sweet Pickled Peaches.—Seven pounds of fruit, seeded, half as much sugar, one pint of vinegar and one ounce each of stick cinnamon or cassia buds, whole cloves, mace, and allspice.

Sweet Pickled Pears—Use the small proportions as above, omitting mace and allspice and using two ounces of green ginger root, scraped and sliced.

Pickled Plums or Prunes—Use recipe for peaches. A delicious relish made by using dried prunes and a few slices of sweet orange, rind and all. This is ready for use the second day and should be served with meat or game. If the vinegar is sharp, use half vinegar and the rest of strong tea, and increase the sugar.

Pickled Muskmelon—Use small green melons. Remove seeds and rind. Cut in slices lengthwise. For each quart of water use half a pint of vinegar—cover the melons and cook slowly till tender. Drain and put in the syrup given for peaches. When it boils once remove from the fire. Drain melons and reheat vinegar on two succeeding mornings. On the third day cook the syrup until thick and pour over the melons and seal.

Scotch Short Bread

Three-quarters pound of finest flour, one-half pound of butter, one-fourth pound of castor sugar. Put the flour and sugar into a basin and rub the butter thoroughly in; turn it out on the board, and knead firmly till it is a smooth paste (it requires a great deal of strength to knead it), roll it out to the thickness of about an inch, and shape to suit. It should not be much rolled, as rolling makes it tough. Bake in a sheet in a brisk oven for [illegible] to half an hour.

HOW TO WASH FLANNEL

Prepare a soap lather by shredding yellow soap in the quantity required, then cover with water and boil to a liquid. Fill the bath with warm water, and add sufficient of the soap liquid to form a lather. Shake the flannels and plunge them, one at a time, into the soapy water. Squeeze up and down in the soapy liquid, but do not rub. Rinse in two waters which should be warm, and have a little dissolved soap added to each. Squeeze as dry as possible and hang out to finish drying, but do not put near a fire. Press with a slightly warm iron on the wrong side when quite dry. This will prevent the flannel from irritating the most sensitive skin.

How to Wash Woollens

A sweater or a knitted shawl should not be hung up. Dry it on a towel in a basket, turning the garment frequently. Woollen things may be soaked for half an hour in lukewarm water in which three tablespoonfuls of borax and a small cake of white soap have been dissolved. Then wash as usual and rinse in warm water. Blankets should be hung on the line without rinsing; then turn the garden hose on them. This method does not mat the wool, and the blankets seem much fluffier after such treatment.

Embroidering Made Easy

Many ladies embroider linen or lawn shirt blouses or linen centrepieces and doilies for their friends. Many, too, though naturally neat, will find their work soiled before it is finished. If one desires to make up such material or give it to a friend without washing, it may be made perfectly clean by sprinkling thickly with French chalk and rolling up for a day or two. The chalk may afterward be shaken out.

Currant and Mint Sauce

Melt a glassful of red currant jelly or beat it until it is smooth, and add to it 2 tablespoonfuls of chopped mint leaves and 1 small tablespoonful of grated orange peel. Add 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice. It is very good when served cold, but better when iced.

DANCER AS AVIATOR

Vernon Castle Won French Cross With British Army

Lieutenant Vernon C. Blythe, of the Royal Flying Corps, received the Croix de Guerre for valorous action on the Western front. Lest a world satiated with daring deeds and military crosses should yawn and refuse to read past the first paragraph, let it be added at once that Mrs. Vernon Castle made this announcement. Lieutenant Blythe is known in a land that paid more attention to dancing than to aeroplanes as Vernon Castle. According to his wife, the little cross on his breast means that he has brought to earth two German air fighters.

"Vernon had three weeks' leave in London," Mrs. Castle said. "We were together all the time, but we didn't dance. Officers are not allowed to dance in England any more. He looked well and happy."

German Tank "Inventor"

One time German papers were claiming the original idea of the tanks, an Amsterdam paper writes, for a certain Herr Gobel and suggesting that the British tanks were merely a poor plagiarism of his invention. It is interesting in this connection to learn from the Cologne People's Gazette (Volkszeitung) that Herr Gobel had to fight hard to get his invention used, and it appeals for speedy help for him so that his invention may help to hasten the end of the war.

Pool Shipbuilding Labor

Newcastle engineers and shipbuilders are agreed to pool labor on the Tyne in [illegible] the production of merchant shipping.

Semi-Tailored Hat

ORIGIN OF PINS

Many Millions of Pins Wasted—What Becomes of Them

The question is often asked, "What becomes of all the millions of pins that are made?" They do not rot away, and no one ever hears of them being collected and melted up again. But the origin of pins is even more interesting.

An act of Edward IV., passed in 1463, prohibited the importation of pins, doubtless with intention to protect the home-made article. As the story goes: One John Tilney, of Bristol, established a pin factory in Gloucester in 1646, which flourished in the feminine toilette.

It is a curious fact that needles have been in use for many centuries, while pins have been made only within four hundred and fifty years or thereabouts. It seems strange that the success of the little sharp-pointed needle did not lead to the invention of pins at a much earlier date.

WINN—QUINLAN

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral at 8 o'clock this morning, when the Rev. Father Phelan united in marriage Miss Ruth Quinlan, daughter of Mrs. D. Quinlan, London Street, and Mr. Joseph Winn, son of Mr. John Winn, of Downeyville. The bride was attended by Miss Rose Winn, a sister of the groom, and the best man was Mr. M. Murty, of Peterboro.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Winn will take up residence in the city.

RUSSELL—BARRIE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in Park Street Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon, April 28th, at 3 o'clock, when Frederick G. Russell was united in marriage to Ada May Barrie, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Barrie, 520 Chamberlain street. They were unattended. The bride was given away by her father, and looked beautiful in her travelling suit of grey silk, with hat to match. She carried a massive bouquet of marguerites. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dougald Brown.

The happy couple left on the 3:40 train for Toronto, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

CHILDS—NICHOLS.

A very quiet wedding took place at the parsonage of St. James' Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, when Rev. Benj. Greatrix united in marriage Miss Margaret Nichols and Mr. William H. Childs, of Bridgenorth. Only a few of the relatives of the contracting parties were presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs will reside in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas James Best visited relatives in Lindsay over Sunday.

Mrs. A. F. Lane is in Toronto attending the graduation exercises at the Methodist National Training School. Miss Ada Lane is one of the graduates.

GERMANY DEFERS PEACE OFFER

PTE. MARVIN S. KENNEDY HAS MADE SUPREME SACRIFICE

Another of Peterborough's Gallant Native Sons Reported Killed at Battle of Vimy Ridge---148 Names in Today's List.

Pte. Marvin S. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, 600 Water street, was killed in action at the battle of Vimy Ridge, some time between April 7 and 10. Official notification was sent yesterday from the Record Office at Ottawa to the brother of deceased, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, the well-known live stock dealer, at Toronto. Mr. Kennedy took the first train for Peterborough to break the news to the aged parents. The mother is almost prostrated by the blow.

The late Pte. Kennedy was born in Peterborough 39 years ago and was engaged in the live stock business with his brother for a number of years. Several years ago he went to the West, and was living at Brandon when he enlisted with the Canadian Mounted Rifles. He twice refused a commission in order that he could get into actual service at the front. He had been in France since last Fall.

In all his letters home Pte. Kennedy was optimistic and always expressed satisfaction at the step he had taken. The family received a letter from him dated April 4th, a few days before his death, in which he stated that the troops were preparing for a big drive. "You may expect to hear of something big in a few days," he added.

His words certainly came true. Nothing more startling than the news of his death could possibly have reached his relatives.

Besides his parents the late Pte. Kennedy is survived by three brothers, H. P. and Major H. W. Kennedy, at Toronto, and Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, who is at present in Dakota; Mrs. R. J. Kidd, of Benson street, and Mrs. R. A. Ward of Toronto are sisters.

Following the announcement by the press that most of the casualties from the recent fighting at Vimy Ridge are in, the list issued last night was a very small one in comparison to those which have been published in previous days.

PTE. BAKER WOUNDED.

This morning Mr. Owen D. Baker of Dublin street received word from the record office that his son, Pte. Herbert Frank Baker, had been officially reported wounded on April 9. No particulars are given as to the nature of the wounds or what hospital the wounded soldier is in. The last letter that was received from him simply enclosed a picture postcard.

PTE. MILTON BYERS.

Word was received here this morning that Pte. Milton V. Byers, son of Mr. Robt. Byers, of Bethany, had been killed in action on April 9. Pte. Byers enlisted with the 56th Bn. at Calgary and was attached to the machine gun section. His mother died last January. He was a brother of Mrs. J. A. Perry, 316 Maitland avenue, and Mrs. Joseph Ingram, 304 Pearl avenue. His two brothers, William and Amos Byers, and two sisters, Mrs. D. S. Cairns and Mrs. Sarah Fallis, live at Bethany. Pte. Byers was unmarried and had lived in the West for about eighteen years.

Today's noon casualties list as sent out from Ottawa, contains 148 names, of whom 55 were killed, 11 died of wounds, and 82 were wounded. The grand total since Easter Sunday is now 12,676.

TRACTOR PLOWS OUT OF ORDER

When the tractor plow sent to this city by the Agricultural Department of Ontario was unloaded from the cars, the expert who came with it was obliged to leave for another city. After he was gone it was found that the ignition apparatus of the tractor was out of order. The machine has since been in the hands of the Peterborough Machine and Lubricating Co. It will probably be ready for work today, and will be tested tomorrow on the farm of Mr. Allan Wilson of Otonabee.

Mr. Wm. Waters, of Toronto, is here to operate the plow. It turns three furrows 14 inches each in width, and can easily turn over from six to ten acres of land in a day. All depends upon the size of the field and the condition of the soil.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS

Will soon Receive Promised Three Months' Pay

OTTAWA, May 2.—With reference to the three month's pay and separation allowance which the Government has recently authorized to be paid soldiers on discharge, the militia department is arranging to begin the issue of this at an early date.

It is expected that the first payment will be made by the end of May, the second one in June, and the final one in July to all returned soldiers discharged up to date.

SMALL ARMY OF HUNS ARE MADE CAPTIVE IN APRIL

General Haig Took 19,343 Prisoners During Operations of Last Month and 257 Guns Were Also Captured.

LONDON, May 2.—"During the month of April," says the official report from British Headquarters in France, "we have taken in the course of our offensive operations 19,343 German prisoners, including 393 officers. In the same period we also captured 257 guns and howitzers, including 98 heavy guns and howitzers, 227 trench mortars, and 470 machine guns.

"In addition to these we captured many of the enemy's guns, howitzers, trench mortars, and machine guns have been destroyed by our artillery fire.

"Marked activity in the air continued yesterday and during the night. In the air fighting eight German machines were brought down by our airplanes, two of which fell in our lines, nine others were driven down out of control. Another hostile machine was shot down.. Nine of our airplanes are missing."

"We made a successful raid last night north of Ypres," says the official announcement from the Franco-Belgian front, "and captured a few prisoners. Elsewhere there was nothing of special importance."

KING GEORGE CALLS ON ALL HIS SUBJECTS TO REDUCE USE OF THEIR DAILY BREAD

This is Regarded as Most Effective Means of Defeating Devices of Enemy to Starve the Empire---No Oats to be Fed Horses Unless by Special Permit---Ministers to Read Proclamation From Pulpits.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 2.—A proclamation issued today, signed by King George, reads: "We, being persuaded that abstention from all unnecessary consumption of grain will furnish the surest and most effective means of defeating the devices of our enemies and thereby bringing the war to a speedy and successful termination, and out of our resolve to leave nothing undone which can contribute to these ends or to the welfare of our people in these times of grave stress and anxiety, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council, to issue this, our Royal Proclamation, most earnestly exhorting and charging all those of our loving subjects, men and women of our realm, who have means, to procure articles of food other than wheat and corn, as they regard their immediate interests and feel for the want of others, especially to practise the greatest economy and frugality in the use of every species of grain and wheat, and we do for this purpose more particularly exhort and charge all heads of households to reduce the consumption of bread and their respective families by at least one-fourth of the quantity consumed in ordinary times, to abstain from the use of flour in pastry, and moreover carry on to restrict, or whenever possible, abandon, the use thereof in all other other articles than bread.

NO OATS FOR HORSES.

"And we do also in like manner exhort and charge all persons who keep horses to abandon the practice of feeding same with oats or other grain unless they shall have received from our food controller license to feed horses on oats or other grain, to be given only in cases where it is necessary to do so with a view to maintaining the breed of horses in the national interest.

TO BE READ IN CHURCHES.

"And we do hereby further charge and enjoin all ministers of religion in their respective churches and chapels within our United Kingdom to read or cause to be read our Proclamation on the Lord's Day for four consecutive weeks after the issue thereof."

LOCK UP YOUR DOGS

It is just as well that the citizens in their own interests understand clearly the provisions of the bylaw just passed by Council to provide for the locking up of dogs until all danger of an epidemic of rabies has passed away.

Your dog has no business on the street, even if he is in your company and secured by a leash. If you are anxious to exercise him then all you can do is to lead him around your own yard. All violations of the bylaw can be punished by the imposition of a fine of $50.

Even the secluded dogs must wear tags. About 450 of these licenses have been issued, but this is not half the number of dogs in the city. Someone has forgotten what the law says in this regard.

All dogs at large are subject to capture and imprisonment in the pound, there to be destroyed unless reclaimed within forty-eight hours.

BONAR LAW PROPOSES NO NEW TAXES IN LATEST BUDGET

Increases Made in Only Three Cases---Empire's Net War Debt Now Amounts to Fourteen and a Quarter Billion Dollars.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 2. — Bonar Law, in his speech introducing the fourth war budget in the Commons today, said that since the beginning of the war 822,000,000 pounds had been advanced to Britain's allies and 142,000,000 pounds to her Dominions. He said he had no new taxes to propose, and increased taxes in only three cases.

ENORMOUS NATIONAL DEBT.

LONDON, May 2. — The Chancellor of the Exchequer told the Commons today that the total national debt now stands at nineteen billion two hundred and fifty million dollars, or, deducting the amounts advanced to the allies and the dominions, fourteen billion two hundred and fifty million dollars.

MORE HUN PERFIDY.

LONDON, May 2. — Sir Edward Carson told the Commons today the Admiralty had been considering for some time the suspicion that enemy submarines are going to and from their own ports through neutral waters.

PEACE SPEECH POSTPONED.

COPENHAGEN, May 2. — The speech which was to have been delivered in the Reichstag by Bethmann-Hollweg on peace and international relations has been postponed to a more fitting occasion, according to word received here.

HUN RAIDING PARTY HALTED BY BRITISH

Terrific Cannonading Heard During Night and Artillery Active Today on Both Sides ---French Still Report Successes.

LONDON, May 2. — The Times' Amsterdam correspondent says there was a series of air attacks on Zeebrugge at midnight Monday, also terrific cannonading, of which flashes were visible at Flushing.

Both artilleries were active during the night at a number of points on our front between St. Quentin and Lens, says today's statement. In the neighborhood of Fauquoissart a German raiding party was repulsed. Otherwise nothing special occurred.

FRENCH MAKE PROGRESS

PARIS, May 2. — "In the region of Chemin-des-Dames artillery was fairly active. On the Cerny-Hurtebise-Craonne front the enemy made several attacks on our trenches and small posts. Attacks were partially repulsed by our machine gun fire and our grenadiers. In the Champagne artillery fighting attained a degree of violence in the sectors of Mont Cornillet and Mont Haut. Active grenade fighting occurred in in the wood west of Mont Cornillet in the course of which we made appreciable progress. Near Eparges our detachments penetrated the German lines at several points, destroying defence works and returning with material. In Lorraine there was patrol activity near Monceland Embermenit.

We took prisoners Monday night. French aerial squadrons threw a number of projectiles on several railway stations and military establishments in the regions of Laon, Vousiers and Rethel.

1,300,000 GERMANS KILLED.

AMSTERDAM, May 2. — A report received here of a lecture by Joseph Friderich Nammann, former Conservative member of the German Reichstag, says one million three hundred thousand Germane have perished in the war.

BUSY DAY FOR THE FIREMEN

THREE FIRES CHECKED IN TIME TO PREVENT SERIOUS LOSS.

The fire department were kept busy in the last 24 hours answering calls, and thanks to their promptness, the loss was very slight. The calls were as follows:—

At 2 p.m. yesterday afternoon, called to 107 McDonell Street, where it was found a chimney fire was causing a lot of worry. The blaze was put out and no damage resulted.

At 7 p.m. a wire blew down at 161 London Street, and endangered property and life. The trouble was remedied and no damage caused.

A fire at 3 a.m. today might have been serious but for the foresight of the occupants of the house. Mr. D. Santomero, who lives at 563 Chamberlain Street, woke up, and smelling smoke discovered that his house was on fire. He roused the other members of the family, and not knowing how to send in an alarm got on his bicycle and huried to the office of the Bell Telephone Co., where an alarm was sent in. The department were soon on the scene and found that the occupants had closed the house up tight shutting out the draft and preventing the spread of the flames. There was no sign of fire from the outside until it was located in the wall and then the blaze shot out where the firemen cut a hole to get at the fire. The use of five chemical extinguishers was all that was necessary to stamp out the fire. The property loss will not be very much more than $50.00.

YESTERDAY'S GALE STOPS TRAFFIC OVER THE STRUCTURE.

The Chemong Bridge, after coming out of the battle with the ice yesterday was found weakened by the north-west gale, and now lies in a very battered condition. The railings are all smashed and the floats in such shape that it is impossible to use the bridge for traffic.

The Ennismore stage had to make the trip by the head of the lake, and this morning the mail was transported across the lake by the small boat route. The members of the County Road and Bridge Committee have men at work, and will have the repairs made at the earliest moment.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH"

Manufacturers Committee Met Last Night and Transacted Important Business.

The Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council met last night, when there were present Mayor Duffus, Aldermen McIntyre (chairman) Taylor, and Smith; Mr. W. R. Breyfogle (chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Greater Peterboro Association), and Mr. J. J. Turner (president of the Board of Trade) were present to discuss matters of interest to the industrial welfare of the city.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., will be asked to secure the permission of the Government for the city to have "Peterboro, the Electric City," placed on all letters leaving the Peterboro Post Office. This could be done on the automatic stamp canceller.

The advisability of erecting signs near the C.P.R. and G.T.R. stations was considered, and referred to a committee composed of Chairman McIntyre, and Messrs Breyfoyle and Turner to report on.

The commitee will also get a on the illuminative sign to be placed on the Market Building at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. The Nichols Park Trustees will be asked to consider the erecting of a pavilion in one of the parks for the convenience of excursionists. The MoKim Advertising Agency will be asked to advise the city as to the best mediums to advertise in. It is proposed to expend $500.00 on this item. The city will also run a half-page ad. in Industrial Canada for a year at a cost of $190.00.

The Council will be asked to authorize the printing of 5,000 booklets for the purposes of bringing the advantages of the city to the attention of the industrial chiefs of the United States and Canada.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, manager of the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., will be asked to consider the building of houses for workingmen.

Attacks were partially repulsed by our machine gun fire and our grenadiers. In the Champagne artillery fighting attained a degree of violence in the sectors of Mont Cornillet and Mont Haut. Active grenade fighting occurred in in the wood west of Mont Cornillet in the course of which we made appreciable progress. Near Eparges our detachments penetrated the German lines at several points, destroying defence works and returning with material. In Lorraine there was patrol activity near Monceland Embermenit.

We took prisoners Monday night. French aerial squadrons threw a number of projectiles on several railway stations and military establishments in the regions of Laon, Vousiers and Rethel.

1,300,000 GERMANS KILLED.

AMSTERDAM, May 2. — A report received here of a lecture by Joseph Friderich Nammann, former Conservative member of the German Reichstag, says one million three hundred thousand Germans have perished in the war.

BUSY DAY FOR THE FIREMEN

THREE FIRES CHECKED IN TIME TO PREVENT SERIOUS LOSS.

The fire department were kept busy in the last 24 hours answering calls, and thanks to their promptness, the loss was very slight. The calls were as follows:—

At 2 p.m. yesterday afternoon, called to 107 McDonell Street, where it was found a chimney fire was causing a lot of worry. The blaze was put out and no damage resulted.

At 7 p.m. a wire blew down at 161 London Street, and endangered property and life. The trouble was remedied and no damage caused.

A fire at 3 a.m. today might have been serious but for the foresight of the occupants of the house. Mr. D. Santomero, who lives at 563 Chamberlain Street, woke up, and smelling smoke discovered that his house was on fire. He roused the other members of the family, and not knowing how to send in an alarm got on his bicycle and huried to the office of the Bell Telephone Co., where an alarm was sent in. The department were soon on the scene and found that the occupants had closed the house up tight shutting out the draft and preventing the spread of the flames. There was no sign of fire from the outside until it was located in the wall and then the blaze shot out where the firemen cut a hole to get at the fire. The use of five chemical extinguishers was all that was necessary to stamp out the fire. The property loss will not be very much more than $50.00.

YESTERDAY'S GALE STOPS TRAFFIC OVER THE STRUCTURE.

The Chemong Bridge, after coming out of the battle with the ice yesterday was found weakened by the north-west gale, and now lies in a very battered condition. The railings are all smashed and the floats in such shape that it is imposible to use the bridge for traffic.

The Ennismore stage had to make the trip by the head of the lake, and this morning the mail was transported across the lake by the small boat route. The members of the County Road and Bridge Committee have men at work, and will have the repairs made at the earliest moment.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH"

Manufacturers Committee Met Last Night and Transacted Important Business.

The Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council met last night, when there were present Mayor Duffus, Aldermen McIntyre (chairman) Taylor, and Smith; Mr W. R. Breyfogle (chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Greater Peterboro Association), and Mr. J. J. Turner (president of the Board of Trade) were present to discuss matters of interest to the industrial welfare of the city.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., will be asked to secure the permission of the Government for the city to have "Peterboro, the Electric City," placed on all letters leaving the Peterboro Post Office. This could be done on the automatic stamp canceller.

The advisability of erecting signs near the C.P.R. and G.T.R. stations was considered, and referred to a committee composed of Chairman McIntyre, and Messrs Breyfoyle and Turner to report on.

The commitee will also get a on the illuminative sign to be placed on the Market Building at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. The Nichols Park Trustees will be asked to consider the erecting of a pavilion in one of the parks for the convenience of excursionists. The McKim Advertising Agency will be asked to advise the city as to the best mediums to advertise in. It is proposed to expend $500.00 on this item. The city will also run a half-page ad. in Industrial Canada for a year at a cost of $190.00.

The Council will be asked to authorize the printing of 5,000 booklets for the purposes of bringing the advantages of the city to the attention of the industrial chiefs of the United States and Canada.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, manager of the Toronto Loan and Savings Co., will be asked to consider the building of houses for workingmen.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1917

PAYING RENT.

SOCIAL ECONOMISTS have arrived at the conclusion that no man living in rented premises should pay out more than one-eighth of his regular income for the house that shelters himself and family. According to these figures, the man earning $100 a month should pay $12.50 a month to his landlord and in the same proportion, according as his earning capacity is greater or less.

Every tenant in Peterborough can easily reckon whether or not he is living according to this rule.

JUGGLING FIGURES.

FIGURES ARE HARMLESS and veracious if left to themselves, but can be made to tell strange stories when manipulated by an expert. A contemporary indulges in statistics to show that the Hearst Government has no chance in the event of a general election. If the Opposition can only succeed in cutting down the majority in every constituency in a certain proportion then Mr. Rowell's party will be returned triumphantly to power.

Premier Hearst proposed and Mr. Rowell concurred in a proposition to hold no more bye-elections in Ontario for the duration of the war. It is no more just to allege that Sir William took this stand because he feared the result than it is to say the same of Mr Rowell for his action. The agreement between the leaders was one of the most statesmanlike incidents of the recent session of the Legislature, a decision to sink everything like party politics before the graver issue of the war.

There is many an "if" in the way of Liberal success. "If" the party can capture a sufficient number of seats everything is theirs. If Belgium had permitted the German troops to go through that country unmolested to France, if the British had kept out of the war, the way of the Kaiser would have been easy and the map of Europe, if not of the entire world, would have been changed. But there is always that fateful "if" to be considered.

THE SELECTIVE DRAFT.

THE UNITED STATES has learned by the experience of other nations to avoid mistakes made at the outset of the war. The volunteer system is after all a broken reed upon which to lean for support in a crisis. Every nation in arms has discovered as much to its cost, and Canada, too, is, reluctantly it may be, being forced to the same conclusion. The Americans propose to avoid all the difficulties that others have encountered, and the selective draft is to be used from the start.

The Chicago News, in common with other leading American journals, has always been in favor of conscription. It says that how completely the serious judgment of the people of the United States has accepted the important truth that service in defence of the nation is a universal obligation of citizenship is reflected in the overwhelming vote by which Congress passed the war department's selective draft bill. The efforts of the few vociferous enemies of the measure to give logical expression to their opposition were notably futile. Having shown themselves devoid of sound argument, they lost their following and their case.

The action of Congress on this bill was foreshadowed by the popular verdict in favor of universal military training and service given in that country after intelligent weighing of the arguments. That verdict was arrived at slowly, deliberately and irrevocably. It is worthy of note that Congress, persistently led up blind alleys by its Champ Clarks, its Hays, it Dents, its LaFollettes and its Vardamans, lagged behind the people in reaching a decision on this and related issues. Not until the noisy, opinionated, shallow men who tried to force their views on Congress were required to come into the open and try to substantiate them was the weakness of their position made fully apparent.

The attempt to convince the public that acceptance of the universal service principle would constitute a reflection on the patriotism of American young manhood was a complete failure. The volunteer soldier always has been honored in this country and always will be. It is not to be forgotten, however, that many a patriot has volunteered for service in the past under heartbreaking conditions of hardship for his dependents because the nation was bitterly in need of defenders, though many thousands of men who might have volunteered without resultant suffering to others would not do so. Under selective conscription, the young man whose home obligations are not binding is still free to volunteer—half a million volunteers for the regular army and the national guard are being sought at this present moment—while the equally patriotic young man with a dependent family is required to serve his country in other ways. Intelligent mobilization of the country's forces will fit him into effective war service at home.

The action of Congress in passing the selective draft bill marks the adoption by the nation of a rational and just system of national defence. It places the American in his proper relation to the country which protects him and provides him with opportunity. His obligation to protect his country and its institutions by force of arms whenever that is necessary has now been put on a definite basis. The old idea that no Americans need fight the enemies of all Americans save those who elect to do so had no justification in law or in right. By brushing aside the practice of depending wholly upon the unjust and almost unworkable volunteer system Congress has added enormously to the security of the nation.

The same conditions prevail in Canada and the same arguments in favor of the selective draft can be used here.

LABOR TROUBLES IN GERMANY.

IT HAS BEEN announced in recent despatches that at least half of the munition workers in Germany have quit work and that the Krupp works are practically idle. The workers refuse to continue on scant food and with little hope that their labor will ever avail to win the war with the world arrayed against their nation. If these despatches reveal true conditions in Germany, the case of the Kaiser is desperate indeed.

Other despatches sent out from Germany within the past few days contain the intelligence that socialistic leaders themselves have issued an appeal to the workingmen to remain at their posts because if the war is lost they will be enslaved by the victorious Allied Nations.

If such an appeal has been really made, it is easily explained. The Allies themselves may have unwittingly furnished the working people of the German Empire with an incentive for persevering. It has been announced that when peace is made a commercial embargo is to be placed on Germany, and her products shut out of all the markets of the world. It is not difficult to imagine the effect such an announcement would have upon the people who are given to believe that the defeat of their nation means industrial slavery for themselves.

THE CHANGING YEARS.

A CHANGE SEEMS to have come over the spirit of the Canadian Parliament. Probably it is the great events of the past three years that are broadening the minds of our representatives. They show a disposition now to read the signs of the times and to give the people what they want, as they never did before.

A Western member, Mr. J. G. Turriff, introduced in the House a bill to provide for proportional representation. It was not frowned down, as usual, but the members seemed willing to treat it seriously. Finance Minister White admitted the demand for such a reform, and suggested that a committee be appointed to investigate the matter and prepare a plan. Other leaders on both sides were disposed to favor the proposition, so that an important reform may now be regarded as on the way.

Everybody who gives the matter thought is convinced that when the war is over the Empire at large and conditions at home must be recast after a new model. Whatever may be the means of reconstruction employed, they are not likely to be according to the old political lines that have held sway for ages.

A KNOWLEDGE OF DOGS.

THE ST. THOMAS JOURNAL withholds its approval from the action taken by the Council of this city in declaring a quarantine on all dogs until the danger of an epidemic of rabies has passed. The Journal says:

> It is patent that the Board of Health and the City Council of Peterborough number no animal lovers in their memberships. Nor do the Peterborough authorities display much knowledge of dogs. As a matter of fact, placing the animals in captivity for ninety days seems to be just about the treatment needed to develop many disorders in them.
> With bodies of men throughout the country passing such legislation as this, is it any wonder that there is a growing demand for the appointment of sane, level-headed women to public boards?

An expert knowledge of dogs has not always been regarded as a qualification for municipal preferment. There are higher things to claim the attention of civic legislators. But the officials of this city do know that a mad dog is a menace to the lives of the residents and that one human being is worth all the canines in the world. Placing the dogs in captivity for a period may be hard on the animals, but it assures the safety of the men, women and children of the city, and that of the dogs themselves from the members of their kind that may have hydrophobia.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

TROUT FISHING was once regarded as a luxury. Considering the price of meat, it may now be classed as a branch of the production campaign.

IT IS AS IMPOSSIBLE to raise an army by the volunteer system, even for home defence, as it is to raise a war fund by depending on patriotic subscriptions.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Beyond Their Understanding.

(Buffalo Express.)

A request for the return to Germany of the body of Prince Friedrich Karl, a cousin of the Kaiser, who was killed in an air raid, has been refused, with a suggestion that it might be exchanged for the bodies of Edith Cavell and Captain Fryatt. The Hohenzollerns will be quite unable to understand this.

What's in a Name?

(Montreal Star.)

H. G. Wells is for a British republic. British folk are not concerned greatly with the names of things. They have fought for and demand the largest amount of individual liberty that is compatible with stable government. As they get that under a monarchy, they are content. As a matter of fact, they have a more responsible and democratic form of government than the American Republic. If King George usurped half the power that President Wilson exercises, Britain would soon sprout another Cromwell.

Henry Ford and a War Tax.

(Detroit News.)

Conscription of all incomes in excess of $100,000 as proposed by Democratic members of the ways and means committee would take $50,000,000 from the Detroit revenue collection district alone, say Treasury experts. The hardest hit under this plan probably in the whole country would be Henry Ford. Mr. Ford's personal income is estimated variously at from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000 annually. All of this excepting $100,000 would go to the government. Under present laws Mr. Ford pays fifteen cents of every dollar of his income in excess of $2,000,000.

ONTARIO PLANS TO ATTRACT SOLDIERS

Immigration and Settlement Policy For After-war Announced by Minister of Lands

In an address before the Social Service Congress, G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests & Mines in Ontario, spoke of the problem of providing for returned soldiers. Mr. Ferguson declared that no class of citizen of the Empire deserved more generous, kindly or sympathetic treatment than the man who had been fighting in the interests of the allied cause; and no man indeed had done as much for the Dominion of Canada. "There now lies before us," he said, "the acute question of how to deal with these men on their return. The moral and social side is really of more importance than the material side. It is easy to furnish land and means for soldiers but the moral problems will be the decisive factors of our future citizenship."

Hon. Mr Ferguson pointed out that Ontario would have a tremendous amount of responsibility to bear. Half of the men who went overseas were from Ontario and in addition to these would be the great number of immigrants who would seek homes in this country when the war was over.

The new means of earning their livelihood would have to be provided for many of these men. Fortunately, in Ontario greater facilities existed for education and training than could be found anywhere else on the continent of America. The scheme proposed was embodied in the opening up of Northern Ontario. There was a dual advantage in putting the soldier on the land. In the first place it would assist in his rapid, moral and material betterment and in the second it would insure increased agricultural production.

Assisting Settlers

"With this end in view we thought it necessary to establish training schools on our demonstration farms. A selection system would be instituted so that each man might fit into his own particular niche," said the Minister. The land would be divided into eighty-acre farms. Ten acres would be cleared off the front and assistance given to the men to erect buildings. The farms would be absolutely free and the man would be paid for his services while preparing the land; money would be given him to buy stock, implements, seed, etc., and due provision would also be made to carry him over the period between seed time and harvest.

Create Communities

There was also the problem of the wife and family. Perhaps surrounding in Northern Ontario would be quiet at first, but the success of these efforts by the Government would depend largely on the social environment provided. It was proposed to introduce moving pictures, travel talks, and otherwise contribute to the social life of the community through the church and school and develop forces that would bind the community together and create a spirit that would add to the contentment and prosperity of these people.

IS CANADA TO BLAME

Are We Doing Our Part?—Opinion of Men From Front

"Red Patch," a Vancouver officer returned wounded from the front, writes as follows: What is the matter with Canada? Why do wounded officers on leave here say, "Let me get back to England or France. I can't stay in this place any longer"? And why on their return to England do they say to other wounded Canadians, "Don't go back to Canada. They don't know that the war is on. The number of men in civies you will see on the streets is deplorable." Both of these opinions I have heard many times, and while they may be slight exaggerations, there is a great deal of truth in them. Part of the population have given up a great deal to the war, but the other and larger part have given up nothing, and, in fact, have benefited a great deal. The voluntary system has fallen down. Firstly, because enough men cannot be attested to fill the places of those discharged at home as medically unfit, let alone casualties at the front. Secondly, it is unfair. The patriotic citizens suffer while the unpatriotic are flourishing. Married men go before unmarried. Thirdly, men have gone overseas who would have been of better service to their country at home. The railways, farmers, and important manufacturers are kicking against any form of conscription, but really the voluntary system hurts them more than conscription. The latter, if properly managed, would provide the railways, farmers, and necessary manufactures with sufficient skilled mechanics and labor; many places now filled by fit men could be replaced by women and men medically unfit.

NEW LIMBS FOR LOST ONES

Wounded Soldiers Taught Many Clever Trades

Interesting work of wounded soldiers can be seen at the Military Orthopaedic Hospital, Shepherd's Bush, says a London paper. Soldiers were to be seen wearing and making artificial limbs, and appliances. The whole process of making a limb, from the taking of a plaster cast to the finished article is shown, while soldiers, from almost every part of the Empire, provided with these mechanical appliances, are engaged in fretwork, carpentry, cigarette making, tailoring, working in leather, electrical engineering, and many other tasks. The work of patients confined to their beds—in embroidery, painting and plaque decoration—is sold by willing helpers. King Manuel and Queen Augusta take a deep interest in the work of the hospital.

BRITISH CARS AT THE FRONT

Armored Cars Give Superb Service in Danube Battles

From Petrograd comes thrilling details of the exploits of the British armored cars in the Dobrudja and Roumania. After being last heard of in Persia and Asiatic Turkey, they reached Roumania in time to give invaluable aid during the retreat. After surmounting formidable difficulties as regards roads and transport, they were floated up the Danube and hurled quite unexpectedly against the Bulgarian infantry in the Dobrudja. For three hours they rained shots on the advancing masses of the enemy, and held their ground in spite of heavy machine gun and artillery fire. They thus facilitated the successful retirement of two regiments which could not otherwise have been withdrawn without extremely severe loss. The experience of Lieut. Ingle, who was wounded, is noteworthy. While under extremely hot fire he repeatedly left his car when it became bogged in order to restart the engine. On the last occasion that he did so a bullet broke his leg. Unable to return to the car, he crawled into a ditch. The advancing Bulgarians passed completely over him without taking him prisoner, and were driven back shortly afterwards by a Russian advance. Lieut Ingle lay all day between the lines, and at nightfall managed to crawl for 12 hours continuously to the Russian lines, many miles distant. The effort of the enemy to surround and rush one of the cars was frustrated by the gallantry of Lieut. Emiles. Although twice wounded, he returned to fight again and again. His intrepid leadership was described in the official Russian military communique of the day, and he was recommended for the St George's Cross. Commander Locker Lampson was received by the King of Roumania, and warmly thanked for the services of the detachment.

MILITARY MARCHING

The Pace Varies With the Quality and Size of the Command

The "Army Drill Book" tells that trained and hardened infantry can cover from twenty to twenty-five miles a day when in small bodies. As the size of the command increases the distance covered becomes less, as the rate is lowered and time is needed to get all the units into and out of camp. With a regiment or less of average troops regulars—marching over average roads the rate should be from two and three-quarters to three miles an hour. Large bodies will travel from two to two and a half miles an hour, while a division cannot be expected to accomplish more than twelve and one-half miles a day. Of course all these figures will vary with different conditions of roads and weather. Untrained troops could not approach them until hardened. Though they might do better for a day or two, they could not keep up the steady pace of the seasoned regulars for a long distance. Marching with full equipment is hard physical work and, like every other form of labor, requires a proper period of training. The seasoned force will keep up a steady pace with ten-minute halts every hour, a fifteen-minute stop being made at the end of the first half or three-quarters of an hour. Green troops are apt to straggle badly.

Chicken Glacé

To one cup of left over chicken, either white or dark meat, add two cups of chicken broth, the white part of one bunch of finely chopped celery, one pimento, one tablespoonful of mayonnaise dressing, salt and pepper to taste. Bring this to a boiling point and add one tablespoon of gelatine that has been dissolved in boiling water. This makes a most delicious salad served on the crisp part of lettuce leaves or on chicory, with a mayonnaise dressing.

Waldorf Cranberry Pie

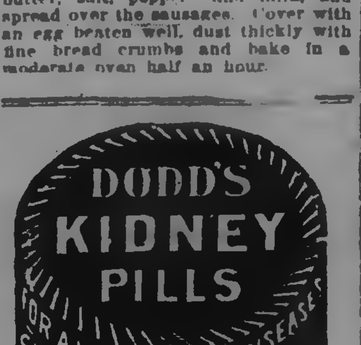
Chop a cup each of cranberries and raisins with half a cup each of nuts and figs. Add a cup of sugar, one tablespoon of flour and a quarter of a cup of water. Line a plate with rich pie crust, add the cranberry mixture, sprinkle with chopped nuts, cover with an upper crust and bake brown.

Tremont Muffins

Cream a third of a cup of butter and beat in a quarter of a cup of sugar. Then add an egg beaten light. Sift together four even teaspoons of baking powder, a quarter teaspoon of salt and two cups of sifted flour and add to the other ingredients. Pour into hot muffin pans and bake.

Smothered Sausage

Prick the sausages and lay in a baking pan. Press some boiled potatoes through a sieve, add a little butter, salt, pepper and milk, and spread over the sausages. Cover with an egg beaten well, dust thickly with fine bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven half an hour.



EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: All our governments, including the City Council, are putting forth every effort to induce the people to engage in gardening in order to increase production.

The average workingman is busy during ten hours six days in the week. His mornings and evenings are short, and he is generally too tired at night to engage in other occupation. The Lord's Day Alliance says he must not work on Sunday, in his garden or elsewhere.

Why not have a legal holiday made of some afternoon one day a week to give the workingman a chance to do what he is being urged to undertake? The business men and their clerks have every Thursday afternoon off during July and August. The workingman is entitled to some such relaxation, too.

Words of Sympathy from Canon Davidson

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howden, 201 Romaine Street, has received the following letter from Major J. C. Davidson, now with the No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital in France. The letter reads as follows:

I have only now seen the news of the death of your fine boy in the "Examiner," and hasten to tell you of my personal sorrow and deep sympathy for you. Leslie was one of the nice bright boys of our old 93rd, and always seemed quietly happy and good natured. I have heard nothing of him since leaving Shorncliffe Camp, and do not know into what battalion he was drafted.

The Canadians are about thirty miles or more north of me, and transport is very difficult. In fact it has been impossible for me to visit them, or I would have done so before now. I hope, however, soon to receive permission.

I know that this sad loss will be a heart-break to you both, and I pray God to give you the strength and faith and hope you need. Your boy has been courageous, and now you must be so too, hard as it is. Yes, it is a great calamity to lose these young, vigorous lives. I am deeply sorry for you and his other relatives.

Yours with warm sympathy,

J. C. DAVIDSON.

SWEET PEAS NOW

The Time to Plant Them Has Almost Arrived.

EVER TRIED THE TRENCH?

Hasten Germination by Soaking the Seeds in Warm Water and Try Putting the Seeds in a Pit That Has Been Well Fertilized.

[Prepared by Kansas State Agricultural College.]

Now is the time to plant the sweet peas. These flowers are easily grown if the soil is properly prepared and good seed is used, according to M. F. Ahearn, professor of landscape gardening in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Germination may be hastened by soaking the seeds in warm water before planting," said Professor Ahearn. "The trench method is considered the most successful way of planting. The trench should be from six to eight inches deep and a foot wide. The bottom of the trench should be turned and well rotted manure worked into it. Firm the soil and plant the seeds in the bottom of the trench in two rows six inches apart, one seed to an inch in the row.

"The pit should be left open until the plants appear and filled gradually as they grow. This encourages the development of long roots and gives the plant the ability to withstand the hot summer months. If the weather is cold when the plants first appear the pit should be partly filled with dry leaves to protect them until the warm weather. Thin the plants to a distance of three inches.

"A trellis should be provided for the vines. It may be made of wire netting, crossbars being nailed between the uprights for support. A netting that sags causes injury to the vines and is unsightly. The trellis should be from four to six feet high. The tips of the vines should be clipped when they attain a height of six feet. More blooms will follow each picking."

Britain's Priceless Charter

Britain has many possessions which "no money could buy." Perhaps the most priceless of them are the Great Charter—an old parchment enclosed within a glass case in the British Museum; and the stone under the Coronation chair in Westminster Abbey, on which centuries of kings have been crowned and which is said to have served as a pillow for Jacob, son of Isaac and Rebekah. Time was when the Great Charter was bought for fourpence by a London tailor, from whose hands it was rescued just as he was about to cut it up for measures. To-day all the gold of a Rockefeller could not purchase it.

Wren's Masterpiece

St. Paul's Cathedral and most of the City churches were designed by Sir Christopher Wren, one of the most remarkable persons who have ever lived in England. He started life as a mathematician, and made many wonderful inventions in connection with telescopes, microscopes, etc. He was an extraordinary worker, and lived to the ripe age of ninety. Sir Christopher built fifty-five churches in London alone.

Novel in Eleven Words

Tabloid claims to have written the "shortest complete novel on record." Here it is, in less than a score of words: "A man, a maid, a pout, some doubt, misunderstood; same man, same maid, a kiss, some bliss, Miss understood." Even this tabloid novel could be still further condensed, thus: "Man, maid, pout, doubt, misunderstood; man, maid, kiss, bliss, Miss understood"—a life romance in eleven words.

Among a party of nonagenarians, octogenarians, and septuagenarians who kept Christmas, 1916, at Islington Workhouse were a "few youngsters" of sixty. Six women at Lambeth were over 90, sixty-two over 80, and 13[illegible] over 70.

LLOYD-GEORGE REPARTEE

Rev. Dr. C. F. Aked writes: A thrust by Lloyd George holds the world's record. He was discussing a project then known as "Home Rule All Round," that is to say, a separate Parliament for Ireland, a Parliament for Scotland, a Parliament for Wales, a Parliament for England, and an Imperial Parliament for imperial affairs. So: Lloyd-George triumphant: "I stand for home rule for Ireland"—great cheering.

"Home rule for Scotland"—some cheers.

"Home rule for gallant little Wales"—thunders of applause, and a voice, "'Ome rule for 'ell," and yells of laughter, hisses, and catcalls.

THE CLEVER BOY

Unduly Retarded by Masses in Elementary Schools

Professor J. MacLean of Manitoba University, says: An easy-going kind of education is bad for anyone, but it is doubly injurious to the lad who is going on to the secondary school, and then to the university. He is handicapped early in his career by an acquisition of bad intellectual habits, not to speak of the time wasted which he will have to make up in the secondary school and the university. A patriotic educationalist perhaps says: "Our system has been devised to meet the educational requirements of the masses, not to meet the wants of the exceptionally clever boy who is going on to the university." It may however, be denied that the present system does as much as it might for the masses, and on the other hand affirmed that a national system of education cannot afford to neglect in the elementary stage the interests of the secondary school and the university. If it does, wealthy parents will send their children to private schools and from them will arise those class distinctions which it is one of the merits of our national school system that it discourages. If the present course of studies is all that a dull boy can take in 8 or 9 years, facilities should be provided to enable a clever boy to take it in 5 or 6 years. But is the dull boy such a dullard? The elementary schools even on the present lines could be greatly improved, and the secondary school and the university each have an opportunity of realising the educational aims which pertain to them."

He Played at Politics
During National Crisis,
But Made Great Mistake

It is amusing to study politics when we ourselves are not involved in the discussions. That is the feeling that Canadians possess just at the present time when watching the tactics of Senator William Stone of Missouri. He has made himself a historic figure, and finds himself in the very unpleasant position of remaining, perhaps for all time, one of the symbols of the worst element in American public life. It is now generally recognized that the danger of party politics is the drawing into public life of men who set selfish advantage for themselves or their party above ideals or anything else. Sometimes they get tripped up. Then the people who want to see the best elements in all nations come out triumphant get an opportunity to laugh. Senator Stone has been a sort of party pussy-footer. He had traveled far and was chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States. Then the crash came. When the national honor was at stake, Senator Stone thought it was a good time to play politics. When the Americans were moving towards war and when President Wilson was doing everything possible to restore the dignity of the Republic, Senator Stone was one of the men who engineered the movement that killed the armed neutrality bill. He was in the little group denounced by the President as "wilful men," one of Woodrow Wilson's apt phrases that will live in history. Next morning the Senator from Missouri discovered that the whole nation was anxious to "show him" that he had made an error of judgment. All the best papers in the land attacked him. He was accused of being a traitor to the good name of his country. One influential daily, perhaps the most influential in the Eastern States, published a cartoon suggesting a monument to the group of wilful men, classing them with Benedict Arnold, and including in the design a snake. The only defenders of Mr. Stone and his friends were the pro-German papers, and at such a time their support was distinctly embarrassing. It made the Senator look like a political gambler pursuing the hyphenated vote. Here in Canada we looked on at the undignified attitude of the little group of wilful men and greatly enjoyed their discomfiture. It seemed even funnier to find the Missouri Senator trying to reverse his position. He found that it was the unpopular side, so he promptly claimed that he had no intention to kill the bill. In his very ineffective apology he says: "I made no effort to prevent consideration of or vote on the bill. I offered my amendment providing that ships armed or convoyed by the United States should not carry as cargo munitions of war destined for the armed forces of a belligerent at war with another nation with which this Government was at peace. I spoke in favor of my amendment and against the bill without the amendment."

SENATOR STONE

New English Words.

Practically all great wars are responsible for the importation of some new words into the English language, or, at any rate, for their popularization. Thus the South African war rendered such words as commandeer, commando, kopje, veldt, and so on, familiar to all English-speaking people. There is one phrase in particular, arising out of the present war, which is likely to be requisitioned as an expression of indefiniteness for many years to come, and that is, "Somewhere in France." When Judge Parry took his seat at Lambeth County Court, recently, without his wig and gown, noticing the surprise of the barristers, he said he was sorry, but he had lost them "somewhere in Kent."

Dry Russia Prospers.

Russia, under prohibition, is prospering. In the first full year of prohibition the savings bank deposits reached $405,000,000, and in the first nine months of 1916 the savings amounted to $755,000,000.

RECOVERY OF NEW JERSEY WOMAN

Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bridgeton, N.J.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for inflammation and other weaknesses. I was very irregular and would have terrible pains so that I could hardly take a step. Sometimes I would be so miserable that I could not sweep a room. I doctored part of the time but felt no change. I later took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt a change for the better after the second day. I took it until I was in a good healthy condition. I recommend the Pinkham remedies to all women as I have used them with good results."—Mrs. MILFORD T. CUMMINGS, 24 New Street, Bridgeton, N. J.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence of the excellence of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for the distressing ills of women such as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, backache, painful periods, nervousness and kindred ailments.

CHILDREN WITH NERVES

Must Not be Scolded--Should be Very Sympathetic

Children are not all "little animals." Some have such keen sensibilities, such acute imaginations, such teeming little brains that they should be treated with all the thoughtfulness and consideration given to adults of the same tendencies. Such children have to be tenderly and constantly watched, and their delinquencies met with an amount of sympathy that gains and holds their confidence. Those children who are scolded and punished for the least delinquency become hardened in wrong-doing or demoralized by fear. In the latter case, demoralized is certainly not too strong a term for the results which follow injudicious punishments.

A nervous child becomes so afraid of doing wrong that at last he loses the power of discerning between what is wrong and what is right, and he naturally chooses the course which he thinks least likely to lead to chastisement. He will descend to any amount of deceit and story-telling to save himself from the results of his wrong-doing, and it is entirely out of the question that, if his first years are passed in such a mistaken and perverted way, he should ever grow up into an honest and straightforward man.

When children show themselves to be abnormally sensitive and nervous they should be treated in a totally different way to the others who are healthy and boisterous; but they must not be spoiled, for that would simply aggravate the evil. They should have the benefit of a frequent change of air, especially to the seaside. No stimulating drinks, such as coffee, tea and beer must be given. The food must be quite plain, but wholesome and nourishing—fish, eggs, vegetables, cooked fruit and plenty of milk and milk products. Above all avoid scolding them.

Fireproof Clothing

To protect children against accidents from fire an excellent plan is to soak their clothing for five minutes in a solution of one pound of ammonium phosphate in a gallon of cold water. This fireproofing is non-poisonous, keeps indefinitely, does no more harm to the material than ordinary water, and is recommended for treating not only light clothing but curtains and other inflammable fabrics.

Soft Cornbread

Put one pint of milk over the fire. When ready to boil add a little salt and one-half a cup of sifted cornmeal stirred in slowly. Let this boil up once. Take from the fire and add the yolks of three eggs, one at a time and without beating. Stir the eggs well into the meal and milk. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and add last. Pour into an ungreased tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Apple Jelly

For apple jelly select sound, red fine flavored apples, not too ripe; wash, wipe and core. Place in a granite kettle, cover with water and let cook slowly until the apples look red. Pour into a muslin bag and drain, return juice to a clean kettle and boil for one-half hour, then skim. Now measure, and to every pint of juice allow a pound of sugar; boil quickly for ten minutes.

Apple Peanut Salad

Pare, core and chop slightly acid apples and mix them with half as much chopped celery. Mix a dressing of peanut butter, using five tablespoonfuls of lemon juice to one tablespoonful of peanut butter. Mix dressing through the apples and celery and season with salt and cayenne pepper. Chill the salad and serve on lettuce and garnish with peanuts.

Exercise the Body

Take fifteen minutes' exercise in your room every morning and night, and take a long brisk walk every day. Take correct standing position, bend slightly forward from the waist and twist as far back to the right as possible and then to the left. Bend the body so that the finger tips touch floor without bending the knees. Raise knee to chest several times, first the right and then the left.

"I suffered dreadfully with my back for twenty years. I have taken six boxes of GIN PILLS and now I have not the sign of an ache or pain in my back. There is nothing that can hold a place with GIN PILLS for curing PAIN in the Back to which women are subject.

Russia's Great Release
Will Affect the Exiles
In the Siberian Wastes

Siberia is a Russian province larger than Europe. Such a bald, guidebook introduction gives, perhaps, an idea as good as any other of the vastness of that great land which stretches from the Urals to the Pacific, and from the Arctic Ocean to the Chinese frontier. Perhaps no other country is more consistently and persistently misapprehended than Siberia. To the world at large the name still conjures up visions of eternal snow, of frozen wastes and frozen rivers, of bleak, forbidding uplands and great, treeless valleys and, every now and again, a long file of chained convicts "slowly and toilfully, verst after verst, traversing the continent on their three years' march to that great inferno of the Far East, the convict island of Sakhalin."

This traditional Siberia was, for many years a favorite field for the melodramatist and for the novelist who desired to give an utterly free rein to their imagination. Siberia, however, is very far from being a "frozen waste" or any other kind of waste. In winter, it is true, there is snow more than enough, but, by the end of April, spring has set in with remarkable beauty and charm, and, during the weeks that follow, Siberia makes up for lost time. Of course, in a country so vast, conditions vary greatly in different parts; but, generally speaking, the land is astonishingly fertile, and those who know the country best confidently predict that it will, some day, become one of the great granaries of the world. The Russian authorities have known all about this for years, as they have known of Siberia's immense resources in other directions, and every means has been resorted to to secure the colonisation of the territory by Russians.

As early in its history as 1658, Siberia began to be a place of exile and a penal colony. Rebels under Peter the Great, courtiers of rank under the empresses, Polish confederates under Catherine II., the "Decembrists" under Nicholas I., nearly 50,000 Poles, after the insurrection of 1863, were exiled to Siberia, and vast armies of political prisoners since have passed through the great clearing station at Chelyabinsk, on the eastern side of the Urals, and have been transported thence to their allotted zone or prison somewhere between the Urals and the Pacific, 3,000 miles away. Prisons, indeed, are common enough buildings in Siberia. Irkutsk, for instance, is literally surrounded by great prisons which, for generations, have received the criminal and political offenders of Russia. Then, as imprisonment for any length of time has almost invariably carried with it exile for life, scarcely any of the prisoners, when released, have been allowed to return to Russia. The population of Irkutsk, as of so many other Siberian towns, is mainly composed of former convicts or their descendants.

A convict in Russia, however, is very far from being necessarily a criminal. And these towns, such as Omsk and Irkutsk, have no appearance of being convict settlements. They are not the overgrown, dreary, steppe villages which many still picture them, but thriving and modern cities, with lofty buildings and broad streets, long and straight, with all the side streets set at right angles; schools, universities, theatres, and hotels in which the traveller finds himself amidst the most approved hotel surroundings. Then there are public gardens, public fetes, fireworks displays, and bands, whilst everybody dresses very much in the same way as people do in Europe or America.

All that, however, is the best side of Siberia. A very little closer inspection only is required to understand the full misery of the life of thousands of those exiles, so many of whom are now returning joyfully to Russia. The horrors of the prescribed area, the utter inadequacy of the Government allowance, the loneliness of the exile, often highly educated, condemned to live within the confines of some village peopled with a semicivilized peasantry, would require many books adequately to describe. Certainly for no part of the Russian dominions will the great release of March 17, 1917, be more full of immediate blessing than for Siberia.

Remarkable Insurances.

Mr. A. de Biere, a famous illusionist, has insured his thumbs, on which he relies for his cleverest tricks, for two thousand five hundred pounds. Paderewski's hands are insured for two million five hundred thousand francs, as also is Kubelik's right hand. This sum is payable in the event of total incapacity, proportionate amounts being guaranteed in the case of temporary disablement. In the case of Kubelik the premium is said to be seven thousand five hundred francs a year. Cavalieri's larynx is insured for one hundred thousand pounds. When a year or so ago an injury to the first finger of Paderewski's right hand prevented him from playing at Philadelphia he received one thousand pounds under the terms of his policy.

Aerial Night Compass.

Dr. Aikitsu Tanakadate, of Tokio, has invented an instrument for the use of airmen in flights at night or in fog. For several years he has been studying the variations of the compass in different parts of Japan, caused by recognized terrestrial changes due to earthquakes and volcanic outbreaks. During the present month of March, the inventor is flying his dirigible "Yuhi-Go" over the chief cities of the Empire, perfecting his instrument.

The Douglas Fir.

The flagstaff in Kew Gardens, London, is a Douglas fir which was shaped and creosoted in Vancouver. Poles of Douglas fir are highly valued for ships' masts and flagstaffs because of their straightness, durability, strength, and resilience. The timber is also largely used for telegraph and electric-railway poles and bridge and trestle timbers. Douglas fir is regarded as perhaps the most important of American woods. Estimates of the available supply range from three hundred thousand million to three hundred and fifty thousand million feet, board measure. The tree is most abundant, and attains its largest size not far above sea level in southern British Columbia, and in the region between the coast of Washington and Oregon and the western foothills of the Cascade Mountains. There the trees, crowded close together, rise to a height of three hundred feet.

What Do These Words Mean to You?

They mean greater safety in the Home. Surely something that interests you keenly!

Perhaps you have noticed these words and the notation, "No fire left when blown out," on our new "Silent Parlor" match boxes. The spints or sticks of all matches contained in these boxes have been impregnated or soaked in a chemical solution which renders them dead wood once they have been lighted and blown out, and the danger of FIRE from glowing matches is hereby reduced to the greatest minimum.

ONE MAN KILLED; ONE INJURED

ELECTRIC LINEMAN AT BELLEVILLE MEETS SUDDEN DEATH.

BELLEVILLE, May 2.—John Osborne, an electric lineman of this city, was electrocuted, and Wesley Todd, of Millbrook was burned, perhaps fatally, while working on the Hydro-Electric line at Trenton. They and another man named Hawkes had been engaged at ordinary line work for an hour and a half on a dead line near the river crossing on the west side of the town, having taken every precaution for safety. Suddenly 6,600 volts of electricity were turned on, apparently from East Trenton. Osborne head was terribly burned and he fell from the pole. Todd lay on the arms of the pole he was working on, and had to be taken down, in an apparently lifeless condition. Hawkes escaped without injury.

Go Get It!

For Home Service

CANADA

"We should send overseas with as little delay as possible the troops now in Canada which have enlisted for overseas service".

"It is necessary that the country should not be left without an adequate force for home defence in case of emergency".

SIR EDWARD KEMP,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE—

You Men Who Cannot Go Overseas

Take these two statements above and you will realize your opportunity. Who will enlist for Home Defence, and release a trained soldier, ready and anxious to fight in France?

You can stay in Canada, yet serve the Empire in its greatest trial. In this day, when every man is needed, you can help to provide adequately for home protection by enlisting in the Canadian Defence Force

The term of enlistment, training, equipment and clothing are the same as for overseas service. Pay the same as that for Militia on Active Service. Separation allowances for married men in addition to pay.

Enlist now in the Canadian Defence Force if you are between 18 and 45, physically fit, and anxious to serve to the best of your ability.

For full particulars enquire at Armories of the Regiments listed below.

MEN STILL REQUIRED FOR OVERSEAS IN THE CANADIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

More men are required for reinforcements at the Front. Those who desire to volunteer for Overseas service may enlist through one of the regiments ordered to mobilize for Home Defence.

PRIZE FOR GARDENERS

Great interest is being manifested by citizens of North Bay in the campaign for greater food production. The Municipal Agricultural Committee is offering valuable prizes for the best gardens, while Mr. John Ferguson signified his intention of offering a clear deed of a choice building lot in town for the most successful amateur gardening this summer.

Many lives would be a great deal sweeter if they were not quite so sugary.

SPLENDID SHOWING OF LOCAL PORT.

The Customs returns for the month of April for the Port of Peterborough are evidence of the great volume of business that is going on in the city. In spite of conditions which should have tended to a drop in the returns, an increase over April, 1916, of over $20,000 is shown.

The returns for April, 1917, were $78,504.46.

April, 1916, $58,177,86.

SLOGAN OF AMERICANS WHO WOULD STOP BREWERIES.

NEW YORK, May 2.—A committee of sixty prominent men representing all parts of the country has been organized in Washington, with headquarters in New York, to divert grain now used by brewers and distillers to purposes of general food consumption. The committee's slogan is: "Save 11,000,000 loaves of bread a day."

It was stated that the committee was not connected with any temperance movement, and did not intend to identify itself with that cause.

SUES BUTCHER WHO PURCHASED STOLEN CATTLE

The Dummer cattle stealing cases which were a source of considerable worry to the police until the thieves were sent to the penitentiary, will be brought to light again shortly at the Norwood Division Court.

William Davis of Dummer, who was one of the victims of the thieves, is suing R. N. Simpson, a butcher of Hastings, for $50, the price of one of the animals which it was shown at the trial was sold to Simpson by one of the Hills.

Peck, Kerr & McElderry are acting for the plaintiff, and the outcome of the case is awaited with interest.

INSPECTOR MOWAT ASKS FOR ADDITIONAL ROOM FOR MANUAL TRAINING

Board of Education Will Consider Matter at Special Meeting---Routine Business Transacted at Regular Monthly Session Last Night---New Patriotic Song to be Taught

The Board of Education held their regular monthly meeting last evening when there were present Messrs. V. Eastwood (chairman), J. W. Miller, Dr. Burnham, A. A. Fowler, R. Deane, J. Crane, and G. N. Gordon.

Communications

The following communications were received and dealt with as noted:—

From Miss Jory, accepting the position of school nurse.—Received.

From Messrs. Staples and Dearborn, asking to be considered for positions on the teaching staff should any vacancies occur. —Referred to the committee on appointments.

From Miss Helen Greaves and Miss Helen Brown tendering their services to the board as teachers.—Referred to the committee on appointments.

From Miss Boneycastle, of Campbellford, asking the board to instruct the vocal teacher in the school to teach the singing of a patriotic song which has been composed by her mother. Miss Boneycastle was willing to undertake the work herself if the permission of the board was secured. She also asked that it be one of the songs sung by the children at the time of the Governor-General's visit.—The request, so far as arranging that the song be sung at the reception, could not be granted, but the song may be taught to the children in the schools if Miss Boneycastle can arrange with Miss Ranney.

Miss Borbidge, on behalf of the parents' circle of Queen Mary School, asked that they be given permission to have a set of the Ten Commandments placed in the school rooms.—The request was granted.

From Principal Colling, inviting the board to attend the inspection of the Cadet Corps at the South Central School on May 9th.—Received.

From Huffman and Sons, asking the board to let them know about weather stripping the schools during the summer vacation.—The Property Committee will deal with this.

From Miss Phyllis Young on behalf of the Collegiate Literary Society, enclosing $125.00 towards the expense of securing the enlarged photos of pupils of the Collegiate who have fallen in the war. The secretary was instructed to gratefully acknowledge the splendid gift of the pupils.

From the manufacturer of a patent fire escape, asking the board's consideration of their appliance, and quoting a price.—This was referred to the Property Comittee.

From Inspector Mowat, regarding the necesity of getting additional room for the purpose of the manual training classes. It was pointed out that Peterboro was behind other cities of its size in this department, and he also drew the attention of the board to the absolute necessity of greater accommodation in the south-west part of the city.—This matter was referred to a special meeting of the board to be called in the near future.

From the 57th Chapter Daughters of the Empire, asking permission to place holders in the schools for the purpose of receiving pennies in the "Mile of Pennies" project.—The request was granted.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, asked the board to acknowledge the gift of Mr. A. S. A. Smith, who had presented an enlarged photo of his son, the late Lieut. Harold Smith, to the institute.—The secretary was instructed to forward the thanks of the board.

From Peck, Kerr and McElderry, solicitors for the board, stating that they had settled Mr. Bartlett's claim for $950.00, and enclosing a release duly signed.—The action of the special committee in effecting a settlement was approved.

McLaughlin Sales

McLaughlin motor car sales have taken quite a jump in the city during the past week. Mr. Andrew Brown, of the firm of Messrs. A. Brown and Co., the local dealers for the McLaughlin, reports that he has sold seven new McLaughlin cars within the past seven days. The field of motordom has been pretty well worked over by prospective buyers, recently, and many eyes have been making careful surveys of the new spring 1917 models, with the result that the McLaughlin "valve-in-the head" has scored quite a success. Mr. Brown also added that he has quite a few excellent prospects ahead in addition to the sales reported, and that he only wishes there were two motor shows in the year instead of only one.

SOLD HIS HOTEL

Mr. W. Dixon Jewett, of Cannington, and formerly of Peterboro, has disposed of his hotel business and will shortly retire to private life.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WATCH NATURE CHANGE THE EARTH'S CLOTHES

Spring is the time of the most wonderful changes the earth sees in the year. The beauties of the green foliage slowly unfold, and it is a pleasure, indeed, to watch the process. To really enjoy it the eyesight should be at its best, and if there is any dimness it can be quickly remedied by letting Dr. Fowler fit you with a pair of his "PEBLO" Glasses. They can make the near or distant vision perfect and you are then equipped right for business or pleasure.

Miss Ada Thompson, of Dartmoor, was the guest of Mrs. R. Hoolon, last week.

NO MEAT ONLY MEANS BIG RUN ON BREAD.

LONDON, May 1. — The order of the Food Controller prohibiting the consumption of meat one day each week may be rescinded. Speaking for the Government in the House of Commons Captain Charles Bathurst said it might be necessary to abandon meatless days as they involved a strain on the consumption of breadstuffs.

Some people appreciate beautiful things, but most people merely care for ornaments.

BRITISH TROOPS RAID

Splendid Raiding Causes German Morale to Deteriorate

A London paper writes: The order of Marshal von Hindenburg concerning the Morale of German troops is the greatest possible tribute to the British policy of constant raiding on the western front. The order stated that the moral was deteriorating, and that every effort must be made to restore it by constant supervision and drill. As an answer to this confession comes a raid by British troops which in the number of prisoners taken establishes the record for raids as distinguished from attacks and larger operations. This raid was the work of London men—men who years previously were for the most part clerks in City offices, who hardly dreamed of a more exciting world than that lying between the bounds of the City and a suburban home. Yet on this, as on other occasions, they showed that the City man, properly trained and inspired with the spirit of the British armies, can be made into a first rate fighting man. In this raid particularly the superior intelligence and quickness of men of this type was taken full advantage of.

FIRST SHOT IN WAR

Captain Henry Fox Commanding Destroyers Has First Claim

The first shot fired by Great Britain in the war was by the destroyer "Lance." Captain Cecil Henry Fox, then in command of a flotilla of 17 torpedo boat destroyers, sighted the Konigin Luise, and a number of the destroyers were ordered to chase her. A running fight ensued, the Lance firing the first shot. The Konigin Luise took fire and eventually sank. Her commander, Captain Biermann, and several of her crew were rescued and taken prisoners.

Advice to the Curious

Attached to the door of one of the wards in a Northwest Surrey, England, V.A.D. war hospital is the following list of questions which visitors are requested not to ask the patients:

Where were you wounded?
Did it hurt?
Which hurt most—going in or coming out?
Did you see any Germans?
Do you want to go back?
How many did you kill?
What are the tanks like?

Sir David Beatty was 45 when he took command of the Grand Fleet.

A DOG OUT IN THE SUBURB

Stranger Refused to Leash Him—Joke on the Police

HE walked vigorously up the avenue, the dog trotting on ahead and turning now and then to wag his tail pleasantly in a spirit of comradeship. The man seemed to be very much absorbed in his reflections, for he paid very little attention to what was going on around him. Throngs of people and throngs of vehicles passed him by as he strode onward, but it was as if they were not, when suddenly he was rudely awakened from his preoccupation.

"See here, mister," said a police officer, "you'll have to put a leash on that dog."

"Ah! Indeed!" the wayfarer answered. "Why?"

"Because the law says so—that's why," said the officer.

"Well, you'll excuse the apparent reflection upon your veracity, officer, but I don't believe the law says anything of the sort. I decline to put a leash upon said dog," answered the wayfarer.

"You mean to say you won't obey the law?" demanded the officer.

"Nothing of the sort," replied the wayfarer. "I simply decline to put a leash on that dog because I deny in toto that the law requires me to do any such thing."

"What's the matter here?" asked another officer, coming up.

"This feller declines to leash the dog," returned the first officer, "because he says the law don't require him to do so."

"Excuse me for butting in here," said a pleasant looking gentleman who had been an interested observer of the complication, "but I imagine this gentleman is a stranger in town and is not wholly aware of the requirements."

"I am a stranger here, sir," said the other.

"Then permit me to advise you that the officer is right," said the intruder courteously.

"I am very much obliged to you for your good offices, sir, but even at the risk of seeming unappreciative I must decline to accept your advice."

"Oh, run him in, Bill," said the second officer.

"You'll have to come along with me, sir," said the first officer, putting his hand on the offender's shoulder.

"I'll go along with you," said the man. "There isn't any power on this earth that can compel me to leash the animal, and I sha'n't do it—not if I have to carry the case to the supreme court."

They walked along the street in silence, the crowd following, and the kindly person who had tried to avert the trouble once more interposed with his advice, but the prisoner was firm.

"I know my rights, sir," he said. "If I have to put a leash on that dog I'll be the most surprised person this side of the north pole."

They arrived at the station, and the sergeant at the desk looked up as the party entered.

"What's the trouble?" he asked.

"This gentleman refuses to put a leash on this here dog," said the officer. "I told him as polite as I could what the law was, and he says it ain't so."

"The officer has been very considerate, sergeant," said the prisoner, "but he doesn't understand the law, and I refuse to accept his interpretation of it."

"You don't look like a man that wants trouble," returned the sergeant, "so before holding you, sir, I think I ought to say that the officer is right. The ordinances do require you to hold the dog in leash."

Hereupon the sergeant read the provision from the statute book.

"That is all very well, sergeant, but that law doesn't apply to me at all," said the offender.

"Doesn't apply to you?" roared the sergeant, his face getting red. "Who in Harlem are you, anyhow, that what is law for one man is not law for you? I'll give you one more chance. Will you or will you not put a leash on that dog?"

"I will not," returned the offender calmly.

The sergeant was plainly agitated.

"All right, then," he said; "it's your funeral, not mine. Why in thunder don't you act like a man of sense and do what we tell you?"

"Because," said the offender, "it isn't my dog. I never saw the pup in my life before."

And the little dog wagged his tail, while the sergeant wagged his head trying to find a few but fitting words with which to express his feelings.—Harper's Weekly.

WOMEN MORE RECKLESS

Man Wants to Eat His Cake and Have It

Louise Heiglers writes: One judge made a sensible remark about women the other day, when he said "that a woman generally does what she wants to first, and then takes the consequences afterwards." So we do. So we've always done. So we always will, I expect, unless femininity accommodates all the men in the world in its little inside, like Jonah's whale, in which case, of course, there won't be any consequences to follow what we do.

The men are generally our consequences, you know. At least, what I mean to say is, if there weren't any men there wouldn't be any consequences. I've never met the woman yet who minded paying for her good time. Give her a run for her money, and she'll never grouse when the clock of her romance strikes twelve and all her finery tumbles off.

So different to man. A man, when he can't borrow anything else, invariably borrows more trouble than he's got, and will even sit down and write a poem about his tribulations instead of shooting the moon, as a woman would do who couldn't pay her rent, in preference to writing about it. No man likes consequences, you know—whether it's breach of promise actions, or bankruptcy. A man wants to eat his cake and live on it, whereas a woman, once she's taken it, and a bun or two into the bargain, goes straightway without any waste of time and buys a cookery book and looks up a recipe for making others.

ADVICE FOR BETROTHED

Week-end Holidays Together Are Long Enough and Why

Long holidays in the engagement stage are always dangerous. A thousand opportunities for quarrelling arise. Dick favors bathing, Dorothea doesn't; he prefers long walks, she likes a chair on the piazza. They are too much alone—too much tied to one another. They wonder why they get bored, and think it is because they are not suited to one another.

Really, the married state is the best state in which to start a long holiday together. You get used to little squabbles when it is too late to break the tie. You find that they are the necessary outcome of two natures that differ a little. All natures differ, and are bound to clash somewhere. Try a week-end holiday, and never exceed that period until after the honeymoon.

Something to Try

Before using tea, spread it on a sheet of brown paper and place in a warm, but not hot, oven for from 10 to 15 minutes. The tea will go much farther and the flavor will be much improved. By this method there is a saving of a quarter of a pound on every pound of tea.

Your Liver Is the Best Beauty Doctor.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

WEST ENDS WIN FROM KING PINS

Last night the West Ends took two out of three games from the King Pins in a league fixture. The games were very interesting and keenly contested from start to finish. Matthews of the West Ends was high man for three games with a total of 525, and had high single with a 219 count. Thompson for the West Ends spilled the pins for a 521 total, and Ross was high for the King Pins with 504. Pratt [illegible] the West Ends and Phillips for the King Pins both made hard spares.

The scores:—

DISTRIBUTING THE TROUT

Fish Car Will Soon Be In This District

The Game and Fisheries Department of the Public Works Department are starting the distribution of trout fry throughout the Province of Ontario. The eastern portions of the province will be visited first.

Applications for trout fry, from 50,000 to 150,000 in number, have been received from different parts, and the fish car starts out immediately from Toronto to deliver these. Hastings county, Frontenac, Peterboro, will be the first visited. Then the car goes up to the Muskoka Lakes and Algonquin Park, and after that to the western portion of the province.

Careful wives who habitually make up their husbands' minds refine the process until they obtain the most satisfactory results.

CAUGHT THE COON ONLY TO HAVE IT STOLEN AT LAST

Rev. F. A. Conners Has an Adventure which Brings Him Nothing But a Pair of Badly Lacerated Hands

Between twelve and one o'clock yesterday a foolish raccoon, evidently in town on a marauding expedition, found lodgment in a tree on Park street between Charlotte and King. The animal was in full view of all passersby and created considerable interest, to say nothing of excitement, which grew in intensity as all efforts to dislodge him failed and factory whistles sounded their warning calls to work and business. Between two and three o'clock Rev. F. A. Conners undertook, assisted by another man, to climb the tree in an effort to lasso the coon with a rope. For a considerable time the cunning animal successfully evaded the noose but finally fell to the ground and made a dash for liberty across Park and along King, pursued by an eager crowd. The two up the tree quickly joined in the pursuit, and Mr. Conners succeeded in capturing the animal, but with his naked hands, and consequently suffered severe punishment. His hands were severely torn by the maddened coon's teeth, but he clung to his prey and bore it back to the tree from whence it had fallen, and to which he tied it pending further action. He was then invited into the adjoining house, where his badly lacerated hands were washed in carbolic acid, after which he hastened to a physician to have his wounds cauterized.

And now comes the saddest part of a sad story. Mr. Conners, on his return to the scene of his aerial adventure, and after undergoing excruciating torture and running the grave risk of blood poisoning, found to his surprise that the companion of his exploits in the tree had made off with his prize by means of a sack and a motor delivery rig. He is now seeking the identity of his companion in "coon" adventure; whom he considers to have played him an exceedingly shabby trick.

MODEL OF GOOD TASTE IS THE FRENCHWOMAN

Reasons Why Our "Petite" Sisters Excel in All Manner of Dress—Looks Out For Details

A Parisian writes: "The little more and how much it is: the little less and what worlds away" applies well to dressing, and to judge by the way a Frenchwoman dresses it means, as a rule, more finish and less trimming. The gift of selection in clothes seems to be born with the women of Paris, and when new fashions come with new seasons they gather them with a critical eye for what is most becoming.

Most Frenchwomen, to judge by their hands and their hair, look as if they had maids; really only a very few have. Frenchwomen, again, pay attention to the smallest details of their clothing, and one wonders how not only the working classes but also the society women manage to have all these details so neat, considering how hard they work.

To [illegible] alone, it is pleasant to see how many walk about with straight, well-set-up heels, skirts that hang straight and look as if they had been pressed the day before.

A hat that does not sit on the head naturally is an exception. French people do not talk very much about their dress; they take it for granted and only think about it when they want something new or something altered. They take it for granted that they must dress their very best, and they dress much more to please themselves than others.

They trust their own taste as intuitively as some people trust their own judgment in more serious matters. The result is such as we see it, and at the present moment, at any rate, it is neat, appropriate, and charming. From the toe of the well-made boot to the topmost line of the well worn hat the Frenchwomen of the moment is, in homely phrase, "neat as a pin."

RED TRIANGLE FOR SOLDIERS

Y. M. C. A. OPENS FIRST OF SERIES IN TORONTO.

A down-town rendezvous for returned soldiers and others temporarily in the city has been opened in Toronto (April 16) by the Military Service Department of the Y.M.C.A. It has been given a new name that will strike a peculiar note to the returned soldier, the Red Triangle Club, for he has met it in different forms in the training camps of Canada, the camps and hospitals of England, the huts of France, and the dugouts in the shell areas behind the front trenches.

This club succeeds a former hotel, and every arrangement has been made for attractive, home-like quarters for the soldiers. There are amusement rooms, writing rooms, magazines, pianos, billiard tables, shower baths, etc., all provided free of charge for the use of any soldiers who are rooming at the club or who may drop in. The old bar is now a cafeteria served by ladies who give their time free, while 65 beds are available at a low cost each night.

The response from the men has been most hearty the past few days, and plans are being made to establish similar Red Triangle Clubs in other centres of Canada for the benefit of returned soldiers.

WHAT REAL COLD IS

Arctic Regions where Thermometer Registers 80 Degrees.

"I can't help smiling," writes Old Tar, "when I hear people groaning over the cold. I wonder what they would have thought if they had been with me in the Arctic regions fifty-seven years ago, when for days I trudged over the ice-fields, with a gale blowing and the thermometer marking eighty degrees of frost. One day one of my companions foolishly left off his mittens; his hands froze; and when he plunged one of them into a basin of warm water the intense cold of the hand froze the water solid. Often my beard and moustache were a solid mass of ice; and once, when I foolishly put my tongue out, it instantly froze fast to my lips, and part of it was torn away in releasing it. That's cold if you like!"

Danger of Mirages at Sea

Mirages at sea have proved disastrous to ships in Australian waters. Phantom land lured the schooner Kona to a grave on the beach of Kangaroo Island, Australia. A hydrographic report also says that the schooner Marston nearly fell victim to a mirage of land, steering towards the supposed shore until the mistake was discovered.

Sure Cure for Insomniacs

If more of these insomniacs, wild fanciers of the night, whose daily life is between an unventilated "home" and a dead air office, would get out under the blue skies and look a bud in the face, or drop a fly or a worm in a stream they would become useful to humanity.

Lemon juice makes a good substitute for shoe polish if a few drops are well rubbed into the leather.

A cardboard cuff around the upper arm will often prevent a child from sucking its thumb, a habit that is liable to cause serious deformity of the mouth, nose and teeth.

When baking potatoes grease them first with a little butter, and when cooked they will be beautifully brown and crisp, with the nice glazed appearance that makes them look so appetizing.

Teacups with broken handles are very useful for poaching eggs. Butter the inside, break the egg into the cup and stand the cup in the frying pan half filled with water. It keeps the egg in good shape when poached, easy to slip on to toast and is cleaner than poaching in a frying pan.

Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because of the high temperature at which it is "fired" during the drying process, which makes the tea very sensitive. It thus quickly loses flavor and strength, and goes "flat" if left exposed to odors, dust or air.

To Protect the Consumer

When you buy a package of Red Rose Tea at your grocer's you get the benefit of the great care we take to protect the consumer, as the sealed package is an armor that keeps out odors, dust and air. It keeps the tea pure, clean, fresh and full strength.

The price printed on the package protects you against overcharge. It is the lowest price for which a tea of Red Rose quality can be sold—a price which allows the grocer only a fair profit.

You will enjoy the distinctive flavor, rich strength and splendid economy of Red Rose Tea. TRY A PACKAGE.

RED ROSE TEA is good tea

BIBLE STORY TOLD IN SONG

In spite of the inclement weather there was a good attendance at the presentation of Barnby's "Rebekah" at Knox Church last night, put on under the direction of Mr. George Kenyon, choirmaster and organist of the church, assisted by a large chorus and well-known soloists. The first part of the program consisted of "O Canada," two violin solos by Miss L. Logan, and "The Recessional," by the chorus, the solo part being taken by Mrs. Perks. Those who took the solo parts in "Rebekah" were Miss M. Penrose, Miss O. Kenyon, sopranos; Mr. E. Humpage, tenor, and Mr. J. Smith, the popular baritone.

It is a familiar Bible story that was so admirably presented in song last night, the marriage of Rebekah to Isaac after a courtship according to the customs of the Orient. The presentation held the attention of the audience to the last, and the hearty applause that greeted each part was a graceful expression of appreciation. Mr. Kenyon and his assistants are to be congratulated upon their success.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL WALKINGTON ENGLISH.

Peterborough lost one of its oldest and most respected residents this morning in the death of Samuel Walkington English. His death will be a great surprise to his many friends, who will recall seeing him down town only a few days ago. It was on Thursday last that he left his business and went home complaining of a chill, but later on was thought to be better. On Friday the family physician advised hospital treatment, and he was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where, despite every attention of nurses and the best of medical aid, he passed away.

The deceased was one of the best-known men of the city, having for many years managed the William English Canoe Co. He was born in the old English homestead on Charlotte street, on the 29th of March, 1852, and was the youngest son of the late John English. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters and also of the Maccabees.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Mr. William English; one sister, Miss Kate English, and one brother, Mr. James English, of 544 Gilmour street.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 309 Margaret avenue, on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Funeral services conducted by Rev. J. P Wilson, of Trinity Church, at 3 o'clock.

JOSEPH WHITEMAN

Joseph Whiteman died at the family residence 704 Concession Street, last evening after a short illness. He was born in Bedfordshire, England, 84 years ago, but has lived in Peterboro for many years. His wife survives him.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral services will be at 2 o'clock, and will be conducted by the Rev. R. Whattam

TENDERS WANTED

G. H. THOMPSON,
Secretary-Treasurer,
Board of Education.

Splendid Rehearsal

OF "THE GREEK SLAVE" HELD LAST NIGHT.

A splendid rehearsal of "A Greek Slave" was held last night when all the members were studied with the exception of those of Mrs. Perks (Maia) who with several others of the company, were assisting Mr. Kenyon at the "Rebecca" Concert in Knox Church. Mr. Fenwick presided at the piano. Mr. R. G. Devey announced that the dress rehearsal would be held on Friday, May 18th, before which it is proposed to photograph the whole company. If "On The Side," who writes for an Ontario paper could be present on the occasion he certainly would not find the performers in this presentation answer to Power's "Greek Slave" as to "inexpensive costumes."

THE HEINTZMAN HALL

This is the name of Heintzman's new warerooms and music hall in the Royal Bank Building, corner of Hunter and George streets, into which the genial local manager, Mr. B. H. Britton, moved his instruments yesterday. The hall is roomy, spacious and lofty, and admirably adapted for displaying to advantage "Ye olde firme's" famous pianos, which have stood the test of 65 years. Here visitors will find a real pleasure in inspecting the new stock of pianos, Victrolas and records amidst all that comfort and convenience only to be found in modernly-equipped instrument showrooms, in charge of courteous and well-informed attendants. The new Heintzman Hall, in all its perfection of appreciable space, up-to-the-hour fittings and decoration is unquestionably a credit to Peterboro, and in keeping with the enviable reputation of Heintzman and Co., whose Royal Art Piano was selected for the use of Queen Mary when visiting Canada as the Princess of Wales. Visitors will receive the fullest measure of cordiality, and will find their call interesting in regard to the scope and intrinsic merit of the beautiful instruments on exhibit.

BRITISH BEGIN NEW OFFENSIVE

NAMES OF TWO LOCAL MEN IN TO-DAY'S RECORD OF KILLED

Corporal Harry Clappison and Pte. Norman Clark Now Enrolled With Those Who Fell at Vimy Ridge--Two Reported Wounded.

CORP. HARRY CLAPPISON.
PRIVATE NORMAN CLARK.
WOUNDED.
PRIVATE ROBT. GEO. DORRELL
PRIVATE W. H. ADAMS.

Two more Peterborough men have paid the supreme price, according to the messages sent out by the Record Office today.

CORPORAL CLAPPISON

Mrs. Harry Clappison, Brown St., Brownton, received word from the War Office this morning that her husband, Corp. [illegible] Clappison, had been killed in action. Corp. Clappison enlisted with the 93rd, and was a very popular Non-Com. Before enlisting he was a conductor on the street railway.

PTE. NORMAN CLARK

Mrs. Norman Clark, 66 Victoria avenue, received the sad news this morning that her husband, Pte. Norman Clark, of the 93rd Bn., had been killed. Pte. Clark came to Peterborough from Port Hope.

PTE. DORRELL WOUNDED

Mrs. Annie Dorrell received word this morning that her son, Pte. Robt. George Dorrell, had been wounded on April 21st and was in hospital suffering with a gunshot wound in the face. Pte. Dorrell was 19 years of age, and enlisted with the 93rd. Previous to donning the khaki he was employed at the Brinton Carpet Co. He was an active member of St. James' Church.

PTE. W. H. ADAMS

Mrs. Sarah E. Adams of Flinton, Ont., but who formerly lived at 87 Smith street, has received word that her husband, Pte. William Henry Adams, of the Mounted Rifles, had been wounded on April [illegible]h. While the message did not say anything as to his whereabouts, it is presumed he is in one of the base hospitals. He enlisted with the 93rd, but was transferred in England.

TOTAL IS NOW 13,064.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The daily casualty roll is again becoming heavier. In a list of 276 names issued at noon today there are 61 killed, 27 died of wounds, 22 missing, and 166 wounded. The total since April 9th is now 13,064 of all ranks.

CANADIAN ENGINEERS' COURSE

Authority has been granted for the establishment of a provisional school in connection with the 5th Field Company, Canadian Engineers, for a period of six weeks from May 1st. The school will be established in Kingston.

WILL NOT PAY THE SHOEING ACCOUNTS

It is published in district orders that in future no accounts submitted for the shoeing of horses will be passed for payment at District Headquarters. The Army Service Corps are in a position to cope with this work, and outside assistance is unnecessary and an additional expense to the public.

MANY CHANCES TO ENLIST

A would-be recruit has now a wider selection of units to go to than at any time during the war, showing that practically every branch of the service cries out for more men. The infantry and artillery are of course, the most important branches. The Army Medical Corps, Forestry Service, Dental Corps, and the Railway Construction Corps are putting forth every effort to increase the number, while the Canadian Defence Force is making efforts to round up some of the many hundreds of men who should be in khaki. The 57th Regiment is offering special inducements to the men not yet in khaki, and it is plainly the duty of every available man to don the uniform. In years to come there will be no stain on their name, and they will be able to satisfactorily answer the question: "What Did You Do In The Great War?"

TO TRAIN AS AVIATRIX

Mrs. Melville C. Brokenshire, of Kingston, whose husband left last week with the 253rd (Queen's Highland) Battalion, is applying to the authorities at Washington to permit her to train as an aviatrix for service with the United States forces.

WILL GO OVERSEAS

At the Armouries last night, Pte. Alfred Newman Brooks, who enlisted with the C.D.F., asked to be transferred to the C.E.F. He lives at 235 Princess Street.

BOUND TO DO HIS BIT

Private Ernest Wilson, who lives at 169 London Street, tried to enlist with tht C.D.F., but when examined by the doctors was found to be under height. He was not to be stayed in doing his bit, as the Forestry Battalion have no limit on height, and he signed up to go with the 230th.

HERE TO RECRUIT

Sergt. H. W. Donaldson and Bdr. J. A. Murdock of the 75th Battery, Kingston, are in the city on recruiting duty.

COMPLUSION IS ONLY SOLUTION

MILITARY LEADERS IN THE WEST TIRE OF VOLUNTARY SYSTEM.

WINNIPEG, May 3. — The unanimous opinion expressed at a conference of military heads from all points in Military District No. 10 was that the time for compulsion had come, all efforts to secure the requisite number of men for overseas service and home defence having failed.

This was the gist of a statement handed out after the conference had been in session several hours at the Military Institute.

Indian List Gets Its First Recruit

FIRST CASE COMES UP UNDER RECENT PROHIBITION AMENDMENT.

Louis Meehan was fined $10.00 and $3.50 costs at the police court this morning on a charge of being drunk preferred by License Inspector Stewart.

In addition to this fine Louis was placed on the prohibited list by the magistrate. This makes it a very serious offence for the express or railway companies to deliver to the defendant any liquor consigned to him. If any should come for him it must be delivered to the inspector. It is also an offence for anyone to give him liquor, and he cannot have liquor in his possession any time.

This is the first time that the Prohibitory Amendment, passed at the recent session of the legislature, has been put into effect by the magistrate. The license inspector can place anyone on the prohibited list at any time.

HEAVY FIGHTING RESUMED ALONG THE BRITISH FRONT

JOFFRE WILL BE AT CONVENTION

FRENCH GENERAL AND HIS PARTY EXPECTED AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, May 3. — General Joffre and the other members of the French mission to Washington are expected to be in Montreal during the week of May 21-26, when the "Win the War" Convention is to be held.

JUDGE HUYCKE'S RULING UPHELD

APPEAL COURT SUSTAINED HIM IN NEARLY ALL POINTS.

Judgt Huycke was upheld in practically all points by the Court of Appeal in the recent case of Lockie vs. North Monaghan. As to the road in dispute the court took the position taken by the County Court Judge, and held that the plaintiff had not proved his claim. As to the water it was held that Lockie was entitled to the use of the stream, and though damages were returned the plaintiff is allowed to sue again unless the matter is remedied. The township being successful as to the road, and Lockie as to the water, no costs were given to either party.

The case has aroused a considerable interest in North Moneghan, the main point at issue being the right of Lockie to the use of a stream flowing to the north of his farm. The Court of Appeal has finally established this right.

COLLECTOR TOLD THE COMMITTEE HIS TROUBLES

GARBAGE COLLECTION IS BACKWARD OWING TO LABOR SHORTAGE.

Scarcity of labor prevents Mr. Graham, the garbage collector from making as thorough a clean-up at present as the needs of the city demand. He reported his troubles to the Property Committee last night, and the members promised to give him every consideration and to get him help if it was posible.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton stated that he had tried to get men for the job, but so far was unsuccessful. The people would have to put up with a little inconvenience for a day or two.

Mayor Duffus regretted that the labor problem had turned up, as the new sanitary inspector and Mr. Graham were co-operating, and there had been very few complaints on account of neglected service. This was the worst time of the year for the refuse to accumulate as everyone was house-cleaning.

If any of the citizens hear of men wanting work in the city they will confer a favor by sending them to the sanitavy inspector or Mr. Graham.

MAGISTRATE ISSUES WARNING

Speeders May Be Fined More Than Usual $10.00

Police Magistrate Dumble hinted at the police court this morning that if the $5.00 fine which he had been imposing on offenders against the Motor and Vehicles Act, does not stop the speeding, etc., he will start raising the fine. His limit is $50.00

One auto owner pleaded guilty to exceeding the speed limit, and was let off with $5.00 contribution.

Troops Make Progress and Capture Strong Hostile Positions---French Capture Garrison of More Than Two Hundred Men---Brazil Nearer to War With Germany.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 3. — (Official Announcement.) — "Heavy fighting is taking place all along the front from the Hindenburg line south of the Senze River to the Acheville-Vimy road. Our troops are making progress and have already captured a number of strong hostile positions."

In their new attack the British made progress in the direction of Fresnery and Cherisy and also towards Bellecourt, the Reuter correspondent reports.

FRENCH CAPTURE GARRISON.

PARIS, May 3. — The French made an important attack again on the Champagne front last night, reducing the position which was still being held by the Germans in new lines east of Mont Haut, and capturing a German garrison of more than two hundred men, the war office announces. There was active patrol fighting on the Chemin-des-Dames line.

BRAZIL ADOPTS REPRISAL.

RIO JANEIRO, May 3. — Minister of Foreign Affairs Muller has resigned. The government has received word that the Brazilian minister to Germany has been ordered detained in Berlin, and has ordered the detention of the German minister to Brazil. These two events seem to bring Brazil nearer to war with Germany.

SUNK BY SEAPLANE.

LONDON, May 3. — The Admiralty announces that the British steamer Gena was sunk on May 1 by a torpedo discharged from a German seaplane off Aldeburg (Suffolk, England). All hands on board the vessel were saved.

It is added by the Admiralty that another seaplane which was concerned in the attack was brought down by the gunfire from the Gena, and its crew made prisoners.

The steamer Gena was a vessel of 2,784 tons gross and was owned at Whitby.

1,200 SUBS BY END OF YEAR.

NEW YORK, May 3.—It is more than likely that Germany has on the ways and approaching completion not fewer than five hundred submarines of the U-53 class, and that within six months she will have about seven hundred submarines afloat, and in twelve months twelve hundred. Evidence at hand indicates that the German yards have room to keep work on 530 submarines of the U-53 class constantly under way. The foregoing statements were made last night by J. Bernard Walker, editor of The Scientific American, who spoke of the submarine peril before the National Security League at the annual meeting at the Hotel Astor.

PEOPLE WRONG MEN MAKE KICK OVER TROUBLE

CITIZENS ADVISED THAT NIGHT SOIL BYLAW IS NOT IN FORCE.

The new night soil collection bylay is not yet law, and will not be in force until after the council meeting on Monday night.

The night soil collectors have been having some trouble with citizens who wrongly contend that their closets need only be cleaned once in two month. The boxes must be cleaned as often as Sanitary Inspector Stapleton thinks necessary, and a few of the regular cranks who look for loop holes to get out of keeping their places clean are going to run up against a snag. The commitee last night advised the sanitary inspector to bring before the magistrate a few of the kickers.

The opening services in connection with St. James' Methodist Church will be continued next Sunday, May 6th.

Rev. Prof. J Hugh Michael, M.A., of Victoria University, will preach morning and evening and will also deliver his celebrated lecture on Lloyd George in the George Street Methodist Church Monday evening, May 7th, at 8 o'clock.

WANT CHANGE IN ELECTION LAW

TRADES COUNCIL FAVORS MUNICIPAL VOTING ON NEW YEAR'S DAY.

At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council last night a communication was received from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., acknowledging the receipt of a telegram from Delegate G. L. Myland protesting against the hanging of the 16-year-old-boy Spain in Manitoba. The protest has been submitted to the Minister of Justice. Delegate Myland's action was approved by the Council.

Major E. Bristol of Ottawa wrote that the request of the Council that the Rifle Ranges be cultivated has been referred to the proper department.

Labor men will agitate for a change in the law so that municipal elections shall be held on New Year's Day as in several other cities of Ontario

Two local picture theatres were reported as still on the unfair list.

The debate on capital punishment was postponed until the next regular meeting.

IN DARK HOUR BEFORE DAWN BRITISH GUNS OPENED FIRE

New Offensive Began With First Sign of Daylight When Order to Advance Was Snapped Down Miles of Trenches.

LONDON, May 3. — The British attacked in the darkest hour preceding the dawn this morning, striking at the German positions east of Arras. The infantry assault was delayed until half an hour after the half moon had gone down. The night was clear and starlit, and the almost ceaseless flashing of guns gave definite shape to the shadowy outlines of the salient points. The correspondent says the attack was directed to taking certain points of considerable importance and to improving the British lines. The British desired to gain complete mastery of dominating positions whence their artillery would be able to more effectively devastate fresh troops which the Germans continue to throw in. There was the usual preliminary tornado of fire from weapons of all calibres, and then the equally familiar creeping barrage working with absolute punctuality as the order to the men to go forward was snapped forth simultaneously down miles of trenches. Thousands of crouching figures formed into regular waves for the advance. Then came the inevitable deadly rattle of machine-gun and rifle fire and the crashing of bursting bombs as the infantry reached the parapet of the first enemy trench.

As to the results obtained, the correspondent adds reports thus far are vague, but the British made progress in several directions towards Fresnery and Cherisy, and also toward Bellcourt, which is on the Hindenburg lines.

The Germans counter-attacked heavily near Gavecile and Loos. These onslaughts were dealt with satisfactorily by British gunners.

IN CLOUDS OF DUST.

The Associated Press correspondent wires from British Headquarters in France:

Another of the continuing British attacks was launched against the Germans early this morning. Hard fighting is in progress under a warm spring sun. There has been no rain for more than ten days now, and the battle fields are at times enveloped in dust. British reinforcements moving along the roads toward the front look like millers under heavy layers of chalk white powder. Reports from the battle front are as yet meagre, but it appears satisfactory progress is being made. The attack was on a wide front. At Bullecourt the British took another bite into Hindenburg's lines.

AIRMEN WORRY FOE.

Good progress was also reported early in the direction of Cherisy and Fresnery. Fresnery is just east of Arleux, which was captured last Friday by the Canadians. These two positions, having been looped about with intricate trench fortifications, form one of the strongest points on the Mericourt-Oppy-Gavrelle line running slightly southwest from Lens to the Scarpe and being one of the last of the older fixed positions protecting the Drocourt-Queant switch to the Hindenburg line.

Germans have delivered strong counter-attacks at several places, principally against Gavecile and toward Loos. At all points attacked and counter-attacked heavy fighting is proceeding. In the meantime the British airmen are taking full advantage of the long spell of good weather by continuing their relentless offensive aloft day and night. Within three days they accounted for 55 enemy machines, and have carried out many enterprises behind the German lines. The German soldiers plainly dislike the continuous presence of the British airplanes, for many unposted letters captured during the infantry attacks dwell upon the uneasiness the machines cause. One man wrote, "The air activity is very great. The English will soon be taking the very caps off our heads."

TO WARD OFF AN ELECTION

J. H. Burnham, M.P., wires The Review as follows:

The Globe, the leading journal of the Liberal party of Canada, has a heavy headlined item on the front page of Wednesday plainly leading up to a demand for a general election and pretending that the Borden Government wants an election.

How could this be if we ask for an extension of Parliament, as we are doing? An election at this time is said by the Government to be a dangerous interference with the military work it is doing overseas. If the public bodies of Peterborough have an opinion on this matter, it would be well for them to send their resolutions to Parliament in[illegible]ely.

J. H. Burnham.

MAJORITY REPORT IN FAVOR OF TAKING OVER RAILROADS

Two of three Members of Royal Commission Recommend Nationalization of All Roads Except C.P.R. and American Lines.

OTTAWA, May 3.—When Mr. Speaker arose to leave the chair at six o'clock this afternoon, Sir Thos. White asked the unanimous consent of the house to lay upon the table the report of the Royal Commission to inquire into railways and transportation. This report, he said, was one of the most momentous documents ever presented to parliament, and upon his motion it was ordered printed for immediate distribution. The Royal Commission was appointed

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1917

TO WIN THE WAR.

A NATIONAL WAR CONVENTION of representative Canadians from all parts of the Dominion is to meet in Montreal on the 23rd, 24th and 25th of May. The object of the gathering is to unite every element in the nation in one common purpose, that of winning the war. All social, religious and political differences are to be sunk. The official notice that has been sent out reads as follows:

> One thousand men will gather from all the provinces of Canada to consider the position the country is in with relation to the war—to discuss the situation in an effort to bring about that national unity which, in the opinion of every patriotic person, ought to exist during these great days. At a time when all the people as individuals are moved as never before by a common national impulse, it is proposed that people from all the provinces shall meet together, and in honest conference decide upon plans of common action throughout Canada as regards the war, so that those who live may prove themselves worthy of those who die.
> Representative men from all the provinces will attend this National Convention, bringing together, no doubt, many differing views, but all animated by the one ruling purpose—to discover the basis on which Canada as one united country can throw here energies into the war. It is believed that it will be found that the political and other distrusts which impede national action will be dispelled in honest conference and that the voice of the country will find earnest expression.
>
> Canada has now been at war for two years and nine months. Twenty thousand Canadians have already made the supreme sacrifice, that we who have remained behind may enjoy, unmolested by Prussian tyranny, the liberties built up through long generations by the two greatest liberty-loving races in the world. Is it not our duty to sink all petty differences, adjust conflicting views and get together in support of the young men who on land, sea and air are giving their lives? A country that has such men ought to deserve such service as theirs.
> One thousand men from all the provinces of Canada will meet in non-partisan convention in Montreal on the 23rd, 24th and 25th days of May to consider ways and means for uniting the whole country on a win-the-war policy.

The work of preparing for this convention has been going on for several months and a number of meetings were held in Toronto. This, however, is the first definite announcement that has been published with regard to the movement. Peterborough in all this work of preparation has been represented by Mr. R. B. Rogers, a member of the Speakers' Patriotic League and one of the delegates who went from this city to the Bon-Entente conference in Quebec. Mr. Rogers, Mayor Duffus and Alderman Dobbin will attend the Montreal convention, and it is likely that there will be other delegates.

The "Win-the-War" movement is an outgrowth of the Bon Entente agitation, but the scope is infinitely larger. It takes in the entire Dominion, whereas th Bon Entente conference was concerned chiefly with the difficulties between Ontario and Quebec.

There are discordant elements in the community outside of the feuds between the two older provinces. The East is pitted against the West, especially on the trade question in a rivalry that does not make for the true interests of either. Political disputes, too, have had their effect in hindering the work of the war.

If there is any political significance in this movement it lies in the fact that there is a determination to lay to rest all party discord at least until the war is over. Both political parties are represented. In the preliminary discussion it has been contended that the present Government was not elected to office on a war platform, and that they hold no direct warrant from the people to act in a capacity new to a Canadian administration. The Government must be supported without regard to party until the war is over.

And above all, Conservatives and Liberals who are identified with the "Win-the-War" movement are agreed that there must be no general election in Canada, this year or any year, until victory has come to the cause of the Allied Nations.

THE SHORTAGE OF COAL.

THE MEMBERS of the Board of Education have advertised for next season's supply of coal, just as if the world was not living under abnormal conditions with regard to fuel as well as other equally momentous matters. The Board appears to assume that the coal situation is as usual, and that a stock can be procured for the asking. Something that was said at the aldermanic session last night puts a different aspect on this matter and invests it with a more serious air than ever.

Ald. Weir is a coal dealer. When it was proposed that the city advertise for coal for use in the municipal buildings he advised his colleagues to save the money that would be expended for that purpose, as it is impossible to get any coal at present. His advice was not taken, and the advertisement goes.

What is to be done under such circumstances? If the city is unable to get coal, what hope is left the private citizens? Are the people to freeze next winter as well as to suffer under a shortage in the supply of food? If the municipal boards are up against it in this regard, the situation is certainly grave, and no time should be lost in devising a remedy.

WHEN THE WORLD IS MADE OVER.

THE GRIEF of the mother or father mourning for a son buried in the military cemeteries in France, that of a wife for her husband, or of a brother or sister for one who will never come back again, is rendered all the more poignant by the reflection that the edict of one misguided man is responsible for their bereavement. The mourners are deprived of the consolation that their loss has been suffered in the ordinary course of nature. The hand of mortal man rather than a decree of the Almighty has brought about the calamity. One mad earthly monarch, imagining himself the chosen of Omnipotence, has plunged the world into war, and cast the shadow of death over, not thousands, but millions of homes.

At last the people of this earth have awakened to the conditions under which they have quietly slumbered for years. It is hard to believe that any one man had the power to bring such a disaster upon his fellow-creatures.

The world, we are told, is to be made over after the war. Society is to be recast along entirely different lines. There is need for a change. There is a crying necessity for depriving any royal paranoiac of the power to repeat the tragedy that has obscured civilization and made mock of Christianity for the past three years. The people must be given a voice in shaping the burdens that they are called upon to carry.

With the absolute ruler, secret diplomacy, too, also must go. The masses have a right to a voice in the things which so closely concern their temporal salvation. They will no longer consent to dwell in a fool's paradise, dreaming of security while they are really living above a mine ready to break out without a moment's warning and envelop them with destruction.

QUEBEC FOR CONSCRIPTION.

ONE OF THE OBJECTS of the national win-the-war convention, to be held at Montreal this month, is to urge conscription upon the Government. It is felt that it is no longer wise to rely upon the voluntary system. Even Quebec is reported as in favor of the selective draft. Leading citizens of that province who have taken part in the preliminary meetings declare that the French-Canadians will welcome nay measure that will tend to equalize the burden of military defence.

THE DOHERTY ACT.

FOLLOWING is the section in the legislation, commonly known as the "Doherty Act," passed at the last session of Parliament, which gives prohibition provinces the machinery to prevent importation of liquor from outside points:

> "127. Everyone who by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, in violation of part II of this Act,—
>
> (a) exposes or keeps for sale any intoxicating liquor; or
>
> (b) directly or indirectly, on any pretense, or by any device, sells or barters, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property, gives to any other person any intoxicating liquor; or
>
> (c) sends, ships, brings or carries, or causes to be sent, shipped, brought or carried to or into any country or city any intoxicating liquor; or
>
> (d) delivers to any consignee or other person, or stores, warehouses, or keeps for delivery any intoxicating liquor so sent, shipped, brought or carried;
> shall on summary conviction be liable to a penalty for the first offence of not less than fifty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, with or without hard labor, and, for a second and every subsequent offence, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding four months, with or without hard labor."

It is evident from the above that every dry province in the Dominion has the power to prevent the importation of liquor from outside points. Can the local temperance workers explain, then, why it is that they are intent upon forcing on the Federal powers a duty which they have already performed to the extent of their authority? The Dominion Parliament as well as the Provincial Legislatures must accept the Constitution as prepared and handed down by the Fathers of Confederation.

FIRST STEAMBOATS ON THE GREAT LAKES

Launched in Lake Ontario 1817, When Railroads were Unknown—Heralded Far and Wide

Frank H. Roszel writes: The first steamboats on any of the lakes came out in 1817 on Lake Ontario; one under the British flag called the Frontenac and one under the American called the Ontario. Both were built at the eastern end of the lake, the Frontenac at Finkle's Point, 18 miles up the bay of Quinte from Kingston, Canada, and the Ontario at Sackett's Harbor.

Steamboats with Sails

The first steamboats were equipped with sails, the steering wheel being placed on the stern as in sailing vessels. Both steamers were no doubt able to handle themselves under sail to a large extent. The Frontenac ran regularly until 1827, when she was burned in Niagara river. The Ontario, much smaller and of lighter draft, plied between Lewiston on the Niagara river and Ogdensburg, 70 miles down the Saint Lawrence river from the foot of Lake Ontario. The speed of the Ontario is given as about seven miles an hour.

Great Rejoicing

Of course, the opening of the service of these pioneer steamers was heralded far and wide, and in every port of call they were met by crowds of curious and excited people, and, as one writer says, were greeted by ringing of church bells and firing of cannon. The era of startling inventions was just beginning. There had been no particular change for centuries in the way in which men had traveled by land or by sea. The railroad and the telegraph were unknown and in the sparsely settled country about Lake Ontario, long journeys were made on foot, on horseback or behind plodding ox teams, and those who journeyed by water found passage in small sloops or schooners or in boats propelled by oars or paddles. We who live in these days of time and space annihilating inventions touching our daily life on every hand, can have no idea of the wonder and awe inspired in the little lake settlements by the actual coming into port of these first lake steamers.

MOUNTAINS OF BAGGAGE

Nearly Eight Million Pieces Handled by One Road in a Year

No department of a big railway requires more care or thought than the handling of baggage. The amount of baggage handled on so large a system as the C.P.R. is phenomenal—no less than 7,899,652 individual pieces being forwarded during the last business year. There must have been quite a number of families on the move, for the list includes 28,309 baby carriages. Milk cans form an important element in the work of the baggage department, as in order to ensure the rapid delivery of milk from the farm to the city dweller-passenger trains are used. The total number of milk cans forwarded during the past year was 1,162,472. The most convincing proof of the care with which baggage is handled is given in the figures of claims paid on loss, damage, pilferage. Out of nearly eight million pieces of baggage handled, the amount paid on loss was only $1,791.79; on damage only $1,069.08; and on pilferage only $571.07, the cost to the company in these respects being only five cents per hundred parcels. This is a record of which Mr. J. O. Apps, the general baggage agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, may well be proud, and is sufficient to show that the so-called "baggage smasher" has been entirely eliminated, if indeed he ever existed, between Digby, N.S., and Victoria, B.C.

GAVE AUSTRALIA WEALTH

First Flock of Sheep Consisted of Eight Animals

Australian wool, on which has been built up much of that British colony's prosperity, started more than 100 years ago. It originated with a certain Captain McArthur, a soldier in the British army. Settling in New South Wales, soon after Governor Phillip arrived there, he saw the possibilities for growing fine wool, and by the luckiest accident was able, in 1796, to import five merino ewes, and three rams. They were of a flock presented by the King of Spain to the Dutch at the Cape and came from the famous Escurial flock. These, judiciously added to by McArthur, were the beginning of the vast Australian sheep industry of to-day. The first shipment of Australian wool was 245 pounds, in 1807, now the shipments run into hundreds of millions of pounds.

Tobacco from Boots

A member of one of Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition writes:—Before we left the ice our tobacco had given out, but the most determined smokers amongst us were not going to be thwarted. We made shift with the grass lining of our "fulnescoes" (boots). It tasted generally of kerosene, and was pretty hot stuff in a pipe. The non-smokers strongly objected to it at close quarters.

World's Rubber Productions

Reports covering the world's total production of crude rubber indicate that the past year's output amounted to 178,000 tons. The great rubber plantations of the east now produce about 75 per cent. of the total and promise to show a decided increase. One million four hundred and twelve thousand acres are known to be under cultivation.

HOLDER FOR MILK PAIL

Tired of holding the milk pail between his knees while milking, a farmer made a contrivance of strap iron to overcome this. It is arranged so that the milk pail will just fit inside, the curved straps supporting the weight of the pail on the knees. The holder may be made of wood, with the possible exception of the curved arms, which should be made of pieces of iron, ¼ in thick and about 2 ins. wide. The circular frame can be made adjustable to various pails by bolts set in holes in the bands.—Popular Mechanics

LUMBER KING AT ALMOST A CENTURY

J. R. Booth, Canadian, World's Oldest Active Worker at Head of Timber, Pulp and Paper Trade

The career of John Rudolphus Booth, of Ottawa, lumber king of Canada, stands as a record for length of active service in the forestry world. Imagine a man almost a centenarian and at the same time perhaps the most active working lumberman and pulp and paper manufacturer in the world. In 1857, with nine dollars in his pocket, he landed in the capital city—then little better than a sawdust hamlet—and started a small shingle mill on the site at the Chaudiere where afterwards he built the largest lumber mill in the world, which, before its destruction by fire, attracted visitors from all parts of the world. On the same property there rose later his large news print mill, board mill, sulphite plant and ground wood pulp industry, and the owner is the largest timber limit holder in the Dominion. He also built the Canada Atlantic Railway, now part of the Grand Trunk system, from Ottawa to Parry Harbor, and established immense elevators at the latter point. He possessed a faculty of picking out men to manage his five hundred miles of road who later became national figures in the transportation world. Among these were E. J. Chamberlain, Morley Donaldson, W. P. Hinton, George Mountain and others.

At Atlantic City

Mr. Booth could never take a holiday. Once he was induced to try out Atlantic City, and was up at six o'clock in the morning vainly trying to get into the hotel dining-room for breakfast. He went out for a long stroll on the board-walk and the family wondered what had become of him. Finally he returned, telling them he had been up for hours and had nothing to eat. "I do not think much of this place," he said. "Nothing to do but walk up and down and see no person you know. I'm going home." His greatest interest was in the nine-mile board-walk with its forty and fifty feet of width. Mr. Booth made a mental calculation of how much lumber it would take to build the famous plank promenade, and reckoned that a few day's output of his saw mill would do the trick.

PAPER'S REMARKABLE USE

Made Capable of Competing with Wood and Iron

A Canadian writes: "Both pulp and paper can now be formed into solid substances capable of competing with wood or iron in point of durability and elasticity, and for some years past, treated by special methods, they have been converted into such articles as paper bottles, unbreakable writing tablets, figures, ornaments, furniture, etc. Waterproof coverings for walls and ceilings, parchment slates, flanges and manhole rings, paper wheels, roofing and boats, paper barrels, gas pipes, boxes and horseshoes are also no longer novelties. Probably one of the most valuable by-products of the manufacture of sulphite pulp is that of spirit from the waste lyes, and particularly in Sweden the distillation of alcohol from cellulose bids fair to become an industry of considerable importance. Then it is but a few years since the chairman of the tanning section of the Toronto Board of Trade declared that paper inventions had gradually entered into competition with leather, and that hides had advanced in price to such a degree that the output had dropped 50 per cent. in Canada, a condition of affairs which had compelled the use of such substitutes as fabrics and paper.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: In a recent speech in Parliament Capt. Burnham made the statement that God is not a prohibitionist. Did he use the term in its generally accepted sense or did he intend to give the impression that the so-called personal liberty of man is not restricted by the Divine code?

The moral law can be epitomized as follows:

Thou shall not have any other God before Me.

Thou shall not bow down to graven images.

Thou shall not take the name of God in vain.

Thou shall not labor on the Sabbath day.

Thou shall not kill.

Thou shall not commit adultery.

Thou shall not steal.

Thou shall not bear false witness.

Thou shall not covet thy neighbor's goods.

All of which sounds like prohibition. In another part of the Bible, too, we read something that sounds like forbidding the giving of drink to another.

In spite of Mr. Burnham's conclusion, I have no hesitation in declaring myself a PROHIBITIONIST.

Editor Review: Permit me to correct an error in the statistical report of the individual schools of the city in last evening's paper. South Central School had an average attendance of 95 per cent., not 85, as stated in your report. There has been considerable effort put forth to bring this attendance up to the highest in the city, and as a result this correction is due to the teaching staff.

INDIANS WERE FIRST

Maple Sugar First Made by the Indians

The Indians were the first makers of maple sugar. Indeed, before the white man came, bringing the sugar-cane and the honey-bee, this was the richest sweet the red man knew. It came, too, when the poor Indian had just gone through his hungry time, the scanty fare, or perhaps the starvation of the cold and cruel winter. The Iroquois used to hold a public festival every spring to celebrate the tapping of the maples. "It consists," says a government report, written thirty years ago, "of a war dance which will, it is hoped, bring on warmer weather and cause the sap to flow. At the close of the sugar season, follows the maple-sugar festival, the soups of which are all seasoned with the new-made delicacy. This festival, in which a number of dances are introduced, lasts but one day."—Canadian Forestry Journal.

JAPAN'S RESOURCES

1,250,000 Acres Given to Cultivation of Mulberries

Japan has a forest area of nearly 50,000,000 acres, her corn crops cover 15,000,000 acres, her green crops 5,000,000 acres, while 1,250,000 acres are devoted to the cultivation of the mulberry tree. Copper, coal and petroleum are the chief minerals in course of exploitation. Her chief imports are flour, raw cotton, machinery, railway rolling-stock, rice and oil-cake, while her principal exports consist of silk, cotton, copper, matches, straw-plait, sugar, coal, porcelain, bronze and lacquer ware.

Some Peculiar Wills

Among many curious wills may be reckoned that of the great Shakespeare, who bequeathed to his wife his second-best bed with the furniture, and that alone; whilst an old Provost of Eton left a sum of money sufficient to give every boy at Eton a half-sheep on February 27th of every year. Now-a-days, however, a threepenny-bit takes the place of the half-sheep.

Is there any reason why the farm home should not have a furnace, why the sleeping rooms should not be comfortable or why any part of the farm home should not be warm enough to sit in?

New French Balloon.

Among the latest triumphs of the French aerial service is a new observation balloon known as Le Caquot. At the beginning of the war observers other than those in aeroplanes utilised kite balloons of the German Drachen type, called by the French soldiers "sausages." There are still some of these in use at the front, but Le Caquot is much preferred.

In shape it resembles a great tadpole. Whereas the Drachen is inconvenienced by a wind of from 50 to 55 feet a second, Le Caquot can remain in the air unless the wind exceeds 65 to 75 feet a second.

It takes fifty experienced men to manoeuvre it, for as soon as it leaves the shed great attention must be paid to the wind currents so as to save the envelop from being torn. Attached to the balloon is a wicker car, in which the observer is installed with his maps, charts, arms, barometers, and telephone, the latter fixed over his ears so as to leave his hands free. He is also provided with glasses and a white silk parachute for an emergency.

When the balloon attains an altitude of from 2,000 feet to 3,000 feet the windlass to which the cable is fixed is drawn by horses or motor car at a moderate pace to a point near the enemy lines, where a refuge excavated in the soil has been prepared. This accomplished, the observer transmits his instructions by telephone. Two anti-aircraft posts are established nearby to keep off the German airplanes. If the balloon is menaced the crew bring it down from 3,000 feet in seven to ten minutes.

Observers frequently pass from fifteen to eighteen hours in the restricted space of the balloon cars, communicating with the batteries by telephone, but even strong men are unable to pass more than three days at a time at this exhausting occupation, constantly exposed to the Crippled Frenchmen Farm.

French officials have paid considerable attention in the past few months to giving maimed soldiers practical lessons in farming and the handling of farm machinery by opening schools for agricultural instruction in addition to those for teaching other trades and crafts. In this connection it should be borne in mind that the innumerable small agricultural holdings in France have always been, for the most part, worked by hand labor, and that of late the Ministry of Agriculture has endeavored to induce farmers to investigate the merits of "mechanical culture," as it is termed in that country.

There has been opened at Cellard, near St. Jodard (Loire), an institution which is part of the general school for mutilated at St. Etienne and which has a very complete equipment of necessary modern farm machinery for the cultivation and harvesting of crops, including a tractor for plowing and other purposes. The instruction is most practical, and under the direction of a competent agriculturist, assisted by an expert mechanic versed in farm machinery to teach the building, assembling and repairing of the different implements employed. The conditions and regulations of the schools are the same as at other establishments teaching various means of self-support. Returned soldiers seeking new occupations suited to their physical limitations are encouraged to take up this special farm work.

Heat Radiation.

The heat radiation of an air-cooled motor has been greatly increased by the simple expedient of attaching to the existing iron fins a number of aluminum fins. Apart from increasing the radiating surface, the aluminum is a much more efficient radiating medium than is the iron.

Bagdad Railway a Trouble Maker

THE Bagdad Railway, which has sprung, once again, so prominently into the world's notice, has perhaps provoked more discussion, and figured more conspicuously in international diplomacy, than any other project of similar magnitude in recent times. Since 1899, when Germany secured from the Sublime Porte the necessary preliminary concessions for the construction of the line, there have been very few international agreements which it has not, in some way, touched. France, Germany, Russia, Turkey, and the United Kingdom, to mention only the more important countries concerned, have all made use of it in adjusting international bargains. One point, indeed, sure of notice in every diplomatic move was its effect upon the Bagdad Railway.

The very inception of the project was attended by a veritable storm of diplomatic protest. The British and German ambassadors at Constantinople had long been measuring swords, and, though the British Ambassador was both astute and able, Germany's great diplomatist, Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, was more able and more astute. Germany had already constructed a railway from Skutari, which lies on the opposite shore of the Bosphorus to Constantinople, through Brusa, the ancient Ottoman capital, to Konia, near the foot of the Taurus mountains. It was known as the Anatolian railway, and the dream of the German Government was to extend this line to Bagdad, and so on to the Persian Gulf. Baron Marschall von Bieberstein did his work well. It was impossible, of course, to keep such a gigantic project secret; but it was not until after the German Ambassador had the concession from Turkey in his pocket, that the other powers woke to a recognition of what had been accomplished. Then the storm broke. France, Russia, and the United Kingdom, all maintaining that the completion of the line was calculated to threaten and damage their strategic and commercial interests, entered vigorous protest against the concession. It was a long-drawn-out wrangle. Month after month the Bagdad railway appeared in the news as a kind of refrain, but the German constructors, nothing wavering, went on laying mile to mile on the great line until, in 1904, the first section of the railway, that from Konia to Bulgurlu, a distance of 125 miles, was completed and opened for traffic.

Now, at Bulgurlu, the railway builders were confronted with the vast bulk of the Taurus Mountains, which at this point tower some 8,000 feet above the surrounding country. The line wound its way into the heart of the great range, climbing up through the valley of the Tschakyd Yschal; but, at last, it came to the point where the inevitable tunnel was necessary in order to carry it to the other side, and here the work of construction was broken for the next twelve years. At the other side of the Taurus, however, the laying of the line was taken up and pushed on with vigor. The narrow thread of steel wound its way out of the mountains again, on to the plain of Adana, and, coming within hail of the Mediterranean near the Gulf of Alexandretta, pushed on to Aleppo. From Aleppo it struck northeast over the desert, across the Euphrates, and so on, though Jerablus, to Ras-el-Ain.

All this, however, was the work of more than ten years. It was accompanied all the time by a long series of negotiations in Europe, any one of which constituted a great question. By the Potsdam agreement of 1910, Russia gave her formal consent to the undertaking; whilst, by an agreement come to with the United Kingdom, in the following year, Germany consented to surrender her rights to construct the line beyond Bagdad. Two years later this last agreement was revised in favor of Germany. The railway was to be completed by an Ottoman company, with the participation of the British and German Governments, and the British special interests at the head of the Persian Gulf were to be safeguarded by the United Kingdom assuming a protectorate over Koweit, under the suzertainty of Turkey. Meanwhile German engineers had been working on the line from the Bagdad end, and, when last heard of, they had carried it at any rate as far as Tekrit, some 100 miles northwest of the ancient city of the Kalifs on the banks of the Tigris. As far as can be known at present, therefore, there remains the great gap, some 400 miles across, between Tekrit and Ras-el-Ain still to be bridged.

The Dread of Earthquakes.

The city of Mendoza, in Argentina, has not erected since 1861 a structure above one storey in height. In that year the greatest disaster which ever befell the place, an earthquake, demolished the town, and the inhabitants have been haunted ever since by the fear of the recurrence of such a holocaust. The ruins of the great cathedral, whose walls crashed down upon the crowd of supplicants who had gathered within for protection, still stand as a warning.

Illiteracy in Spain.

In many villages and small towns in the interior of Spain no one knows how to read or write. There are in Spain thirty thousand rural villages without schools of any kind, and many thousands which can only be reached by a bridle path, there being no high roads or railway communication of any kind. Attendance at school is voluntary, not obligatory. Seventy-six per cent. of the children in Spain are illiterate.

A TERRIBLE BIRD.

Roamed Earth Before Man Came, and Ate Little Horses.

They have found at last that mighty bird which ate the little horses—the diatryma, which roamed the wilds long ago and killed and tore its prey to pieces with its ponderous jaws.

One of the scientific scouts of the American Museum of Natural History found an almost complete skeleton of the big biped in the Big Horn Basin in Wyoming. The parts are now being assembled with the greatest care in the laboratories of the museum. The breastbone, part of a leg, and a few vertebrae of the creature are missing, but science is abundantly able to mount the skeleton.

The late Professor Edward D. Cope in 1874 found part of the foot of a giant bird in New Mexico. He surmised that the creature was larger than the ostrich, but even so brilliant an interpreter of fossils as he did not sense the actual proportions of the bird and the wonderful strength of the jaw.

The bird belongs to the Eocene period and lived between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 years ago. According to the traditions of science, man was then a shivering little lemur who had not yet reached the monkey stage. Those were the days of enormous reptiles. The horse was then about the size of a fox terrier.

The evolution of the horse has been traced in the Western Hemisphere, although none of the equine race could be found when Columbus came here. It is supposed that, owing to various causes, among which is said to have been the activities of a pernicious fly, the horse had become extinct.

The small eohippus, which was struggling to evolve when this monster land bird was alive, had a hard time of it. The diatryma had no teeth, but it had a beak calculated to cut through sheet steel. It had a head larger than that of any bird known. It was twenty inches in length. The jaws were like ponderous shears. There have been birds taller than the diatryma, but their heads were small and their necks slim and long. The neck of the diatryma was thick and short, like that of the dodo, familiar to all who know their Alice in Wonderland."

The diatryma was seven feet in height. The extinct moa of New Zealand was fifteen feet tall, measured along its tapering neck. The modern ostrich often attains the height of seven feet and more, but its neck also is long and its head small. The diatryma was more like that extinct South American bird, the phororhachos, which was probably taller, but not so powerful.

All these big birds had small wings. The diatryma has only rudimentary flappers, yet its legs were so powerful that it could cover enormous distances. Its toes were big enough to enable it to get a firm grip on the earth. When the little eohippus started to run the great bird easily overtook it.

From the point of view of science the discovery of this bird skeleton is of great importance, because it may clear many mysteries in that chain of evolution which connects the birds of the air with those without the power of flight. These feathered giants at one time are supposed to have volplaned with ease. They took to the food which was so easily to be had by just walking on the earth's crust. In course of centuries they got heavier and heavier, and finally they could not get even a flying start into the ether. After that their wings degenerated. The great birds foregathered with the beasts and some, like the diatryma, took to ingathering them. This remarkable specimen may have much to do with solving a riddle of the ages.

IN MEMORIAM

He went on to the battlefields,
He fought the deadly foe;
Our brave Canadian soldier
Was not afraid to go.
He left his home and country,
His friends and all those nigh;
He gave his life for freedom,
He was not afraid to die.
He left a dear, kind mother,
Who gave all of her sons,
Four sisters and a brother,
To fight with other sons.
He left a home in a sweet vale
To go to bloody battle,
To where shot and shell do fall like hail,
And "coal boxes" do rattle.
And when the news came in by phone,
It quickly spread around,
And there was none but felt alone,
And gave a mournful sound.
He was a brave young soldier,
At the age of twentythree,
And gave his life for country,
For honor, you and me.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled,
He died out in the trenches,
'Twas thus Our Saviour willed

He left his home and country
To battle for the right;
Our brave Canadian soldier
Was not afraid to fight.
In Heaven we hope to meet him,
Where no battle will be fought,
And our brave Canadian hero
Will be found among the lot.

Dear Hugh, we all do miss you,
From our firesides and our homes,
But home some day to meet you
In a brighter land of domes.

He was budded on the earth
To bloom up in the sky;
Our brave Canadian hero
Was not afraid to die.

Praised by Roosevelt.

No nation ever yet achieved greatness through ease and absence of effort; and although material prosperity is an absolutely essential foundation, the lack of which renders hopeless any attempt to raise a worthy superstructure, yet by itself, and to the exclusion of all else, material prosperity, no matter how abounding, means at the very utmost a kind of bastard greatness, more contemptible than any other kind. The flag that commands the respect of other nations and inspires among its own followers the high passion of loyalty must float over a land where there is well-distributed material well-being, but, what is even more important, where there have also been developed the stern and lofty virtues of resolute and adventurous valor, of trained prowess, of readiness for self-sacrifice, of power to render service, and of determined and unshakeable patriotism.

These are the virtues which during the last two years and a half Canada has pre-eminently shown. She has passed through one of those times which try men's souls, and which sift out the strong and the worthy from the weak and unworthy. She has proved her possession of those qualities that mark the people of masterful ability, able to shape their own destinies and to hold their own in the rough world of actual life. Her sister commonwealths of the British empire overseas—Australia, South Africa, New Zealand—have shown a like farsightedness and proud capacity for service for the common good, and have borne themselves with similar heroism. The action of the Boers in South Africa has been a most striking tribute to the far-sighted wisdom and justice of the Imperial Government. But Canada is our neighbor on the north, and we are more familiar with what she has done; and as the conditions of her social, industrial, and political life substantially resemble our own, her example is of peculiar value to us.—Theodore Roosevelt in The Metropolitan.

Forest Wealth Will Be Much Better Protected Under New Legislation

THE promised bill for the protection of Ontario's forest wealth from fire was introduced into the Legislature by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and has been adopted in principle. The occasion did not pass, however, without some remarks by captious Liberals, who never lose an opportunity to howl about "patronage." But this time they howled too long, for it gave the Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines an opportunity of stating to the House just what has actually taken place in Ontario under the administration of the present Government.

Speaking of the inside service, Mr. Ferguson said that there were fifty-six employees in his department, thirty of whom were appointees of the late Government. Since the present Government had assumed office he said that only two employees had been removed, and that for "good and sufficient reasons." With regard to the fire ranging and woods service, he declared, that not in one instance had he ever inquired the political feelings of an applicant, but rather his height, weight, and physical fitness for the work, and what experience he had had. Similarly the superintendent in each district in Northern Ontario had all been retained in their positions, except one who had since died.

In explaining the provisions of the legislation, Mr. Ferguson said that a Provincial Forester, Mr. G. A. Zavitz, would have charge of the bureau, and he, by the way, is a son-in-law of the late Minister of Agriculture, Hon. John Dryden, who would have power to control the burning of slash, etc., by settlers and woodsmen, and also to step in and clear slash and debris that constituted a fire menace around settlements. The right would also be given municipalities to clear danger spots near their borders, and would co-operate with the lumber companies, so that the great natural heritage in the north would not be further dissipated by fire.

Step by step Ontario is advancing in social legislation. Two years ago the Workmen's Compensation Act was passed, which has since become the model for all countries adopting this proper and wise scheme for the protection of human life and energy. The eight-hour day has been given to miners; factory and shop legislation has been greatly improved, and a fortnight ago the Prime Minister announced the extension of the franchise to women. More recently the Minister of Education introduced a measure to provide pensions for school teachers, and immediately upon the introduction of that bill a deputation from the educational profession from all over the Province met the Cabinet and applauded the action of the Government.

The Bill provides for a contribution by the teachers of 2½ per cent. of their salaries, and a similar amount will be provided by the Government. The scale of pensions will range from $350 per year to $1,000. Provision is made for retirement after twenty, thirty, and forty years of service, and, in the cases of sickness and disability after fifteen years. It is also arranged for those who leave the service after contributing to the fund for six years that they may withdraw all they have paid in. This is to meet the cases of those, mostly young women, who leave teaching to get married. It is expected that the amount immediately available for the fund will be $475,000, and will meet many cases of teachers who for years have been anxious to retire into private life. To guard against the experience of other pension schemes, that have collapsed after a few years, this scheme has been considered by an expert actuary, and the bill requires the fund to be revised by an actuary every three years, so that all concerned may be advised as to its stability.

From all sides the Government was complimented upon this legislation, and it was agreed that there was no diminution in the steady line of progress that the present Government was making, following the lines laid down by Sir James Whitney.

Bringing into concrete form the promise that the Government would institute a system of provincial highways, extending from the southwestern corner of the Province to the Quebec boundary, Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works and Highways, brought down legislation authorising this to be done. The bill gives power to the Cabinet to lay out such a system of highways under proclamation, after filing plans of the roads to be taken over in the local registry offices. For the portion of these roads running through local municipalities, the Province will pay 70 per cent. of the cost, and the local municipalities 30 per cent. In cases where the road traverses a suburban area, defined under the Highway Improvement Act, the Province will pay 40 per cent., the cities (that is the municipality defining the suburban area) 30 per cent. and the local municipalities 30 per cent. Where it is necessary to allot the cost in this ratio a clause in the bill provides for a general reference to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, where all parties interested may be heard and an equitable adjustment made.

Slight Misunderstanding.

He was in the hotel business, and when the English tourist came up to the desk he made the biggest blunder of his life.

"It 'as been some hours since I breakfasted," said the Londoner.

"Yes, sir?" responded the clerk, interrogatively.

"And now I would like to go to tiffin."

"Yes, sir; train leaves at 5:55."

"Train leaves at 5:55. Er—who said anything about trains, my dear fellow?"

"Why, didn't you say you wanted to go to Tiffin?"

"Y-yes, but"—

"Well, Tiffin is in the state of Ohio, and next train leaves at 5:55. Are you on?"

And what the Londoner said about the blarsted Yankees was sufficient.—Chicago News.

The Revolution in Russia

AFTER an absence of a little more than three months, Mr. George Bury has just returned from Russia, which country he visited at the request of the British and Russian Governments in connection with transportation.

Mr. Bury was accompanied throughout his trip by Mr. W. H. Winterrowd, Assistant Chief Mechanical Engineer of the Canadian Pacific. Mr. Bury and Mr. Winterrowd travelled from London to the north of Scotland, from where they were carried to Norway by a British destroyer. They proceeded through Norway, Sweden and Finland to Russia.

Mr. Bury states that his experience gained by close personal contact and association with Lord Shaughnessy enabled him to make recommendations which were accepted by the old Russian Government as well as by the new, who are now putting them into force with great vigor.

"Russia," he says, "is, of course, an immense country. It has a population of 176 million people. The last time they took the census the papers had to be printed in seventy-two languages, or dialects.

"In Russia I travelled from a point where I saw reindeer caravans to a point where I saw caravans of camels—that is, from Lapland to the Caucasus.

"There is no doubt whatever that after the war Russia will have to build several hundred thousand miles of railway. Canada has ten times more railway mileage per unit of population than has Russia. Then again, Russia made the mistake of patterning her railway transportation after that of Europe rather than America. Traffic in Russia moves vast distances in great bulk. The country lends itself to low grades and easy curvature,—if that great country is to achieve the destiny in store for her she will have to come to the large train and large car, because those two factors make for economical transportation, and economical transportation is essential if a producing country of wide distances is to hold her own in the markets of the world.

"Had Russia been equipped with railway transportation, say as in Canada, she would have been able to have played a much greater part in the war.

"The impression gained during my two months stay in Russia is that they are a brave, self-sacrificing, kind, and capable nation. The educated classes are remarkably well informed and I came in contact with some of the really big men of the world.

"I happened to be in Petrograd during the revolution and saw perhaps as much of it as anyone. The casualties in Petrograd were heavy as were they in the navy amongst the officers. Foreigners were not molested deliberately and any killed was due to accident.

GEORGE BURY,
Who has just returned from Petrograd.

"When the revolution was at its height, in company with a British officer, I went to the Duma. It was rather a long walk from the British Embassy, so we asked some soldiers to take us on a sleigh filled with revolutionists. They did so. Arriving at the Duma we had to make our way through a dense mob of soldiers, sailors, workmen, etc. Recognizing the British uniform cheers went up for the Angliski (English). It would make the heart of the least emotional man beat faster to think he belonged to an Empire that would be cheered under such circumstances.

"In England, Scandinavia and Russia, everywhere I travelled, food restrictions of varying degrees were in force and rail travelling curtailed. War or no war, it was time that a halt was called to the food wastefulness that had been going on.

"No one who has had the slightest opportunity of learning all that Great Britain has done in this war for humanity can help being proud of the Mother Country. With the proverbial modesty of the Englishmen but little has been said of the big things that have been done and much has been said of the mistakes, mistakes inseparable from any undertaking and but to be expected in an undertaking that dwarfs anything in history, authentic or mythical.

"Everywhere we travelled in Great Britain evidences of sacrifice, willingly made, were visible.

"Our past mode of living is at an end for some time and we will have to come down to a more simple form and economical conditions will compel the elimination of waste.

"The trade possibilities with Russia after the war are illimitable and those nations who will study the needs and the Russian character will succeed. Up until the time of the war it would appear that the Hun appreciated the possibilities of Russia and the trade statistics of that country show what our enemies accomplished.

"One has to travel around the world to see how well off we Canadians are.

"The Canadian soldiers covered themselves with glory in the recent advance. They took a strong position which had been tried twice before by other troops, and their deeds were in the mouths of everyone in London."

OBITUARY

ARTHUR SHAW BORLAND

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Borland sympathize with them in the death of their youngest child, Arthur Shaw Borland.

Arthur was born Nov. 25th, 1902, and died at Keene, Saturday morning, April 21st.

For some time he had not been progresing physically as rapidly as he should, and at the doctor's suggestion he was operated upon for adnoids, but plood poisoning resulted, and five days later he pased away.

His death was a painful surprise to the whole community, for though young, yet he had already endeared himself to the hearts of many.

We cannot think and we cannot say
That he is dead, he is only away;
With a cheery smile and a wave of hand,
He has gone away to that unknown land;
And left us dreaming how wondrous fair,
It needs must be, since he lingers there;
So we will not think and we will not say,
That he is dead—he is only away.

MAY DAY IN RUSSIA

Over Million Persons Take Part in Parade

PETROGRAD, May 3.—The Russian capital inaugurated its first great May Day fete without fear of opposition from the reactionary quarter. The weather was beautiful, and numberless processions passed along the streets throughout the day.

Everything passed off in perfect order, although a million persons participated in the parades. The Government had proclaimed the day a general holiday, and all the Government offices, and even the restaurants of the city were closed.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets have kept him Fit through Two Wars.

Sapper A. Hartley of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 906 Trafalgar St., London, Ont., is one of many who hav written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of five cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10 M'Caul Street, Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents, six tubes for the price of five. ALL DEPENDS ON UNITED STATES

MUST UNITE WITH BRITAIN TO SUPPRESS SUB. MENACE.

WASHINGTON, May 3. — Lord Eustace Percy, who is the chief authority on trade, with the British mission, told newspaper men that the Germans were sinking ships faster than the allies could build them, and that the submarine menace is above all else the chief menace which they have to face. "The British yards alone," he said, "cannot possibly meet the present rate at which our ships are being sunk by German submarines. Britain and the United States will have to combine in the task, and both will have to speed up their progress. It is a race between the combined producing ability of the two countries against the submarine ravages.

FREE WHEAT NOT RECIPROCITY

SIR THOMAS WHITE DEFENDS ACTION OF GOVERNMENT.

OTTAWA, May 3.—Sir Thomas White made a notable speech in the House of Commons in defence of the government's action in placing wheat, flour and semolina on the free list. He said there was no ground whatever for the assertion that free trade in wheat between Canada and the United States was not in accord with the national policy and the principles of the Conservative party. He read from the speech of Sir Leonard Tilly in presenting the national policy budget of 1879 to show that the Conservative party had always been willing to admit American wheat free of duty provided the United States admitted Canadian wheat duty free. There was no resemblance whatever, he said, between free wheat and the Taft-Laurier reciprocity pact of 1911.

THE Y.P.A.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Society of the Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School room on Wednesday evening. The meeting was well attended, there being a number of visitors from the congregation. During the evening a programme consisting of solos and readings was enjoyed after which Rev. Mr. Robinson was asked to come forward and was presented with a well-filled purse by Master Jack Redpath, while Miss Myrtle Kidd read the following address:—

"Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson,

While we, the members of the Young People's Society and friends are assembled here this evening, we take his opportunity to express to you and Mrs. Robinson the deep regret we feel that you are soon to take your departure from amongst us. Though your stay has been a short one, we have come to appreciate and value very highly your helpful counsel and words of encouragement, and whatever measure of success has attended the efforts of the young people in this society we owe much to you and your cheerful wife. We know well your ability and worth as a preacher of the Bible, and under your watchful care and attention to your various duties we have been cheered in our work and spiritually benefitted thereby.

"We all join in wishing you and Mrs. Robinson and family abundant success in your new sphere of labor and we trust that these bonds of affection which have sprung up amongst us during your short stay here may be a source of pleasant remembrance to us and you, and that our mutual sympathies may be extended towards and reach each other even to the far distant west.

"Please accept this gift as a small token of good will towards you and yours, and we assure you that it is our hearts desire that you should be long spared to carry on the work of the Master.

"Signed on behalf of the Young People's Society and friends,

MYRTLE KIDD
EDNA BRADEN
GEORGE WALTON
VERNA BURGESS

Mr. Robinson expressed his pleasure at being the recipient of such a handsome remembrance, and thanked the young people and their friends in a very pleasing manner. The remaining part of the evening was spent in games and refreshments.

Smith Will Act on Dog Question Bylaw is Ready

FOR PASSING AT COUNCIL MEETING ON SATURDAY.

In response to a letter received from City Clerk Armstrong requesting that the Township of Smith cooperate with the city in trying to prevent an outbreak of rabies, Reeve McKee called a special meeting of the board of health at the clerk's office, Bridgenorth, Monday evening. It was pointed out that there were a number of cases in the city of dogs affected, and that there was danger of it spreading to the adjoining districts. For the prevention of the same and for the protection of the people, the clerk was instructed to confer with the township's solicitor and to have a bylaw prepared for the prevention of dogs running at large. It was also decided to call a meeting of the council for Saturday next at 10 a.m. for the passing of the bylaw.

Russian Women Will Get Vote

THE first official act of the Minister of Justice in the Provisional Government at Petrograd was an order for the recall from Siberia of the aged Catharine Breshkovsky, the "Little Grandmother of the Revolution." In that act the culmination of a people's war for freedom during half a century found it appropriate symbol. To how many of those who have read that the Constituent Assembly, which will lay the foundations of democratic government in Russia, is to be chosen by universal suffrage, has it occurred that by universal suffrage the men now in charge at Petrograd really mean universal? The women of Russia are to have their share in the upbuilding and operation of Slav democracy. Every liberal mind in Russia takes that as a matter of course. It is not a question of sentiment or abstract justice. It is the recognition of an accomplished fact. In no other country has the comradeship of men and women taken such firm root. Partly the reason lies in the national temperament. More directly it arises from the history of the nation's efforts for freedom.

It has been so from the beginning. When the revolutionary movement was as yet a missionary movement in the period immediately following upon the emancipation of the serfs in 1861, women and men alike went out from the universities, the technical and professional schools, and from prosperous homes, in the guise of school-teachers, doctors, midwives, house servants, and factory hands, to bring the doctrines of social and political freedom to the people.

Among the first outstanding figures in the history of militant Russian protest is Vera Zasulitch, the daughter of a family of the nobility, who in 1878 shot and wounded Gen. Trepoff, Prefect of St. Petersburg. So strong was the current of libesal thought at that time among all sections of society that Vera Zasulitch was acquitted by a jury. Within the next two years there were attempts, successful and unsuccessful, on the lives of high officials in the capital and in the provinces. No less than three attempts were made on the life of Alexander II. before the successful coup in March, 1881, under the leadership of Sophia Perovsky. She was the daughter of a former Governor-General of St. Petersburg; but, in accordance with the common practice of the time, had devoted herself to the social welfare through the humdrum profession of school-teaching before she graduated into terrorism. She was the first woman revolutionist to undergo the death penalty. Associated with her was Jessie Helfman, a young woman of Jewish parentage, whose house was headquarters for the plotters against the life of the Czar. Condemned to death, she was reprieved because she was about to become a mother, and died in the prison hospital soon after the birth of her child.

Death in prison or exile at an early age has been the fate of a long succession of women fighters from Sophia Perovsky to the victims of the revolution of ten years ago. Only to few has it been given to live to see the victory of the cause for which they offered life and freedom so cheerfully. Among these is Vera Figner, who was condemned to death in 1884, had her sentence commuted to life imprisonment, and spent twenty years in the Schlusselburg bastille. She was released after the revolutionary outbreak in 1905 and now lives, broken in health, outside of Russia. Most fortunate of all has been "Babushka" Breshkovsky, in whom long years of imprisonment, of exile, and defeated hopes, have not shattered that indomitable, buoyant spirit which her American friends know so well. "Passionate and prophetic Breshkovskaia," so Stepniak calls her in his memoirs of the Russian revolution written thirty-five years ago. In that time there has been no change in the spirit of Russian women. Young girls went into the sailors' resorts at Cronstadt in 1906 when it was a question of winning over the garrison of that great naval port to the revolution. Somewhere in a Russian prison up till the events of a fortnight ago there was still living Marie Spiridonova, who in 1906 assassinated the Lieutenant-Governor of the province of Tambov. People will recall the horror with which the outside world read of the indescribable iniquities to which this girl was subjected before sentence was passed on her.

Marie Spiridonova's address to her judges is a commonplace in the record of Russia's revolutionary history, commonplace and typical, that is, for Russia. Elsewhere we are accustomed to read of men uttering their faith and justification in the face of death. It is a document which illuminates the history of fifty years:

"Gentlemen Judges: Look around you! Where do you see the bright faces of the happy and contented? There are no such faces. Even those who seem now to have the upper hand are afflicted by grief; they know their hour of triumph is short.

"I am about to be sent from this life. You may kill me—you may kill me over and over again as you have already done. You may subject me to the most terrible penalties, but you can add nothing to what I have already endured. I do not fear death. You may now kill my body, but you cannot destroy my belief that the time of the people's happiness and freedom is surely coming, a time when the life of the people will express itself in forms in which truth and justice will be realised, when the ideas of brotherhood and freedom will be not mere empty sounds, but part of our every day, real life. If this is truth, it is no grief to lay down one's life.

"I have finished."

TWENTY FIVE YEARS, ON THE JOB

R PRESTON
C E McPHERSON
F W RUSSELL
J L DOUPE

C. E. McPHERSON, assistant passenger traffic manager, Western Lines of the C. P. R., was born at Chatham, Ontario, June 7, 1862, and was also educated there. He entered the service of the Grand Trunk at Toronto in 1876. He was with the company at various places until 1881, when he entered the service of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway as general agent for Canada. He joined the Canadian Pacific Railway, September 1, 1886, as general travelling agent, with an office at Montreal, and the following year he was appointed district passenger agent at Boston, in charge of the New England States and Maritime provinces. Since 1914 he has been assistant superintendent of motive power, Winnipeg.

Style's Freakishness.

"I want to be dressed in the height of fashion," said Mr. Suddenroll.

"I'll see to it that your clothes fit you perfectly," replied the tailor.

"But that's what I'm in doubt about. Is it fashionable just now to have your clothes fit?"—Town Topics.

Not Consistent.

"What was I saying when I dodged that automobile?"

"You were saying that life is not worth living. But if you think so why did you dodge?"—Pittsburg Post.

ARE YOU GOING WEST THIS SPRING?

If so, bear in mind that the Canadian Pacific offers especially good train service, with the finest possible equipment, including Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars and Dining Cars to Winnipeg and Vancouver.

If a trip is contemplated, apply to any C.P.R. agent for full particulars, or write W. B. Howard, District Passenger Agent, Toronto, Ont.

Pitcairn Island a Romantic Spot

THANKS to the kindly impulses of Colonel George Moran, manager of the Australasia Steamship Company, and of Captain George A. Cockell, commander of the steamship Australplain, of that line, Bounty Bay, Pitcairn Island, is to receive, on a voyage now about to be undertaken, its first regular mail delivery from this continent. More than that, the vessel named is taking on a cargo of clothing, tools, utensils, instruments, and general merchandise for the comfort and advancement of perhaps the most isolated insular population on the face of the globe. Many things will be embraced in the cargo with which the islanders are wholly unacquainted, but nothing will be discharged that is likely to injure them morally. It may serve to shed some light on the simple life of the descendants of John Adams to say that among the merchandise is a stock of candles, and that these articles are expected to revolutionize the lighting system of Pitcairn, which is based on homemade wick placed in shells filled with cocoanut oil.

The history of Pitcairn Island is at once a tale of bold adventure, mutiny, tragedy, comedy, and social experiment, all rolled into one. No possible human condition has seemed more attractive, to many people endowed with imagination, than that of being cast upon a lone island and forced to make one's way against every possible obstacle. It is the infatuating possibilities of the situation that for centuries have made tales of shipwreck fascinating to millions; that have made the story of Robinson Crusoe a classic; and that enchain to this hour the interest of young people and adults in stories of the sea.

Fiction, however, is an element that is lacking in the story of Pitcairn Island. The facts upon which it may be constructed to-day are, in many ways, stranger than fiction. They need no elaboration, no coloring; unvarnished, they supply, as they have supplied, richly and plentifully, material for the weaving of romance. Briefly epitomized, they tell of a dot of land in the mid-Pacific Ocean, south of the Paumotu Archipelago and one hundred miles from the nearest member of this cluster, discovered by the British Lieutenant Pitcairn and given his name in 1767; of mutiny aboard H.M.S. Bounty in 1790; of the wresting of the vessel from the command of Captain Bligh, a sea tyrant, who with eighteen others was set adrift; of the landing of nine mutineers on the island; of the discovery there of eighteen Tahitians, six being men; of the sinking of the Bounty in the bay that has ever since borne its name, and of the decimation of the inhabitants, through homicide in which mutineers and natives played equal parts, until, in the year 1800, John Adams was the only mutineer and masculine adult surviving.

At this time, besides nine women, there were several children on the island. From these the 160 present inhabitants of Pitcairn, and most of the inhabitants of Norfolk Island, are descended. John Adams was the first man of the muti ganizing ability. In 1856 the population had become too dense for the area of the island, which is about two and one-half miles long by one mile wide, and the British Government made the Pitcairners a gift of Norfolk for the surplus. Norfolk is an island in the South Pacific, about half-way between New Caledonia and New Zealand, with an area of ten square miles. It is under the supervision of the Government of New South Wales. Like so many of the Pacific islands and archipelagoes, it was discovered by Cook. At the time of the removal of a part of the people from Pitcairn, Norfolk Island contained a few natives. Some of the Pitcairn colonists became lonesome and were sent back. Those who remained numbered 149. Their descendants now comprise all the inhabitants, something close to 1,000, excepting members of the Melanesian mission station and school established there.

Civilization, of a primitive and coarse character, has survived all of the difficulties which the Pitcairn colony has encountered. The names of some of the mutineers, notably Christian, Adams, McCoy, Younda, Milds, and Quintalls, have been preserved. The British Government has been attentive to the wants of the people, although vessels have entered Bounty Bay sometimes at long intervals. The islanders have had instruction from missionaries and regular teachers. Christian Fletcher, master's mate of the Bounty, was the dominating figure at first. After landing some of the Bounty party at Tahiti, returning to Pitcairn and sinking the vessel, he and his companions were lost sight of for nineteen years, when the colony was discovered by Captain Folger, commander of a whaling bark, of Plymouth, Mass. The inhabitants were then in a fairly comfortable condition. Strange to say, the present resident missionary, an Australian, is named Adams. He is something of an astronomer, and something of an engineer, and the instruments which the Australplain is taking are intended for him.

The people of Pitcairn Island are said to be industrious, intelligent, and deeply interested in current world news. They are Bible students, and many of them have embraced the Seventh Day Adventist faith. Two men of Pitcairn recently constructed a yacht and sailed her to London, where the King and Queen received them. The first woman to leave the island was Miss Emily McCoy, who is now in the United States, as are quite a number of Pitcairners, most of whom are settled on the Pacific Coast.

Sugar Flour.

While the brainiest men of Europe are working over the war situation, new geniuses are arising in the ranks of the manufacturers, farmers and ordinary workmen to solve the food supply problems. In Northern France a new flour is being made from sugar beets. It is used for bread and for cattle food, as well as for certain brewing processes. The fresh beet pulp is poured into a vat into which currents of warm air are introduced for drying. Then it is passed through a series of gratings which rotate one above another. After this the pulp is delivered into compartments in which the temperature of the air is gradually increased to about 250 degrees Fahrenheit. It is then sufficiently free from moisture to be pulverized and used as flour.

This Is One of the Greatest Opportunities That Will Occur This Season To Buy Hose, All Sizes 29c

We have just received to-day a large shipment of Cashmere Hose that we hardly expected to get. The order was given a long while ago at the old prices. We had just about given them up as unobtainable.

But here they are to-day, thousands of them, in every size. They are made of a very strong, finely ribbed cashmerette yarn, and we pass on the advantage to you. If we were to buy them now the price would be 50c per pair. But while they last you can have all you want for just, per pair 29c

HOW DOES THE GARDEN LOOK?

If it is planted, it will soon be showing up in nice green rows, and you will require good eye sight to hoe the weeds without cutting the vegetable seedlings.

If you have any eye difficulty, let Dr. Fowler examine your eyes, and, if required, he will make the eyesight perfectly normal with a pair of his "PEBLO" Glasses. The improvement will be a revelation to you.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 2. — A pretty house wedding was solemnized on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Hatherly, when their only daughter Violet was united in marriage to Mr. Fred. Burridge of Peterborough. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, in the presence of only the most immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. At the close of the ceremony and the customary congratulations, the bride led the way to the dining-room, where a bountiful repast was provided and much enjoyed. The bridal party then motored to Norwood and boarded the 3:15 C. P. R. train for a short honeymoon trip. The bride's travelling costume was a pretty green tailored suit with hat to match. The gifts were numerous and well chosen, showing the esteem in which the young couple are held in their home town. Mr and Mrs. Burridge will take up residence in Peterborough, and are followed by the best wishes of all.

Mr. Edward Clancy is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon the occasion of his marriage to Miss Mary Ann Fitzgerald of Douro.

Father Bretherton has received the sad news that his nephew, Oswald William Ward, died on Feb. 22 of wounds received in active service.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fleming are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

Mrs. William Gould (nee Lois Huycke) has so far recovered from her recent serious illness as to be able to be moved down stairs. Her friends are hoping for a speedy recovery.

A memorial service in honor of Pte. Max Breckenridge, son of Mr. Matt. Breckenridge, of Westwood, was held in this place on Sunday evening and was well attended.

The citizens are busy preparing their gardens for seeding, using up every available bit of space.

Mrs. McCormick has been a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Hatherly.

Mrs. V. German visited during the week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks, Percy.

MOTORS WILL SOON PUSH FIRE HORSES OFF STAGE

Chairman Dobbin Has a Horse for Sale---Business Transacted by Fire Water and Light Committee.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night, and discussed many matters of vital interest to the city.

The Peterboro Utilities Commission had sent in a bill for water for the streets and other purposes except fire, amounting to $312.50. Some of the members thought that this amount should be reduced owing to the sweeper doing away with the necessity of watering the pavements. It was explained that the commission had made a substantial reduction last year on this account. The bill was sent to the Finance Commitee for payment.

The Chief's Car

The Ford Motor Co. sent in a bill for the chassis for the Fire Chief's car. The amount was $466.00, and the city treasurer was instructed to issue a check for this amount upon the certificate of the chairman.

New Fire Apparatus

The American La France Engine Co. wrote the commitee regarding the plans and specifications for the new motor truck and pumper. They wanted to talk the matter over with the officials. The city clerk will write all the tenderers that the committee will meet on Tuesday night, May 15th, for the purpose of dealing with the matter.

Street Lights

The sub-committee appointed to confer with Mr. Fisk, of the Utilities Commission regarding the street lights and the changing of others brought in a favorable report, and the lights recommended at the last meeting of the committee will all be installed and a few other places that the members found dark on their trip will have light.

The Coal Question

It was decided to ask for tenders for the city's coal supply at once, and quotations will be received up to May 21st. The supply for the fire hall, the Queen Mary Hospital, the city building, and the police station will all be arranged for in the tender.

New Alarm Box

It was decided to place the new fire alarm box somewhere in the neighborhood of Albert and Alfred strees..

Factory Boxes

Several of the local factories want to purchase fire alarm boxes of their own, which will be placed in an accessable part of their factory. They want the city to connect them with the city alarm system. It was decided to accede to this request, and all the local industries that wish to take advantage of this are at liberty to do so.

New Hydrant

The committee will recommend to the council the placing of a hydrant near the Henry Hope Factory.

Will Sell a Horse

Chairman Dobbin was instructed to sell one of the fire horses at the first opportunity that an advantageous sale could be made. The city's fodder bill is very high, and as the runabout for the chief will be here shortly it was thought advisable of get rid of one of the animals now.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart of the United States are on a visit to friends in this vicinity.

The new cheesemaker, Mr. Montgomery, has moved into town and is occupying Mr. Wm. Atkinson's house recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. J. Londerville.

Mr. Frank Graham, who has been across the border for some time, is on a visit to his old home here.

Mr. Geo. Stevenson took a trip to Peterborough on Thursday.

Miss Flossie Carter spent the week-end with Peterborough friends.

Mr. Julian Carter of Havelock was in town on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hart of Havelock spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell of Morganston have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Ernie Tate.

Mrs. Isaac Thomson left during the week for an extended visit with her son, William, in Detroit.

Miss Mildred Howson of Norwood was in town on Friday.

Mr. Lynn Hill of Campbellford spent a few days during the week with his mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Doxsee spent Sunday with the former's parents at Hoard's Station.

Miss Laura Buck of Norwood spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Buck, Norwood road.

Miss Edna Marchand has been visiting friends at Stirling.

Mrs. Harper of Peterborough was a recent visitor at the home of Mrs T. Learmouth.

Mrs. Turner has returned to her home here after an extended visit with friends in Montreal.

Mrs. S. Patterson has been visiting friends in Warkworth.

Mr. Earl Lambert has taken a position as junior clerk in the Bank of Toronto here.

Mr. Solomon Scriver, who has been under treatment for the past month, in Nurse McGuire's private hospital, has so far recovered as to be removed to his home. His many friends are pleased to see him looking so well.

Mrs. Arthur Knight is confined to her bed through a severe attack of la grippe.

Mrs. J. Fallon of Peterborough was in town Saturday.

Miss Morton of Toronto spent Monday with Miss Carrie Doxsee.

Mr. J. Ivey of Campbellford was in town Monday.

HORSE MARKET.

TORONTO, May 2. There was not a great deal of activity in Toronto horse trade circles the past week, on account of the fact that the British Government is commencing its purchasing of remounts this week. Inspections commence at the Union Stock Yards Horse Exchange on Thursday, and will continue daily as long as the supply of horses submitted for inspections warrants the presence of the inspecting officers. The bulk of last week's trade was with Ontario points. Farmers showed themselves to be in need of horses for the spring work. Signs are not lacking that there will be considerable business with Northern Ontario.

Owing to the scarcity of horses, prices averaged about $10 a head higher last week, with sound fresh horses bringing $125 to $190, but the higher prices are hardly expected to be permanent.

The Western buyers who purchased so extensively in Toronto and district have been reported to be experiencing a rather poor call for the horses they took to the prairie provinces. The quality of the stock taken West was the highest that has been known in recent years, and it was expected that in view of the increased acreage aimed at, the demand for horses would be fairly brisk.

Prospects for extensive purchasing by the British inspectors are stated by local horse dealers to be very good. It is expected that farmers will hardly be able to market their horses in large numbers until the rush of spring work is over. Towards the end of this month the movement of horses to the Inspection centres promises to be on a liberal scale.

ABOUT MENDING

Short Cuts to This Bane of the Busy Housewife.

THE WAY TO REPAIR SKIRTS.

Dresses, Blouses and Skirt Buttons All Play Out and Need to Be Made to Look Modish and Fresh For Spring Wear, You Know.

Effective short cuts in dress repairing practiced by mending shops offer variable suggestions to the home seamstress. As the basic principle of the newfangled mending is efficiency or the maximum result for the minimum labor, ingenuity counts more than fine needlework. The efficiency method is not to mend a worn place with hundreds of tiny stitches, but where possible to conceal the blemish by an applied trimming or to remove the defect and inset new material in some manner which shall not indicate its real purpose.

Many of the new trimming details accommodate themselves to the needs of the amateur repairer. In this class the applied pocket stands near the top of the list of first aids to damaged garments.

The patch pocket is easily made and effectively used on separate skirts and blouses as well as on one piece dresses and outer garments. The shape may be varied to meet the needs of the individual case, and the fabric may be the same as the garment and plain, beaded or embroidered, or it may differ both in color and material. For covering an obstinate stain or concealing a torn place the applied pocket, round, square, triangular, large or small, is a boon to the efficiency mender.

For the skirt that has crept up above even the high water mark of fashion the attached band at the lower edge is an effective remedy. If the cut of the skirt admits of it a yoke may be introduced at the top. Where spots or the ravages of time have made the front of a skirt unwearable the professional repairer recommends the insetting of a front breadth of either similar or contrasting material. An ingenious girl successfully remodeled a dress in this way, overcoming what seemed an unsurmountable difficulty by trimming the new front breadth with cross bands of silk. This made it possible to utilize short lengths of the fabric which would have been useless without the bands to cover the seams.

A favorite trick of the professional repairer is to substitute sleeves and under the arm portions of contrasting material, such as taffeta or georgette crepe, where the original material is worn or discolored. On the other hand, where the front of a blouse becomes spotted before the other portions show signs of wear the professional mender is apt to apply lace and appliques to cover the damage.

Yukon's First Recruit.

The first recruit from the Yukon, Lieut. Howard Grestock, has been killed in action according to a private cable received at Ottawa. When word of war reached Dawson City Lieut. Grestock "hit the trail" and journeyed all the way to Ottawa at his own expense to enlist. He joined at Valcartier the Strathcona Horse, with which he had fought in South Africa. Outside of the battle of St. Julien, he has participated in every Canadian fight. He went over as a private and for over a year was with the Strathconas as head of the grenade section. He was given a commission later and transferred to the 73rd Battalion. He was reported missing on February 4 and is now reported killed.

The Pineapple a Blossom.

The pineapple is a solidified blossom, say the horticultural experts, and it is pineapple blossom time from June to October in Hawaii. There 7,000 acres are given over to the cultivation of this fruit. In 1914 Hawaii exported 1,000,000 cases of canned pineapple and 100,000 cases of the juice.

GIVE CHILD A PLACE

How to Make Children Love and Help Home

A mother writes: Anxious mothers are wondering what to do with the children. One just said in my hearing, "I wish I was poor enough to have the Juvenile Improvement Association take my youngsters to the country or rich enough to send them there with capable governess. As I am betwixt and between, I suppose my children will run wild until fall without correction or much attention." It sounded as badly as it reads, but children do run wild, and are the worse for it, as mothers very well know. Youngsters deserve a place in the home; they should understand you are planning constantly for them and for their future, for this gives them a feeling of responsibility. They should have regular tasks to perform; not so many that they cannot do them well without becoming tired and discouraged. And then they should have good tools to work with. Some parents seem to have an idea anything is good enough for the children. This is a mistake. If you want your boys and girls to be conscientious, good workpeople, give them good working tools. See that they are put away in good order and kept neatly. Many a man and woman spend hours looking for their belongings because they were not taught this simple lesson of order when they were children. Mary should have her own little broom and dust cap when she is four years old and Tom's little shovel and wagon, or wheelbarrow, will give him as much joy if he uses it to carry scraps of untidy paper, that blow about the yard, to the waste barrel. Better do with plainer clothing, less fads and frills, and give the children a chance to find that "home, sweet home" is something to enjoy as well as to sing about.

WALLPAPER HINTS

The old fashioned ways of doing things are often the best. Our grandmothers used to clean their dirty wall papers in the easy and economical way described below, and it could not be done better.

First of all, with a pair of bellows, blow off the dust from the paper to be cleaned. Then take a quartern loaf two days old, and cut it up into eight pieces. Now, hold the crust of one of these hunks in your hand, begin at the top of the wall, and wipe lightly downwards with the crumb, making strokes about half a yard long at a time. Do this all round the wall till the upper part is cleaned. Then go round again at a lower level, beginning a few inches above the bottom of the last strokes. Continue like this till the whole of the paper is evenly cleaned. Cut away the dirty part of the bread as often as necessary. Care must be taken not to rub too hard, nor to rub sideways or horizontally.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Silver Cake

¾ cup shortening; 1½ cups sugar; 1 cup milk; 3½ cups flour; 2 teaspoons baking powder; whites of eggs; 1 teaspoon flavoring, either of almond or vanilla. Cream shortening and sugar together until smooth. Add milk very slowly alternately with the flour, which has been sifted twice with the baking powder. Add flavoring and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs.

Pear Butter

Wash the pears and without peeling them boil them until they fall to pieces. Run them through a calander to remove the cores, seeds and skins. Put the pulp into a stone crock with half as much sugar, add spices to suit the taste, and cook mixture slowly until it comes smooth and thick, stirring it carefully to prevent burning. Seal the butter in jars.

Red Catsup

Cook together for a quarter of an hour six red chillies and one peck of red ripe tomatoes. Rub through a sieve; add 2 cupfuls of vinegar, 1 cupful of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of mustard, and 2 tablespoonfuls of salt. Cook together until thick; bottle; seal.

Walnut Pie

Take one cup of milk, one cup of either maple sugar or syrup, bring to a boil and thicken with a little cornstarch. Then cut in pieces about one cup of walnut meat and bake in two crusts.

Surprise Cake

Melt a tablespoon of butter in a cup of flour, a cup of sugar, a teaspoon and a half of baking powder, half a cup of milk and a teaspoon of vanilla. Beat well and bake [illegible]

C.P.R. REVENUES REPORTED AS VERY SATISFACTORY

Lord Shaughnessy, President of the Company Makes Statement to the Shareholders

MONTREAL, QUE., May 3.—At the meeting of shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway, held in the Board Room at Windsor Station, here, Lord Shaughnessy, the president, made the following remarks:—

The reason for the change in the date of the annual mteting recommended by the directors is explained in the report of the company's affairs that I now have the honor to submit for your consideration and approval. The practice of making the fiscal year of railway companies on this continent correspond with the calendar will henceforth be quite universal, and the desirability of being able to compare this company's annual statements and statistics with those of other railway companies similarly situated for like periods, is manifest.

The Revenue statements are very satisfactory. Indeed the earnings are much beter than we had reason to anticipate in October last, but I am afraid that the substantial advance in wages, due in a large measure to the shortage of labour, and the abnormal increase in the price of fuel, and all other articles that we find necessary to purchase, will have an important bearing on the working expenses in future.

Mr. George Bury and Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., were elected vice-presidents, and the following were appointed on the executive committee: Lord Shaughnessy, Mr. R. B. Angus, Mr. George Bury, Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., Sir Herbery Holt, and Sir Edmund B. Osler.

SUB SITUATION NOT HOPELESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON May 3.—Earl Curzon, a member of the War Council, speaking today of the submarine situation said he realized the submarine menace to be formidable, but stated that in its calculations tht Cabinet had made allowances for a wastage of shipping greater than that which had taken place. He did not himself think that in practice it would diminish shipping so greatly as to effect the ultimate issue of tht war. The situation in Russia, he declared, was still regarded with anxiety.

Majority Report

by the Dominion Government, under legislation passed at the last sesion of parliament, and consisted of Sir Henry Dayton, chairman of the Dominion Board of Railway Commisioners; William Acworth, ont of the most eminent financial experts of the United Kingdom, and A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central Railway System. The report presented to the house is signed by Sir Henry Drayton and Mr. Acworth. Mr. Smith does not join in the report, but files a dissenting opinion.

Password to the Tower

It may not be generally known that the Lord Mayor is the only person—other than the King and the Constable—who knows the password to the Tower of London. This password is sent to the Mansion House quarterly, signed by His Majesty. It is a survival of an old custom.

The first census of the kind ever taken in Denmark, which has about one-third the area of Wisconsin, credited the country with more than 5,400,000 fruit trees.

Iron ore is found in almost every Chinese province, but it is mixed extensively in only a few.

Baked Pears

Fill a baking dish with whole pears. Wipe them but do not remove stems. Pour around them 1 large cup boiling water, add 2 tablespoons sugar and bake slowly, basting frequently. Serve cold, sugar and cream.

Ice Cream and Pineapple

Place a layer of vanilla ice cream in a mould, then shredded pineapple and alternate until the dish is full. Cover carefully and pack in ice and salt. Let stand half an hour.

MOLASSES DROP CAKES

Materials—One cup brown sugar, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup New Orleans molasses, 1 rounded teaspoon baking soda, ¾ cup boiling water, pinch salt, 3 cups flour. Utensils—Mixing bowl, two measuring cups, teaspoon, tablespoon, flour sifter, muffin tins.

Directions—Put the sugar, shortening and molasses into bowl; stir until smooth; add the salt; put baking soda in cup and add the boiling water and add to mixture. Sift the flour, add and stir thoroughly. Brush muffin tins with a little melted lard and put 1 tablespoonful in each; bake twenty minutes in moderate oven. This amount makes twenty-four cakes. You can add 1 teaspoon ground ginger if you like, or ½ cup currants or assorted spices and make spice drop cakes.

Preserved Quinces

Pare the quinces and cut them in quarters, removing cores and seeds. Drop each piece into cold water, as soon as prepared, to keep them from turning black. Put in a preserving kettle with just enough water to cover them and simmer till tender. Take out the quinces and strain the liquor through a cloth. Measure and add an equal amount of sugar. Cook to a thick syrup, then add the quinces, and cook them till clear and pink. Take out carefully, put in jars, boil the syrup five minutes longer and pour over the fruit.

Cheese Sauce

A useful sauce may be made by thickening half a pint of milk with two tablespoonfuls of flour. Bring it to the boil and stir in one ounce of grated cheese with a seasoning of salt and pepper. This sauce may be serviceable in many ways; spread upon toast it makes a dish corresponding to milk toast; with the addition of a seasoning of curry powder, poured over hard-boiled eggs, it makes an appetizing and nourishing dish.

Potato Surprise

Mince the meat and bacon very small and chop up the egg. Have ready six potatoes baked in their skins, cut in half and remove the inside. Mix this up with the meat, two ounces butter, seasoning and a little mushroom ketchup, refill the potato skins, reheat in the oven and serve with a good curry sauce.

Russian Salad

Mix a cup of cold boiled and diced carrots, a cup of peas, a ring of onion, and half a cup of shredded cabbage. Serve on lettuce with a boiled dressing.

Veal a la Parmesan

Cut the cutlets into pieces [illegible] in melted butter, then in [illegible] bread crumbs, mixed with an equal quantity of grated parmesan cheese. Dust with salt and paprika and fry brown.

Try Vegetables on Toast

If you wish to piece out a dish of vegetables, serve it on toast. Any vegetable except potatoes will be improved if served on buttered toast.

CHINA'S WONDERFUL CARRIERS OF NEWS

Spacious Land where Distance is Measured by Days not Miles, Possesses Wonderful Courier Service

Travellers who return from the remote interior of vast countries where telegraphs and railways are practically unknown will tell you of the astonishing swiftness with which news travels, despite the seeming absence of facilities. Away in the wilds of the Tibetan border, or in the Mongolian deserts, hundreds of miles from the nearest telegraph wire, the traveller will perchance hear of some momentous event in the outside world within an incredibly short while of its happening. This rapid transmission of news is the work of natives employed in courier services of higher organization than we have ever dreamed.

China Best Example

China, that spacious land where distance is measured by days, not miles, affords the best example. For, although the means of communication by rail and by telegraph have greatly developed there of late, the bulk of the interior is still virgin to these inventions of the "foreign devil," and China still maintains what has been from time immemorial the most wonderful courier service in the world. It is now mainly controlled by the Chinese Post Office, and the mileage of the courier lines has reached the stupendous figure of 136,000, or about five and a half times the circumference of the globe.

Couriers' Speed is Ninety Miles a Day

By road, river, and track, radiating from the capital of Peking, or other important centres, couriers are speeding without ceasing, night and day, to almost every corner of the 5,000,000 square miles of country which form the Chinese Empire. The couriers are all stalwart men especially chosen for their physique, powers of endurance, and knowledge of routes. They work in relays, eat as they go along, and are supposed not to stop until they have handed the mailbag to the next relay. An average speed of ninety miles a day is often maintained.

MARRYING FOR MONEY

Daughters Might Refuse to Obey Over-Ambitious Mothers

Too many mothers fail to realize that their responsibility in regarding their daughters is far greater than that of their sons because of the fact that girls are, or should be, constantly with their mothers and are, therefore, influenced altogether by them. It is a very sad thought that too many mothers have imbibed mercenary ideas—thinking that daughters must marry for wealth instead of affection. The mother who influences her daughter into thinking that money is more to be desired in a husband than high character, intellectual ability, energy, honesty and ambition makes a very serious mistake.

One cannot actually condemn daughters who would disagree with parents who have such necessary motives in their plans for securing for them husbands, and if they act from pure motives of affection and wilfully disobey their parents; they should not be too severely criticised. The obligation all persons must assume who take each other "for better for worse" and who are to live together "till death doth them part" certainly should entitle them to make the selection that promises to make them happiest. We have instances in this country where mothers were very anxious for daughters to make marriages for imaginary positions and great wealth. Many of these marriages proved most disastrous and these unfortunate girls found too late that they had neither money nor position and that there was nothing before them but a life of unhappiness and discomfort.

Caramel For Coloring

Put into a saucepan a cup of sugar and a quarter of a cup of water. Let them boil until the syrup begins to change color; watch carefully. Tip the saucepan on all sides that it may brown equally. When it is all nearly black, before it chars in the least, add a cup of boiling water. Let it boil until all is dissolved and like very dark syrup. Bottle for use. A teaspoonful or less of this gives a fine color to soup or gravy. It will also color icing for cake, and is always useful.

How to Shrink Cotton

To shrink cotton before making up, fold it and place in a tub; pour over cold water to cover and allow it to stand half an hour; then turn off water and cover with boiling water, allowing goods to remain till water is cold. Hang on the line in the open, without wringing. Press before quite dry.

Stains and Grass Stains

Someone asked a while ago about removing iodine stains. Soak the article in hot soap suds. Use white soap. No matter how old the stain or how nice the fabric, the stains will disappear. To remove grass stains, rub kerosene or alcohol into the cloth before putting into wash.

BUILDING OF COAL

Cost $2,500 and Expected to Last 15 Years

One of the most curious exhibits at an exposition at Knoxville, Tenn., was a building constructed entirely of Tennessee-Kentucky domestic black coal, put together with black cement. The building, which is 25 x 50 feet in size, has two rooms, with an open court or passageway running clear through the centre. The interior, like the exterior, is finished entirely of coal. The building cost $2,500, and was expected to last at least 15 years. At night a large sign, in form like an open grate fire, illuminated this striking exhibit.

$20,000 Paid for Bible

Many books have realised four figures, but the biggest price ever reached was paid by Bernard Quaritch to Lord Ashburnham for the Mazarine Bible, 1450-55, on vellum—$20,000.

CHEAPER BREAD.

How Rye Flour Cuts the Cost of Even One Loaf.

With the price of wheat flour soaring almost daily, the housewife is vitally concerned with any suggestions for lowering the cost of the "staff of life." To answer occasional inquiries for methods of utilizing rye flour Miss Pearl MacDonald, in charge of home economics extension at the Pennsylvania State college, has prepared this recipe:

Two cupfuls of liquid (half water and half milk).

Two tablespoonfuls of fat (lard or butter).

Two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar.

A teaspoonful of salt.

A quarter to a whole yeast cake dissolved in a quarter cupful of lukewarm water.

Three to four cupfuls of rye flour.

Enough wheat flour to knead into dough.

Scald liquid, add fat, sugar and salt. When lukewarm add dissolved yeast and enough flour to make a batter. When light add enough more flour to make a dough. Knead till smooth and elastic. When slightly more than doubled in bulk make into loaves. When light bake from fifty minutes to an hour.

A combination of rye and wheat flour gives a lighter and more desirable loaf than one made with rye flour alone.

For Rest Robes.

Negligees have taken up the Paisley vogue, and one can now find Paisley printed chiffon borders or silk medallions in the popular Indian designs. Challis in printed Paisley patterns is being largely used for negligees and rest robes. Soutache braid in frocks and suits is being applied in Paisley patterns, if not in the accepted Paisley colorings. Some suits have stencil designs outlined with soutache braid, recalling the familiar patterns of the orient.

New Veil of the Season.

One of the new veils is made of large meshed net with a heavy design in silver of gold thread over half the width of the net. The veil is worn over the hat with the designs at the top, so that it seems to form a trimming to the hat. The plain mesh is over the face. This sort of veil is especially attractive with a simple hat of the sort worn for motoring, as it adds much to the hat's appearance.

Popularity of Stripes.

Stripes are going to be even more popular than ever. But they are different from the stripes of other days, for they are of many colors. In Paris there is a vogue for a cluster stripe made up of the various colors found in the flags of the allies.

OBSTACLES.

The consciousness of power comes to us from conquering obstacles. Hindrances are, after all, our opportunities. God must regard our struggle. And that he has a great purpose in it all we are forced to believe from the way he gives us all, at some time in our lives, a battle to fight.—Roderick Stebbins.

SEVEN UNITS REACH ENGLAND

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 4.—Officially announced that the following troops have arrived safely in England:—Battalions: 229th Moose Jay; 232nd Battleford; 181st Brandon; 214 Saskatoon; 221st Winnipeg; 216 and 234th Toronto.

WAR IN BRIEF

Gen. Alexieff, Commander-in-Chief of the Rusian armies, has arrived on the Riga front. An order of the day issued by Gen. Brussiloff, warns the soldiers against having relations with the enemy.

A repulse of a German attack near Cona, in Northern Rumania, on Tuesday, is reported by the War Office in Petrograd. On the Black Sea a Russian hydroplane squadron dropped 120 bombs on Masmudia, on the Danube. Great destruction was observed.

The British transport Arcadian was sunk by a submarine April 15th. It is believed 279 men were drowned.

In the British House of Commons Henry Duke, Irish Secretary, announced the Government contemplated action to stop racing in Ireland during the war.

The official report from the Macedonian front says:—"There was heavy artillery fighting near Uma and on the Gerna Bend Tuesday. Monday night Russians repulsed the reconnoitering party. The bombardment of Monistar continues.

PTE. HERBERT GUEST.

Mrs. Guest, Braidwood avenue, received the tragic news yesterday that her husband, Pte. Herbert Guest, of the 93rd Bn., was killed in action on April 21. The sad news was broken to her by Rev. Mr. Price, Lock street.

Pte. Guest enlisted with the 93rd in January 1916, and on going overseas was transferred to the 19th Canadians. He is the second son to fall, while the third suffered the amputation of a leg. Pte. Guest leaves a wife in Peterborough, and his parents, two brothers and two sisters in England.

LANCE-CORP. PLUMPTON.

Lance-Corp. William Plumpton, who enlisted here with the Mounted Rifles, is reported slightly wounded.

PTE. MAHOOD.

Pte. Sherman Mahood of Lakefield is reported wounded, apparently accidentally. He was a member of the 93rd Bn.

THE ROGERS BOYS HEARD FROM

Mr. R. B. Rogers received from London yesterday news of his two sons who are prisoners in Germany. They have been moved further inland, the change being made probably because of the number who have escaped from time to time. Lt. Harry Rogers, of the 5th C. M. R., was taken prisoner last summer, and his brother, Corp. Heber S., was captured at Ypres two years ago. Both were disabled by wounds when they fell into the hands of the Germans.

WORK STARTED ON FOOTBRIDGE BY C.P.R. GANG

EAST CITY AND SOUTH END RESIDENTS NOW SATISFIED.

The C.P.R. construction gang are busy erecting the iron work for the new foot bridge across the river. It will take only a few days for this part of the work to be completed, and then the Ashburnham people can get after Alderman Weir, chairman of the Works Department, to get the wood work and the approaches in operation.

It was surprising now the good news spread among the workmen of the south end as well as East City. The pathway, so long a vision, was almost a reality.

VICE-REGAL VISIT TO THIS CITY IS INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

Mr. Balfour Expected at Ottawa and This Causes Change in Program.

The visit of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire to this city has been postponed indefinitely, according to a message received this morning by City Clerk Armstrong by Col. Henderson, military secretary.

The telegram read as follows:

Ottawa, Ont., May 3, 1917.
City Clerk, Peterborough:

Regret that His Excellency's visit to your city must be indefinitely postponed in view of the fact that I have been unable to ascertain definitely when Mr. Balfour is coming to Ottawa or how long he is likely to remain.

It is essential that their Excellencies should remain in Ottawa during his visit. They hope, however, that their visit to your city will not be long postponed.

BERLIN TALKS LIGHTLY OF RECENT REVERSES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, May 4—British troops yesterday only succeeded in taking Fresnoy and small portions of our foremost trenches near Bullcourt, says official statement issued by German army headquarters staff. The battle against British is continuing today. Germans took more than one thousand prisoners. Strong English cavalry forces have been established south-east of Arras.

SMUGGLED LETTER TELLS TRUE STORY OF LIFE IN GERMAN PRISON CAMPS

British Prisoners Would Starve to Death But for Food Parcels Sent From Outside ---Wounded Men Shamefully Neglected.

There is no longer any question as to the inhuman treatment that is extended to the British prisoners of war by their German captors. A letter received recently in this city sets that matter at rest and also establishes the fact that prisoners are often compelled to write to their friends glowing reports of their surroundings.

The letter in question has been received by one of Peterborough's leading citizens from his son who is a prisoner in Germany. The names are withheld in the interest of the young man himsef because it would certainly go hard with him if the fact that he wrote such a letter ever reached the ears of his jailers. When he was taken prisoner he was badly wounded. At that time he sent a letter to his father praising the skill of the German surgeons and the care that they took of him. It is apparent from his recent letter that he was constrained to write as he did.

The letter just received, and which is dated Feb. 1, explains the true conditions. It says in part:

Dear Dad: Don't be surprised at the smallness of this letter because the reason I am writing it on such a small piece of paper is that it is not going through the regular channels, but if you ever do receive it you will know that it is smuggled through and as you can judge it is the only way by which plain statements of facts can be got through.

You may judge by my regular letter that we are really having a perfectly good time and are really being treated first rate by our enemies who cannot be as bad as he is painted. Don't you ever run away with an idea like that.

The only reason that we are not ill treated is not because of any humanitarianism in the German character. There is no such a thing in his make-up. The reason is that now the German knows that he cannot monkey with the British without getting as much back. I could relate things about the experience of some of my chums here that would fill you with horror and disgust, but I have not the space. There is no such thing as justice in this country. If you can get copies of Curtin's letters which are appearing weekly in the English papers you will see statements that are facts no matter how strenuously they may be denied by the German press.

When you read my letter of our Christmas and New Year's feasts do not think it was due to any generosity on the part of the Germans. All the food we can get from the Germans that we can eat at all is four potatoes a day and often they are very small. For the magnificent feed we we are charged $9 a month for about 120 potatoes. We are practically obliged to depend on our parcels and we are mighty lucky to be able to receive them, but then the Germans know that if we do not get them their prisoners in England will get none, and as we have more of them than they have of us, you can see their reason for their change of attitude. It was a totally different story up to a year ago.

Take the case of the Russian prisoners, however. They are not allowed to get any food in parcels, but have to exist somehow on what they get from the Germans and what we can spare them. These are the officers only. God knows how the Russian privates exist at all. The result showed here about a week ago when one of the Russian orderlies went insane, and the only apparent reason vas the lack of nourishment.

The Russian soldiers are forced to work in the German front line and support trenches. I have seen and talked to dozens of them who were in hospital as I came through. They were wounded and broken up by our artillery. The medical attention, as a rule, given to prisoners is a crime. I have known men to lie in bed for days and days after coming in with fresh wounds, and not the slightest attention paid to them. You cannot imagine the awful condition they get into. If they live through it they are eventually attended to in a way, but the supposed superiority of German surgery is non-existant so far as I have been able to discover. I lay for three days in bed with only my own field dressing on, stiff and dirty with clotted blood, and it was at the request of an officer that the doctor removed it. Why I had not a set of complications God alone knows. It was not due to any care or attention on the part of the hospitals. Collective punishment seems to be the limit of the German's sense of justice. No matter what is done by a single individual, we have all to suffer. A chum of mine with whom I have been doing mathematics is now doing six days' solitary confinement for sending in a letter of complaint addressed to a German general.

VICTORY STILL PERCHES ON BANNERS OF THE BRITISH

ENEMY FAIL TO RETAKE GROUND LOST TO ALLIES

ALL COUNTER ATTACKS LAST NIGHT WERE BEATEN BACK.

GERMANS LOST HEAVILY.

BRITISH MEET SLIGHT REVERSES AT SOME POINTS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 4. — The text of the official statement reads:

"The village of Fresnoy and our positions which we had captured to the north and south of it were subjected to severe hostile counter-attacks yesterday evening. All our positions in this neighborhood were maintained and the enemy repulsed. Severe fighting has taken place in the neighborhood of Bullecourt. To the east of the village the enemy made a heavy counter-attack at 9.45 last night upon the sector of the Hindenburg line captured by us yesterday morning. The attempt failed completely and the enemy's attacking troops lost heavily. Fighting has also taken place during the night in the neighborhood of Cherisey and the Astride-Arras Cambrai road. In these areas our troops were compelled to fall back from advanced positions captured by them during the day. We made further progress during the night northwest of St. Quentin and northeast of Hargicourt, where we captured Malakoff Farm."

BAYONET FIGHTS RESULT IN TRIUMPH FOR REPUBLIC TROOPS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 4 — On the Western front in the direction of Kovil, in the region of Kuhari, the enemy maintained intense artillery fire, exploded mines and threw bombs against our trenches. In the region of Kabarovze, the enemy exploded a mine between his and our wire entanglements. Our trenches were undamaged. North-east of Slaventin, enemy's mine saps were destroyed by the explosion of one of our mines.

On the Rumaniam front in the region of Violoshkani, 20 miles north west of Fokshani, our Guerillas supported by infantry scouts cut through a net work of wire entanglements and pursued the enemy as far as Kaliman. On approaching German reserves tried to surround our Guerillas, but the latter forcing their way at the point of the bayonet reurned to their trenches.

On the Caucasian front there was firing and scouting reconnaissances.

THE WEATHER

The weather still keeps cool, but a change is due. This morning the temperature was one degree below freezing point. Ten years ago today we had a snow storm and the ground was covered with over six inches of heavy, wet snow. The snow plows had to be brought out again, and the sleighing was good for a few hours. The trees at that date were nearing their half-leaf stage.—W.P.

Capture More Positions and Maintain Hold on Those Already Taken---French Report Further Successes---Russian Socialists Demand Resignation of War Party.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 4. — The British last night made progress northwest of St. Quentin and northeast of Hargicourt, capturing Malakoff Farm, the War Office announces. On the Arras front the British have maintained their hold on Fresnoy and all positions captured in that neighborhood in yesterday's drive. They were compelled to fall back from advanced positions captured yesterday in the neighborhood of Cherisy, on the Arras-Cambrai road.

GERAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, Hay 4. — (Official Statement.) — "The night was marked by great activity of artillery on the front northwest of Rheims. In the Champagne we made new progress in the wood west of Mount Conillet and repulsed a grenade attack on one of our small posts. Intrmittent artillery fighting occurred south of Moronvillers.

"On the left bank of the Meuse two surprise attacks on German lines, one on Dead Man Hill and the other in Avocourt wood, brought us prisoners. West of Dead Man Hill we checked a German attack promptly.

"In Lorraine patrol encounters occurred near Embermenil and Domevri.

"Five German airplanes were brought down yesterday, and it is now ascertained that the three reported damaged on Wednesday were in reality brought down."

TWO WEEKS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The British forces on the Western front are two weeks ahead of their attacking schedule, according to a cable received here today by Mr. Balfour from the Foreign Office. The advance, it is said, has been much faster than expected and the losses smaller. The losses are said to be only half as large proportionately as those in the Somme offensive last year. This is attributed by members of the British mission to incomparably better artillery preparation and the fact that the men are not allowed to outrun the guns.

SOCIALISTS WEARY OF WAR.

PETROGRAD, May 4. — Detachments of soldiers have gathered in front of the headquarters of the provisional government carrying red flags with inscriptions demanding the resignation of the foreign minister. Newspaper organs of the Social Democrats severely criticize Mulikoff's note to the Allies asserting Russia's determination to vigorously push the war. Evening papers declare the government is united in its responsibility for the note to the Allies and is supported by the executive committee of the Duma.

MAY DAY STRIKE A FAILURE.

COPENHAGEN, May 4. — As far as can be learned from the German newspapers which have been permitted to reach here, reports of the failure of the May Day strike movement in Germany were substantially correct. The papers indicate however that strikes took place in some places.

Canadian Soldiers Foil Hun Veterans

THEY FOLLOW CLOSELY ON BURSTING SHELLS INTO ENEMY DUGOUTS.

The Associated Press says: The taking of Fresnoy, which fell to the lot of the intrepid Canadians, who thus are shown to have pushed back the German lines four miles since their gallant capture of Vimy Ridge, gives them the added honor of having cut their way through the famous Hindenburg line. The same Canadian division took Arleux and Fresnoy.

ALMOST $3 A BUSHEL.

Wheat Goes Up Another Notch at Chicago.

Wheat sold for $2.94 in Chicago yesterday and there was quite a flutter among the local dealers.

Flour is now quoted locally at $14.25 per barrel, and it is hard to say how much further it will go before the high mark is reached. The local millers are having all kinds of inquiries for stocks of flour.

In several outside cities bread has advanced to even a higher price than in Peterborough. It is now 20 cents a large loaf in Hamilton and the same in Toronto.

OTTAWA'S BOOZE ANNEX IS VOTED OUT OF BUSINESS

Hull Goes Dry by Majority of 1181 But Prohibition Will Not Take Effect Until May of Next Year.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 4. — By the overwhelming majority of 1181 prohibition was carried in Hull. The total vote cast was 3,793, one of the largest in the history of the city. There were 2,487 votes polled by the temperance followers.

The city will not go dry until the 1st of May next year, owing to a technicality is delaying to advertise the polling.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 4, 1917

THE NEW INDIAN LIST.

ACTING ON THE recommendation of License Inspector Stewart, Magistrate Dumble has placed a number of residents on the Indian list, and it is airtight prohibition for them. An amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act adopted at the recent session of the Legislature makes such action possible. License Inspector Stewart is, accordingly, invested with authority conferred upon him by the Legislature, which local temperance workers—or political devotees—hold the Legislature itself does not possess.

The License Inspector is supreme in this matter. There is nothing to prevent him from putting any resident, who drinks at all, using liquor either as a beverage or a tonic, upon the Indian list. Of course, he is supposed to exercise discretion in the matter, but even official discretion is merely human, and it is considerable power for any one man to possess. License Inspector Stewart can make Peterborough and district bone dry, he can stop all importation of liquor into the territory over which he presides, simply by adding to the Indian list every man who sends to Quebec for liquor. Those who abstain entirely from the use of malt and spirituous beverages are, of course, immune from such drastic official action.

The local workers for Dominion-wide prohibition will hardly, we take it, go the length of claiming that putting a man on the prohibited list is illegal, seeing that it has been done for years under the old license regime. Why, then, cannot the Provincial Government exercise the authority which it has delegated to the various license inspectors and magistrates in the province? The proper method for making Ontario really dry is obvious. The responsibility for taking a course that would excite the opposition of a certain class in the community belongs, not at Ottawa, but at Toronto. To recognize this fact, however, would not accomplish the political purpose some of these workers, individuals and newspapers, have in view.

TAKING OVER THE RAILWAYS.

WHEN A MAN has advanced money on a mortgage and the owner of the property, even with this assistance, is unable to maintain it as a going concern, the party of the first part has no recourse but to take possession. Canada has for the past two decades been building railways at a rate which exceeded all requirements. Two of these roads at least are bankrupt. There seems no way out of the difficulty but to accept the plan proposed in the majority report of the Royal Commission and take over the lines that are in financial straits.

Canada has had its lesson in the matter of subsidizing public works. The masses of the people will not fail to note that roads built under the paternal protection of the Government may end up in bankruptcy, notwithstanding the fact that the private fortunes of the promoters acquire the fat proportions of millions.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT.

AMONG THE DISTINGUISHED foreign visitors who are expected at the Win-the-War Convention in Montreal, May 23-25, are General Joffre and his party, ex-Premier Balfour and Col. Roosevelt. Col. Mulloy, the Ontario chairman of the movement, and John M. Godfrey, of Toronto, went to the home of Col. Roosevelt to extend him a special invitation. The Colonel promised to be present unless in the meantime he is sent over to Europe at the head of a division, as he himself has requested.

The following subjects will be discussed at the convention:

Measures for the reinforcing of the Canadian army.

Measures for raising a Canadian Defence Force.

Measures for the promotion of national unity and more intimate relations between the provinces and between the various races which go to make up our national life.

Measures for the organization of Canada so that we may have a maximum of agricultural and industrial production.

Measures relieving the present labor situation and the economic disarrangement which will come after the war.

Measures for promoting thrift and conserving food and other resources.

Measures relating to war taxation.

The folowing resolution, moved by W. F. Davidson and seconded by the Archbishop of Toronto, was adopted at an Ontario conference held in Toronto on February 27:

> That whereas the suggestion has already been made that the proposed convention is designed to promote a change in Government, therefore, this meeting puts itself on record as being of the opinion that in the call summoning the convention it be stated definitely that it is summoned only to discuss and recommend policies which will help secure the men, the money, the food and the munitions to do Canada's full part in winning the war with a view to pressing upon the Government the wishes of the people and the extent to which the people will back the Government in aggressive war measures, and that accordingly no resolutions should be in order affecting the personnel of the Government.

The unanimous adoption of this resolution should dispose of the claim advanced by some that there is any political significance in the movement.

THAT NAME "OMEMEE."

ONCE MORE The Orillia Packet draws on its inexhaustible stock of lore and clears up a mystery that has been troubling us for years. We know now how Omemee came ot get that name and that it can be employed as about the only word in the language that will rhyme with Vimy. The Packet says that after sixty fears the name has justified itself. On-the-Side, of The Toronto News, has found a corner where it fits, as nothing else, it appears, would fit. The following stanza explains:

The Mail and Empire has declared,
 In accents soft and dreamy,
That no Canadian Bard can find
 A handy rhyme for "Vimy,"
Though one might search from Halifax
 To Lindsay—or Omemee.

For two generations people have wondered how the pretty and romantic little village came to get such a name. Omemee! Oh, my, my! Oh, dear, dear! Sixty or sixty-one years ago the name of the village was Metcalfe, and as there was another Metcalfe post office in Lower Canada, the people were notified to agree upon some other name and acquaint the post office department with their choice. After a public meeting, considerable discussion and some disagreement, Omemee was decided upon. The suggestion first came from the fact that O-me-mee is the Indian for dove or pigeon, and the village is built on Pigeon River. This association recommended the name, or at all events reconciled the majority to its choice. To others, who know nothing of the romance or poetry of the situation, Omemee may sound too much like the wail of a woman or child in anguish. But, if you keep a thing long enough, it is said, some day you will be sure to find use for it, and so it has proved in this case. J. E. M. has found in Omemee the theme of a poem and a means of putting a less ready contemporary to confusion.

WHAT NATIONAL SERVICE DID.

THE EFFORTS of the National Service Board and the Government to secure farm help to meet the pressing needs of the agricultural situation in Western Canada have been a complete success. Reports have been received by the Government from th Western Provinces that there is now a sufficient supply of labor, and for the present there is no need of any further effort.

Early in the year it looked as if there would be a serious shortage of labor which would seriously affect the crop acreage this season. Mr. R. B. Bennett, director of National Service, went West and took the matter up personally with the Western governments. As a result, plans of co-operation between the provincial and federal authorities and the National Service Board were formulated, and an extensive advertising campaign was inaugurated in the Western States, at that time the only source of supply on a large scale. The campaign was quite successful. Some six thousand skilled farm laborers, mostly farmers' sons from the great central and western States, used to western methods of farming, were secured. This, combined with the men the National Service Board was able to secure in the Western cities, has resulted in supplying all the men the farmers of the West need for their spring sowing. The results are extremely gratifying to the Government, and any crop shortage this year will at least not be due to lack of labor.

(Westminster Gazette.)

A British officer on duty with the Air Service in East Africa sends home a graphic description of an immense valley filled with Arum lilies over which he has flown somewhere in the region of Zanzibar. As he passed over the spot he was eight thousand feet high, but the perfume reached him. By means of his glasses he found that the lilies were "as large as elephants' ears," and that the whole of the valley had been monopolized by the beautiful flowers. The luxuriant vegetation was remarkable. He discovered later that the scent of the flowers, combined with the decaying vegetation, was so overpowering in the valley that not even the natives dared to live within its borders.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

GREAT RESOURCES OF COMMERCIAL RUSSIA

Greatest Part of Russian Population Engaged in Agriculture—Rich in Dairy Produce and Minerals

Mr. J. D. Allan, Ex-President of Toronto Board of Trade, has given an interesting address on "Commercial Russia." He condensed into his address a large number of interesting facts and figures relating to that country of wonderful resources. Over eighty per cent. of the population of Russia is engaged in agriculture, he said, the most of them peasants of a very high order of intelligence, although 47,000,000 of them were serfs or slaves in 1861. The climate is various, according to latitude, but the summer climate of southern Siberia is similar to that of Canada.

Advanced Farming Methods

Russia's methods in agriculture, coldstorage, the slaughter of animals, etc., are very advanced, and in many respects far ahead of those of Canada, said Mr. Allan. The exports of dead poultry and eggs now are $50,000,000 yearly. The finest creamery butter sold in London is made on the plains of Siberia. The total agricultural exports from Russia in 1911 amounted to over $700,000. In 1912 there were 3,700 agricultural partnerships for co-operative sale of produce. In 1910 there were 32,000 students in agricultural courses and 296,000 attending lectures. The total crop of raw cotton amounts to 159,000 tons; and 55 per cent. of the cotton manufactured and used in Russia is grown there. In 1910 the factories used wool valued at $100,000,000, every fibre of which was grown in Russia. In silk that country ranks sixth in the world; in linen yarn it is second in the world.

Splendid Forest Policy

The forestry policy of Russia puts Canada to shame, said Mr. Allan. They have 1,700,000,000 acres of forest all under one jurisdiction, and when timber is removed from the ground the lumberman must plant again, tree for tree, everything he has cut down. This is barbarous Russia; are we as civilised in Canada?

The German language is now absolutely prohibited in Russia; but on account of the prejudice there due to the Crimean War, British exports to Russia increased only by eight per cent. from 1893 to 1909, while exports from Germany increased 370 per cent. In ten years 11,000,000 ounces of fine gold were taken from Russian mines; and the iron mines would not be exhausted if 10,000,000 tons of pig iron were taken every year for 100 years. Russia is rich in all minerals, and progressive in methods commercially.

OUR FAR-FLUNG EMPIRE

Covers More Than a Fifth of Earth's Land Surface

A London paper writes: It is hard to realise the huge size of the Dominion of Canada. It is 3,400 miles wide—bigger than the U.S.A., unless Alaska is reckoned—and as big as Europe if Germany be left out! It could easily maintain a population of two hundred millions. Australia is the smallest continent, if it be reckoned such, and the largest island in the world. New Zealand is our next antipodes. It is generally regarded as one of the smaller colonies, yet it is only a sixth less than the area of the British Isles. South Africa runs to about a million square miles of territory, without including the newly conquered territory of South-West Africa. British East Africa is another million-square-mile piece, whilst Nigeria is about half as much, and Greater Egypt about the same. Add to this the smaller colonies, and Britain's stake in the Dark Continent — without reckoning Germany's contributions—works out to the size of the whole of Europe.

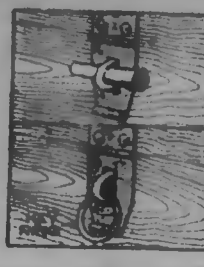
Nor does this take into account hundreds of islands in the West Indies, in the Pacific, in the Indian Ocean, and those corners of the world's ocean highways, like "Gib." and Aden, and Singapore, and Hong Kong, which all go to swell the total present mileage of the Empire to eleven and a half million, or rather more than a fifth of the whole land surface of the globe.

HOW A TREE LIVES

Swaying of the Tree Causes Sap to Rise

Darwin, the great student of life and its laws, says the Canadian Forestry Journal, caused a twig to drink some water containing a strong dye, and then he could follow the travels of the sap as it mounted through the wood. He found that when he kept bending the twig to and fro with his fingers the sap was forced to rise much faster. The tree sways with every breath of wind. Every time it bends, the wood-cells are squeezed and the sap is forced out. Every time it straightens again the little tubes and cells fill with sap from below. But no one can really understand or fully explain the rise of the sap. Later in the year, when many leaves are spread wide in the sunshine, water is breathed away from the upper part of the tree. Some of the cells up there part with so much moisture that their sap becomes thickened, and this causes a suction which draws more watery sap up through the wood from below. When summer is here, and growth is active, there are, furthermore, little bubbles of gas in the sap, and these, as they rise, help to bring the sap up with them. But even when all these things are considered, we cannot fully understand how or why the sap rises as it does. Its upward mounting is one of the greatest wonders of nature.

Key Ring as Cover Fastener



The usual box-cover fastener in the form of a staple and hasp can be fastened quite securely, and much better than with the use of a wood pin, by applying a key ring to the staple. This is to take the place temporarily in case the lock is lost or discarded.—Popular Mechanics.

ETIQUETTE

Politeness does not always evince goodness, equity, complaisance, or gratitude, but it gives at least the appearance of these qualities, and makes man appear outwardly as he should do within.

A WIDOW'S GARB

A widow advanced in years usually wears black, with narrow white muslin or lawn turned over collar and cuffs, hemstitched, and a widow's cap. A black cotton or silk with small white pattern could be worn in the house, but not for formal occasions. A young woman in mourning for a parent wears a white waist with black skirt in very hot weather if she wishes. It must be quite plain, no embroidery or lace. Mourning for a parent is for one or two years according to the wish of the wearer. Black and white can be worn during the last few months.

AT A DANCE

A girl is not expected to dance with a man who has not been introduced to her. Just say no or don't hear him. To decline to dance with a man of your acquaintance either provide yourself with another partner beforehand if you can arrange that or say you are not dancing that dance, then sit it out with some girl friend.

THE ESCORT'S DUTIES

The man's place when walking with a lady is at the side nearest the street or road-way whether on right or left. 2. The lady does not take a gentleman's arm nor does he offer it, unless assistance is necessary. Walking arm in arm is not correct on ordinary occasions. 3 When a man wants a girl friend to go driving he should let her arrange to take a girl friend of hers also. No one can decide for you the frequency of the drives. 4. Unless you are engaged to a girl don't give her jewellery or anything to wear for a birthday present. Think of what special tastes she has—reading, flowers, music, photography—and choose something in that line. An expensive gift would not be in good taste.

A Deserving Case

To the ladies of Peterborough who would like to perform a kind action, we are offering a splendid opportunity.

It is my birthday next week and my wife is very anxious to give me a vacuum cleaner or a bucksaw for a birthday present. Now it is necessary for me to sell $1000.25 worth of goods this week so as to raise the money. Then, after paying the moderate taxes we are assessed for I shall have 25c left, and I can give her 10c and still have 15c left for her to find in my pocket at night. Of course, we don't charge so much for our goods as other places, as we sell for cash only, but you won't mind that, as you will be doing a good action, and all our goods are guaranteed pure, so you cannot poison the neighbor's cat with them, but you can order from a mail order house next week for that.

Or our fragrant, fresh ground Coffee at 40c.

Just an an inducement to you to help us out we will give a Ford automobile free with every $1000.00 order, tomorrow only.

HOW TO USE CANNED GOODS

Just a little longer until the first fruits and vegetables from backyard gardens and real farms will be ready for us. Unhappily it is the last stretch that always seems hardest, and now canned things seem particularly insipid. When one is terribly tired of a certain things one is not apt to take great trouble to make it appear at its best, and so canned stuff is opened, heated, grumbled at and eaten with little relish.

Since canning has become such an art that food is almost ready for the table when it reaches us is a strong reason for making it as good as possible. Because appetites are captious in the spring is another argument, and if you need any more urging to make your canned foods as attractive as possible remember that the better foods taste the more they nourish one.

Various recipes for making these convenient foods more flavorsome are frequently offered and always welcomed by the cook. The most used of canned stuffs are fish, vegetables, fruits and meat. The juices of canned goods have food value and these should always be saved to use in some way if the liquid is drained off the canned stuff; this is an item some housekeepers overlook.

Fried Corn. — Drain a can of corn and save the liquor for soup. Have hot butter in a frying pan and toss the corn in it until it stops steaming and browns. Season with salt and pepper.

Other dishes from canned corn are corn omelet, corn fritters and pudding

Canned sweet potatoes may be mashed and seasoned with cream, salt and pepper. Or slice and dip in syrup and fry brown in butter. Tomato catsup or sauce is recommended to those who like the combination.

Canned baked beans with bacon Put a can of beans in water and heat it through. In the meantime fry rashers of bacon. Garnish the platter of beans with the bacon and serve brown bread with the dish.

Canned meats are usually served cold with salad dressings or with radishes, but Irish stew, creamed chicken on toast, American hash and many similar dishes can be prepared from a small can of meat and produce excellent foods at small cost.

Tunny fish makes the most delicious of all fish salad, not excepting even shrimp and lobster. Besides, tunny is a fat fish and most satisfying as food. Salmon loaf, creamed salmon and croquettes from this accommodating fish are well-known delights, and sardines, though small, are almost as useful. These little fish may be fried in their own oil and served, with any hot bread, or be cooked and served with bacon and are so pungent in flavor that they are liked with rice and all plain vegetables.

When buying canned stuffs, read the labels. These teach you much and help you to decide what brand is best for your need, and remember domestic goods are lowest in price and compare well with imported stuffs, and that there is no waste to canned goods.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN GILLESPIE

Mrs. John Gillespie, of Bethany, died Wednesday morning at her residence, in her 84th year. She was born in the County of Armagh, Ireland, and moved with her parents to Canada, when a young girl. The family was one of the pioneers of Cavan, and was widely known throughout the district. Mrs. Gillespie is survived by nine children, as follows:—Albert, of Hastings; Alfred, of Peterboro; Hugh and William, of Lindsay; Mrs. Rich. Staples, Hamilton, N.D.; Mrs. Harvey Staples, Lemsford, Sask.; Mrs. Wm. Hutchinson, of Saskatchewan; Mrs. Wm. Cavano, of Bethany; and Miss Maggie Gillespie, at home.

The funeral took place to the Little Lake Cemetery this morning.

JOSEPH PAUL

The funeral of the late Joseph Paul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paul, of Red Rock, Verulam, took place there on Wednesday and was largely attended. The deceased was electrocuted while at work as a lineman at Georgetown. He leaves a wife and six small children to mourn his demise. The late Mr. Paul was a cousin of Mr. Fred. Jopling of this city.

WARDING OFF WITCHES

Modern Londoners Still Believe in Charms

At at exhibition in London the following collection showed that belief in the supernatural is still rife: Medicinal charms formed a large part of the collection.

Necklaces made of the stems of the nightshade which, if put around the neck of an infant will help it to cut its teeth. A necklace of acorns is a specific against other infant ills. A knuckle bone, carried in the pocket, will ward off rheumatism, the theory being that as the dead bone does not suffer from the complaint the disease will go into it. A specimen shown was carried by a rheumatic subject for many years. A third charm against the same complaint is a small bottle containing mercury, hermetically sealed and covered with leather. It is stated that it is sold in London by one of the largest chemists in the world. Those who suffer from nightmare may welcome this prescription. A necklet of blue beads will protect a child against bronchitis, while red beads or coral will avert sore throats. A small bag containing a tooth should be placed round the neck of an infant as an antidote against teething convulsions. Since the beginning of the war, another charm against disease has been introduced by Belgian refugees—the wearing of cat's skin for rheumatism and chest troubles. One of the most curious of the exhibits was a sheep's heart, pierced with pins and nails to break the spell of a black witch. It was prepared by an old woman who practised witchcraft in London as late as 1908.

BOYS OF CITY ARE INSTRUCTTED IN METHODS OF WORKING GARDENS

At a Meeting Held at Y.M.C,A. Last Night Full Directions Were Given.

One of the most enthusiastic and profitable meetings ever held in the Y.M.C.A. was that which took place in the boys' parlors of the local Y.M.C.A. last night.

The meeting was called for the purpose of instructing the boys in the proper methods of growing vegetables.

Mr. Earl Barrie, president of the Y.M.C.A. Garden Club, presided in his usual businesslike manner and called on Mr. J. E. Smith, of the Farm and Dairy, to give the boys a talk on how to plant and cultivate a back yard garden.

Mr. Smith's address was very instructive, and it is certain that the 34 boys who attended the meeting and follow Mr. Smith's advice will have good gardens this summer.

Mr F. E. Ellis, of the Farm and Dairy, interested the boys very much when he demonstrated the correct way of cutting up potatoes for planting.

The boys were especially interested in this part of the programe, as a number of them are entered in the Walter Oke potato competition.

The following boys from the city have entered into the potato competition: Master Snowden, Earl Barrie, Nelson McFadden, Harrison, Christopher, Willie Meagher, Harold Graham, Stewart Fleming, Gerhard Loescher, Alex Elliott, Roland Doughty, Ralph Meserve, Alfred Cameron.

Mr. J. E. Smith and Mr. F. E. Ellis, the judges for the Y.M.C. Garden Club, will have a busy time this summer, when they will have to visit fifty boys' gardens and inspect them.

The judges will make two visits to each garden, one in June, and one in August.

The Y.M.C.A. are offering the following prizes for the boys' garden competition:—

Best kept garden plot—1st prize $3.00, 2nd $2.00, 3rd $1.00; next six, 75c each.

Best collection of vegetables, six kinds, grown on own garden plot—1st prize $2.00, 2nd $1.50, 3rd $1.00:

Any boy who has a garden plot will be made welcome to the membership of the club.

It is the intention of the Y.M.C.A. to hold a vegetable exhibition in the Y.M.C.A. in September.

Melon Relish

Cut a good melon into strips and, after removing all rind and seed, put the strips into a stone jar. Sprinkle with salt. Let stand five or six hours. Pour over vinegar diluted with water. Drain the melon and put on one side. For every pound (when drained) take half a pound of sugar, 2 cupfuls of vinegar, a little pieces of cinnamon stick, a little grated horseradish, and a little chopped olive. Cook these to a thick syrup, then add the drained melon. Pack in jars. Seal well.

Initialed Stockings

The next time you give a girl a pair of silk stockings, make a point to brand them with the recipient's monogram. In a house where there are two or more girls, it is very difficult to keep the stockings from finding their way to the wrong person's bureau drawers. Many arguments can be prevented if each pair of stockings has a monogram embroidered at the top. If a different color silk is used for each pair, the task of mating them will be made easier.

URGE REFORM IN GERMAN EMPIRE

SOCIALISTS DEMAND MORE THAN PROMISES OF CONCESSIONS.

LONDON, May 4.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Amsterdam says:—

The organization in greater Berlin of the Socialist party, according to The Berliner Tageblatt, has adopted a resolution which says:-

"Since a liberal expansion of the German constitution will facilitate the speedy inauguration of peace negotiations, we request the Socialist party committee to strive for the supression of the policy of promises of small concessions by a thorough democratization of the German Empire."

Such action, according to the resolution, would include equal suffrage and responsible ministries for the empire and the federal states.

Canada Now Has 412,437 Men Under Arms

OTTAWA, May 4.—During the fortnight ended Tuesday, enlistments in Canada numbered 2,804, compared with 3,329 during the preceding two weeks, bringing the total to date up to 412,437.

RUSSIA CANNOT AFFORD TO QUIT

PETROGRAD. — Russian Provisional Government has sent to Russian representative in the allied countries a note assuring the Allies that the change in the Government of Russia cannot afford a pretext for slackening by Russia in the common struggle of all the Entente powers.

This Is One of the Greatest Opportunities That Will Occur This Season To Buy Hose, All Sizes 29c

We have just received to-day a large shipment of Cashmere Hose that we hardly expected to get. The order was given a long while ago at the old prices. We had just about given them up as unobtainable.

But here they are to-day, thousands of them, in every size. They are made of a very strong, finely ribbed cashmerette yarn, and we pass on the advantage to you. If we were to buy them now the price would be 50c per pair. But while they last you can have all you want for just, per pair 29c

SARAH BERNHARDT BETTER

NEW YORK, May 4.—Madame Sarah Bernhardt was able to sit up unassisted for the first time since she became ill in this city and was compelled to undergo an operation. Her physicians say the outlook is favorable.

"In order that 50,000 troops of the Canadian Expeditionary Force at present serving in Canada may be released for active warfare an appeal is now made to the manhood of Canada to volunteer for home defence".

SIR EDWARD KEMP,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

CANADA

"It is the duty of the country to let our troops see their numbers are going to be kept up to the fullest extent."

Right Hon. ANDREW BONAR LAW,
Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The Call To Arms For Home Defence

To provide adequately for home defence and release, as reinforcements for the victors of Vimy Ridge, the Overseas units held here, men are still needed.

Canadian Home Defence Force

Enlistment in the Canadian Defence Force is for one year—or for the period of the war and six months after if required. Clothing, equipment and rations provided as in the C. E. F. Pay the same as that for Militia on active service, with separation allowance for married men.

The call is for men between 18 and 45, physically fit and keen to serve.

For full particulars enquire at Armories of the Regiments listed below.

MEN STILL REQUIRED FOR OVERSEAS IN THE CANADIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

More men are required for reinforcements at the Front. Those who desire to volunteer for Overseas Service may enlist through one of the regiments ordered to mobilize for Home Defence.

Citizens Object To Being Longer In Darkness

The Fire, Water and Light Committee will hold another meeting this evening at eight o'clock.

Since the committee recommended so many new lights to be installed at the last meeting a number of residents in different sections of the city felt that they were being overlooked. They wanted light, and are going to make an effort to get it.

If additional lights are approved of, one report will be made to the council covering all of them.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Sanol Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wide reputation.

These powders are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 163 Hunter Street.

"OUTLAW" INSURANCE

Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton reports that the fire in P. H. Graham and Co.'s plant at Belleville recently caused damage which has been assessed at $185,000, on which $129,800 insurance was caried. Of this $103,000 was placed with outlaw or unregistered insurance companies. The Province will collect a tax on the insurance.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD FOR HEALTH

(By C. E. Banks, M.D.)

As a contribution to the plans of mobilizing all the agencies related to an economic and nutritious dietary on this continent under present circumstances, I think it an opportune time to urge upon the public the hygienic necessity of using whole wheat bread as a staple article of diet. The bread to which the public has been accustomed in the last half century is made from wheat which has been bled white by the millers in the methods used by them in producing an artifically bleached flour. This flour merely represents the starchy white powder remaining after all the other and more nutritious elements in it have been bolted out in the process of refinement.

Experiments show that test chickens fed exclusively on bleached white flour after twenty days will become paralized from malnutrition, and that a few days feeding with the rest of the grain will restore them to health. This white flour is nothing more or less than starch, and has only the nutritious values of so much starch. As a modern invention it has appealed to the housewife for its cosmetic qualities under the belief that the whiter the flour the purer the product.

Health in Plain Product

White flour is economically valuable as it keeps indefinitely in all conditions, because it is a dead, inert substance. Whole wheat flour is commercially less valuable to the producer because its keeping qualities are not so great, for the very important reason that it has the vitilizing elements containing the properties of life and tissue-building portions of the grain contained in the shell or cortex are the phosphates and the vitamines which should go into the upbuilding of the human race, and are taken by the millers as a by-produce (bran) and sold to the farmers to fatten their cattle and swine. It is equivalent to selling molasses with the sugar extracted, leaving only the water and the coloring matter to represent the product of the cane.

CANDY USED AS MUCH AS EVER

It is surprising what an important place sugar takes in the list of foods consumed by both human beings and members of the animal world. A stroll up George or Charlotte streets—especially on Saturday afternoon and evening—will reveal the fact there are few, if any, classes of stores more liberally patronized than the "sweet shops." To see the crowds waiting for their turn to secure their weekly "treat" is almost a revelation. It would appear as if nine out of ten citizens, both young and old, are blessed with a "sweet tooth." The fact the price of sugar has gone soaring on account of the war does not appear to have made the slightest effect on the amount of candy consumed. Candy must be had whatever the price.

The demand for candy indicates to what an extent an appetite for sugar has been cultivated. The question of the value of sugar as a food is one well worth careful consideration, while the method of securing the product is an interesting one.

JELLIED PRUNES.

Cover half a box of gelatin with half a cup of cold water; when soft, add two cups of boiling water and one cup of sugar; stir until dissolved and add one cup of orange juice and the juice of one large lemon. Remove the stones from some stewed prunes, put them in a glass dish, pour the jelly over them, place on ice until firm and serve with whipped cream.

Marshmallow Pudding.

Boil together two cups of milk and half a cup of sugar. Thicken with two tablespoons of dissolved cornstarch. Stir in 15 marshmallows which have been cut fine.

GLUE FOR MINERALS.

The following is said to stick paper to paper, paper or cloth to wood, metal or glass: Take a tablespoonful of ordinary cooking gelatin, dissolve it in two or three and one-half tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Boil for a few seconds and add a little sugar while still hot. This glue is said to stick anything without staining—can be kept indefinitely, and used by merely warming slightly.

PREVENTING FLY SPECKS.

Put a small amount of corrosive sublimate in your paste when you are doing your spring papering, and it will keep the flies from specking the paper and also kill any germ that happens to be on the walls.

TO SAVE MOLASSES.

If the cup in which molasses is measured is greased with a little butter or lard, every bit of molasses will come out.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

GIGANTIC ARUM LILIES

"As Large as Elephants' Ears," Says British Visitor

A British aviator sent from East Africa a graphic description of an immense valley filled with the huge "Arum lilies," over which he flew somewhere in the region of Zanzibar. As he passed over the valley he was 5,000 feet high, but the perfume of the lilies reached his nostrils for a long distance. By means of his glasses he observed that the lily flowers were "as large as elephants' ears," and that the whole of the valley had been monopolized by the beautiful flowers. The luxuriance of the vegetation was particularly remarkable. He learned later that the scent of the flowers was so overpowering to the valley that no native had ever dared to penetrate within its borders

PRINTERS WIN FROM DE LAVAL

Last night in a league fixture the Printers annexed three games from De Laval. The first was a close contest, the Printers winning by four plus, but came back in the second with a 902 count. Cairns for the Typos came in for a 202 count, the high single for the night. Henderson, Cairns and Moore for the Printers, were the only ones to reach the 500 mark, their totals being 557, 541 and 531. It was a big night for hard spares, Fitzgerald for the De Laval having four to his credit, Myland for the Printers having two, and Byers, Ruiter, Henderson, Cairns and Wilson one each.

Tonight the Grocers and C. G. E. meet in a league fixture, and a good game is looked for as the teams are tied for second place.

The scores:

PRINTERS

Moore	164	195	172	531
Henderson	166	182	199	557
Myland	146	155	153	454
Wilson	136	168	153	457
Cairns	167	202	170	541

Here's help in decorating your home inside and outside

House Painting
Staining Woodwork
Finishing Floors

People judge you
by your home. A beautiful home, well decorated outside and inside is not only a pleasant place to live —but commands the respect and admiration of your friends and neighbors.

Good decorating results require good taste plus good finishes, plus proper skill in applying. You can get expert advice on all three if you consult us about

Lowe Brothers

Paints, Varnishes, Enamels, Stains

In the selection of paint for the exterior it is economy to use Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Liquid Paint. It is scientifically-made paint that gives perfect protection with lasting beauty. "High Standard" Paint spreads and "goes" farther than cheap paint—sets in a close tight coat—resists years of wind, sun and wet—fails only by gradual wear —leaves a good surface for repainting.

For the walls and ceilings, use Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Mellotone. Its rich colors rest as well as delight the eyes. It is fadeless and washable—not easily scratched or marred—and decidedly economical.

For refinishing furniture, floors and woodwork, Lowe Brothers Vernicol comes in colors to match usual finishes. Easy to use—economical.

If you have a decorating problem we'll be glad to help you

LIFE'S UNCERTAINTIES SHOULD BE BRAVED

Lady Dorothy Nevill Gives One Horrible Example of One Form of Morbidness

"We live in a world of uncertainties," declared a celebrated person the other day. It is perfectly true, as most of us have discovered for ourselves. But it is not the kind of truth that it does one good to dwell upon, writes Fortune Free. Sala travelled once upon an Atlantic liner with a passenger who was quite a nice man, only he had a worrying habit of never knowing what "might happen next." It was his first experience of the ocean, and it seemed full of distracting possibilities—disagreeable happenings. Sala informed him that he had been across the Atlantic scores of times, and nothing particular had occurred. The uneasy one admitted that he supposed ships generally did get along without blowing up or going to the bottom, but one "never knew."

"I'm not a nervous person, Mr. Sala," he declared "If I were I might be worrying over what they gave us for dinner to-day. I haven't felt particularly well since, and I've heard of people being poisoned by eating stuff that has been kept in refrigerators too long. No, I'm not a nervous person. My wife would tell you that. My wife? I wonder what has happened to her? And four children, Mr. Scala—three girls and a boy—a boy that climbs trees till he makes your blood run cold. Wonder if he's up to that game now? I forgot to warn the wife to keep an eye upon him. Strange how one never thinks of these things till it's too late."

Making Others Worry

The person who is inclined to dwelling on the uncertainties of life generally manages to think only of catastrophes. They belong to the "be prepared for the worst" people. Lady Dorothy Nevill knew an old lady of that kind. She was a great dame in society and was enormously wealthy. She was a widow and had had a most devoted husband, and the greatest misfortune that could possibly happen to a girl, in her eyes, must be to get married to the wrong man. So she was always preparing her young lady friends for such a catastrophe. When a young couple among her friends got married she hastened to the wedding to bestow upon them her benediction which she did much in the same manner as if she had been reading the burial service over them. Then she would have a moment or two of private conversation with the young lady, and press into her hand a banknote for a handsome sum.

A Bad Influence

"So, my dear, you're married?" she would sigh. "Marriage is a great lottery. Nothing certain about it. It isn't every husband that is like poor dear Edward" (Edward was the "departed.") "If you should find you have made a mistake—we're always making them, you know, poor ignorant creatures!—a little bit of money may be welcome. Put it in the bank, my dear, and wait and see. And if you should ever need a roof come to me."

A barracks, Lady Dorothy Nevill declared, would not have accommodated all the wives to whom she extended that dismal invitation. Life is largely uncertain, but one can make a great deal too much of the uncertainties. It is easy to exalt them into a worry that will make the enjoyment of the good things that do come to us an utter impossibility.

"BLACKHEADS" FROM DIRT

Treatment For Annoying Blemish is Here Outlined

Blackheads seem to be the stumbling block to the ambition of many women who have good complexions. Never forget to wash your face at night before retiring with hot soapy water and a rough cloth. After this rub in a little boracic acid powder, and if this smarts the skin, massage in cold cream.

Every other night scrub blackheads with a soft nail brush, after bathing the face and before the boracic powder is rubbed in. Scrub very lightly else the skin will be irritated. Once a week, after the face has been washed, steam it over a basin of water, then rinse in hot water and spread over the face a handful of soap jelly. After 10 minutes wash this off and massage for several minutes. On this night omit the boracic acid. To make the jelly, pare one cake of castile soap into three cups of water to which has been added one teaspoonful of powdered borax. Put in a covered jar.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES

Funeral of Late Samuel W. English Held This Afternoon

The funeral of the late Samuel W. English took place this afternoon from his late residence, 309 Margaret Ave., to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral was one of the largest that has been held in the city for some time. The late Mr. English was always a friend in need to everyone, and the respect which he held in the community was vouched for by the desire of the citizens to pay their last respect to him.

Among the floral tributes, which were many, were wreaths from the Knights of the Maccabees, the Canadian Order of Foresters and the Corinthian Lodge, A.F. and A.M.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Col. J. W. Miller, E. Goldie, Jos. Wolstenholme, John Armstrong, D. R. English, and W. J. English.

The funeral services at the house and at the cemetery were conducted by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., Pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church.

LONDON'S UNDERGROUND

Women as "Gatekeepers" Prove Very Capable—Draw Man's Pay

As a result of the increased army requirements the gatewoman, in her smart, neat uniform of navy blue, can be seen at work in most of the London trains where the gates are closed from the train platform between the coaches. And very capable she is proving, too, though the early hours (the first shift starts at about five o'clock) are a sore trial to the novice; but "early rising's a habit you soon drop into," as one gatewoman cheerfully remarked, and staff trains are run a few minutes before the time for the various services to begin. Upon this work, as upon all others the women are proving themselves wonderfully capable, earnest, and very conscientious. Timekeeping, I am told, is the only fault—if fault it can be named—that can be scored against her complete success, and after all that is a woman's privilege that is almost her right. The hours are either from five to three or three to twelve forty-five, with good rests between. The pay is the same as the men's, varying according to age and the class of work. "They don't shout loud enough," was the only criticism a male rival could make when I asked his opinion of the gatewomen. And I am not inclined to regard that failing as a serious disadvantage, for we are only too familiar with the ex-gateman, whose voice, though lacking nothing in volume, in quality, and enunciation, leaves very much to be desired. It is typical of the woman worker to be cheerful, and the gatewoman keeps up that reputation.

CANON CORNISH IS REMEMBERED BY BIBLE CLASS

PRESENTED WITH A GOLD CROSS AND ADDRESS AT ST. JOHN'S.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class was held in St. John's S. S. hall Thursday, May 3. The meeting was well attended, there being a number of visitors from the congregation. After the business had been transacted Rev. Canon Cornish was presented with a small gold cross by the president, Mrs. Deyman, while Mrs. May, the class leader, read the following address:

To the Rev. Canon Cornish:

Rev. and Dear Sir.—The members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church, Peterborough, wish to present you with a small cross of gold as a token of their regard for your kind interest and help in their work. It is with sincere regret that we part with you and Mrs. Cornish, and take this opportunity of wishing you both every success and God's blessing in again taking up your work in your former parish. We shall always remember you with affectionate regard, and we remain, yours sincerely.

Margaret A. May, Leader.

Canon Cornish expressed his pleasure at being the recipient of such a handsome remembrance and thanked the members of the class in a very pleasing manner, after which a short social time was spent, refreshments being served. The meeting was then closed with prayer.

GERMANS MAKE FOUR VAIN ATTACKS ON FRENCH LINES

Even Reserves and New Divisions Brought up Fail to Dislodge French From Position Recently Captured---Over One Thousand Prisoners Taken at Various Points.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 7.—Heavy counter-attacks were launched by the Germans with fresh divisions last night on the positions captured by the French yesterday along the front from Craonne to Mont Cornillet, but were repulsed in all cases, the war office announced today. In addition the French made progress east of Mont Cornillet. More than one thousand prisoners have been taken by the French.

"North of the Aisne the Germans made a violent counter-attack on the village of Craonne and the positions captured by us yesterday. All the enemy's efforts came to naught in the face of the resistance of our infantry, machine guns and artillery, and heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans. At no point were they able to approach our line. The number of prisoners taken by us in this region was 225, of whom nine are officers.

"Southeast of Berry-au-Bac the Germans attempted in a strong attack last evening to capture positions east of Hill 108. They were repulsed after an engagement, and our line was maintained intact. Information now at hand shows that after our attack yesterday northwest of Rheims the enemy made violent counter-attacks. The fighting was particularly severe. Our troops repulsed several counter-attacks made with great numbers of men. In the evening important German reserves were thrown into the battle, and, debouching from Aguilecourt, made powerful efforts without success. Our heavy guns and field batteries broke up the attack, which cost the enemy very large losses.

NEW GERMAN DIVISIONS.

"We identified two new divisions on this part of the front. Prisoners taken in this region yesterday and actually counted number 700, to which must be added 225 mentioned as having been taken in another region. In the Champagne, after very heavy artillery fighting a violent engagement occurred late yesterday in the region of Mont Cornillet. We made progress east of this hill and on the slopes north of Mont Blond. The enemy made several violent attacks with troops belonging to two fresh divisions which recently arrived on this front. These efforts were checked by our fire and one hundred prisoners taken. This brings up to more than 1,000 the number of prisoners taken yesterday between Auberive and Navarin farm, and four attacks by the enemy were without success for him.

"South of the Oise a German attack on our small posts on the southwestern edge of the upper forest of Coucy was defeated by our artillery.

"On Chemin-des-Dames there was very active artillery fighting during the night on the front between Brays-en-Laonnois and Hurtebise."

LET MAYOR DUFFUS ACT

Every day some householder complains to The Review that it is impossible to purchase any coal or wood in the city. The claim is invariably made that the dealers all maintain that they have no fuel in stock and that they are unable to ship any in. Some residents assert that by personal investigation they have satisfied themselves that there is plenty of coal in the various yards. The suspicion appears to exist that the dealers are hoarding their present supplies in the hope that prices will go still higher. The Review is asked daily "to do something."

This matter is one which it is squarely up to Mayor Duffus to deal with. He asked for just such authority as was required to investigate just such conditions as are said to exist in Peterborough, and it was conferred upon him and upon other municipalities in the country by order-in-council. Mayor Duffus was one of a deputation, Dominion-wide as to representation, who went to Ottawa. Mayor Duffus, in his address to the members of the Cabinet, asked that municipal councils be granted power to investigate the question of the high cost of living. He has been given exactly what he requested.

Mayor Duffus can at any time institute a court of inquiry in this city. If any dealers are suspected of hoarding supplies of necessaries he can subpoena them and have them examined under oath. They can be compelled to produce their books if such documentary information is regarded as essential. The evidence so collected is to be sent to Ottawa, where the proper department will decide whether a case has been made out sufficiently strong to warrant a prosecution.

That would appear to be the proper move to take if there is any ground for the complaints so frequently heard. Let Mayor Duffus act. The result of his finding would be the best possible preliminary information to determine whether municipal coal yards are really a necessity or not.

Russia Will Not Give up The Fight

Council of Workers and Soldiers Are Opposed to Separate Peace.

MAJORITY FOR WAR IS 35.

Recent Note of Russian Government to the Allies Thus Confirmed.

A late despatch from Petrograd contains the cheering intelligence that the Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Delegates has passed a vote of confidence in the government. The majority was 35 out of a total of 2,500 delegates voting.

This means that there is to be no separate peace between Russia and Germany. The action of the provisional government in declaring that the republic would remain in the war with the Allies to the end is approved. One grave cause of anxiety has been removed, and in no country will the news be more gratefully received than in Canada.

TAMBLIN FAMILY MAKE ONE MORE SACRIFICE TO EMPIRE

Receive Word That Their Son Wilson is in Hospital in France---Two Other Relatives Recently Killed.

The casualty list issued by the War Office since yesterday afternoon contains the names of several men from the Peterboro district.

NELSON TAMBLIN

Mr. Robert H Tamblin, 56 Victoria Ave., has just received information that his son, Nelson Tamblin, was wounded recently in France, and is in hospital. Last Thursday a telegram came that his son-in-law, Norman Clarke, was killed in action, and another son, A. W. Tamblin, was killed in action in December last. This makes two killed and one wounded from the same house. Mr. Tamblin has also another soldier son in England, and has given more than his share for his King and country.

BATTLE ON BRITISH FRONT RAGES NEAR BULLECOURT

Troops Not Only Maintain Positions in Face of Severe Counter Attacks But Win Front Trenches of Germans.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 5. — The most intensive centre of fighting in the past twenty-four hours continued to be in the neighborhood of Bullecourt, telegraphs Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters. Here the battle is continuous and surges in and around the ruined village so that it is difficult to say what the situation is at a given moment. South of Bullecourt the British appear not only to have maintained their positions on the Hindenburg switch, but during the night their bombers worked their way along an appreciable stretch of both front and special trenches of this system in the direction of Queant. It is no doubt on account of the great tactical significance of our gains at this point that the Germans are delivering such violent counter attacks in which

PETROGRAD, May 5. — The Provisional Government has declined to modify the note sent to the Allies. The Government declares the ministers are prepared to resign their posts if necessary. Premier Lvoff said: "To take such a step would menace the country with very serious consequences." Foreign Minister Milukoff said: "It will be an everlasting blot on our history if there should be a possibility of concluding a separate peace.. But the Council itself has declared against a separate peace."

M. Tcheidse, president of the Council, repeated his previous declarations that the imperialistic attitude of the Government was unacceptable. He said neither soldiers nor workmen are for war. If the Government does not mean to hide the watchword, "peace without contributions, it will have to make itself clear. He called attention to the fact that there was no internal discord and that the only trouble was in respect to Russia's foreign policy. Friday evening's newspapers deal with the situation in gravest words.

BISHOP MILLS, KINGSTON, DEAD

KINGSTON, May 5. — Following a long illness, the death occurred last night of Right Rev. William Lennox Mills, Bishop of Ontario, at Bishop's-court. He is survived by Mrs. Mills, and one son, Major Arthur Mills, now at the front.

The Bishop of Kingston, Right Rev. E. J. Bidwell, D.D., D.C.L., who ~~for four years has acted as~~ coadjutor now becomes Bishop of the diocese, and upon his enthronement as such will take the title of Bishop of Ontario.

No Excuse Goes

WITH POLICE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE IN AUTO CASES.

The ever-ready officers of the law noticed an auto going along George Street without a tail light visible, and to make matters worse the driver failed to respond to the police officer's whistle to stop. The number showed that it belonged to John Scott, and a summons was issued.

This morning the owner appeared before the magistrate and was fined $5.00. His excuse that his son was driving the car, and that the light was lit when the trip was started did not go with the magistrate, who refuses to accept excuses in auto cases.

MASS MEETING IN LABOR HALL MONDAY NIGHT

An open meeting will be held in the interest of all employes in the carpet mills, knitting mills, silk mills, etc., on Monday evening, May 7, at 8 o'clock in the Labor Hall, George St. Miss Mary J. Kelleher, of Scranton, Penn., general organizer for the United Eextile Workers of America, and Thos. A. Stevenson, secretary Toronto District Labor Council, will address the meeting and explain the success that has been achieved in Toronto, Guelph and other places through the organized effort. The eight-hour day is now established in Toronto, and an effort is being put forth to make it general throughout the province.

This meeting is for both ladies and gentlemen., If the ladies are required to work in the mills they should organize for shorter hours, better their conditions and increase their wages.

Remember the date and be sure and be present. Bring a friend along with you.

CITY FINANCE

Routine Business Disposed of at the Committee Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of City Finance Committee was held yesterday afternoon, and in addition to the passing of the monthly accounts the following matters were disposed of:—

A check for $5.83 will be issued to Mrs. Helen Francis to cover a mistake in figuring interest on arrears of taxes.

The council will be asked for authority for the committee to advertise the sale of the $90,000 Hydro Electric Debentures as well as the debentures for the sewer work completed last year.

The arrears of taxes on Lot 19 south of Smith Street will be written off, as it was wrongfully assessed.

The City Solicitor will be asked to report on a bill from Crown Attorney Hatton for prosecuting a case in police court under the Ontario Temperance Act.

WINNIPEG IS ON EDGE OF CRISIS

WHEAT MARKET ENDANGERS INTERESTS INVOLVING $60,000,000.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WINNIPEG, May 5. — The Telegram says Winnipeg is confronted by the gravest financial crisis that ever threatened a community in Canada. Interests involving sixty million dollars are indirectly jeopardized by the unprecedented conditions in the wheat market.

AUBURN COMPANY SOLVE THE GARDENING PROBLEM

Donate Land, Labor and Seed Potatoes to Their Married Employes---Raise of Ten Per Cent. is Granted to Every Worker in the Plant.

The Auburn Woolen Mills Company have decided to grant every employe in their plant an increase in wages of ten per cent., the change to take immediate effect. This concession, which includes the heads of departments, was made without solicitation on the part of the employes, and was entirely unexpected. At the beginning of the year the weavers were granted an increase of ten per cent., that, too, being given voluntarily by the company. The relations between the employers and the workers will now be more amicable than ever.

The company have adopted another liberal policy which, in the light of present conditions, is likely to attract more favorable comment than even the increase of their pay roll. Four acres of land, which they own near the mill, is to be plowed, harrowed and in every way thoroughly prepared for the planting of potatoes. The land will be divided into plots and each married employe of the firm allotted one of these. Seed potatoes of the best variety will be furnished by the firm entirely free of cost to the gardeners. All the work of preparation is to be done at the expense of the company. The holders of the plots will be out nothing but their labor.

If this generous policy were adopted by other firms in the city, the question of home production would be solved. Men who are anxious to cultivate land meet with many obstacles. The first of these is securing suitable land. Some owners who donate vacant lots insist that the gardener pay the taxes, and in most cases this is held to be too high a rental. There is trouble and expense, too, in getting the land plowed and otherwise ready for planting. Then the greatest difficulty, the heaviest expense of all, is in securing the seed required. All of these barriers to a successful local production campaign have been removed by the Auburn Company, and the married employes of that firm have been given the opportunity of a lifetime to make provision for next winter.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1917

MUNICIPAL COAL YARDS.

AT THE RECENT SESSION of the Legislature municipalities were given wider powers in the matter of establishing coal and wood yards in response to a demand which appeared to be general on account of the scarcity which prevailed last winter and which threatens to be more serious than ever this year. Some of the cities and towns in Ontario have already taken action, and others are likely to follow.

Municipal ownership of fuel yards is, after all, an experiment, and is yet to be proved a success. Public control of a utility is something vastly different from the same principle applied to a commercial enterprise. The fuel business under present conditions is regarded as one of the most difficult in which any man can engage. It requires expert knowledge besides years of training. The city could not hope to secure such expert service without paying handsomely for it, all of which would figure in the cost of furnishing the people with fuel.

If a man who has spent a lifetime in the business of handling coal is unable to get an adequate supply from the American mines, how can the city hope to do anything more in this regard? The entire difficulty hinges itself on the question of supply and demand. The situation, so far as fuel was concerned, was no more serious in Peterborough households last winter than it was in the homes of all American cities. Railroad transportation was curtailed in the United States as in Canada for exactly the same reason. It requires coal in order to get the fuel from the mines to the ultimate consumer. Mayor Duffus exerted himself on behalf of the public, but it does not appear that he was entirely successful in his efforts. What more could be accomplished if the coal he was after was intended for a municipal yard instead of for private dealers? What can Peterborough hope to achieve in the way of acquiring a supply of fuel while Toronto and other centres meet with the same problem?

The private coal dealer is in the same class as the grocer or other business man. Contrary to general belief, he flourishes when prices are normal rather than when they are excessively high. When the selling price rises above the purchasing power of certain classes in the community the demand falls off by reason of the enforced economy which results. The original cost to the dealer keeps pace with, if it does not proportionately exceed, the increase in the selling price. No dealer profits by handling fuel in small quantities rather than delivering it in bulk, as he does when prices are reasonable and the majority of people are able to purchase a ton of coal or a cord of wood instead of dealing in fractions.

The trouble with the coal supply can be traced to the mines, where the cost of production has increased owing to an increase in the value of labor and for other reasons. In some States the coal mines are at the point of exhaustion, and the State governments have imposed an embargo upon the products. Others have levied a tax of from fifty cents a ton upwards upon every ton of coal mined, and this tax is paid by the consumer, whether in Canada or within sight of the mines.

No country can be blamed if it gives its own people the first call on natural resources. If the United States authorities discourage the exportation of coal in a time of stress when the supply is limited and the domestic demand excessive as a result, that is a course which appeals to all American citizens. Nations, like individuals, are not free of selfishness.

Canadian municipalities should look for relief in other quarters rather than lose valuable time experimenting with public control of the fuel supply. The coal mines of this country should be worked to the limit, and care should be taken to see that at any season of the year no labor troubles interfere with their operation. Better burn wood than go without fuel, and there is plenty of timber for this purpose in Ontario yet, as easily available, too, as the coal that is mined in a foreign country and subject at any time to restrictive legislation. Canada can never be sure of an adequate supply of fuel from the republic to the south of us, whether fuel is handled here by the municipality or the private dealer.

There is white coal enough in the immediate vicinity of Peterborough to heat a city ten times as large as this throughout the most severe season. All that is lacking is development. It would be infinitely more to the purpose to expend energy in this direction rather than to exhaust it in an effort to control matters outside of civic jurisdiction. Whatever powers the municipal authorities of Peterborough may possess, they certainly stop short of controlling the affairs of the United States as they relate to the regulation of the output of coal or in any other particular. It is idle to talk of bringing civic pressure ot bear upon the Canadian transportation companies so long as these carriers are in exactly the same boat, with regard to coal, as the city itself.

AUBURN COMPANY SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

TALKING OF POTATO PLANTING, if every local firm employing a large number of hands would adopt the policy of the Auburn Woolen Mills Company, all difficulties that beset the pathway of the local amateur gardener would disappear. That company has donated four acres of land for the purposes of home production. This will be plowed, harrowed and prepared in every way for the planting of potatoes. The seed, too, will be furnished entirely free of cost, and every married employe of the company will be given a plot, and the opportunity to work it. Every bushel of potatoes he raises will be so much clear profit to himself and so much added to the visible wealth of the community. The labor expended by the gardener will be an additional benefit to a man employed indoors during his regular working hours.

The men who are anxious to take up the work of gardening encounter discouraging difficulties at the outset. It is a hard matter to obtain a suitable plot entirely free of cost, some of the owners who donate vacant lots insisting upon the tenant paying the taxes by way of rental. Many a man who would gladly plant potatoes if he had the ground for the purpose is unable to purchase seed at the present prices or to defray the cost of fitting the soil. The Auburn Woolen Mills Company has generously removed all these obstacles and their action will unite more closely than ever the amicable relations that have always existed between the management of that concern and their employes.

It is not the heads of families alone who are to be benefited by the generosity of the firm. Every employe, from the heads of departments down, is to receive an increase in wages of ten per cent., a concession all the more welcome because it has been made voluntarily and was entirely unexpected.

AMERICANS, ESPECIALLY.

THE TORONTO DAILY NEWS says it does not wish to discourage the proposal for civic coal yards, but it fears that the mayor will find all the hard coal mines in the United States tied up to either Canadian or American dealers, and so unable to take on new customers.

DON'T EAT POTATOES, PLANT THEM.

PROF. O. A. ZAVITZ, of the Ontario Agricultural College, has just issued a bulletin in which he says that the average yield of potatoes per acre in Ontario in 1916 was 53 bushels. The next lowest yield in the last thirty-five years was 76, and the average annual yield for the whole period 114 bushels per acre. Considering both yields and prices of seventeen different farm crops, those which gave the greatest returns per acre in Ontario in 1916 were as follows: Potatoes, $78; turnips and other field roots, $76; beans, $63; husking corn, $39; and fall wheat, $33. It will be seen that the highest returns were obtained from the cultivated crops.

According to present prices, the food value of rice purchased for one dollar is equal to that of potatoes costing two dollars. Rice can be used as a vegetable to take the place of potatoes. Seed potatoes are exceedingly scarce, and people throughout the province are eating potatoes which should be retained for planting. Those farmers are wise who retained their potato crop for seed purposes, even though they were criticised for not bringing them to market. Prof. Zavitz suggests that those having seed potatoes for sale beyond local requirements advertise in local, agricultural or daily papers.

HULL GOES DRY.

THE RESPECTABLE ELEMENT of Hull objected to having their city made the stamping ground of the bibulous riff-raff of Ontario, and they have voted the liquor business out of existence by a large majority. It is unfortunate that the will of the people is to be defeated to an extent. The bars of Hull will remain open for another year through a technicality. There was delay in getting the question to a vote, and this delay of a few days means that the old regime will prevail until the first of May, 1918.

The liquor party have suffered two serious reverses recently. Aylmer, a town near Hull, declared for prohibition only a few days ago. There are now nine hundred and seventy-eight municipalities dry as against one hundred and eighty under the license system. There is not a doubt that if the question were submitted to a general vote the province would declare for prohibition by a large majority. The Government, running true to form, refuses to do more than temporize with the temperance issue.

Every province in the Dominion is now under prohibition except Quebec and British Columbia. One of the misfortunes of a confederation system of government is that two provinces, insisting upon their constitutional rights, can nullify to a degree the sumptuary legislation that has been adopted by a majority of the voters in the remaining seven divisions of the country.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE ARMY of June brides will as usual be recruited by the selective draft.

• • • •

EVEN THE MONTH OF MAY is something of a slacker in enlisting for spring service.

• • • •

THESE DARK DAYS it is the heathen alone who is entirely safe from the horrors of modern civilization.

• • • •

ALL THINGS considered, the farmer pays more for the labor he hires than any other employer in the country.

• • • •

OF ALL THE TERMS, conscription, compulsion, or selective draft, the latter is the most euphonious, although all mean the same thing.

• • • •

THE COUNTRY can hardly make a more dismal failure of the management of those railways than the present owners have achieved.

• • • •

ONE DAY the Liberals are for better markets for the farmer; the next they would expropriate what he has to sell. The time-server is seldom consistent.

• • • •

MARSHAL JOFFRE at the Montreal Win-the-War convention, should do more for recruiting than the presence of a dozen or so self-seeking politicians.

• • • •

THE MAN whose economical but inexperienced helpmeet talks of baking her own bread may well tremble as he notes the rise in the price of the staff of life.

• • • •

THAT OLD BOOK that still holds the place of honor on the parlor table in a number of homes assures us of a seed time and harvest while the earth lasts. "Oh, ye of little faith."

• • • •

ST. THOMAS is to revert to the use of slates in the schools, owing to the high cost of paper. As between economy and sanitation, the Railroad City decides in favor of the dollar.

• • • •

THE RESOURCEFUL ice dealer who hesitates about charging the war with the increase in the price of his wares, is not without an excuse. Prohibition has probably lessened the supply of water.

LITERARY RAMBLES

There are comparatively few of the present generation who have heard of that once famous article that appeared in Blackwood's Magazine entitled "The Battle of Dorking." It was considered for some time to have been the work of Col. Hamley, a well-known military writer of the period, but finally it was discovered to have been written by Sir George Chesney, at that time (1871) President of the Royal Indian Engineering College at Cooper's Hill, Staines. The article is a remarkable one from the fact that it so closely foretold the means by which Germany would attempt to vanquish England both on sea and land. It sold at first in sixpenny pamphlet form, and considerably more than 100,000 copies were sold. It was an attempt to awaken England from her dream of security, and it certainly did succeed in making a very large number keenly alive to a sense of the coming danger. But it did not succeed in making Mr. Gladstone anxious. On the contrary, he inveighed against it in the bitterest terms, saying that such publications made England ridiculous in the eyes of the world, and tended to the expenditure of public money. In a speech at Whitby, he declaimed thus: "Let this old England, let this United Kingdom, place her trust in Providence." Later on, at Greenwich, being still worked up by the furore that the book had created, he declared that he regarded such writers with less toleration than if they had been disseminating smallpox or the cattle plague. It would be less criminal, he said, to perpetrate the monstrous atrocity of spreading a contagious disease than to suggest that foreign powers may perhaps entertain designs incompatible with peace. "Some of us may think, not altogether without reason, that a man who could be so blind to the shortcomings of human nature as exemplified by potentates and governments, as to deliberately desire to leave England an easy prey to their cupidity, was not altogether the man to whom her destiny could be safely entrusted, and that it could not have been entirely without reason that Lord Palmerston passed this dictum upon him: "That young man will ruin England and die in a mad-house."

It is interesting to note that The Spectator of that day upheld the writer of "The Battle of Dorking" and said that there was nothing impossible in the picture that he had conjured up, but that instead of torpedoes being the weapons by which England's fleet would be brought low it would probably be by barrels of nitro-glycerine thrown by catapults on the decks of the warships.

The account is presumed to have been penned about 1925, and the action to have taken place fifty years before, that is about nine years after the Franco-Prussian war, at which time, the author thought, Germany would consider herself strong enough to throw off the mask and aspire to world power. It is well worth reading. The Library is lucky enough to possess two copies of Blackwood's Magazine containing this article, and they are, of course, at the service of anyone who would care to read them.

WOMAN EATS TOO MUCH

Mind, Looks, and Health Depend on Kinds of Food

It is the most logical thing in the world that one's looks, health and mental outlook should be the direct result of what one eats. Yet surprisingly few women take this fact into consideration. Dozens of letters a day reach me, says a woman writer, complaining of pimples, blackheads, rough skin, liver spots, dull eyes, bad breath. The letters show great discouragement on the part of the writers; each one seems to think her complaint is a sort of curse that has been visited unjustly upon her, and each one asks, in supreme faith, for a new sort of tonic or cold cream. As though tons of cream could bleach out the disfigurements that come from accumulations of poison in the system!

A woman's health, youth and looks depend upon what she eats. And each woman must eat different sorts of foods, in different proportions, from every other woman. You can only tell what your diet should be, by experimenting and by watching the effect of the experiments upon you.

A good, general rule to remember is that every one eats too much. Therefore eat less in quantity, and more in quality of food. Eat meat only once a day, avoiding hard-to-digest kinds. Eat all the fruit you can, all the fresh vegetables you can, for these contain mineral salts and acids that revitalize and clean out the system. Eat salads and eggs, because the sulphur is a tonic. Once the system is clear, the bowels free from collected impurities, and the stomach receiving only the foods it needs, in quantities such as it can easily handle, the skin will clear and firm flesh and a good color will follow.

WANTS UGLY HUSBANDS

Why Modern Adonis is Not so Desirable to a Woman

Louise Heilgers says: Husbands never hesitate to take all the fat—as well as anything else they can—but, all the same, I can't help feeling a sneaking sympathy for the husband a wife turned out of doors the other day because "he had grown too old and ugly to live with." Wives shouldn't be matrimonial epicures. If they get cold beef where they expect a roast, well—they should remember that some people don't even get that. And, anyway, husbands are not intended to be beauties—in the Grecian profile sense of the word—that is, most of them are beauties in other ways.

Isn't it the ugly men of this world who have always had the most passionate love affairs? There are men with broken noses who have broken more feminine hearts than all their straight-nosed brothers put together. I never have believed in the Narcissus type of lover myself. The man with a head like a bronze coin—it's about all the coin he has, by the way, as a rule—is generally far too much taken up with himself to have much time to spare for his love. Give me an ugly man any day to a best seller kind of hero. When I walk out I like to be taken for the beauty, to allow no reasonable doubt whether it is my escort or myself who is the beast.

Pepper and Mint Salad

Bruise enough mint leaves to fill a large cup. Pour over a pint of boiling water and let steep for five minutes. Strain all the juice, add to half a box of gelatin with just enough cold water to cover and a cup of white sugar. Pour the mint liquor over all and stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved. Remove the seeds from red peppers and add them to the jelly when partially cool. Mould and allow to harden. Serve with mayonnaise into which a little whipped cream has been beaten.

MAPLE LEAF ARMY

Canadians Greatest Map-makers—Lord Northcliffe's Tribute to Canada

Lord Northcliffe, in speaking of his experiences at the front, says: Byng and his Canadian generals have utilized the specialities of the daily work of the Canadians with signal effect. He and his officers "get together," to use an expression often heard in Canada, continually in conferences and lectures. By this means they have found out exactly what particular aptitude the Canadians can bring to bear in beating the Boche. One speciality is map-making and surveying. For obvious reasons the Canadians are probably the greatest map-makers in the world, just as they are the greatest railroad builders. They are map-makers by necessity, for they have a rich and largely undeveloped territory 40 times the size of the Old Country, which is being mapped and surveyed continuously. For the better accomplishment of their purpose they have not only developed their own map-makers but have absorbed the best talent from Europe. That skill has now been developed in the Canadian army in France. When I revisited Sir Julian two features of his small personal workroom attracted my attention—the theatre posters of the "Bing Boys" and the red-hot maps showing German positions which had been already photographed by aviators, developed, mapped, printed, and circulated up and down the line. This would be "going some" even in Fleet street. Accurate photography and mapping of the enemy lines is a life saver of the first importance. How often in the earlier days of the war did we bow our heads before heavy casualty lists caused by machine guns from a German trench that had been overlooked in the planning of a bombardment!

Cost of War Up to Date Reaches Over $44 a Head For World's Population

THE cost of the war in Europe is so great that few persons are able to grasp the significance of the figures. It has been estimated that the amount which has actually been expended for war purposes by the various governments had reached about $71,740,000,000 on February 1st last.

If the cost of the war were distributed equally among all the inhabitants of the globe, from the Eskimo in his smelly igloo, who has never heard of the war, to the African bushman, who is equally ignorant, every man, woman, and child would have to pay $44. The population of the world is estimated at 1,623,000,000.

Here is another comparison: Suppose a philanthropist or a caliph, as O. Henry would have put it, living in the year Caesar was assassinated, 44 B. C., had in his coffers the amount spent in the European war and decided to give it away to poor people a silver dollar at a time. If the poor people kept coming at the rate of one a second and the caliph never took a second off to get a bite to eat or snatch a cat nap he would still be dealing out a dollar a second day and night in the present year and would be doomed to do so for 315 years more. As the silver dollars he would handle during the whole time would weigh about 2,100,000 tons he would be rather tired at the end of his task.

A man with the money spent in a single day for the European war in his pockets could ride in a taxi to the sun and back, paying 50 cents a mile, and have $15,502,600 left to tip the driver. That is not such a large tip as you might think either, for the journey at the rate of 20 miles an hour would take 1,063 years—that is, until 2980 A. D. The estimated daily cost of the war is $108,400,000. The distance to the sun is 92,897,400 miles. Enjoy yourself.

It is impossible to visualize the amount of constructive work which could be done with that seventy-one billions. One of the longest tunnels in the world, if not the longest, the Loetschberg tunnel through the Alps, in Switzerland, cost less than $10,000,000 to build. That is under one-tenth of the daily war cost to the Allies and Central Powers. The cost of the Panama canal is being spent every five or six days by the Allies, or every thirteen days by Great Britain.

The Teutonic powers are not spending as much money as the Allies; in fact, their expenditures have been placed at about half those of their opponents, but once a day's cost of the war to the Teutons and their friends is enough to buy the land for and build nearly three Woolworth buildings. The site, foundation, and construction of this tallest building of the world cost about $13,500,000.

Molybdenum.

Molydenum is a substance which is playing a part in the present war for both the Allies and the Germans. Used in hardening the steel which is used in the rifling of the big guns, it is reported to have increased the life of the guns twenty times, and many projectiles are also hardened with molybdenum as well as a great deal of the armor plate which was formerly hardened with tungsten or vanadium. It is estimated, too, that the amount of molybdenum required to harden steel is only about one-half to one-third the amount of tungsten which is necessary to give the same result. Curiously enough, molybdenum is used also as a stabiliser in some high explosives, smokeless powders, and to make a dense smoke in the location bombs which are fired previous to the firing of the projectile. It is used in many chemicals and in dyes for leather, rubber, silk, as a disinfectant, for fireproofing, in some cases in place of platinum, while in electric lights it has replaced other metals which were previously used for the support of the filament. The output of Canada at the present time is perhaps the largest in the world.

How the Horsefly Bites.

When a horsefly alights on a horse, he walks around looking for a tender spot, and this he finds with his hairy feelers. Then he cuts a hole with the scissors on each side of the central tubular tongue. An ordinary lead pencil cannot be sharpened to a point without sharpening the lead. So it is with the tubular end of this tongue-like extension of the horsefly. Nature has provided it with barbed, piercing "derrick ropes." The fly inserts these sharp points into the horse and then pulls back on them. The barbs hold and the fly's tongue is forced down into the horse's flesh. But if the hole has already been made, then it is not necessary for these elaborate tools to be taken from the sheath in which they are placed within the tongue or proboscis. The blood is sucked up by the tongue in practically the same way as by other forms of flies.

Soap Bubble Portraits.

Professor Boys, of England, experimenting with bubbles, obtained some very large ones, which in the sunshine changed colors so beautifully that he conceived the idea of using them as backgrounds for photographs. The large bubbles were blown with an ordinary bellows. The soap solution was heated and a large-mouthed funnel was dipped into it. The bellows, connected with the funnel, was then worked very gently. Bubbles with as great a circumference as two and a half feet were easily obtained.

To the War With an Ambulance

ONE of the prominent Canadian University men who accompanied the first army from the Dominion to the trenches in France was William Boyd, Professor of Pathology in the University of Manitoba. He has recently published a book giving his impression of the front, and it is one that should prove interesting because of its intimate personal touch. Professor Boyd has not written a war book such as the special correspondent turns out. "With a Field Ambulance at Ypres" is in reality a diary, written in the kitchens of French farmhouses, in muddy dugouts, and other romantic places from time to time, and then sent home to give friends an idea of what was going on. In most cases the accounts were written within twenty-four hours of the events described, which of course adds to their value.

Professor Boyd gives one of the most graphic stories of the effects of the gas when first used that has been written. His description is dated April 28th, 1915, the day that will be long remembered by the Canadians because of the introduction of the new and ghastly mode of warfare. Professor Boyd says:

"There is only one word in the mouth of every one to-day—gas. Vague rumors of gas have been floating about, but no one really believed them. Now the stage of rumor is past, and we know the worst. And a very bad worst it is.

"This morning I had to go to one of the casualty clearing stations, and there I saw a sight which for sheer ghastliness equals anything to be seen in any dressing station. The hospital is built around a great courtyard, and in that courtyard were two hundred men on stretchers. Some were lying in a state of stupor, the flies buzzing about their faces; some were sitting up gasping for breath, with hands and faces of a deep, dusky hue, evidently in the greatest distress; over the countenance of others the pallid hues of death were beginning to creep, whilst a few had fallen back and with gurglings in the throat were passing away into the undiscovered country. They were the first gas cases from Ypres and Hill 60.

"The description of the gas varied to an extraordinary extent. It was described as black, brown, yellow, green, and white. Some said that it came from large hose pipes attached to cylinders, others that it was contained in hand grenades, others that it came from shells fired from field guns, and still others that a fluid was sprayed on to the trenches, which was then ignited by fire-shells. There seems to be little doubt that all four methods were employed. It is also probable that different gases were used at different parts of the line. Most of it was brown like bromine, some yellow or green like chlorine, and the black fumes may have been due to the ignition of some fluid such as benzol. It was quite impossible to see or breathe in this gas, and even when the men got out of it the lungs and heart were so affected that they were quite unable to make any exertion. One and all were agreed that to face this new danger unprotected was impossible.

"The principal method seems to have been as follows: The gas was launched from cylinders, and was carried by the easterly breeze right on to our trenches, into which, being very heavy, it rolled. Our men had to clear out of the trenches, whereupon they were met by a withering rifle fire. A couple of hundred yards back there was a swell in the ground which sheltered them from rifle fire, but a storm of shrapnel burst over their heads, for the German gunners had the range to a yard, and had everything in readiness. It was very much the method of sending a ferret down a rabbit hole, and waiting at the other opening with a gun.

"There is a wounded German officer in hospital who says that four days ago cylinders of gas arrived in the trenches, but the wind was not favorable at the time, so they were dug into position and used when the wind veered round into the east. The German troops in the first line trenches were served out with some form of mask impregnated with a chemical, which they wore over their nose and mouth. Every effort is being made at present to secure one of these, and determine the chemical present, but so far without success. M—— has gone away up north this evening to try to secure one from the German prisoners, and his return is anxiously awaited. Meanwhile I have been very busy investigating the blood of some of the worst cases, examining the serum spectroscopically, in the hope that some indication may be afforded as to the nature of the gas, but up to the present the results have been disappointing."

Publicity Needed.

In a leading article printed in The Paris Matin by a special representative visiting Ottawa, a comprehensive survey of Canada's efforts is made. Both military and industrial phases of the Dominion's war work are dealt with. In fact, says the correspondent, the Ministers assured him the only article of military equipment not provided by Canada was lorgnettes. On the banks of the St. Lawrence, as on those of the Thames and the Seine, people are gladly giving money, blood and work for the cause of humanity.

Discussing this article a Canadian officer declared that such publicity regarding Canadian doings was greatly needed on the Continent, not only in France, but in the neutral countries. Countries such as Norway and Sweden, although receiving propaganda matter about Great Britain, are ignorant of what Canada is doing.

THE BLESSING OF A HEALTHY BODY

Has Not Had An Hour's Sickness Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. MARRIOTT

73 Lees Ave., Ottawa, Ont.,
August 9th, 1915.

"I think it my duty to tell you what "Fruit-a-tives" has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run-down and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of "Fruit-a-tives", I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 3½ years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using "Fruit-a-tives", and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain".

Slight Variation.

"I believe in an eye for an eye!" shouted the wild eyed chap with the long hair.

"And I believe in the tooth for a tooth doctrine," laughed the tall man in the gold rimmed eyeglasses.

"That's a queer doctrine, friend."

"Not at all. I pull one tooth out and put another in its place. I'm a dentist."—Puck.

What It Looks Like.

"Oh, look, look, nursie! The moon's all gone away, and there isn't anything left but just its skin!"—Delineator.

Just Possible.

"I hope the stage will get the airship craze," said the theatrical manager.

"Because why?" asked the soubrette.

"Because it may then use its wings in an attempt to elevate itself," answered the theatrical manager.—Chicago News.

His Duty.

Recruit—"If you was to put the lid on, you wouldn't get so much dust in the soup."

Cook—"See, here, me lad, your business is to serve your country."

Recruit—"Yus, but not to eat it!" —Tit-Bits.

About Skirts.

In conformity with the straight line effect the skirts are considerably narrower than those of last season—two to two and one-half yards in width. Where plaits are used they are pressed down so as to preserve the narrow effect.

TOOK TIME BY FORELOCK.

Mr. Blank's Theater Invitation to His Wife.

HE was a very busy man, and, like all of his kind, he hated to waste time by unnecessary waiting. That was why in the midst of his correspondence along about 11 o'clock the other morning, he paused and, turning to his secretary, requested him to ring up his residence on the phone.

"Jemmison," he said, "get my house on the wire and ask Mrs. Blank to come to the phone. Just tell them that I wish to speak to her."

The secretary made off, and in a few minutes the required connection was made.

"Is that you, Mary?" he said.

"Yes," was the answer.

"Well, this is John," he said. "I have just rung you up to tell you that Barker was in here this morning with two tickets for the theater tonight. He and Mrs. Barker have been called suddenly out of town and he thought we might like to use the tickets. How about it?"

"Fine!" replied Mrs. Blank. "I have nothing else to do."

"All right, my dear," continued Blank. "The curtain rises at half past 8."

"Yes, I know," said Mrs. Blank.

"I thought I'd let you know in time, so that directly you have had your lunch you can begin to put your hat on," he went on. "Then we can get there before the middle of the first act. By-by, dear."

The only answer was an angry click at the other end of the wire, which seemed to indicate that another receiver was in trouble, but Mr. Blank only laughed as he returned to his work.—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Enemy's Whereabouts.

At least one British censor has a sense of humor. When a Canadian soldier wrote home to his people that he had been buried alive for two hours in a demolished dugout, he added: "I had the satisfaction of sending five of the Germans to hell." The censor drew a line through the sentence, but wrote underneath: "It is not permitted to refer to the whereabouts of the enemy."

Small Hats.

This year, while the small hat will be smart, the crown on both the straw and the flower hat will be quite high. Small hats have heretofore fit the head closely, and, while this type of hat is becoming to small heads, it is quite trying to most faces.

The Best Medicine For Little Ones

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are a genuine laxative—mild, but thorough in action—and are guaranteed by a Government analyst to be absolutely free from opiates and other injurious drugs. Concerning them Mrs. Auguste, St. Brieux, Sask., writes: "Enclosed find twenty-five cents for another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I find them the very best medicine a mother can give her little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

YOUR ROSEBUSH

Do You Prefer Climbers or Free Bloomers on Your Place?

AN EXPERT ADVISES US.

Points About Varieties, Soil, Drainage, Watering and General Care For Those Who Love the Most Beautiful of All June's Flowers.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

The principal essentials in soils for rose growing are thorough drainage and a plentiful supply of organic matter, with a reasonably constant water supply during the growing season. A soil capable of growing good garden or field corps is, in general, good for roses. Rotted cow manure is the best fertilizer. Any other well rotted manure or compost will serve the purpose, however. The use of fresh manure, especially horse manure, should be avoided. If used, under no circumstances should it be allowed to touch the roots. Of the commercial fertilizers ground bone is excellent, but will not take the place of compost. Cottonseed meal may be used in the same way as bone. Wood ashes are sometimes a helpful addition.

Climbing roses require much plant food and should be planted in a generously sized hole filled with good soil.

Early spring planting is advisable in the extreme northern portion of the United States and on the western plains. In other regions fall planting is advantageous, but the difference is not sufficiently great to warrant postponing planting from spring until autumn, when the rose grower is ready at the earlier season. The planting in spring should be done as soon as the ground is dry enough to work. The fall planting should follow immediately the falling of the leaves from trees and bushes. In general rose plants should be set out as soon as possible after they arrive from the nursery, and if it is impossible to plant immediately the plants should be placed in a trench and the roots covered. If the stems are shriveled, vitality may be restored by burying the whole plant for a few days. If frozen plants are received they should be placed where they will thaw out gradually and should not be unpacked until the frost is thoroughly out. In carrying the plants to the planting ground care should be taken to have the roots covered. Probably the best plan is to carry the plants in a bucket of water.

Set the plants a little deeper than they were during their nursery growth, but be careful not to plant too deeply. When grafted stock is used the point of union should be well under the surface of the ground. Trim the ends of roots of dormant plants and spread the roots out in the hole. Shake the plant up and down as the dirt is filled in. When the roots are covered it is well to tramp down the soil if not too wet.

For the lawn and border—Rugosa or Wrinkled Japanese rose, Rosa lucida, Carolina, Prairie, Arkansas, sweetbrier, Rosa eglanteria or Rosa lutea, dwarf polyantha, cabbage and damask roses.

For arbor and trellis—Wichuraiana or memorial, multiflora, laevigata and Noisette groups.

For hedges—Rugosa and the brier roses.

For ground covers—Rosa lucida for covering two to three feet deep; Rosa nitida for eighteen inch cover; wichuraiana for close, trailing cover.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need A Tonic Medicine.

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia, poor appetite, and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box of six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A SILENT DRAMA THAT ABOUNDS WITH THRILLS

The story of "The Whip," the moving picture dramatization of which was presented for the first time at the Grand Opera House last night, centres around a designing woman with all the bewitching charm of the Lorelei siren, an unprincipled and outcast scion of British autocracy, reduced to the extremity of living on his wits, and a race horse of uncertain temper whose performance brought disaster to the book makers and sudden fortune to those in the secret of his speed. Of all the silent dramas ever presnted in Peterborough, "The Whip" probably contains the most thrills. No expense has been spared to make the representation true to life, although to accomplish that much required the wrecking of an automobile and the ditching of an express train.

A hunt club following a pack of hounds in full cry after a fox, taking fences and ditches with equal ease in their reckless run, is one of the features of the exhibition. There are ocean scenes and pictures of wassail and ballroom gaieties. The villain triumphs for a time, but gets his deserts in the end, so that the moral tone so esential in the drama, spoken or silent, is maintained.

The real interest of the story is in the horse whose name has been taken as that of the play itself. The Whip's evil temper is subdued, and to the knowledge of but a chosen few he qualifies as the almost certain winner of the $10,000 Saratoga handicap. The talent had regarded him as a joke and a flivver. One bookmaker realizes his mistake after he has given odds of twenty to one against The Whip in a $3000 bet. When he is convinced that he stands to lose sixty thousand dollars in one crash he sets out to prevent The Whip from starting in the race. The frustrated plan to wreck the train that carries the horse from his training quarters to the race track is one of the climaxes of the play.

The saddling bell rings, and the bugle calls the horses to the barrier. Then the jockey riding The Whip is arrested on a trumped-up charge. Again the plot fails. The judges allow five minutes to find another. There is only one more person in the world—the owner's daughter, who can do anything with the uncertain-tempered Whip. She dons the riding togs of the jockey and the colors of her father's stable and dashingly rides The Whip to victory.

There was a large attendance at the theatre last night and a crowded matinee today. The performance will be repeated this evening and it is certainly entitled to a continued liberal patronage.

Studebaker
Established 1852

SPECIFICATIONS-FOUR

The Studebaker Series "18" FOUR at $1375 is one of the highest grade four-cylinder cars on the market.

The chassis is perfected from four years of study on one basic design, based on the experience of 250,000 Studebaker cars in service in all parts of the country.

The body work is as fine as the highest grade materials and best workmanship can produce. The finish is hand applied—twenty-five operations.

The upholstering is made of genuine leather on genuine long curled hair over the best coiled spring frame work.

The equipment throughout is distinctly high grade. Even an expensive Yale Tumbler Lock is provided for the Ignition switch.

In short, the Studebaker FOUR is distinctly the greatest automobile value on the market today at any price. You CANNOT afford to pay LESS for a four-cylinder car when you can obtain this quality at $1375—it is absolutely unnecessary to pay more.

APPEAL TO MANUFACTURERS

To Spare Some Of Their Staff For Farm Work

An urgent appeal has been issued by the executive committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to its members, as employers in the aggregate of something like a quarter of a million men and women, to give immediate and serious consideration to the possibility of sparing some portion f their staffs for farm work. The committee acknowledges its appreciation of the fact that in some lines factory help is already too sparse and recognizes that the materials certain manufacturers are producing are just as essential to the prosecution of the war as food.

The procedure suggested is to make an immediate canvass of all working forces, with a view first to ascertaining the names of those who have had farm experience, and next the names of those in that class who would be willing to return to the farm temporarily for a month now for seeding and another month later for harvesting, in order to facilitate the operation of the scheme employers are asked to forward names and addresses to the Director of National Service for their patriotic district.

SLATES OUR FATHERS USED

St. Thomas School Board To Revert To Old Style

Owing to the shortage of paper in the country and the increased prices, there will be curtailment in the public and high schools of St. Thomas. The Board of Education is seriously considering the advisability of using the old-fashioned slates in the public schools instead of paper. Every child in the school has been told to cut down on the amount of paper used, and it is quite likely that the pupils in the grammar clases will not be allowed paper from now on. The last supplies obtained by the school board cost the city double the amount expended in previous years.

WANT $800,000

For Chinese and Japanese Missions Of Methodist Church

After hearing of the rapid expansion of the work in China and Japan, and of new opportunities afforded by the war, the executive of the Mission Board of the Methodist Church decided that they must have at least $800,000 to cary on their work this year, and a committee was appointed to plan for a campaign to be launched in October in connection with the annual meeting of the board. Rev. Dr. C. J. L. Bates reported on the work being done among the students of Tokio University, where the Metropolitan church is in the midst of the student population Rev. W. Sager, M.A., M.D., and Miss Mabel Thompson, a trained nurse, were appointed for medical work in China. Dr. T. H. Williams, a gold medallist of Manitoba Colege, was accepted for China, but as he wishes to go on active service, his appointment was deferred until after the war.

ST. PAUL'S CONGREGATION HAS 82 YEARS OF HISTORY

Brief Sketch of Church That Was First Organized in 1835 and Has Grown From Small Beginning---Anniversary Tomorrow

The anniversary services of St. Paul's Church will be conducted tomorrow by Rev. R. B. Cochrane, M.A., of Toronto. Mr. Cochrane is a son of the late Dr. Cochrane, minister for many years of Zion Church, Brantford, and one of the most outstanding figures in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Mr. Cochrane's first charge was Knox Church, Woodstock. He has been in his present field of labour, College St. Presbyterian Church, for two years, and during that time has proven himself a worthy successor of his distinguished father. He has preaching gifts of a high order, and the members and adherents of St. Paul's may look for a profitable day on the occasion of their Anniversary. Rev. R. Pogue has gone to Toronto and will preach in Mr. Cochrane's church to-morrow.

REV. R. POGUE

For nine years the successful and popular pastor of St. Paul's.

Eighty-two Years of Service.

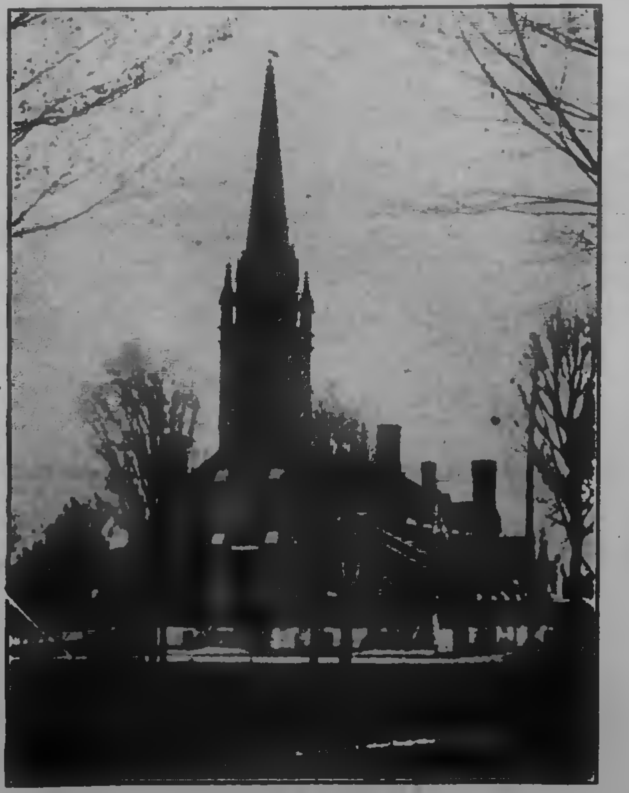
St. Paul's Church has eighty-two years of creditable history. Up to the year 1833 there had been no attempt made to supply the spiritual needs of the Presbyterians who had settled in this district. One year later Rev. J. M. Roger, a minister of the Church of Scotland, Aberdeen, reached Canada and gathered together a small congregation here, and on the boundary of Cavan, near Springville. A small building, still standing until a few years ago, was erected on the north part of lot 7, north of King street.

In May, 1834, Mr. Roger, acting under the direction of the Kingston Presbytery, held an election for elders. Those chosen for Peterborough were: Andrew Tully, John Hutchinson, M.D., John Edmison and David Hamilton. William Robson and Robert Thomson were elected to serve in the Cavan branch of the congregation.

On May 30th, 1835, a grant was made to the congregation of the lot on which St. Andrew's Church now stands, and in 1836 a stone church was erected by the congregation. Sheriff Hall was the first superintendent of the Sunday school.

In 1843 came the disruption in the Church of Scotland. A number of ministers and elders in this country decided to organize the "Presbyterian Church in Canada." Among these were Mr. Roger and the representative elder in Peterborough. In 1844 the congregation decided by a standing vote to uphold the action of the minister and session. Thirteen years later the Church of Scotland Synod demanded possession of the church property. There was no choice but to comply, and it was decided to seek a new home, all but six of the congregation so ruling.

For two years the congregation thus dispossessed was without a settled home, meeting for a time in the town hall and afterward in the school room belonging to the Methodist Church, but in 1859 a building was erected on the present site of Knox Church at a cost of $20,000. It has since been enlarged into the present commodious edifice.



ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

The members of the congregation who refused to follow Mr. Roger and the others remained and formed the nucleus of what is now St. Andrew's. Those who seceded, however, took the church records with them.

St. Paul's Pastors.

Mr. Roger built for his residence the building on Park street now occupied by Mr. G. Walter Green. He was obliged to retire from the ministry in 1875 on account of ill health. He was succeeded in 1876 by Mr. E. F. Torrance, of Montreal, who was ordained and inducted June 28th of that year, and who was a successful pastor for thirty-one years. When he resigned in 1907 a call was extended to Rev. R. Pogue of Philadelphia, under whose earnest and efficient pastorate the congregation has steadily grown until now it numbers over one thousand members. A mission established in the southwestern part of the city by the congregation of St. Paul's has grown up into the vigorous congregation of Knox Church.

St. Paul's Church is justly noted for its excellent choral service under the direction of Mr. John Allan, assisted by Miss Dorothy Allan, who is recognized as one of the best soprano soloists in Canada and who has made the name of this city famous wherever she has appeared. The musical service tomorrow will be of special interest.

TO A FALLEN HERO.

Beautiful Verses by Mr. DelaFosse Have Been set to Music.

The following words, written by Mr. F. M. DelaFosse, who has contributed from time to time to the columns of the local press, have been set to music by Mr. Asa Huycke. The subject will explain itself. The song is being copyrighted and is in process of publication:

In glory thou hast passed, my noble brother,—
On foreign soil thy form lies cold and still,
Where, thick as leaves, amid the stench and smother,
Lads staunch and true as thou the valleys fill.

No more we'll hear thy laughing lips deliver
The boyish jest, the sally fraught with glee;
Thy voice is silent as the silent river
That bore thy spirit to the tideless sea.

Tears unavailing flow, and heart-strings tighten,
For women weep; and strong men bow in pain;
Yet, through the clouds, soon shall the morning brighten—
Ah, steadfast soul, thou hast not fought in vain.

For countless thousands, rich, or wise, or clever,
Their selfish years lived out, unloved, depart—
But thee nor wrack nor ruin shall dissever
From the warm love that stirs thy country's heart.

BATTLE ON

they are suffering prodigious losses.

The official statement from London this morning said the British made further progress north of Havrincourt wood and near Fresnois.

MORE RAIDS REPULSED.

The text of the statement reads: We made a successful raid last night east of Leverguier. Northwest of St. Quentin, where we captured a few prisoners and made progress north of Havrincourt wood and in the neighborhood of Fresnois. The enemy made three further counter attacks during the night upon our new positions in the Hindenburg line. The first of his attempts was broken up by our artillery fire, and the second and third were driven off by our infantry after sharp fighting. Hostile raiding parties were successfully repulsed early this morning.

UNITED STATES NAVAL BOARD MAY HAVE SOLVED SUBMARINE PROBLEM

Claim is Made That Destruction of All the U. Boats is Possible.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 5. — W. L. Saunders, chairman of the naval consulting board here, announced today that the board had forwarded to Washington plans for dealing with the submarine menace which it was believed had solved the problem successfully. Mr. Saunders supplemented the announcement by saying that while the submarine danger cannot be considered in reality to be passed until the U boats are destroyed, nevertheless numerous experiments have been made on the Atlantic coast which had led the board to have great confidence.

COMPLETE WORK ON FOOT BRIDGE

BOARD OF WORKS HAS INSTRUCTED ENGINEER TO GO AHEAD.

The Board of Works met last evening and cleaned up a number of matters which had been referred to them.

Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons were given permission to build a nine inch brick fence to the south and east of their factory, and to place a roof on it under the supervision of the city engineer.

Chairman Weir, Mayor Duffus, the City Engineer, and the City Solicitor were appointed a committee to confer with the City Council on the plans for the new court house.

The account of White Bros., which had been held up owing to a loss caused by their delivering the goods without notifying the engineer the result being that boys carried off the material before the city had used any of it, was ordered paid.

The railway companies will be notified not to deliver goods consigned to the city without first having a written order to do so.

A concrete tank for the purpose of storing road oil will be built at once in the city yard.

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to complete the work on the C.P.R. foot bridge and to construct the sidewalks and fences necesary at once.

The city engineer was asked to take into consideration the laying of gas mains on any of the streets which he proposes to do extensive road work on this year.

The repairing of the Hunter St. bridge was left with the Chairman and the City Engineer. They have full power to renew the bolts and braces if necesary.

Col. Walker, of the 57th Regiment, will be asked if he can use the street signs that were placed through the city by the 93rd Batt., and if not, the City Engineer will remove them.

The material that is being taken out of the excavation for the Bonner Worth Factory will be examined as to its fitness for street work.

HANG UP IN THE KITCHEN

Useful Hints For Careful Housewives —Don't Neglect Them

Salt put on an ink stain freshly made will loosen the mark.

Never let milk stand in a tin. Pour it into a well rinsed cold china or earthenware bowl.

The tiny spots sometimes seen on lemon rind are the eggs of insects, and should be rubbed off before the lemon is used.

A leg of mutton boiled in a muslin bag looks better when cooked, and loses less while cooking, than if boiled without.

Water in which fish has been boiled should be poured, when cold, on to the rose bed, if you are not making it into soup. It will improve your roses wonderfully.

Don't throw away apple parings. Stew to a pulp, rub through a sieve, and add to the cooked apples. Or else flavor the soup with them. It is the part of the apple immediately under the skin which contains the most valuable salts.

To make an ever-ready pudding cloth take a piece of unbleached calico, cut it into a circle, hem, and run a piece of tape through. Sew a wide piece of tape across to form a handle with which to lift the pudding from the pan, and you will experience no more scalded fingers.

How Chinese Prepare Tea

In order to preserve the seeds and the flavour, the tea is compressed by the bare feet of Chinese girls. The Chinese prepare their tea in various ways. A favourite method is to tie it in bundles and pour boiling water on the bundle when serving. Afterwards the bunches are preserved in vinegar for a few weeks and then they are made into leaf-salad.

GREEK'S QUAINT PASTIME

Boot Cleaning is a Greek's Ideal of Enjoyment

Boot-cleaning, says a London paper, one of the indoor recreations that Salonica offers, ranks among the national industries of Greece. To sit drinking little cups of thick Turkish coffee, and having his boots cleaned at the same time, is the Greek's ideal of a pleasant afternoon. The "lustros," as the Greek shoeblack is musically called, though usually of tender age, is a true artist. He first scrapes your boots clean of the smallest fragment of mud, then wipes them carefully so as to have a perfectly clean background to work on. After that he applies the blacking, not by dabbing the blacking brush into the tin, but with a variety of little metal implements and sponges. When he has brushed this to a bright polish, you imagine that your shine is over, but it has really only begun, for the "lustros" now goes on to bring the high lights by smearing your boots over with a colourless cream, which he brushes again to brilliance, and finishes off by two or three minutes' friction with a velvet cloth. He completes his work by painting the edge of sole and heel with a sort of varnish. If you attempt during all this time to withdraw your foot before he is satisfied with the effect produced, the lustros [illegible] [illegible] with the back of the brush.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Peach Cake

Materials: One cup flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon melted butter, ⅓ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup sugar, 1 quart of peaches, 1 egg. Utensils: Mixing bowl, flour sifter, two measuring cups, teaspoon, tablespoon, egg-beater, soup plate to beat egg on, deep pan, knife.

Directions: Sift flour, baking powder, salt and 2 tablespoons sugar into bowl; add the milk and melted butter and mix well; then add the well-beaten egg. Brush deep pan with a little melted butter; pour in the dough; it should be a half inch thick. Have the peaches washed, skinned and cut in half; remove the stones. Place in the dough, stone side up close together. Cover with half cup of sugar; put in moderate oven twenty-five to thirty minutes. This is best when warm.

GROCERS NOW IN SECOND PLACE

Last night the Grocers took two out of three games from the C.G.E., which puts them second in the league standing. The C. G. E. took the first game by a large margin, but in the second the Grocers won out by two pins and in the third by 12. Outram was high man for the Grocers with a 500 total, and Bishop, Fielder and Somerville reached the 500 mark for the C.G.E. Hard spares were made by Outram and Fitzpatrick for the Grocers and by Early, Jardine and Bishop for the C. G. E. The scores:

HONEY AS FOOD

Good For Children and a Substitute For Candy

"Honey is a food, not a luxury," says Mr. Todd. "It was the natural sweet of the human race, sugar only coming into general use after Columbus discovered America. Honey is predigested and enters into the circulation at once. In addition it contains in delightful form many mineral substances necessary for the human body, especially iron and manganese. One of the professors at Ames Agricultural College, Iowa, recently worked out the food values of honey in calorics (which is heat value standard of foods) as compared with more common foods in use such as eggs, cheese, fish, etc., and on comparing the cost in British Columbia I found that honey was cheaper as a food than all other foods in common use excepting milk, and even then the difference in cost is very slight."

Honey is good for the youngsters, says Mr. Todd, and he speaks from experience of a family of five children where the winter consumption, when all were home, was 200 pounds. There was no limit to the honey the children were allowed to use, with the result that they never asked for candy, being fed up with sugar which is a great source of heat. "The skin surface of a child—the radiating surface—is very much larger in proportion than in the case of the adult and that is why children need so much sugar," said Mr. Todd. "In view of this sugar is thus supplied to the child in the most digestible and cheapest form in honey and it was my experience that while my family was using large quantities of honey they had a clean bill of health."

Pear Marmalade

Choose nice, fine flavored pears. Pare, core and quarter and drop into cold water. When ready to use drain and weigh, and to each pound of fruit allow three-fourth pound of sugar. Pour over just enough water to cover, and simmer until tender. Make a syrup with the sugar and some of the water in which the pears were boiled, add to this syrup lemons sliced very thin, use about one lemon to each six pounds of fruit. Boil the syrup until thick, then add the pears and simmer until they are clear. Pack fruit into jars, and pour the syrup over.

Croquettes With Tomato

Parboil half a cupful of rice for ten minutes, drain and finish cooking in tomato juice, seasoning with salt, pepper, butter and sugar. When the rice is tender take from the fire, add a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of onion juice, the yolks of two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of grated [illegible]. Cook for five minutes in a double boiler, cool, shape into croquettes, dip in egg and crumbs, put [illegible] for an [illegible] and fry in deep fat.

GOLF MEMBERS GETTING READY FOR OPENING

SUCCESSFUL SEASON PROMISED ON LOCAL LINKS.

The members of the Peterborough Golf Club are delighted to hear that the links are now getting in good shape, and will be ready for the opening of the club house on May 12th.

On this date a ballot will be taken on a number of new members. Judging from the advanced interest that is being shown in the opening, the indications point to a very successful golfing season.

CAMERA AIDS SURGEONS

Stereoscopic Camera Makes Detailed Surgical Photography Possible

Good photographs of operations have been rare and reliance has formerly been placed upon drawings to illustrate the intricate work of the surgeon. A drawing, however, is open to the objection of being an idealized illustration rather than an actual portrayal of existing conditions. Detail surgical photography has been made possible by the invention of a stereoscopic camera which is attached by a specially constructed device to a bar which controls the artificial lighting system of the operating room. This arrangement brings the camera into direct focus immediately above the surgical table, but sufficiently high to be out of the way of the surgeons during the operations. The camera is placed in position prior to the operation and is focussed with care. Plates are inserted, the shutter is adjusted, and everything is in readiness for the taking of the photographs.

When the surgeon reaches a point in the operation where a photograph is desired, he simply stands aside and instructs an attendant to press the bulb and give the plate the necessary exposure. There is no loss of time from the operation and the patient is not in the remotest degree endangered because the camera [illegible] is thoroughly sterilized.

Pomona Clam Pie

Use one quart of clams chopped, eight crackers pounded fine, half a pound of butter melted and a little pepper. Mix all together with clam water. Take six eggs well beaten, one quart of scalded milk and a little hot water. Make a crust as for pies and line the bottom of a six-quart pan. Place in a layer of the clam mixture and a layer of split crackers. Repeat once. Add milk and eggs, cover with a crust and bake.

Comparisons of weather records made for more than a quarter of a century indicate that the atmosphere of London is becoming less foggy.

The First 8-Cylinder Car Produced in Canada
BRISCOE
$1185

The Choice of Experienced Motorists

THE Briscoe "8-38" offers everything demanded in a quality car—power, speed, beauty, ample leg and elbow room, smooth riding qualities and an unusually complete equipment.

The Eight-Cylinder motor provides a more even pull than the "Four," particularly at low speeds, because in the "Eight" the power impulses overlap. The result is a soft, pleasing "purr" that is the delight of the discriminating motorist. All wearing parts are made from Chrome Vanadium Steel, specially heat treated, ensuring the greatest durability at a low initial cost.

The pure French streamline body makes an instant appeal to those who demand individuality in a car.

You owe it to yourself to investigate. Arrange for a demonstration to-day.

Miss Elda McNab is visiting Miss Bessomette, of Stirling.

Major E. D. O'Flynn, O.C., of the 15th Battalion, Belleville, was in the city this morning, and called on a few of his friends.

Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's Church, went to Toronto to-day. He will preach tomorrow in the College Street Presbyterian Church in that city.

Mr. A. J. Johnston this morning received a telegram from his son-in-law, Mr. Hilford, telling of their arrival in Spain on their way to Sierra Leone, Africa. They sailed from New York on the French liner, Rochambeau. The cable message says, "safe by ten feet" which evidently shows they escaped being hit by a torpedo by a very small margin. From Spain they take boat at Cadiz for the remaining half of their journey.

Chief of Police John Brown, of Sudbury, was in the city to-day, and gave his old comrades on the local force a call.

Mr. Nagel Phalen, of the Bank of Montreal, was in Toronto yesterday.

Mrs. Russel Widdifield has returned home after an extended visit to friends in Owen Sound.

Mrs. James Mills of Calgary is visiting her brother, Mr. A. W. Cressman, Hunter street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. R. Sowden of Toronto are visiting in the city.

Mrs. M. Osborne of Lakefield was in the city today.

Dr. J. W. E. Brown of Toronto was a visitor to the city today.

Mr. L. V. O'Connor of Lindsay was in the city last evening.

MEET ON WEDNESDAY

The Tobacco Committee of the Overseas Tobacco Fund will meet in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Wednesday night. This is an important meeting, and all members are requested to be present.

W.M.S. CONCERT WAS A SUCCESS

LADIES ENROLLED AS LIFE MEMBERS AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH MEETING.

The Women's Missionary Society of the George Street Methodist Church held a splendid thank offering concert in the Sunday school room last night. There was a large attendance present and all were much pleased with the entertainment. Between parts one and two, a very pleasing change was made from the set programme. Mrs. Jas. Kendry, who presided, on behalf of the society presented Mrs. Peever with a life membership pin. Mrs. T. Rutherford and Mrs. J. Knapman were made life members of the society. The Mission Band also enrolled as life members Mrs. Knapman Mrs. Throop, Mrs. Helson, and Miss Ella Kemp.

Those who assisted in making the concert so successful were Mrs. Renwick, Miss Hinchliffe, Miss Elta Kemp, Miss Fern Johnston, Miss Downs, Miss Telgmann, Mrs. (Dr.) Middleton, Miss Brooks, Miss Parker, Miss Harvey, Master Gardiner, Master Throop, Master Max Parnell, Mr. C. C. Parsons, Mr. Douglas Carlisle, and Mr. J. John

Local Y.M.C.A. Boys Took Second Place

The results of the Boys' International Hexathlon have just been published. In this event Peterborough made a very fine showing, standing in the ninth place, and second in Canada. As the local association is in Class "A" in the competition this is a fine record. 6,497 boys competed altogether in class "A". Peterborough's team consisted of 108 boys.

New York East Side Association won the class "A" competition with 21,767 points. The next highest Associations were:—Hamilton, Ohio; Morristown, N.J.; New York City, Bronx Union, Toronto, Ont.; West End, Houston, Texas; Peterborough, Ont.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Central, Eau Claire, Wis.; Atlanta, Georgia Toronto, Central Department finished fifteenth; Hamilton Ont., thirty-second.

The class "A" competition includes all associations with a boy's membershop over 250. Many larger cities are in class "B" owing to the fact that the boys' membership is not 250. London, Ont., is one of these cities. This fact speaks well for the membership of the local Association. 9,680 boys competed altogether in the three classes, and 82 associations.

Introduction of electricity for power in South African gold mines has reduced the amount of tuberculosis among the miners.

Officers Elected for Current Year

WOMEN'S PAT. LEAGUE OF ASHBURNHAM HOLD ANNUAL MEETING.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held their second annual meeting on Thursday in their work rooms, at the King George Hotel. The president, Mrs. Harry Adams, presided. In her address, Mrs. Adams regretted that there had been a falling off in the weekly attendance owing to illness and other unfortunate conditions, and hoped better weather would bring all the former workers back again.

During the year 1916 and 1917, from May 1st, 1916 to May 1st, 1917, the society had taken in 863 pairs of socks. There were 66 ladies in the society who have contributed this pleasing number. Three are worthy of special mention, viz:—Mrs. Jno. Wright, who knit 36 pair; Mrs. Adams, Sr., who knit 33 pair; Mrs. C. Moore, who knit 31 pair.

After the reports had been adopted the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:—

Hon. President, Mrs. R. B. Rogers.

President, Mrs. R. H. Parsons.

First Vice-president, Mrs. Sarah Taylor.

Second Vice-president, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan.

Recording Secretary, Miss Morgan.

Corresponding Secretary, Miss McWilliams.

Treasurer, Miss Scott.

THE CRISIS IN RUSSIA SURE TO PASS

MESSAGE OF DEATH COMES TO TWO PETERBOROUGH HOUSES

Ptes. W. J. Billington and Robert Anderson Reported Died of Wounds Sustained at Vimy Ridge--Warsaw Man is Killed.

KILLED IN ACTION.
PTE. PERCY COOPER, Warsaw.
DIED OF WOUNDS.
PTE. W. BILLINGTON.
PTE. ROBERT ANDERSON.

Every day the casualty record adds a few more to the already long list of soldiers from Peterborough and vicinity who have given their lives or been wounded in the world's battle for freedom.

PRIVATE COOPER.

Word was received in Warsaw on Saturday of the death in action on April 9th of Pte. Percy Thos. Cooper, late of the 93rd Bn. and transferred to the 75th Bn. Pte. Cooper was born in Warsaw twenty years ago, and enlisted in the winter of 1915-16. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, of Warsaw. One sister, Miss Elsie Cooper, is residing at home. The late Pte. Cooper was a member of St. Mark's Anglican Church and was highly esteemed in the community as a young man of excellent character and bearing. The sympathy of their many friends in the village and vicinity goes out to the bereaved family.

A memorial service will be held in St. Mark's Church on Sunday, May 20th, at 3 p.m., when a tablet in memory of the deceased will be unveiled.

PRIVATE W. J. BILLINGTON.

Mrs. J. T. Billington, McDonnel street, received word that her son, Private W. J. Billington, who had been wounded on April 10th, had succumbed to his injuries. Pte. Billington enlisted with the 8th C.M.R. and was wounded about a year ago, returning to the trenches last October.

PRIVATE ROBERT ANDERSON.

Mr. Laughlin Anderson, 588 Aylmer street, received the sad news this morning that his son, Pte. Robert Stewart Anderson, had died of wounds on May 1st. Private Anderson enlisted with the 65th Battery of Saskatoon. His father had a letter from him a short time ago saying he was well and in good spirits.

SERGT. McEWEN.

Mr. Albert McEwen, 60 Manning avenue, received word yesterday that his brother, Sergt. Roy McEwen, had been dangerously wounded in the eyes and had been admitted to one of the base hospitals. Sergt. McEwen enlisted with one of the Alberta battalions. His mother died early in the winter.

OTHERS WOUNDED.

Among the list of those wounded are:

PRIVATE A. REYNOLDS, Campbellford.

PRIVATE THOS. PARKER, Norwood, a member of the 93rd.

TOTAL IS NOW 15,076.

A despatch from the Record Office to The Review says that the noon casualties total 281 names, 136 killed in action, 4 died of wounds, 58 missing, 77 wounded, and 6 previously reported missing who have since rejoined their units. Total since Easter is now 15,076.

PROBATIONERS GRANTED RANK

The following probationers who attended a course of instruction at the school of infantry have been granted certificates of military qualification and the rank of sergeant:— T. R. Blunt, A. C. Cole, J. Willis, of the 247th Batt.

S S. CO. TRANSFERS

Nineteen members of the 247th Battalion have been transferred to No. 3 Special Service Company, while the S. S. Co. also received six members of the re-inforcing draft of the 21st battalion. Twelve members of the Special Service Company have been transfered to No. 3 A.M.C., Training Depot.

MR. GORDON NOT LEGALLY MEMBER OF SCHOOL BOARD

Edward Meek, K.C., of Toronto, so Rules in Opinion Given in Response to Query by Local Taxpayer.

Another legal authority has ruled that Mr. G. N. Gordon is not a qualified member of the Board of Education. The authority referred to is Mr. Edward Meek, K.C., who conducts the legal department published weekly in the Mail and Empire. A local reader of that newspaper writes asking for a ruling, and the question and answer are here given.

The solicitor for a town is a member of the board of education. Does the fact that he is paid a salary as a solicitor for the town council disqualify him from being a member of the school board? (2) Is any business transacted by the board of education while he is a member legal?

Ans. — The provisions of the "Public Schools Act" and of the "High Schools Act" respecting the disqualification of elected or appointed trustees apply to the members of "boards of education." The qualifications for "Public School trustees" are that they must be British subjects, resident ratepayers or resident farmers' sons, and of the full age of 21 years. For "High School trustees" any ratepayer who is a British subject and 21 years of age and a resident in the High School district "and who is not a member or officer of a municipal council" is qualified, it will be observed that a "member or officer" of a municipal council is disqualified from being a High School trustee. The solicitor, being an officer of the municipal council, is therefore disqualified from being a member of the board of education. (R.S.O., chap. 269, sec. 20; R.S.O., chap. 268, sec 12; R.S.O., chap. 266, secs. 49 and 55.) 2. The fact that the solicitor has been a member of the board of education during the transaction of business does not invalidate the business transacted. But a disqualified member may be removed.

It is possible that Mr. Gordon, who claims that he is overworked in his civic duties and asks for more pay, may be relieved of one of his municipal offices. This will give him an opportunity to devote more time to his private affairs and to add to his income by operating in the somewhat extensive field that was opened when the Ontario Temperance Act was put in effect.

KHAKI CLAD TROOPS CAPTURE THE VILLAGE OF BULLECOURT

PRIVATE BRUCE R. B. HAWKINS
A member of the 93rd Battalion, who was killed in action April 9th. He was attached to the 19th Bn. in France.

Advance Began Before Day and Important Position is Taken after Hardest Fighting Yet Recorded.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

British Headquarters in France, May 7. — The British have pushed their way well within the town of Bullecourt. Hand-to-hand fighting has developed there. Renewed fighting broke out about Bullecourt. The British, who had been holding positions south and east of the village, where they had been violently attacked during the past four days, moved forward just before dawn in a general attack upon the village itself. There has been patrol fighting in Bullecourt before this, but today's attack is of an enveloping nature. It met with stubborn resistance, but steady progress was being made as this was being written, and the khaki-clad troops have passed well within the town, which lies absolutely astride the Hindenburg line, the front trenches and two systems of support trenches all being within the village limits.

PRIVATE VICTOR BULLIED
Son of Mr. Silas Bullied, 251 Princess St., who was wounded in the fighting at Vimy Ridge April 11.

RUSSIAN CRISIS WILL PASS

LONDON, May 7. — A despatch from Petrograd reports the former foreign minister, Sergius Sazonoff, as asking the British regarding the Russian crisis to "keep cool, and above all do not treat us as a negligible quantity, because we are not. I feel this crisis will pass off of itself."

AIR PIRATES KILL ONE MAN

Germans Drop Bombs on One Section of London.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 7. — An official statement says: "In the early hours of this morning hostile aeroplanes dropped four bombs over the outskirts of northeast London. One man was killed and one man and a woman injured. The damage to property was slight.

WITH HONOR DUE A FALLEN HERO

Col. Britton, of the Canadian Artillery, who was killed in action just before the capture of Fresnoy, has been buried in France with all the honors due a military hero, who loses his life on duty. Stewart Lyon, the special correspondent of the Canadian Press, states that the funeral was made the occasion for showing the respect and affection held by all ranks for this very gallant officer. It was attended by the officers of the division with which the deceased officer was connected, by the general officer comanding the artillery corps, and by many gunners who had served under him

NEW BLACKLIST IS NOW OPENED FOR IMBIBERS

OF INTOXICANTS BY THE LOCAL LICENSE INSPECTOR

License Inspector Joseph Stewart has put into force the powers conferred upon him by the Ontario Legislature at its recent session, namely, allowing him to place regular imbibers of intoxicating liquors on the black list. He can place anyone on this list that he wishes, and any liquor that comes consigned to a person on the list must be delivered to the inspector by the transportation company.

During the past week several persons who have been before the court on charges of intoxication, in days gone by, and who have been getting their regular supply from Montreal since, were very grieved to find that the watchful inspector had been keeping tab on their consumption, and placed them in the "barred zone" Two of them had ordered cases before they received the notice, and the wet good are now in the hands of the inspector, and will be disposed of as the police magistrate orders.

BRITISH REPULSE NIGHT ATTACK MADE BY BOMBERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 7. — After sharp fighting the British have pushed forward west of Bullecourt and have taken a number of prisoners, according to an official statement issued by the War Office today. "A hostile bombing attack during the night on our front line south of Oppy, delivered after heavy artillery preparation, was successfully driven off."

FRENCH HAVE 29,000 PRISONERS.

PARIS, May 7. — The Germans have counter-attacked along the entire French front, and everywhere have been repulsed, according to today's official statement. Fighting was especially severe in the region of Chemi-des-Dames and east of Soissons. Since April 18th the French have taken twenty-nine thousand prisoners.

HUNS MOWED DOWN IN MASSES.

PARIS, May 7. — The official statement says: "Yesterday evening and last night were marked by violent new reactions on the part of the Germans in the region northeast of Soissons and along the Chemin-des-Dames, where we identified four fresh divisions. Very violent counter-attacks, preceded by intense bombardments, were launched against our positions at Froidmont farm, on the Cerny-Hurtebise front, and on the Craonne and Vaucker heights. Fighting, which assumed the most violent character, terminated to the advantage of our troops, which victoriously resisted the most fierce assaults and maintained their positions everywhere. Germans were mowed down in masses by our heavy and field artillery and machine guns, suffering large losses in those engagements. The number of prisoners is now more than sixty-two hundred, making a total since April 16th of twenty-nine thousand. We broke several surprise attacks by the enemy placed in the Aragonnae, Bolante and Grurie woods."

MUST PAY HIGHEST TAX

Announcement has been made that persons attending theatres or other places of amusement with complimentary tickets must pay the highest war tax charged at those places no matter what seat they occupy. It is claimed that there are a number of "deadheads" who attend the races and other places, and the Government intends to get the amusement tax for these.

OMEMEE MAN IS FOUND INSANE BY THE DOCTORS

WILL APPEAR BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE THIS WEEK.

Walter McQuade, of Omemee, who was charged with assault before County Magistrate F. D. Moore, K.C., at Lindsay, last week, and who was sent back to the jail to have his head examined before his worship passed sentence upon his, has passed muster all right—that is, the consulting physicians have adjudged the man insane. Dr. Jeffers, White and Colison made the examination.

It is stated that the prisoner has made threats against other members of his family to do them violence.

IS PROUD TO COMMAND SUCH TROOPS AS CANADIAN CORPS

Lt.-Gen. Again Praises Valor of Men Who Captured Vimy Ridge and Since Have Gone From One Victory to Another.

(By Stewart W. Lyon.)

British Headquarters in France, May 7. — The lieutenant-general in command of the Canadian corps, has sent out to officers and men under his command the following messages:

"Th brilliant operations during last month, culminating in the capture of Arleux and Fresnoy, seem to give me the opportunity of expressing to all ranks the pride I feel in commanding the Canadian corps. Since April 9th, when the offensive against Vimy Ridge began, until the morning of May 3rd, when Fresnoy was captured and consolidated, it has been one series of successes only obtained by troops whose courage, discipline and initiative stand pre-eminent.

"Nine villages have passed to our hands, eight German divisions have been met and defeated, over five thousand prisoners have been captured, and booty comprising some 64 guns and howitzers, 106 trench mortars and 126 machine guns are now trophies of the Canadians. The training undergone during the winter has borne its fruit, and it is this training which, coupled with zeal and gallantry, which are so conspicuous in all ranks of the corps, will continue to gain results as potent and far-reaching as those which began with the capture of Vimy Ridge."

FOUR CANUCKS TAKE 103 HUNS

Daring Feat of Canadian Corporal and Three Privates.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, May 7. — The Herald today published a story of a Canadian corporal who on Easter Sunday, with three privates, bluffed four German officers and ninety-nine men to come out of their dugout, stack their arms, and march away as his prisoners. Earlier in the attack he had received a bullet wound, and when the affair was over was ready to faint from loss of blood. He first tried a charge of grenades, and when the explosions failed to bring the skulkers out he entered their dug out and threatened to blow the party to bits if they did not immediately surrender. The terrified Huns filed out in threes, laying down their arms.

The story says the exploit has been investigated and verified by war office records.

Ball Cartridge Was Mixed With Blank

Mexican Children, Taking Part in Holiday, Are Killed Or Injured.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MEXICO CITY, May 7. — During a sham battle celebrating the Mexican Independence Day, in which 14,000 school children took part yesterday, several persons were killed and one hundred injured by ball cartridges becoming mixed with the blanks.

THINK FOR YOURSELF IN RELIGION OR POLITICS

Rev. R. B. Cochrane Advises Congregation at St. Paul's Not to be Satisfied to Accept the Opinions of Others

Then Pilate entered into the judgment hall again and called Jesus and said unto Him, "Art Thou the King of the Jews?"

Jesus answered him and said, "Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of Me?"—St. John 18: 32-33.

The above passage of Scripture was selected as a text at St. Paul's Church last night by Rev. R. B. Cochrane, of Toronto, who preached the anniversary sermons, the subject of his evening discourse being "Christ's Challenge to the Individual.

Mr. Cochrane is a preacher of rare force, fervent in his every utterance, a man who is in earnest in his work. Large congregations heard him yesterday at both services. In his evening discourse he counselled his hearers to be true to themselves at all times, to do their own thinking in religion, politics and everything else, and not to be satisfied, as Pilate was, to accept the opinions of others.

"Why are so many young people in this congregation Conservatives and why are so many Liberals?" asked the speaker. "Simply because their parents were Conservatives or Liberals before them. A public man in a recent address told the newly-enfranchised women of the province to vote as their parents had voted. I hope to God the women will do nothing of the kind."

Mr. Cochrane was one of the deputation of Toronto clergymen who went to Buffalo to hear Billy Sunday. He went in the mood of a skeptic and came back a convert. He did not like some of the language used by the evangelist, he did not like the irreverence in his prayers, he did not like his theology because it belonged to the middle ages, but he was charmed with the man's fidelity to his own ideals. He was natural in all things, true to himself in everything.

In the United States there are workingmen who will hiss the church but will cheer the name of Christ. Many a man holds aloof from the house of worship because when they do attend they find in places of authority men who take part in shady transactions during the week.

Mr. Cochrane comes naturally by his gifts as a pulpit orator. His distinguished father, the late Dr. Cochrane of Brantford, was one of the outstanding figures in the Presbyterian Church for years, and the son, still a young man, gives promise of being a worthy successor of his paternal ancestor.

A large sum was contributed yesterday towards paying off the small debt which still remains on the church property.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MAY 7. 1917

THE BRIGHTENING HORIZON.

THERE WAS MANY an anxious heart in Canada and throughout the Empire last week when there seemed a prospect of the rejuvenated Russian people concluding a separate peace with Germany and leaving their deserted allies to finish the titanic task alone. There were various substantial reasons to believe that such action would be taken. The nation whose history is inseparably interwoven with militarism, where the government has been able to exist simply by virtue of the army behind it, would in the first flush of their newly-acquired liberty seek the peace which every individual really craves.

But wiser counsel has prevailed in the Russian republic, and the fears of last week have been dissipated. The provisional government remains faithful to the agreement with the Allies and the representatives of the common people, otherwise known as the socialistic element, those who are opposed to war on principle, have upheld the new heads of the nation. The war will be prosecuted to the finish. The feeling of the masses was shown on Saturday night, when rousing pro-Ally demonstrations were held in Petrograd before all the Entente embassies in the city.

The outlook for victory is certainly brighter today than it has ever been. Victory is the daily record of the various branches of the Allied arms. The French are taking prisoners by the hundreds and position after position. The British are making gains on the Western front, and in Mesopotamia the Turk is being vanquished. Italy and Russia have substantial successes to report.

The submarine warfare as carried on by the Hun remains the outstanding menace, the one factor in the war, with which the Entente Powers find it the hardest to cope. But since the entry of the United States into the war, the outlook even in this respect has improved. The Navel Board of that nation has reported to the American Government that they have every reason to believe that they have solved the problem. The German submarines can, it is asserted, be destroyed and the menace removed.

But victories such as are chronicled every day are dearly bought. The foe is inexorable. In the face of odds that appear overwhelming the Central Powers keep up the fight with bulldog tenacity, bringing up their reserves, to no purpose it may be, but taking a fearful toll of the lives of their opponents. Every day the list of dead and wounded Canadians grows longer. Every day the news of disaster comes to some Peterborough home. Ultimate victory is assured, but the price paid for it is frightful.

WHY HOLD AN ELECTION?

THERE IS TO BE a win-the-war convention in Montreal on May 23-26, the delegates to which will be from all parts of the Dominion and who will represent all political parties. One of the matters taken up will be the question of holding a Federal election during war-time. From the preliminary meetings held to prepare for the convention it was made apparent that the sentiment of those who took part was unanimously opposed to anything of the kind. The paramount duty of the hour is to win the war. There is no time for playing the political game.

The convention at Montreal will be truly representative as well as non-partisan. It will be unfortunate if anything they may do in the interests of national harmony should be offset by a handful of selfish politicians intent on their own interests rather than those of the Empire. A war-time election would benefit no one except those who make politics a vocation. It would certainly fail in any way to help the men in the trenches, who would be deprived of the vote entirely or whose votes, if cast, it would be next to impossible to record fairly.

Mr. Burnham, the Federal representative of West Peterborough, has asked his constituents for an expression of opinion. There is no doubt that in this city the majority are opposed to an election this year. This sentiment should be embodied in resolutions to be sent to Parliament, as Mr. Burnham suggests. The question of an extension will soon be brought up in the House, and there is no time to lose if public opinion in Peterborough is to be given definite expression.

FIGHTING AT LONG RANGE.

THE EXAMINER, true to its watchword of "Safety First," continues to berate the Government, which it is pleased to hold responsible for the high cost of food, while it refrains from all reference to conditions that prevail within its own immediate jurisdiction. Our contemporary deals in generalities and religiously refuses to get down to cases. It should declare itself. Does it believe that the Government should take possession of foodstuffs now in the hands of the farmers of Peterborough County and set the price? By what style of logic or reason can it foist upon the Government at Ottawa responsibility for the present shortage brought about by two seasons of short crops and intensified by the war? Why train long distance guns on the Government instead of coming to grips and engaging in bayonet practice at home?

The policy adopted by our contemporary may be an illustration of spineless and sapless journalism, but it is invariably safe. It endangers in no sense the business interests in which The Examiner is immediately concerned. It calls upon the Government in the name of high heaven to do something for recruiting, while it lacks the courage to either come out squarely in favor of conscription, waiting the word from its party, or to criticize local conditions for which the Government is in no sense accountable.

When Mayor Duffus, as a member of a delegation, made his now famous address at Ottawa, in which he asked that the municipalities be given the right to investigate the high cost of living, the Examiner extended to him the distinguished consideration of its approval. That was all, in its estimation, that was required. Let the municipalities be invested with the authority asked for, and all would be well.

To the infinite discomfiture of our contemporary, the Government did just what it was asked to do, and the sails of The Examiner flapped idly against their masts. It was left stranded and bereft of a text for further criticism. But it found fault with the method of the very procedure which it recommended. The municipalities were to investigate, and submit the evidence so collected to the proper department at Ottawa. Prosecutions would follow if the Minister of Justice ruled that a prima facie case had been made out.

That is the usual method of procedure in the enforcement of the criminal law. There is nothing irregular or unusual in the proposition. The Examiner would serve the public better by calling on Mayor Duffus to use his new authority than by taking pot shots at the Government. In a time of stress like this, even our George Street neighbor should bring itself to the point of dropping political questions, whether there be an election or no election this summer, and do something worth while for the citizens.

TO PREVENT FIRE LOSS.

PROVINCIAL FIRE MARSHAL E. P. Heaton has issued a circular calling on the public to exercise care in the prevention of fires. There is, he says, little use in increasing production in the Province if the buildings in which the fruits of the earth are stored are destroyed by fire. The circular says that the fire waste in the Province for the first three months of 1917 amounts to $3,321,931. In 1916 it amounted in round figures to $12,000,000, and if the waste is not stopped the year 1917 threatens to be as disastrous as its predecessor.

The unfortunate part of the whole matter is that the waste comes largely from the destruction of field products in barns, elevators and warehouses, or in canning factories, cereal mills, and other places where the raw product is being turned into food for our own needs and for the armies of the Allies.

It is equally true that many fires, probably one-half of them, could be avoided by a little care and thought. Surely as a people we should be ready and willing to take up this Empire call and preserve what we produce.

By way of example, reference is made to barn fires. Last year in Ontario alone over six hundred barns were destroyed, involving a loss of more than one million dollars ($1,000,000), of which six hundred thousand dollars ($600,000) was on produce, implements and live stock. If by a little care we can save one-half this loss we should be doing the equivalent of that much extra production, and who is there among us who is not prepared to do his "bit" in this line?

Three very simple suggestions are thrown out which if adopted will go a long way to accomplish the result:—

> Instal lightning rods on barns and save fires from lightning. The Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, will furnish anyone with a pamphlet showing how the rods should be made and erected. It is an absolute fact that barns properly rodded and grounded are not liable to be struck by lightning.
>
> The crops should not be put in until it is certain they have been properly cured. Evidence is daily accumulating that the heavy clover crops of last year did not receive full and proper care, and resulted in the firing of barns from spontaneous combustion. Many doubt this theory, but recognition of the cause is growing very rapidly.
>
> Ventilate the barn so that gases caused by the fermentation of imperfectly cured crops will be successfully carried off. In an unventilated barn, to keep the doors and windows closed after harvest, and then admit air by opening of the doors, windows or other apertures during the warm fall weather is to invite the fire fiend to get in his work.

Surely if these three simple suggestions will accomplish any saving, the call of the Empire's needs should be incentive enough to giving them a fair trial.

Fire is always the enemy of the human race, but, in wartime, it is a traitor in camp, a foe in the trenches. Not only is the waste of food by fire an unmitigated calamity, but any fire waste is just that much of a burden at a time when the last straw may break the camel's back.

THE BOYS in the Brockville high school are volunteering for farm work, and this leads The Times of that town to wonder if the farmers are willing to pay the young fellows sufficiently for their help. The chances are the boys will get every cent their services are worth.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

The Steel Trust's Record.

(Buffalo Express.)

In addition to the dividend news given out on Tuesday at the quarterly meeting of the United States Steel Corporation, Judge Gary, chairman of the executive committee, said that the corporation had bought $5,000,000 of the treasury certificates, that it had paid its income tax of $9,600,000 in advance, and that it had contributed $50,000 to the Y. M. C. A. for army and navy work. That is a pretty fair record,

PUTTING SCHOOLBOYS ON FARMS

The boys of the High Schools of Ontario, if organized and properly trained by their teachers, may be the means of saving the country from famine. Food shortage is the real problem before the world today.

We alone of the great countries are still unimpoverished. If we do not at once devise some means of increasing our output of farm products we, too, will be feeling the pangs of hunger. At present we are trying to feed Europe as well as ourselves without increasing the amount of labor on the farms.

We exhort the farmer to produce more, without thinking that the farmer is limited by the supply of labor he can command. We must give the farmer men and capital for tools before we can expect him to increase his output. The teachers of the country can help supply the men.

Unskilled, untrained boys from our High Schools, if they be willing and industrious, can be a real help to the farmers. The Canadian farmer is accustomed to using immature hands to do his chores and work in the fields. Though he is not noted for his skill in teaching agriculture, he could easily teach city boys how to plant potatoes, prune trees or spray an orchard. The city boy will go to the country not knowing how to hitch a horse or milk a cow, but a few weeks' experience will familiarize him with the simpler processes of farm life.

School men have for years been arguing in favor of this kind of education. They have insisted that "we learn by doing," but up to the present time a deadlock has prevented the colleges from putting their plans into operation. Now is the time for educators both to prove the practicability of their plans and to help the nation.

ONE VALUABLE PATRIOTIC SERVICE

Probably the greatest need of the country is men for seeding, cultivating and harvesting a large crop of agricultural staples spring wheat, corn, potatoes, beans and the like. This is a work of peace, but it is also essential for the security of the Allies in winning the war. To it all who can make themselves available ought to turn with eagerness.

The peace lover, pacifist or nonresister can see in the tilling of the fields an inspiring and beneficent work. There is a quiet joy in work on the farms which every one must admit is a most welcome change from the smoke and noise of factories or the brain fag of offices and schools. Life in the open country lacks the many and stimulating social contacts and relations which most city environments furnish. But life in the fields or pastures, with their ever shifting web of growing and living things, has a beauty that far excels the gilt and polish of parks and boulevards. From seed time until harvest a crop is never the same on any two days, and the wonderful panorama of germination, growth, flowering and fruiting is an intellectual charm to the plainest man as to the most profound scholar.

Forceful and hardy men, if they are circumstanced so as naturally to turn to the land rather than to the army or the navy, should see in farm work a chance for bravery, skill and self-sacrifice. The farm hand ordinarily leads an effeminate life. Unskilled as he often will be, if he goes from the city to the farm, his work with power-driven farm machinery will involve danger and offer a chance for courage, insight and hardihood. The amount of effort the farmer is at liberty to expend is limited not by labor unions but by the twentyfour hours of the day and a man's physical strength. Farm labor, though so necessary for the nation at present, will not be well paid as compared with other industries; hence it will involve a measure of sacrifice which ought to appeal to the heroic.

The work of raising food for the democratic world devolves quite largely on the people of Canada.

Intelligent laborers are scarce. More men must enter the agricultural field. Those who want to be of service to the country and do a work of peace which is to keep millions of the less fortunate poor, of little children, of women and girls, of broken down soldiers and war cripples, as well as soldiers and sailors, safely removed from the pangs of starvation, will strive to volunteer for service as farm laborers.

KNOWLEDGE OF BOMBS CAREFULLY IMPARTED

Platoons of Bombers Selected in Canada After a Week's Course and Examination

When Canadian recruits in Canada are taken out to practice bomb-throwing, their first lessons are in physical training of the muscles which are mostly brought into play in bomb-throwing. Then comes the throwing of exact replicas of the different bombs. For this the men stand behind a screen which is erected in front of a small trench, and by this means they are taught to throw up, and straight ahead for a distance of some twenty paces, where another screen is erected. The best throwing is that which reaches right over the second screen ahead.

Rivalry Encouraged

Next, the men practice the section work in trenches built especially for them. Each man takes up his correct position in the trenches according to the number he bears, and amongst other things the passing of bombs to the "throwers," is practised. In this the men are timed, and this naturally excites considerable friendly competition between the different rival sections in training.

Towards the end of the week's course the men are allowed to put the knowledge gained to a practical test, and encouraged to make a few real bombs, in old tins found around the dump heap—common clay taking the place of shrapnel. These the men are allowed to fire and throw into the lake, which practice is found good before they come to the actual thing itself.

Act as Teachers

At the examination held on the last day of the course, the best men, of course, for this class of work, show up favorably, and when the results of the examination are communicated to the officer commanding the battalion, these men are picked out and form the nucleus for the battalion's bombing platoon. They are then given further advanced courses. The knowledge of bombing which this preliminary course gives the men as a whole enables the officers of the battalion to arrange a Syllabus to include regular bombing practice, and they can then carry on with just their own instructors.

THE WAR'S LESSONS

Living For the Moment Men's Secret of Cheerfulness

A soldier writes: What is the secret of the cheerfulness of the men at the front? How do they manage to en[illegible] hardship and discomfort, and to speak of danger, so gaily? Why is it that many a man says, as a private who had been a university tutor said once to me, that his time in the ranks was the happiest six months he had ever known? Part of the explanation is the open-air life, the exercise, the plain, wholesome food, only just enough of it. But there is something else. The war has taught us the value of living for the moment.

Let me illustrate: At one time I waited seven hours at a railway station. A train due at two in the afternoon arrived at nine in the evening. The station was crowded with soldiers and refugees. Nothing there to eat or drink. Nowhere to sit down except on the damp stone platform. No certainty of finding room in the train. Yet as soon as my companions and I had found places and opened our provision bags we were more than contented; we were delighted, we felt that all was for the best in the best of all possible worlds. In war men are compelled to live for the moment, because any moment may be their last. Also they are saved from much worry and anxiety by being provided for and always being told what to do. They learn the sweetness of the little ordinary things of life, the savor of food when a man is hungry, the deliciousness of rest when men is weary, the pleasantness of the sky and trees and bird song. A great many were so busy living for the future that they never really appreciated these enjoyments before.

BLIND SOLDIER TYPIST

Confident of Making a Good Living—Also Masseuse

Neatly, typewritten, correctly punctuated and paragraphed, a letter from a blind soldier to a Winnipeg friend has been received. Rupert Graves who wrote the letter says, "I expect you are surprised to get a typewritten letter from me, but I have been very busy since I have been here, and have passed an examination in this. I am doing well with Braille, and can now read fairly quickly. I am also studying massage and getting on very well with it. It will take several months to be proficient, but I find it interesting and think I should make a good living with it." He goes on to say that since he was wounded his wife had taken a post in a bank and was doing well at it. But she found it rather tiring, and, he concludes, "I trust she will not have to remain at it very long, as we look forward to making a home in time."

Baked Potato Strips

Peel six or eight potatoes, cut in strips, lay in baking pan, sprinkle with salt and paprika and bake until a golden brown. These are better if the potato strips soak for an hour in cold salted water. Just before serving pour over two teaspoons of butter and reheat.

NO WOMEN FREEMASONS

Leading Mason Denies That Women Will be Admitted

Statements appeared in some of the newspapers of Britain, to the effect that a Masonic lodge is to be formed in New Zealand, membership of which will be open to women equally with men. Many people, outside the Masonic ranks, seeing the statement, approached prominent Masons, among others the editor of "The Freemason," and asked if the suffragette agitation was extended to Masonry.

"There is no sign of any such agitation," the editor of "The Freemason" said, "This matter has no connection with the suffragism that I know of. The mistake lies in the use of the word 'Masonic.' If the paragraph had said that a lodge of theosophists, or co-Masons, was about to be formed, it might have been correct, so far as I know. The use of the word 'Masonic' is unwarranted. For years there have been people professing to know, and to be entitled to impart and practice the ritual of Masonry, and they have set up lodges of what they called 'co-Masonry,' which, I suppose, means a Masonry in which women take equally part with men. The order of 'Freemasons' has nothing to do with any such lodges or persons, who have no right to use the word 'Freemasonry' and whom Freemasonry ignores. There is no split or secession on the part of Freemasons, as the totals of membership very clearly show."

WEAK-CHESTED CHILDREN

Flannel Chest Protectors Are Easily Made

Let me remind you of the importance of woollen underwear and a flannel chest protector for children whose chests are weak. These flannel "chest protectors" are easily made. Take three-quarters of a yard of narrow-width flannel (less for a very small child), and cut a slit large enough to allow the head to pass through.

One end of the flannel should be longer than the other. The longer is to cover the back, the shorter the chest.

It is necessary to cover the back as well as the chest, because the lungs are as easily assailable by cold behind as in front.

Four of these protectors should be prepared, so that one can be worn at night and another in the day. They should be well shaken morning and evening when taken off, and washed about once a fortnight.

COMPLIMENTED BY GERMAN.

Soldier Who Tried to Escape Had Unique Experience.

Recently emerged from hospital, where he has been since reaching London as an exchanged prisoner from Germany, Private A. L. P. Law of the 4th C. M. R., and son of Commander F. C. Law, R.N., Toronto, is now looking forward to returning to Canada. For four months after the heavy action of June last around Ypres he was "missing," and after some weeks had elapsed, his relatives wore mourning for him. Ultimately the Canadian Red Cross succeeded in tracing him and were able to report that he was in a prison camp near Hanover. When Pte. Law crossed to France he was transport sergeant, but at his own request he reverted and took a course in bombing and joined the battalion scouts. This is at all times exceedingly risky work, and he was generally to the fore on occasions which demanded courage. In the battle of 2nd June last, he was wounded in the right leg, and also sustained several shrapnel wounds elsewhere. While lying in this condition unconscious he was struck by a shell which tore away the left-hand pocket from his serge, which further incapacitated his arm. Some days later he was picked up by a German patrol, who showed more humanity than the Boche is generally credited with, as he supplied him with water under hot fire and later removed him to a casualty clearing station.

Pte. Law had not much to complain of in camp, though he suffered the usual shortage of food. He found, however, that the Canadians were respected in camp on account of their exploits and dauntlessness, and one of his comrades, McGregor of Toronto, was actually complimented by the commandant for his pluck in twice attempting to escape. Pte. Law thinks that the surgeons treated his leg so "scientifically" as to render it quite certain that he would never again be a combatant. His family has five members in His Majesty's forces: one, Lieut.-Commander Law, was in a ship which was sunk last summer, though he himself survived; Major A. A. Law, invalided from France by trench fever, is attached to headquarters in London, and others are still on service.

Death of Sam Bittle.

Early in May, 1885, a report was circulated that there would be a prize fight on Harsen's Island, in the Detroit River, between two youngsters. One, Harry Gilmore, of Toronto, was 28 years old, and his ability was well known. The other was a young machinist from Guelph, Sam Bittle, 21 years old. As they were about to step into the ring it was discovered that the skin-tight gloves had been forgotten. This did not stop the fight.

Gilmore was favorite. He had never been defeated. At the first blow he broke Bittle's nose. Round after round the fight continued, Gilmore's face unmarked. An hour elapsed and Bittle was still sending powerful blows to his opponent's body, yet the spectators reckoned it a matter of time. Twenty rounds were fought and the two were still strong. Forty more minutes elapsed, and then came the twenty-sixth round.

Bittle's second saw that the crisis had arrived and told his principal to do his best, now or never. This was a most furious round. Bittle rushed his man, throwing right and left with great force. He forced Gilmore out of his corner and around, striking him fiercely. He continued the same tactics toward his own corner, and as Gilmore turned to one side, struck him a tremendous blow directly over the heart. The next moment he made a clean land on the neck, but the heart blow was the settler. Gilbore fell on his side, made a feeble effort to rise, then fell back, and the fight was over. For this hour and forty minutes' work Bittle received $1,700. After the fight he and Gilmore were taken to Canada to avoid arrest.

Returning to Detroit twenty years ago, Bittle embarked in business. Three years ago, with his savings invested in real estate, he retired.

Canadian Ghosts and Ghost Seers

CANADA is said to be a poor country for ghosts. The Rev. John Sprott, a notable Scottish pioneer missionary to Canada, who was a warm friend of Judge Haliburton (Sam Slick) and who was the original of the Old Minister in Miss Montgomery's book, "The Story Girl," used to say that it was a pity Canada had so few ghosts and ghost-stories to enliven the long winter evenings as they did in the Motherland. He thought it was due to the wandering habits of our people. In this country the population is so restless that before a ghost has time to show itself its relations are off to the Rocky Mountains or some other remote region of the globe. This witty divine did what he could to supply this deficiency in our new world civilization by bringing with him—no ghosts, it is true—but a large stock of ghost-stories from the land of brown heath and shaggy wood. Perhaps the one he enjoyed most in telling was about the ghost that was such a regular visitant in the family that it often attended family prayers, and when the old goodman gave out the psalm it sometimes took charge of the singing, and pitched the tune so high that nobody but a ghost could join in.

Some one has said that there is scarcely a haunted house in Toronto and that very few ghosts have their local habitation within the city limits. Sir John Bourinot, in his Presidential address before the Royal Society of Canada, said that the spirit of all-surrounding materialism was exercising a sinister influence over the people of Ontario. It is possible that we have become too materialistic to see ghosts, that we have lost the psychic sensitiveness of our ancestors? This is not true of the people of Toronto as a whole. Mr. H. Addington Bruce, the Canadian writer, who deals so largely with psychical phenomena, says that one of the best ghost-stories he ever heard was the one which the celebrated Rev. John Langtry told out of his own experience. Dr. Langtry was spending an evening at the home of a friend when he witnessed a sight which greatly alarmed him. He saw a spectral form enter the hall, pass up the stairs, and return, carrying one of the children of the family in its arms. The child at the time was sleeping in an upper room, and Dr. Langtry was so startled by what he had witnessed that he could not leave the house without requesting the mother to see if all was well with the child. Not long after this dear girl suddenly sickened and died.

The most famous ghost-story in Canadian literature is "The Sable Island Ghost," in Haliburton's "Wise Saws and Modern Instances." Sam Slick was induced to visit Sable Island, "the unconsecrated graveyard of the Atlantic," as he called it, which is a long narrow treacherous sand-strip, which lies off the coast of Nova Scotia, which has swallowed up many a vessel, and where a hundred years ago a gang of pirates had their headquarters that they might prey upon shipwrecked mariners.

Sam Slick, during his visit, heard some blood-curding ghost stories, like the one about the old Puritan regicide that used Sable Island as a hiding place, and lived and died there, and who every year on the anniversary of the execution of Charles the First, marched about with a broad-brimmed hat on, carrying a drawn sword, and who sang psalms through his nose so loud you could hear him above the storm. But the most thrilling story was that of the Lady with the bleeding hand, who had been murdered that the pirates might get possession of a valuable ring which she wore, when the vessel upon which she had sailed for Halifax was cast upon the treacherous shoals. The ghost of this woman was a sensational episode in the experience of an officer of the army, whom the father of Queen Victoria, who was then residing at The Lodge, near Halifax, sent to Sable Island to look after his furniture which had suffered shipwreck. The ghost of this woman haunted the officer till he discovered that she was the wife of a well known Halifax doctor, and that she had been murdered for her ring.

Fifty years ago when the Confederation of the Canadian Provinces was being consumated, a bitter feeling of hostility to Sir Charles (then Dr.) Tupper was engendered in his native Province of Nova Scotia by the Anti-Confederates, as they were called. Tupper was to them a traitor who had sold his country to Canada. At the general election that year Dr. Tupper was the only Confederate returned from that Province. The night of the election two of his rural followers, who had stayed late in town, were returning home by way of a graveyard, where a few days before they had buried one of the most stalwart of the Anti-Confederates, when they were arrested by a sight which made each particular hair stand on end. Through the darkness, in that witching time of night, they could see dimly a white form moving about the church-yard and groaning in a fearfully sepulchral way, and wailing out "Oh, that traitor!" It was the voice of their Anti-Confederate neighbor, who could not rest in the grave when the man whom he looked upon as the enemy of his country had won his election in Cumberland.

The next night a little company of men who had never seen a ghost but who longed to do so, met at the graveyard and waited for the old Anti-Confederate to reappear, but they waited in vain. Some times we are told a ghost appears but once and then, having accomplished its purpose, it departs to return no more, while in other cases it attaches itself to a place indefinitely.

Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Jamaica, N. Y.—"I suffered greatly with my head and with backache, was weak, dizzy, nervous, with hot flashes and felt very miserable, as I was irregular for two years. One day when I was feeling unusually bad my sister-in-law came in and said, 'I wish you would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.' So I began taking it and I am now in good health and am cured. I took the Compound three times a day after meals, and on retiring at night. I always keep a bottle in the house."—Mrs. L. N. BURNHAM, 35 Globe Ave., Jamaica, N.Y.

Women who recover their health naturally tell others what helped them. Some write and allow their names and photographs to be published with testimonials. Many more tell their friends.

Want Canadian Salmon.

The British Government has signified its intention to purchase 600 tons of Canadian canned salmon monthly, for consumption by the British troops. The fish so purchased will be admitted to Britain in addition to the quantity equal to 50 per cent. of last year's importations, entry of which has already been authorized.

The British import restrictions have been modified so far as fresh fruit is concerned. Such fruit will be admitted to Britain up to 50 per cent. of last year's importations into those islands, until July 1st next. After that date the importation of fruit into the United Kingdom will be prohibited altogether except by license.

Supplies of tin sheets will soon not be obtainable from Great Britain even for the benefit of the dairy, canning and allied industries in Canada. A cablegram from the Canadian High Commissioner in London intimates that the shortage of such material in the United Kingdom is of such a nature as to preclude exportation to Canada in the near future.

Canada's Part in War.

"The Dominions of the British Empire will emerge from the war as important military powers. Canada, for instance, already has a much larger army of her own than Wellington commanded at Waterloo, and her name will be as surely associated throughout all time with the stemming of the German advance at Ypres as will those of Australia and New Zealand with Gallipoli or that of South Africa with the great campaigns on her own continent."

The Poison in Salt.

As far as the supply of salt goes there is enough available to last us forever. Michigan alone, according to The Popular Science Monthly, claims to be able to supply the whole world for two thousand years with all the salt it needs. But no matter how plentiful salt may be it has the disadvantage of being a poison, for no salt is wholly pure. This, if the poison in salt can be eliminated vast additional sources will be available. Scientists have come to the front and have tackled the problem successfully. By adding a solution of just the right amount of sulphate of soda, the barium or poison in the salt is changed to sulphate, and with it is removed the pink or brownish color due to iron salts. Thus is made available an unlimited supply of salt, which means more raw material for our chemical industries, because the barium-bearing salt is used for salting hides, for glazing pottery, and making ice.

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured His Dyspepsia Completely.

Sergeant Duncan MacNeil, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, writing from Europe (his home address is 116 Pleasant St., Halifax, N.S.) says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of dyspepsia, often being in bed for days at a time. When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul St., Toronto.

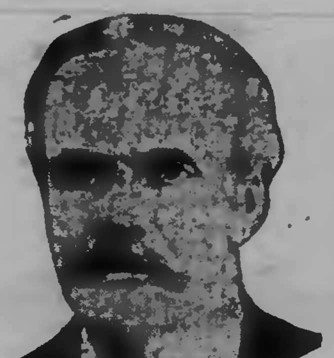
Appeal to the Americans Made by Arthur Balfour Is of Unusual Strength

NOTHING more un-American could have been found in the Anglo-Saxon world than Hon. Arthur Balfour, and for that very reason he appeals most strongly to the American people. Cosmopolitan in intellect, he is in person the embodiment of the old-fashioned English "gentleman." In politics he is trusted and liked by all parties, including the Irish. He has never sought popularity; having turned his back on Fame, he seems almost irked by her pursuit. A natural aristocrat of mind and heart, he is a socialist in courtesy. He has remained plain Mr. Balfour, and is so much the stronger with all sections of society. (It is a great thing to be able to afford not to be a Duke.) He is gifted with a satiric humor, and lets slip his shafts of wit with a certain fatigued courtesy, himself scarce troubling to look whether he has hit his mark. If as a politician he has a fault, it is probably that he is too much of a philosopher to take seriously the "game" which the pushful worldling plays with a deadly earnest. But this great crisis will have been a stimulus to his imagination, startling the dreamy giant into an energy which the greatness of the hour demands. The need is of a man calm in crisis and unfussed in victory.

A writer gives the following instance of this imperturbability. It was at the time of the historic crisis in the Irish agitation, known as the incident in "Committee Room 15" of the House of Commons. This was the great moment of Parnell's political career. Mr. Balfour was then Chief Secretary for Ireland. The event took place late on Saturday night. The writer says: "It happened that on the Sunday morning I was invited to a week-end party at a well-known country house. I knew that everybody would be greedy for the news and provided myself with all the Sunday papers. Arriving shortly before luncheon, I distributed the newspapers, which were seized upon and devoured by eager statesmen. Mr. Balfour came down late. At once the paper was handed to the Chief Secretary, around whose absent head the storm had raged. At that moment the luncheon gong sounded. Waving the paper aside, Mr. Balfour turned to a lady, saying, 'Meantime, let us not be late for luncheon.'"



HON. ARTHUR BALFOUR

He is the most representative Englishman that Great Britain could have sent to America in this historic time, and the British Government has shown the same fine tact and judgment that it displayed a few years ago when James Bryce was made British Ambassador in Washington. Mr. Balfour has earned American gratitude, for on two critical occasions he has been the friend of the United States. It will be recalled that when Washington protested against Spanish misrule in Cuba an attempt was made by certain European powers to persuade the others to make a concerted protest against American interference with the right of Spain to govern her own colonies in her own way. When the British Government was sounded, Mr. Balfour, then First Lord of the Treasury, was acting as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the absence of Lord Salisbury, the Premier. Mr. Balfour rejected the proposals and notified Washington that Great Britain would not adopt any policy which might be construed as unfriendly to the United States. With the British out of it, the plan fell through.

Mr. Balfour had been equally friendly during the Venezuelan controversy two or three years before the Cuban crisis. In an elaborate speech in the House of Commons he reminded his country that England had joined with the United States in the protest against European aggression in South America when President Monroe formulated his famous doctrine. He explained that Great Britain had no intention of extending its dominions on this side of the ocean. He said that America and England had a common duty to perform and a common office to fulfill among the nations of the world. He said further: "The time will come, the time must come, when someone, some statesman of authority even more fortunate than President Monroe, will lay down the doctrine that between English-speaking peoples war is impossible."

His speech allayed British irritation and made it easy for a peaceful settlement of the dispute. It is evident, therefore, that no better agent of the British Government could have been selected than this statesman.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME.

HE took her to the ball game, and when they had found their places
He showed her where the players stood and told about the bases.
With patient care he showed her that the umpire did not play,
Explaining that on every point he had the final say.
He pointed out the benches where the rival players sat
And made it clear that "club" is not the same thing as a bat.

She thanked him prettily and said she thought that it was splendid
To have the chance to see a game and be so well attended,
And when he carefully set forth the pitchers' plan and aim
She thanked him once again and said that she was glad she came.
He told her why the man was out and showed her how a fly
When caught before it struck the ground would make him out and why.

He did not give her any chance to ask a single question,
He analyzed the game for her without the least suggestion.
With finger pointed at the men he showed how it was done;
Showed how the coacher signaled to the men to stay or run,
And while with cheers the very air above the field was jarred
He showed her how to mark the run upon the little card.

She smiled a gentle smile and said she wished she had his knowledge,
That she had tried to play the game one year at Smassar college.
He grinned in pity, then he told in measured terms and slow
The inner motives of the game as then and there on show.
Then came the ninth; the score was tied; two out, the bases full,
And every rooter in the stand exerting psychic pull.

A long, clean hit to center—and a tumult on the bleachers
With men in wildest voices shouting like to crazy creatures.
And she—oh, she was on her feet and yelling all the while
In accents that you could have heard, I'm sure, for half a mile!
"Oh, run, ice wagons! Run, run, run!" Her tones were shrill and loud
And soared above the roaring and the shrieking of the crowd.

FISH FOR LENT.

Attractive Ways to Serve Meatless Dishes at This Season.

Fish for baking, boiling or broiling purposes is the most economical to purchase because of the second meal possibilities. The skin, bones and trimmings go to the stock pot, while the carefully prepared, leftover meat can be used for a turbot, croquettes, chowder, souffle, pudding or one of a number of other made dishes.

Fish that agrees with some stomachs when freshly cooked causes infinite disturbance when warmed over, so it is wisdom to study carefully the fish diet of each member of the family.

When boiling a fish it should be put on the fire in cold water so that it will cook through properly. If hot water is used the outside is done while the inside meat is still uncooked. If a boiled fish is allowed to stand in the air for any length of time before serving the meat becomes "woolly" and uninviting.

Warm and thoroughly grease the gridiron or broiler and the fish will not adhere to it.

A fish broiled under gas, skin side down, does not require turning any more than a planked fish. The oil, grease or fat in which fish are to be fried should be melted and hot before the fish is put in. In frying the fish should be covered until it has been turned once, then uncover it and lightly brown.

Whitebait are fried in a fine mesh wire basket in deep fat. When done they should be carefully drained and served in a napkin, garnished with lemon quarters and parsley. All pan fish, fish croquettes, chops and cakes should be well drained after frying. If sauces are to be served with them they should be put into a sauce boat.

A fish that is to be filleted should be prepared at home. One quickly learns how to do this after seeing it done once. All the bones and trimmings, which are paid for at the same rate as the meat, can be used to enrich the stock pot instead of fattening the waste pile.

Never Allow Yourself To Miss An Opportunity

A consensus of store growth would prove beyond all question of doubt that to publicity is the credit due for the great strides made during recent years by so many of our merchants and manufacturers. The people want to be informed—they are alert to the fact that information of every description is necessary to advancement—the enterprising merchant also realized this fact and through publicity he advances his business by keeping the public informed. The newspaper is the best channel of publicity—it enables the merchant to tell his story direct to the public—the news is fresh, therefore of immediate buying value. The buying power of the people is well worth every enterprising merchant's thought.

BUT The merchant who neglects to use ALL THE available newspaper publicity in his town is defrauding himself of the opportunity to talk directly to a large portion of the community who read the newspaper he is neglecting. Clear business foresight teaches that the regular use of newspapers stimulates business in any season. Make your bargains right and a buyer will be found. Use the columns of The Review and thousands of buyers will be attracted whom you cannot otherwise reach.

DOMINION TIRES are GOOD tires

A Tire for Every Kind of Service

NOBBY TREAD CHAIN DOMINION PLAIN

The test of the road has convinced the great majority of Canadian motorists that from whatever angle you look at it, DOMINION Tires are the best "buy".

We who view them from the inside know that there is more value—more tire mileage at less cost per mile—in DOMINION Tires than is put in any other tire.

Motorists who judge them by performance know that the secret of mileage must be built right into them, or they could not possibly give the service they do. The amazing growth in DOMINION sales shows clearly that Canada is fast approaching unanimity on this point.

As no one type of tire can possibly suit all needs, we make

The Big Four

Nobby Tread
90% puncture proof. Gives maximum mileage and practical freedom from punctures and other annoyances.

Dominion Tread
A thoroughly dependable anti-skid. Has the most rubber where there is most wear—on the tread.

Chain Tread

Plain Tread
The basis of all DOMINION Tire value. Serviceable and economical, for mileage is built right into it.

Whatever car you drive—wherever and however you drive it—there is a DOMINION Tire perfectly adapted to your needs—the one tire it will pay you best to buy.

WHAT ALLIED SOLDIERS DID WHILE WORLD RESTED

Sunday's Story of the War a Hope Inspiring Record of Successes for all Entente Troops.

There was nothing important on the British front on Saturday. With the loss of two machines British aviators disposed of ten German airplanes.

The French achieved important and brilliant successes between Soissons and Leon. They captured all the plateau in the neighborhood of Cerny and Craonne and the hills dominating the valley of the Ailette River.

Southeast of Vauxaillon, French troops attacked a salient in the Hindenburg line and carried positions on a front of four and a half miles. The Germans have lost heavily in attack and counter attack and the French took forty-three hundred prisoners on Saturday.

An official statement from Petrograd announces the evacuation of Ognott and Mush in Armenia, for strategic reasons.

Full discussion of the war situation took place and complete accord was reached at the Allies' conference in Paris, attended by Lloyd George, Premier Ribot and other members of the French cabinet and representatives of the Italian and Russian Governments.

The Duma will be convoked in extraordinary session immediately. There were great pro-Ally demonstrations in front of the British French and Italian embassies.

The Amsterdam Telegraaf says troops fired on rioters at Mainz, in Germany, killing eight persons. Five hundred were arrested.

Premier Hughes has been re-elected personally and is assured of a majority in the Lower House in Australia.

The French war office announces the French maintained all their gains scored northeast of Soissons against numerous counter attacks and are masters of most of the Chemin-des-Dames ridge along an 18 mile front. Fifty-eight hundred prisoners and seven guns have been taken.

Sir Robert Borden Writes Message To Canadians

LONDON, May 7.—Sir Robert Borden in a message to the Canadian Daily Record says: "Reinforcements have arrived from Canada in large numbers during recent weeks and it is believed that in the not far distant future splendid forces from the kindred nation adjoining the Dominion will come across the seas to fight with the Canadians. Every generation is a trustee of the future but upon this generation rests a special responsibility for the world's future destiny. Canada has taken a part never to be forgotten in the great theatres of action where that destiny is being worked out. Each can truly feel that he is playing his appointed part in the greatest effort for freedom, democracy and civilization that history has recorded."

HOGUE NOT TO BE HANGED.

OTTAWA, May 7. — The Government has commuted to life the death sentence of John Hogue, alias Steward, who shot Immigration Inspector Jackson on a train at Windsor. Hogue is a black sheep member of a West Virginia family, who enlisted the aid of that State's governor.

MUST FULFIL PLEDGE.

The Dominion Will Have to Find Its Half Million Men.

Winning the war overshadows everything else in the Dominion today, and the best opinion in Canada now recognizes that half measures will not accomplish this. On New Year's Day, 1916, Premier Borden pledged the faith of his country to the raising of a force of 500,000 for foreign service. The opening of the present year saw her still 120,000 men short of that number, though half the total of 380,000 now in uniform were raised during the past twelve months, a number exceeding that which the United States, with twelve times the population, was able to assemble for duty on the Mexican border when the need arose last year. Still, Canada is not satisfied. Her faith is pledged for half a million, and they must be raised—both to make good her word and because they will be needed—if the war goes on, and nothing seems more certain now. Consequently, more drastic measures require to be taken, this accounts for the National Service movement.

Labor organizations and pacifist societies regarding this as a first step toward conscription, much criticism followed, so the principals in the movement warned the country that this was the last appeal that would be made to the slackers, and that if it proved futile still other measures would have to be employed. It was to be the last chance for Canadian democracy to rise to its responsibilities to the nation and to civilization. Labor took alarm and called for assurances from Premier Borden that no onslaught against voluntarism was intended. His reply was the statesmanlike one, that conscription was not intended at present, but he declined to promise that, if the condition of the State should require it, conscription would not be employed subsequently.

The year 1917 found Canada facing what America faced midway through the Civil War—a draft, or its equivalent, to make good the numbers required for military service. For the outstanding fact is that whether the National Service movement is a success or a failure, the half-million men whom Canada is in honor bound to supply must be forthcoming during the present year. It is to be hoped that they will be forthcoming without the adoption of compulsory service. Whether they will or not depends now finally and absolutely on the character of the response to the appeal for voluntary national service. — From "Canada Faces New Problems," by Hon. P. T. McGrath in The American Review of Reviews.

Co-operation in Labrador.

"When Dr. Grenfell began his work in 1892 he found that the poverty-stricken people were practically at the mercy of the unprincipled, scheming storekeepers who charged two or three prices for flour, salt, and other necessaries of life. The men, as a result, were always in debt, mortgaging their next summer's catch of fish long before the winter was over. To cure this evil, Grenfell opened co-operative stores, run solely for the benefit of the fishermen, and established industries that would give a chance of employment during the cold months. A grant of timber land was obtained from the Government and a lumber-mill opened. A schooner-building yard and a cooperage for making kegs and barrels to hold the fish exported were next installed.

"This made it possible to gather together the people, who were formerly widely scattered because dependent on food gained through hunting and trapping. This made it possible, too, to carry out plans for general improvement—schools for the children and some social life. Two small jails, no longer needed in this capacity, were converted into clubs, with libraries and games. Realizing the general need for healthful recreation, the doctor introduced rubber footballs, which might be used in the snow.

"Dr. Grenfell has himself financed his various schemes, using, in addition to gifts from those whom he can interest, the entire income gained from his books and lectures. He keeps nothing for himself but the small salary as mission doctor to pay actual living expenses. All of the industrial enterprises — co-operative stores, sawmills, reindeer, fox-farms—are deeded to the Deep Sea Mission, and become its property as soon as they begin to be profitable." —Mary R. Palmer, in St. Nicholas.

More Books Prohibited.

Bowser Gets A Sure Tip

But He Loses His Money Just the Same

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Bowser never comes home to his lunch. If he feels in need of one at midday he goes out to a restaurant. Therefore, the other day, when he came home at 12 o'clock and found Mrs. Bowser with cap and apron on sweeping the front hall she had a right to be surprised and to call out:

"Why, Mr. Bowser, are you home at this hour?"

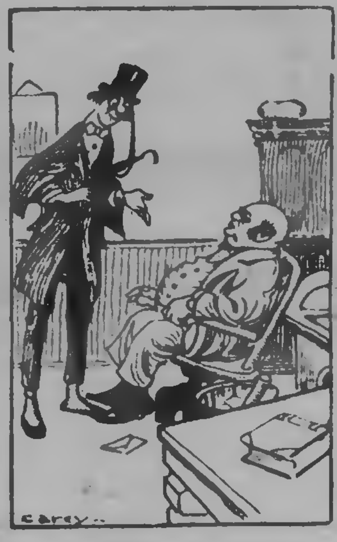
"S-s-s-h!" he whispered as he walked down to the sitting room and beckoned for her to follow. "I don't want Maggie, the cook, to hear a word of what I am going to tell you. I have got a big thing on, and the man who put me wise would hardly consent for me to tell you. We have got $100 in the house, haven't we?"

"Yes, but—but"—

"Haven't we?" persisted Mr. Bowser.

"Yes," she replied, "but what of it? You are not going to buy a new milk cow, are you?"

"Mrs. Bowser, here is the case," he said, holding up a warning finger for her to keep her voice down. "You have long known what I have thought about horse racing. I never saw a horse race in my life, and I never have bet on one. I have considered it a most disgraceful thing. I have raised my voice against it and have advocated that it should be done away with for the good of the public at large."



"WE TALKED AND TALKED."

"Yes; I know," whispered Mrs. Bowser.

"But something happened this morning to change me all over. I sat at my desk reading the morning paper when I absently turned to the sporting page. There were accounts of three or four horse races, but I had not read one of them when a stranger came in, and I laid down the paper. After a short conversation with the stranger he informed me that he was engaged in missionary work among the heathens of Africa. He was home on a leave of absence. The heathens in his district had expressed their strong desire for baseball, golf, poker and other civilized things, and he had come home to solicit contributions to the end that they might acquire them. Anything that would civilize and progress them would be of benefit to the whole world. You know, Mrs. Bowser, I was never stuck on the African heathen."

"No," she replied. "I have often heard you say that you would never subscribe a cent for his benefit."

"Yes; I have said he could go to for all of me, but my views were changed almost in a moment. I was about to make some decided remarks to the stranger when his eye caught the paper I had been reading, and he picked it up and said:

"'This is a very curious coincidence. I had horse racing in my mind when I came in here, and, lo, you have been reading about it. At my hotel this morning I overheard one man say to another that a horse named Buttercup in the New Orleans races, which are to be run today, would be sure to come in ahead of anything, and yet she would be a 100 to 1 shot in the betting. Why shouldn't we make a little money for the heathen, Mr. Bowser? For has not Providence flung this thing in our faces that we might aid a downtrodden race to lift themselves up? We invest a dollar, and we get $100 in return. Nobody is at all injured, and hundreds of the heathens are benefited.'

"Think of it, Mrs. Bowser—100 to 1 and we are dead sure of it. By John, but luck is surely knocking at the door!"

"You let that man talk you over, did you?" demanded Mrs. Bowser.

"Why, we talked and talked, and the more we talked the more I was obliged to view matters from his standpoint. He convinced me that horse racing was not criminal and that I must have lost thousands of dollars by not placing bets. He also convinced me that the heathen were good fellows, but were misunderstood by the public, and in ten minutes he had satisfied me that I could not do too much for them."

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser.

"Keep your voice down, dear. I told you this was an awful secret which must not be betrayed. The result of all our talk was that each of us should bet a hundred dollars on Buttercup and punish the bookmakers and benefit the heathen at one and the same time. We invest a hundred dollars apiece, and we draw down $10,000 each. He returns to Africa with every cent of his money to supply the wants of the heathens, and I give you a thousand dollars of my winnings to buy yourself silk stockings. I use the other $9,000 to buy us a country home and an auto. Where have you got the hundred dollars, Mrs. Bowser?"

"Mr. Bowser," she said after a look at him, "you are being made a tool of—a chump—a come-on, as they call it. It is a regular put up job, and you will lose every dollar you risk."

"Woman, don't you credit me with having any brains?" he almost shouted. "I am not an idiot for a designing villain to toy with. Our winnings are just as sure to come as tomorrow's sun is to rise. If you do anything to obstruct our scheme I shall never forgive you. A hundred to one, and as sure as shooting. Think of it, Mrs Bowser, think of it!"

Before Mrs. Bowser could answer Maggie, the cook, who had been dutifully listening at the foot of the basement stairs, came running up to exclaim, "Oh, Mr. Bowser, make some money for me!"

"Maggie!" chided Mrs. Bowser.

"But, ma'am, you wouldn't stand in the way of a poor girl making $1,000?" was wailed by the cook. "Think of how hard I have to work for my money, and think of my going home to my poor widowed mother and dropping $1,000 in her lap and telling her to buy a whole department store. Mr. Bowser, I want you to put up $10 for me. I have got that much in my trunk upstairs."

"I will do it, Maggie," answered Mr Bowser. "You are also a game sport and shall be given a fair show. Get your money here and, Mrs. Bowser, you hand me over the hundred for the missionary is waiting for me up on the corner."

Mrs. Bowser opened her mouth to make further protests, but the odds were 2 to 1, and she said no more. Maggie ran upstairs and got her money, and the hundred dollars was taken from the machine drawer and with all the wealth safe in his pocket Mr. Bowser hurried away from the house. The missionary was leaning against an iron fence on the corner, and his solemn face lighted up as Mr. Bowser came up with a smile.

"You got it?" he asked.

"Sure," was the reply.

"Then we will go along. I am anxious to see my work among the heathen advance as soon as possible. While you were absent at your house I went over the thing in my mind and I could not see where plucking the bookmakers for the benefit of our dark skinned fellow men could possibly be construed as wrong."

"It can't be," replied Mr. Bowser—"it can't be. It is a wonder to me that I ever held the ideas that I did, and I shall never return to them. I may even take one day a week off and go up and see the races. I may even wager a few dollars on a horse that's not more than a 10 to 1 shot. Let us go to what they call a pool room and place our money and make a start on the road to wealth. Let me also think of the African heathen."

Mr Bowser had heard of pool rooms but he had never entered one. In fact, he had never gazed at the outer side of one. He therefore allowed the missionary to take the lead, and the said missionary seemed to have the utmost confidence in his abilities as a guide.

In due time a pool room was discovered and their money placed on Buttercup at the odds mentioned. When this had been accomplished Mr. Bowser and his friend took seats to wait for news from the racetrack. While they waited they nudged each other. They also made a clucking noise with their tongues. They likewise bestowed beaming smiles on each other. Buttercup was in the first race, and they had not long to wait for the voice of the caller making his announcement as to the progress of the contest. Buttercup was announced in various positions from first to third, but, strange to relate, did not finish first, second or third. She may have stopped somewhere to look at the landscape, or she may have fallen and broken her neck. Such trifles are seldom mentioned in a well organized pool room. Mr. Bowser and his missionary friend chuckled and smiled as the race progressed and then sat in a daze, and it was one of the pool room men who had to jog them back into life again by saying:

"Come, now, you ducks, get out of here. The race has been lost by your horse, and there is nothing more to be said about it. What induced you to put your money on an old skate like her?"

Mr. Bowser and the missionary parted at the door. There were no farewell words between them. Where the missionary went to is of no account, but Mr. Bowser took a car for his home. Mrs. Bowser and the cook were waiting for him when he entered the house.

"Gimme my thousand dollars, Mr. Bowser!" exclaimed the cook.

"And give me mine," added Mrs. Bowser.

Mr. Bowser drew himself up like a man who had determined to fight desperately for his life, but from his half open lips no words issued. He gasped once or twice and then fell at full length on the floor and rolled his eyes and shuddered. It was only then that the women knew that the 100 to 1 shot had pierced his noble heart.

PRESENT HIGH PRICE OF COAL IS NOT JUSTIFIED

American Trade Commission Warns Public That Buying Now for Future Use Will Increase Cost.

After all there seems to be no justification for the present high price of coal. Prices for May at the American mines are quoted at $3.61 a net ton of egg, $3.84 for stove and $3.93 for chestnut coal. It is hard to reconcile the prices asked by the dealers in this city with the cost at the point of production.

It has been said that the workmen in the mines of the United States have recently been granted an increase in wages, and the fact that the cost of production has been increased is cited as a reason for the prevailing high retail price.

The new wage scale which went into effect last week increases production cost from 24 to 30 cents a ton, but it is really a steadying and beneficial factor in the industry. More men than ever will engage in mining, and production is likely to be increased by over thirty per cent. The outlook for next winter is really not so dreary as some people suppose. The labor troubles which occurred last winter and lessened the output will not be encountered again for at least a year.

Prevailing retail prices of anthracite coal are unwarranted, and the supply for next season is adequate, the Federal Trade Commission of the United States has stated in a preliminary report based on a partly completed investigation ordered by Congress last winter. The Commission warns consumers against buying larger quantities of coal than usual this summer, saying there are symptoms now of such a buying panic as that which enabled speculators last winter to force prices above normal. No good reason exists, says the report, why May prices should not be subjected to the usual summer discount; but "if the public is again so deceived as to indulge in a scramble for coal the favorable situation may be nullified."

The Commission is keeping in close touch with the anthracite situation, and promises to "expose any unscrupulous wholesaler, jobber or retailer who seeks to mislead the public into a belief that exorbitant prices are justifiable or that there is any necessity to join in a frenzied bidding to secure immediate delivery for far future needs."

Military Board to Probe Rumor in Quebec.

A military board of inquiry has been appointed to inquire into the charges that troop trains had been stoned while passing through the Province of Quebec. The board consists of Col. Wigle, Windsor (chairman); Col. Barclay, Montreal, and Col. Ostell, commander of the 65th Carabineers of Montreal.

OFFER OF PEACE IN TWO WEEKS.

Hollweg to Make "Plainer Declaration of Conditions."

COPENHAGEN, May 7.—A plainer declaration of Germany's peace conditions will be made by Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg within a fortnight.

Dr. Karl Helfferich, the vice-chancellor, announced last week that an answer would be made within the said time by the chancellor to the interpellations presented by the Conservatives and the Socialists. The chancellor's decision to define Germany's aims was the result of pressure exerted from all sides.

Leave Two Eyes In Potato Sets

Expert Guide's Advice To Those Who Plan Gardens.

S. C. Johnston, B.S.A., vegetable specialist of Ontario Department of Agriculture, has answered through the press a number of questions relating to potato seeding for the information of amateur gardeners.

"How many times can a potato be cut for seed?" Mr. Johnston was asked.

"That depends upon the size of the tuber and the number of eyes the potato contains," replied Mr. Johnston. "The potato should be cut so as to have two eyes in each set and the sets should be as even in weight as possible. It is a good practice to take the first set from the stem end, to cut slantingly across the potato and finally to divide the seed end."

"Is one eye to a piece enough?" "No, it is better to have two eyes, for the reason that one may not grow, in which case there will be a blank in the garden or potato field.

WOMEN FOR BOSTON CARS.

Will Replace Men Drafted for Service.

BOSTON, May 7. — Boston is to have women conductors on its elevated and street cars. Testifying before the Public Service Commission H. B. Potter, an official of the Boston Elevated Railway, declared that to meet the emergency created by the enlistment of employes "we are prepared to employ women as conductors."

Ridiculing the English.

There was a time when the burlesque of the type known as the "silly ass Englishman" was fairly popular in Canada. This sort of comedy was offered in many American musical productions, and also in vaudeville, but there appears to be a growing reaction against it in the Dominion. Quite recently two American vaudeville artists offered a burlesque sketch of that nature in Toronto, and two papers protested against it, a thing that would not have happened five years ago. The Toronto Mail and Empire referred to the way in which the American critics scolded whenever an English play contained a caricatured American, and went on to say: "We Canadians, who have looked on Englishmen in American plays and Americans in British plays with what might be called the judgment of a neutral, are inclined to think that the Londoners have more cause for complaint than the New Yorkers. We have seen so many American plays containing stupid Englishmen with spats and monocles whose conversation suggests that they are a mixture of cad and silly ass. They tremble with terror when they meet the big breezy Americans who are the heroes of such dramas. This objectionable type of caricature can be seen in a mild form in the sketch given by the Ward Brothers who come from the United States. The silly ass dialogue reaches its climax when the Johnnies try to discuss baseball. American vaudeville artists, for some reason that it is difficult to fathom, seem to be very proud of their national game, even in its commercialized form. They regard it as a great reproach to a man that he may know little and care less about the points of this typical American summer amusement. In the sketch Bertie and Archie muff every baseball term they try to catch, and after that nothing further need be said—to an audience in the United States — to prove that Bertie and Archie are the last word in silly asses. Now to put the matter very plainly, this sort of thing does not seem funny to Canadian audiences any longer. Everybody knows that these little Johnnies with monocles and spats are among the most daring fighters in the world. In France, the Berties and the Archies have shown that they need no instruction in the manly virtues, least of all from the baseball fans of the world's biggest republic—or is China the world's biggest republic? If the American peculiarities had ever been exaggerated on the stage as the English queernesses have been, thousands of louder wails than this one would have been written about it. As the British are not insular and hyper-sensitive, they have said nothing about it. However a Canadian is in a position to say very emphatically that it is a type of comedy which we are growing to like less and less as time goes on. We may even come to regard it in the light of an impertinence."

Many Certificates Sold.

Through the agency of the banks and the post offices approximately 75,000 war savings certificates have been sold to date. It is only slightly over nine weeks since these securities were first placed on the market, yet in that time over $5,000,000 have been realized by their sale.

In making this statement to the press the Minister of Finance pointed out that the new certificates were well patronized during the period of the war loan. Daily sales ran as high as $150,000, and the average is well over $100,000.

Large corporations continue to take steps to interest their employes in the advisability of investing their surplus earnings in the war savings certificates. One firm has advised the department that by introducing a scheme of pay deduction in one month the employes pledged themselves to purchase certificates aggregating $25,000.

A VALUABLE LANGUAGE; KNOWLEDGE OF SPANISH WOULD BE AID TO TRADE

Now That the Study of German Has Grown Less Popular in Our Schools, Thoughtful Men Are Urging That the Language Which Would Open the Doors of South America to Us Should be Taken Up.

"I HAVE been disgusted with the extravagant claims on behalf of the German language as a practical and cultural subject, which have so long been made in many of our educational institutions, and the disproportionate amount of time given to it when compared with other modern languages." Such was the pungent remark of Prof. Alfred Baker, of Toronto University, in the course of his address on "The Spanish Nations," recently given before the Empire Club of Canada, when he declared to a sympathetic audience that for the present, at least, the greater portion of time devoted to German would be much more wisely devoted to Spanish. Dr. Baker took the same high ground with regard to Spanish language and literature which it will be remembered he took with regard to French language and literature in his presidential address last year to the Royal Society of Canada. While not having upon the English-speaking people of Canada the same claims as French, Spanish has upon both English and French-speaking peoples urgent claims on economic grounds, and large claims on the ground of literature and art.

Although the parent country Spain is not as yet, Prof. Baker pointed out, the open ally of the Entente Powers, she is, in her Government and her people, on the whole friendly to them, but greatly hampered within her borders by the machinations of the Germans, whose universal policy of "peaceful penetration" has been stealthily pursued there both before the war and with increased vigor since its outbreak. Germany has the double purpose of keeping Spain from joining the Allies, and of exploiting her resources and markets for herself when peace comes. When the struggle ends, as it is sure to end in victory for the Allies, Spain will continue to be a field for Canadian enterprise and commerce, but owing to its remoteness only a very limited field, compared with the vast opportunities which Spanish - America affords.

To get a proper share of this potential trade, lying almost at our doors, it is of the first importance that our manufacturers and commercial travelers should have a good working knowledge of Spanish, both oral and written—the acquisition of which is by no means the formidable task that is generally imagined. As is well known, Great Britain, although in the throes of an unprecedented war, but with an eye to the future, is, by promoting and encouraging the study of Spanish in her schools and colleges, making ready to meet at least upon equal terms German competition in all Spanish-speaking countries. A well-known publisher is authority for the statement that in Great Britain the number of Spanish text-books sold the past year was three times greater than that of the preceding year. Chairs in Spanish have recently been established in the universities of London and Leeds. German is no longer studied to any considerable extent in British schools, partly because there are now no native German teachers available, but chiefly because of the antipathy to everything German.

In the line of Prof. Baker's plea for a larger and more general study of Spanish in our educational institutions, it should be borne in mind that our neighbors to the south of us are fully alive to the present value and potentialities of Spanish-American trade. To this end Spanish has been a popular study in colleges and secondary schools ever since the Spanish-American war. Since the days of James G. Blaine and even earlier, Pan-Americanism has been a great object of Washington policy and for years the study there has been to increase United States trade in the markets of Latin, otherwise, Spanish, America. The European war, cutting off communications between Germany and South America, has disclosed to the United States new and vast commercial possibilities. The demand for a practical knowledge of the Spanish language has grown so rapidly that the schools are finding it difficult to cope with the situation. The University of Washington, with a staff of seven teachers under a graduate of Toronto University, it is interesting to note, was forced to turn away 200 students from its Spanish classes in the fall of 1916, for lack of instructors. According to a pamphlet, published recently by Allyn and Bacon, in New York City alone more than 40,000 pupils are studying Spanish. In the DeWitt-Clinton High School there are 1,200, and in the Commercial High School, of Brooklyn, 2,000. At Harvard University there are 660 students in Spanish courses. At the University of Chicago the attendance in this language has increased threefold in eighteen months. The increase at the University of Michigan is typical: 1914, 110; 1915, 225; 1916, 450. Harvard University now accepts Spanish for matriculation, as do also the state authorities of New York.

What, it may again be asked, is Canada doing in the matter? Our Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa has published a Handbook for Export to South America (1915) in which attention is called to the opportunities for developing trade with South America. "Canada," the pamphlett observes, "has an exceptional opportunity to secure a footing in South American markets. There is a chance for her to gain a position that otherwise might take ten years to accomplish. . . From the standpoint of commercial utility in relation to Canadian exports, next to English, Spanish easily stands first. One very important feature which should be kept clearly in view is, that it affords an entry to countries that produce raw material, but manufacture to only a small degree." Our Canadian universitites, with the exception of the University of Toronto, have neglected Spanish. At our Provincial University the study of this language has suffered from unfortunate restrictions. One has been removed only recently. Beginning with the next session, Spanish will be offered as a General Course subject in the first year. In the Modern Language department, however, Spanish will continue to hold an inferior position to German in the curriculum until a much-needed change is effected.

SWATTING THE FLY.

Time to Prepare for Canada's Summer Pastime.

In the spring drive against the fly, about to begin all over the land, an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of swatting. Birth control is the method by which the carrier of microbes and the tickler of baldheads must be combated. Fly eggs will not hatch without a warm, moist breeding place. If no flies are born there will be none later on to be swatted.

Our fly population is practically reborn every summer. The frost kills most of them off, but a few remain tucked away in some warm spot where they hibernate until the sun warms them into life once more. Immediately the flies are released from their winter's nap they begin on an egg-laying campaign. Under favorable conditions the eggs become flies in a few days and they in turn deposit their eggs in a favorable place. By this multiplying process one pair of flies that manage to weather the winter become the grandparents of millions of flies by the early part of summer. They come so fast that the arm of the swatter may not prevail against them.

Obviously, a successful campaign against flies must be a community affair. Recently the Health Department of Winnipeg took a horse, cow, and stable census that the city might have exact data in its campaign against flies. In a systematic handling of a city's manure and garbage is found the solution of the fly problem. The Winnipeg Health Department knows that it has to deal with 4,758 horses, 666 cows, and 1,140 stables. It knows where all of the stables are and it has prescribed conditions under which the owners must handle manure.

If a Southern city, like Havana, can be free of flies, as we are told that it is, the problem should be simple for a Northern city that does not have to deal with them all the year around. A few regulations, rigidly enforced, will send the fly race to an everlasting slumber, so far as the city which handles the problem right is concerned.

A Notable Tribute.

The New York Tribune, one of the greatest of American newspapers, printed in a recent issue the following remarkable tribute to the achievements of the Canadian people in the war:

"Canada's part in the war is one of the most brilliant chapters in the world's history.

"In two years and a half a nation of eight million trained in the arts of peace, indifferent to the manoeuvrings of war has become a big factor on the battlefield and in the financial operations on which military success is based.

"This peaceful energetic neighbor of ours decided to raise an army of 50,000, increased it to 400,000, and is now aiming at 500,000 with a certainty of success.

"A year before the war Canada's trade balance was $430,000,000 on the wrong side; its exports for the present year exceed its imports by $245,000,000. Though not fully developed industrially, the Dominion has been able to provide fully for its armies, to manufacture munitions for its allies, finance the payments to raise millions for war relief, and to participate in British loans.

"Starting out with a loan on the mother country, Canada soon found as the result of interior reforms forced by the war that she could pay her own way, and this she is doing ungrudgingly."

INCREASED INTEREST IS SHOWN IN PRODUCING FOOD

During the Coming Summer People in Both Town and Country Throughout the Dominion Will Help Forward the Big Movement to Increase Supply of Grain and Vegetables.

THE production of food, or the operation of the thousand and one activities before the food reaches the consumer, often thousands of miles away from the point of production, are matters of vast importance even in times of peace. War accentuates that importance, and, when in August, 1914, the long-dreaded European conflict broke forth, it was natural that the keenest attention should be directed to the supplies of grain, live stock, and live stock products in this and other countries immediately affected by the war. Unhappily, in respect to the great wheat-producing district of western Canada, the month war broke out was the month which, at the close of an exceptionally hot and dry summer, sealed the fate of the harvest, especially through south-western Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The wheat yield of the three western provinces in 1913 was 209,262,000 bushels; in 1914, 140,958,000 bushels. Assistance was imperative. War made it more imperative. An extraordinary situation justified extraordinary measures, and for the supply of necessary food and fodder, and for supplying seed grain on an unprecedented scale, the federal Government advanced the sum of $12,309,000.

The Department of Agriculture, in the winter and spring of 1915 carried out a wide campaign of "Patriotism and Production." As a result of the sentiment aroused, and of the fortunate climatic conditions we witnessed happily the greatest harvest in the history of the western country—342,948,000 bushels. Another campaign of "Production and Thrift" was made in the winter and spring of 1916. A large staff of special speakers was employed, and the co-operation of the provinces readily secured. Unfortunately, the climatic conditions of 1916 were the reverse of favorable. An excess of moisture in many parts of the country, widespread outbreaks of rust, and other difficulties, resulted in a wheat crop in the three western provinces of approximately 199,900,000 bushels, and a shortage of most crops throughout the country, with the exception of hay.

Already the labor question, as related to production on the farms, was becoming acute, and the farmers, who had responded splendidly under the spur, not only of high prices, but of a fine partiotism, were faced with a situation more difficult than in the past. England, whose average crop of wheat is 61,000,000 bushels, and whose yearly import of wheat is approximately 210,000,000 bushels, could no longer look to Russia. Supplies from Australia and India, and even supplies from Canada and the United States, were rendered more difficult and more costly by shortage of transportation and by the submarine menace. Munitions were vital; foodstuffs vital. Restriction of unessential imports was bound to come. In face of the conditions touched on above, it seemed clear that Canada should not only increase her productive efforts and direct them along the right lines, but should also enlist all available forces in the task.

For this reason a Government appeal was issued two weeks ago for citizens not only in the rural, but in the urban communities. It was followed by a personal letter to the mayor of every town and city in Canada, setting the situation forth at some length, and inviting co-operation. Every provincial Minister of Agriculture was also written to, the Directors of National Service, and others, and from the replies it is abundantly evident that a strong and healthy sentiment exists all through the country, and that already much excellent work had been done.

In regard to the appeal to the people in cities and towns for the utilization of vacant lots and gardens in productive work, it is obvious that vegetables, including potatoes, would be chiefly grown. Potatoes are not a perfect food, having a heavy water content, and are too bulky to be a very desirable form of export to Great Britain. Nevertheless, their food value is considerable, and their production and use on a large scale this year would assist in the releasing of other more compact and highly nutritious foods which it might be vitally necessary to get to England. Much has been said about the potato situation at the present time, and it might be well to put on record some facts relating to this food product:

In Canada, for the ten fiscal years from 1907 to 1916:

	Bushels.
Average production	70,000,000
Average yearly imports . .	355,000
Average exports	1,130,000
Yearly excess of exports over imports	775,000

(Or practically one per cent of the whole crop.)

For the past season the crop has been estimated at about 60,000,000 bushels. The countries to which we export most heavily are, first, Cuba, where a valuable trade has been built up; then the United States; then Newfoundland, West Indies, and so on. Pains have been taken to ascertain the amount of supplies in the country at the present time. For obvious reasons, it is not easy to get very accurate figures, but, from official and commercial information gathered from a large number of

Trade Outlook in Japan

ONE of the great questions exercising the Japanese statesmen and business men, at the present moment, is the question of the position of Japanese trade after the war. The war has brought about great trade changes in many countries, both belligerent and neutral, and, in Japan, these changes have often been of an almost revolutionary nature. The Japanese trader is notably quick to see, and even to foresee, opportunities, and to take the very fullest advantage of them as they arise; but he is also astute enough to recognize that the great opportunities which have come his way, during the last two years, are the result of conditions entirely transitory. War work is all very well in its way; it has already resulted in a rehabilitation of Japanese finance unlooked for by Japanese statesmen before the war, save as the result of many years of persistent effort; but the great object of Japan, at this time, is to secure permanent markets for her industrial output.

The Japanese Government is going about the matter with all its accustomed thoroughness, and careful investigations are being carried on in those countries which offer the best prospects of affording a permanent market for Japanese goods. Japan is willing to manufacture for and sell to any country. She loses no opportunity for work; but as the great mass of data relating to her wide-flung activities flows into the Government offices at Tokio, it is very carefully scrutinized. The trade expert does not allow himself to be deceived for a moment. Here is a good contract, but it will not recur. Here is another equally good; but the competition for the business, after the war, will be so great that Japan, situated as she is, could not possibly obtain it. Here, however, is a trade opening which might profitably be fostered, and here is yet another which must, at all costs, be kept open, and made permanent.

And so it goes on, and has been going on for some time, until the Japanese trade expert, to-day, is beginning to see daylight. He can now form some estimate as to how trade will flow after the war, and he is taking action accordingly. He already sees clearly enough that, in the star of new development Japan must look to Russia first, and after Russia, to South America and the region of the South Seas. India has long been written down as a temporary market only. The Indians themselves have risen to the occasion, in the matter of supplying their own needs, far too definitely to admit of Japan entertaining hopes of permanently flooding the Indian market. One fact, however, has emerged with overwhelming force, and that is that Japan's great market, after the war, as it was before the war, will be China. Whatever else happens, the Chinese market, for both commercial and political reasons, must be held and developed. To this end Japan is directing her every effort. For some time there has been established, at Shanghai, a Japanese school of commerce on a large scale, and here large numbers of Japanese clerks and agents are being prepared, so that Japanese firms operating in China may never be at a loss for trained men to seize any opportunity that may arise for new developments. These men are not only taught the language and the ways of trade, but they are carefully trained, on the spot as it were, in the matter of Chinese customs, and as to those little likes and dislikes, traditions and etiquettes that appear so small but mean so much, if trade is to be successful.

Then again a strong movement is on foot to establish a Sino-Japanese Bank, which would have for one of its main objects the helping of the Japanese trader in China, and the general development of Sino Japanese trade; whilst the Bank of Formosa is establishing branches throughout the country. So strongly, indeed, is it coming to be seen that Japan's future lies in China, that Japanese financiers are openly agitating for the establishment of a general supervision by Japan of foreign loans to China, and are insisting that Japan's increasing specie reserve should be invested in China, and not frittered away, for so they regard it, in reducing foreign indebtedness. If China is to get still further involved in debt, it is insisted it is better for Japan that China should be involved with Japan, and that Japan should even lose by it, in hard cash, than that China should become more deeply involved with any other country.

And so the question is eagerly debated. No one can outline, with any degree of certainty, the great settlements which must follow the war, much less the results, in years to come, of these settlements. It is certain enough, however, that one of the most momentous of these adjustments must be made where, on the surface, there is least to be done, namely, in the Far East.

EYES FOR THE BLIND

Optophone Enables Blind to Read Thirty Words a Minute

Of all the scientific marvels incident to the reconstruction of wrecked humanity that of providing eyes for the blind seems the most wonderful. Yet it is declared that Dr Fournier d'Albe has perfected an electro-optical device by which it is actually possible to enable blind persons to read ordinary letter press by ear.

The printed sheet is placed over a slab with an aperture upon which is projected a beam of light from an illuminated disc. By means of selenium exposed to the light reflected from the type sounds are produced which vary with the form of the letters. These sounds are carried into a telephone instrument. This instrument has an apparatus for magnifying the sounds and thus magnified they are conveyed to the ear.

In short, each letter is given its own particular sound by this process. It is declared that the totally blind person may in three or four days learn the alphabet as thus produced and that in a comparatively short time he will be able to read at the rate of twenty-five or thirty words a minute. The device has been tested to a considerable extent with blind soldiers.

WAR REMODELS ALL

Former Trades Count as Nothing When Under Fire

There was one sergeant in the Divisional Ammunition Column to which I attached for a fortnight when first I came out, says a veteran. He had had two years' training for grand opera. At the Column he was known as the handiest and most fearless man for dealing with horses that objected to the clippers. Another sergeant was an insurance agent at the outbreak of war. To see and hear him direct a team, trying, in a blinding rainstorm to pull a G.S. wagon out of a "nine-inch" shell hole was an object lesson in tenacity and decision. The cleverest limber-gunner in our battery—the gunner who cleans and looks after a gun and is supposed to know all and everything about every part of it—used to be a lamp-lighter. As regards myself, improvising a light railway upon mud too holding for horse wagons to bring ammunition over it has become one of the accomplishments which I didn't expect to claim eighteen months ago.

CRUCIAL MOMENTS MAY SPOIL INTRODUCTIONS

Must Decide Quickly on What is Good Form—Rules Are Necessary A Few Given

The art of proper introduction is discussed by Laura Kingston as follows: There are certain points connected with introductions which are not always clearly grasped by those introduced, to judge from the questions which now and again reach us on the subject. The situation is so momentary there is little or no time for reflection, any more than when crossing a street between a street car and an automobile, when the decision lies between going forward or stepping backward. At the crucial moment of being introduced comes the opportunity of doing one of two things and of being satisfied or dissatisfied with the decision made.

When Rules Fail

Rules, however wise they may be, cannot be made to fit every circumstance of social life, and, broad as they are, they yet are open to many exceptions, and if you cannot exactly drive a coach and horses through them, as in the case of some of our laws and regulations, you may get around them by taking advantage of the aforesaid exceptions. How to act on the occasion of an introduction is determined almost entirely upon the reason for its being made, and by whom and to whom the person is thus introduced. Even the locale has something to do with it, and thus a variety of issues are raised, upon which an instantaneous judgment has to be given. The mind has to travel with lightning rapidity over the ground to arrive at a correct course of action; but the mind does not always respond to the call made upon it; it hesitates, and acts not upon the outcome of reflection, but upon the spur of the moment.

When to Shake Hands

The received rule is not to shake hands, but merely to bow, on being introduced; but this under certain circumstances would not meet the case; it would disappoint the one introducing and the one introduced. For instance, if a relative of the former is the person introduced a bow would be a very chilling response to the introduction made; to shake hands, on the contrary, would be the correct thing to do, and both persons should offer at the same moment this cordial recognition. On the other hand, if a casual introduction is made without any premeditation, and those introduced are totally unknown to each other, an exchange of bows is all that is required from them.

Among the exceptions of not bowing only on being introduced comes in the introductions made between young ladies and elderly ones, and between young ladies themselves. An elderly lady, as a general rule, shakes hands with the girl introduced to her with the idea of being cordial and kind, not to say condescending, and girls generally shake hands with each other in place of bowing, as acquaintanceships formed by them have not the momentum that attaches to those of older ladies; besides, a greater readiness to make friends is the privilege and characteristic of youth.

ROMANCE OF THE POTATO

"King Spud" has had Hard Struggle for Life

The potato was first introduced into this country in the seventeenth century. The prejudice against the potato, which lingered longer among the English poor than anywhere else, seems to have originated from the fact that it was the chief food of the despised Irish peasantry. Evidence laid before a Government Committee in 1830 by an agricultural expert tended to prove that the cultivation of this crop was injurious to the country. In Scotland, about the middle of the eighteenth century, when potatoes began to be adopted as a field crop—before this they had been sold as delicacies in ounces and pounds—they aroused much indignation. It was said on all hands that the farmers were scheming to deprive the people of their proper nutriment, which could only be found in oatmeal. Thus a dead set was made against the potato. There is a touch of humour in the method employed by the famous French chemist Parmentier to overcome the prejudices of the peasantry on the Continent. He cultivated potatoes in the open fields, in places very much frequented. He guarded them carefully during the day only, and was happy when he had excited so much curiosity as to induce people to steal some of them during the night. Then he persuaded Louis XV. to wear a bunch of potato flowers in his buttonhole in the midst of the Court on a festal day. Nothing more was wanting to induce great lords to plant them.

CANADA'S EFFORT

Message of Fixed Resolve Comes From Dominion

Sir Robert Borden, interviewing a London correspondent, says: "The splendor of Great Britain's spirit and the magnitude of her effort are fully realized in the Dominion. From Canada we bring a message of fixed resolve to throw our whole strength into that effort. Already we have enlisted for overseas service 400,000 men, of whom nearly 300,000 have crossed the Atlantic. More than 300,000 men and women are now working on munitions in Canada. Before the war our borrowings were in London, but for two years we have not approached the London market, and our loans placed in Canada have brought subscriptions exceeding $300,000,000. Besides our own unprecedented expenditure provision has been made in Canada to assist British finances to the extent of $250,000,000 used in payment for munitions. The Canadian people face the future with a firm heart and with the unchangeable conviction that there can be no abiding peace save in victory."

Economize in Paper

Bleaching powder, which is largely used in the manufacture of the best white note paper, being required by the Government, people are urged by the Ministry of Munitions to be content with paper of a lower grade of whiteness, which, whatever the appearance, is just as good as the other.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Kitchener's Prediction.

There may be nothing to it, but in seeking for the explanation of the slow German retreat on the Somme there comes to the recollection Earl Kitchener's oracular utterance in the fall of 1914, after the trench warfare had begun. "The army that first leaves its trenches," he said, "will be beaten." If this prediction is justified it will deserve to be set alongside his then startling prediction that the war would last three years.

An Electric Stove.

The body of a new electric stove for heating rooms or cooking on a limited scale is made of a composition of soapstone and asbestos.

A Historic Peep.

There are probably few people alive who remember the days when the Skinner and Eastwood mills on the Don River supplied Wm. Lyon Mackenzie with paper for his journals. In this connection Mr. Colin Skinner Eastwood, of Denver, Col., son of Mr. John Eastwood, and now nearing his ninetieth milestone, relates an interesting incident. While Mackenzie and his insurgents were established at Gallows Hill, the elder Eastwood, accompanied by Mr. Wm. Ketchum, brother of Jesse Ketchum, whose name is perpetuated in Toronto through his annual bequest of books, went to interview the rebel leader in reference to some indebtedness for paper supplied. An arrangement was made, with the sanction of Sheriff Jarvis, by which the Washington press and types were turned over to Eastwood. It is said that the first paper in Upper Canada was made at the Don mills, but the Crooks mill at Flamboro also claimed that distinction. Mr. Eastwood, sen., was born in Todmorden, Yorks, Eng., in 1792, and came to Canada in 1815, first settling in Drummondville, and engaging in trade between Buffalo and Niagara. It was he who laid out the village of Todmorden, north-east of Toronto, naming it in honor of his birthplace.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TO SUMMARIZE: During the days just preceding menstruation a woman should take a general warm tub bath. From the onset of menstruation and during the entire course the woman should take a hot Sitz bath several times a day. The greater her heaviness, discomfort, or pain the more frequently she should bathe.

By reason of the close nervous connection between the lower bowel and the uterus, constipation is an important source of menstrual trouble. Probably it is the most important cause of diseases of the uterus, tubes, and ovaries. An overfilled large intestine can cause a feeling of heaviness in the pelvic organs. When to this is added the heavy feeling due to a congested uterus, the sense of heaviness is liable to pass from the bounds of discomfort into the realm of painful or difficult menstruation.

Part of the preparation for menstruation consists in proper attention to the bowels. While the use of cathartics is not approved of, if it is necessary a dose of rhubarb, cascara, or even oil should be taken. In most cases of moderate constipation a warm water enema will suffice. Some women have an idea that purgatives and enemas should not be given during menstruation. This idea is wholly erroneous. It is much more important that the bowels should be kept open during menstruation than at any other time. If there is any reason for its use there should be no hesitation in taking a warm water enema and repeating it as often as desired. In fact, the effect on the uterus of warm water in the lower intestine is to stimulate that muscular rhythm which makes for ease and comfort.

The drug which I use for a uterine tonic is quinine. It is far superior to gin or any other alcoholic beverage as a regulator of the pains and discomforts of menstruation. I use quinine as a part of the preparation for menstruation of all patients. I advise that two grain capsules be kept at hand and that they be taken rather at random, according to the degree of discomfort. Quinine answers all the purposes of alcohol, with, perhaps, the exception of rapidity of action. It is much more constant in its effects, much more lasting, and gives a permanent tone. I regard it almost as a specific.

Emotions and all outside stimuli play an important role in the menstrual behavior, especially emotions based on sex affairs. Fright, fear of pregnancy, and desire for pregnancy play a great part in irregularities. Fatigue, when through the emotions, is more responsible for dysmenorrhœa and menorrhagia than work, long hours, or unsanitary surroundings of the worker. Emotions have their value, especially vital emotions, and should not be annihilated, but trained and checked. In fact, work—hard work and plenty of it, if the worker likes it or finds through it a means to an end—is the paramount factor which will finally obtain for woman the unconscious control of her physical forces and add to her energy for the mental and cultural side of life—of which man has no monopoly.

A correspondent, after reading the foregoing, writes to the paper as follows:

"I was much interested in your series of articles regarding preparation for menstruation and give my experience. For years I had stayed home from business one or two days each month, stayed in bed and felt miserable. Not long ago I was given a considerable increase in salary, but was told that these absences from the office were inconvenient, and it would be appreciated if I would try not to absent myself.

"I decided that I would try to adjust myself so that I need not be away from the office during these periods. I started in by taking a good physic several days before the menstrual period. I forced myself to go to the office and found that by keeping on my feet and being as active as possible I felt better.

"I decided to bathe once a day during the period, and found, to my surprise, that the baths made me feel better instead of injuring me, as I had been taught to believe. It is now almost a year since I have been away from the office during these periods. I follow the above plan and it has worked, and I shall add some of the suggestions contained in your articles and think I shall be helped even more.

"My mind is occupied with my work, and even if I do not work up to full efficiency I am at my place of business, earning my salary, and feel better than when staying at home in bed with the hot water bottle."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Amusing Sleepy Time Story About a Foolish Little Puppy Dog.

LONG AND USELESS WATCH.

How a Would Be Hunter Failed to Catch His Quarry—Much Bark and No Bite—What He Learned After a Hungry Day's Work.

Uncle Ben was smiling when he came in to see Ned and Polly Ann. He said: I think I will tell about a smart

LITTLE PUPPY DOG.

Gyp was a fat black puppy dog. He lived in a house behind which stood a big white stable.

Fan and Gay, the two brown carriage horses, lived in the stable. Up in the loft the feed was kept, and in the harness room hung the nice leather fittings the horses wore when they went out.

Tabby, the house cat, was too old and rheumatic to spend the night in the stable. So Gyp, whose mother, a cute little terrier, was a splendid ratter, was kept in the stable, so that he might see his mother catching rats and learn the business early.

Gyp did his best to learn. There wasn't a rat hole in the stable that he didn't sniff hopefully every morning when he got up and to which he did not pay a good night visit before he crawled into his sleeping box in the corner.

But, as all good rat catchers could have told him, there is something more in catching a rat than watching a hole.

One morning as he played about the stable he noticed a big gray rat poke its head out of one of the holes. The rat was looking for something to eat, but when it saw Gyp it jerked its head back into the hole. Barking delightedly, Gyp made for the rat hole and sniffed and whined, coaxing the rat to come out again.

"I'm going to sit down here and wait till I catch it," said Gyp. He thought that would not be very long. All morning he watched the rat hole.

"Good dog," said the coachman when he took the horses out in the morning.

"Good dog," he said again when he came back at noon. Gyp began to feel hungry, but he would not stir.

And it began to grow dark his mother came in to see where he had been all day. "Why didn't you come to the house for your lunch?" she asked.

"I'm watching for a rat," he replied. "I've been watching ever since it looked out of the hole this morning."

"You silly child," replied his mother. "Come along, now, and have your supper. Don't you know rats have more than one way to get in and out of their holes? I dare say that was the very rat I caught down in the stable cellar this morning."

And poor Gyp moaned with disappointment.

Pongee For Spring Wear.

Pongee seems to be a spring surety. But the pongee of this spring will be more interesting than the pongee of the other seasons when it has been worn. Much of it will be printed with vivid colors. There will be large green polka dots on a plain pongee background. There will be stripes of vivid green, blue and red, and when it is used plain it will be trimmed vividly. In fact, though neutral colors, grays and tans, are to be used extensively for suits this spring, they are all going to be trimmed lavishly with brilliant colored braids, ribbon and buttons.

No Harbor Master.

'Twas somewhere in France and the trenches looked like some river not on the map. A Canadian Tommy was on guard in the communication trenches and was up to his chest in water. Along came another Tommy, who inquired if he could direct him to A company of the 1st Blankshires. The Toronto boy's temper was not in the best of humor, for he had had a long, weary guard and was not in form for being questioned. "Holy smoke," he replied, viewing his surroundings, "chuck it! I'm not the bloomin' harbor master!"

BRITAIN HOLDS ORKNEY ISLANDS IN PAWN

British Empire Holds Kingdom, the Property of Norway in Return for Cash Payment

It is not generally known that the Orkney Islands, though supposed to be part and parcel of the British Empire, are only held by Britain in pawn, and Norway, as it were, holds the ticket. Long ago Orkney, together with the Hebrides on the west coast of Scotland, belonged to Norway. After the battle of Largs, Norway ceded the latter to Scotland for a cash payment of 4,000 marks and an annual tribute of 100 marks. This tribute, known in history as the Annual of Norway, had to be paid regularly under a penalty. In 1397, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark were united under one crown and when Christian became king of the united realms, Scotland had neglected the annual payment for forty years, incurring a penalty of over 40,000 marks. King Christian promptly sent in his account for the whole sum, with a request for immediate payment.

Scotland Refused to Meet Debt

Scotland declined to pay, and a rupture seemed inevitable. The King of France, however, who happened to have alliances with both countries, used his influence and suggested a marriage between Prince James of Scotland, afterwards King James the Third, and Margaret, King Christian's daughter, trusting that such a union would lead to a friendly settlement. After much haggling, the marriage treaty was arranged and the princess' dowry fixed at 50,000 florins, 10,000 to be paid within the year and the islands of Orkney to be pledged for the other 40,000.

Islands Still in Pledge

Only 2,000 florins was paid, the Shetland Islands being pledged for the remaining 8,000—and there the payments stopped. Though unable to pay, King Christian would on no account accede to the permanent cession of the islands, and it is quite certain that he intended to redeem them as he was quite entitled to do, for so late as 1663 the plenipotentiaries of Europe declared that the islands were still redeemable. However, neither he nor any of his successors have been able to do so, and that is how Orkney and Shetland belong to Britain.

At the Baltic Exchange the German liner Prinz Adalbert brought $750,000, the biggest price realised for a single enemy ship sold at the order of the Prize Court.

SOME STRANGE FLOODS

100,000 Gallons of Whisky Flowing Through Streets

A few years ago, in New Orleans, many huge tanks of treacle burst, and the sticky flood swept all over the low-lying portions of the city. Hundreds of people narrowly escaped drowning, and others had to be fished out of basements, where they were half buried in the treacle. In London once a flood of beer broke loose from a brewery, and 9,000 gallons rushed headlong down the streets, drowning many people. In Glasgow, in 1906, over 100,000 gallons of whisky flowed through the streets, wrecking buildings and engulfing men and horses. The year 1892 was famous in Pennsylvania, U.S.A., for the terrible scenes caused by an oil flood. So much of this liquid burst bounds that great damage was done to the city, and between three and four hundred people were drowned in the oil.

AN EMPIRE FARM.

Unique Plan for Helping to Redeem National Debt.

The redemption of the National Debt of four thousand million sterling by the establishment of an Empire farm, is the proposal put forward in London by the Empire Resources Development Committee, of which Sir Starr Jameson, former Premier of South Africa, is chairman, and Mr. Wilson Fox, M.P. for Tamworth, hon.-secretary. This great Empire settlement scheme hinges upon Canada, and the suggestion was made by Mr. Moreton Frewen, an Irish M.P., vice-chairman of the Imperial Federation League, and a frequent writer upon economic problems.

Mr. Frewen sees great possibilities in the acquisition and ultimate sale by the State, of farm lands in Western Canada. It is pointed out that certain lands in the United States, inferior in fertility to those in Western Canada, originally bought for nominal prices, have advanced to $100 per acre. It is suggested that there might be lands in Canada which could be bought from the Dominion Government at five dollars an acre, which twenty years hence, under proper development might realize $100 an acre. This would naturally depend upon the fertility of the soil, transportation facilities, proximity of elevators and markets. The fact that the United States will in the near future become a large purchaser of Canadian cereals, coupled with the fact that European wheat lands have suffered owing to the war, would exercise an important influence in their upward values. If these anticipations proved correct then the purchase of 200,000,000 acres from the Dominion Government at five dollars an acre, re-sold twenty years later at $100, would redeem the whole of the national debt of $20,000,000,000. At the same time the Dominion would benefit by the attraction of a great body of immigrants of the land settlement type so much preferred.

THE ABUSED LASCAR.

A Pleader Recounts His Many Good Qualities.

There has been much discussion at various times as to the advisability of employing lascars on liners, and a certain section of the community is strongly against it. A great deal of this adverse opinion comes undoubtedly from ignorance, for it is impossible for passengers, even if they are regular travellers by Eastern liners, to learn anything of the men. They see them in their picturesque blue-and-scarlet uniform scrubbing the decks at early morning, standing in rows in their cleanest attire for Sunday inspection, or running with swift bare feet to answer the call of the serang's piercing whistle; but to learn their real value we must consult the ships' officers. It was from one who had had life-long experience in Indian waters that I gleaned the following particulars.

The lascars of West India come from the coast of Goghra, Diu, Surat, and Ratnagiri. They are essentially seafarers, taking to the water in early childhood and carrying on their profession from father to son, whether they navigate their own fishing boats or take service in a foreign steamer. These men have the reputation of being the best lascars in India, and from their ranks were recruited the crews of the Honorable East India Company's navy, which was maintained chiefly to suppress piracy, but did much valuable survey work around the coast of India and up the Persian Gulf, the accuracy of which is testified to by navigators of the present day. The service preserves records of many brave deeds performed by the native bluejackets both in battle and in danger from storm and stress of weather.

The lascars of East India hail from Chittagong, Kidderpore, and the villages around Calcutta, and have as good a market value as their brothers of the Western coast. They are largely employed on the old pilot brigs standing at the Sandheads, which have made a world-wide reputation for sticking to the pilotage station in the worst of weather. This proves their efficiency, as the best men are needed for these ships—the slightest mistake or hesitation in handling them would be fatal.

Nearly all the launches that ply in Eastern waters are manned by ex-lascars, which proves that they are capable of learning other work as well.

There are cowards in every community, but to condemn these British subjects wholesale on a slight and superficial knowledge is surely unjust, when those who know them best can testify to many deeds of heroism performed by them of which the world has never heard. During a severe cyclone in May, 1902, which did much damage to life and property at Karachi, the lascars of the Port Trust launches made themselves conspicuous by their bravery, which was commented on by all the ships' officers in the harbor.

When launching lifeboats at sea, even for drill purposes, the men shout and make a great deal of noise in carrying out the work, and this might be easily mistaken for cries of fear by those who do not understand their language.

So many shipping companies employ lascars nowadays that the supply of good men is not equal to the demand. The big lines that trade in Indian waters get the pick of them, and son follows father in the service till they come to look upon themselves as personally belonging to it.

Officers say that these Indian seamen are more amenable to discipline than Europeans, and less prone to loaf or grumble when bad weather or other emergencies bring unexpected and unavoidable hours of long and trying work. Sometimes such a strain comes during the fast of Ramazan, when Mohammedans may not touch food, water or tobacco from sunrise to sundown; yet they preserve a stoical endurance of which a white man might well be proud. The lascars have implicit faith in their officers, and, given a leader whom they can trust, they will obey him to the death. In fact, the Indian fisherman is just as capable of making a good sailor as the Gurkha or Sikh a soldier, his only disadvantages being that he has less physical strength than an Englishman, and his health suffers severely from excessive cold.

They form strong attachments for an officer who treats them kindly and justly; and one elderly captain was surprised on going to his cabin one Christmas morning to find a stocking stuffed with toys and sweetmeats placed there by his faithful crew as a present for the great day.

Another amiable trait is their love of children, and I have seen them gaze in rapt admiration at a little ruddy-haired English boy, each trying to contrive that his daily piece of polishing and cleaning should bring him nearest to the object of his devotion. Had the little sahib chanced to fall overboard, I will wager that not one of his dusky friends would have hesitated to leap into the sea and rescue him.

Cream Scones.

Sift together two level cupfuls of flour, three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half level teaspoonful of salt. Add quarter cupful of butter and work into the flour thoroughly with the finger tips, or cut in with two knives. Beat two eggs well, add one-half cupful of cream and add slowly to the flour, mixing with a knife to a dough. Lightly roll the dough out to about half an inch in thickness, cut into diamond or triangular shapes and bake in a hot oven twelve to fifteen minutes.

Madeover Folding Bed.

If you have an old folding bed which is no longer in use a very good linen closet or wardrobe can be made from it. Take out the springs and the front part that forms the bottom of the bed when open. Arrange shelves and hooks as desired. Cut the front for two doors and fasten with small hinges and attach knobs. Frequently old pieces of furniture may be remodeled thus.

SELF-DENIAL WEEKS

Salvationists Will Have Fortnight of Special Services

The annual special two weeks of self-denial and prayer in the Salvation Army for the Dominion of Canada starts to-day.

Special arrangements have been made and a very heavy programme mapped out for the coming two weeks. The special features of this week's campaign is that at 12.30 every day every Salvation Army soldier and friend will unitedly pray, no matter where they are, for at least five minutes for the great home and foreign missionary work of the Salvation Army, as well as for the world-wide struggle now being carried on, and which is affecting our community so much.

Adj. McElhiney will speak tonight at the Temple on "A remarkable answer to prayer," and on Wednesday night on "Why prayers are not answered."

Every Salvationist in Canada, and it is hoped many others, will join them in special prayer these two weeks. Surely it is time we all recognized that Providence is our only hope now, for the winning of the contest that is on, as well as for the sorow and heart-aches our community as well as the world at large is staggering under.

BROKE HIS LEG.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Favor Enforcement Of Militia Act In Canada

By a standing vote the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary Diocese of Toronto, in session at St. Anne's Parish House, passed a resolution praying the Government to enforce the Militia Act.

Before moving the resolution Mrs. Willoughby Cummings briefly explained the provisions of the act, her speech being punctuated by warm applause from every corner of the hall, which was packed to its utmost capacity.

Most of the delegates to the meting have menkind at the front, and know from first-hand how necessary reinforcements are, not only for the successful conclusion of the war, but for the relief of war-weary men who have been in the trenches for not only months but years.

Delegates were requested to talk up the enforcement of the Militia Act in their own centres of influence and to see that resolutions favoring its operations be sent to Ottawa to reinforce the resolution of the annual meeting.

But Alonzo York Chased Friends With An Axe

Alonzo York appeared in the dock at the police court this morning on a charge of being drunk. As usual, Alonzo did not have a drink, and therefore could not have been drunk.

P. C. Blade told of being called to Jackson Ave. early Sunday morning, where he found York intoxicated, and he had chased other people out of the house with an axe.

Police Magistrate Dumble thought that a gentle touch of Alonzo's pocket to the extent of $13.75 would dampen his fighting spirit for a short time.

IS HE INSANE?

Philip Taylor Looking For Job Of Dog Catcher

Philip Taylor was charged with being insane at the police court this morning, and was remanded until Thursday for examination. He denied the charge. But P.C. Wigg, who arrested him told of the peculiar actions of the defendant on several occasions lately, and Chief Thompson remarked that Taylor's great idea was that he could charm dogs, and he had bothered the department in applying for the position of official charmer and dog catcher.

For purifying water as it is drawn from the pipes, there has been invented an ozonizer into which the electric current is switched as the faucet is turned.

ATTEMPT MADE ON KAISER'S LIFE BUT SHOT WENT WILD

Emperor Was Fired at While in Auto on Way to Berlin---Assailant Arrested.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

ROME, May 8. — A despatch from Zurich to the Corriere D'Italia, the clerical organ, says the Kaiser narrowly escaped assassination hwile motoring to Berlin. Three shots were fired at the royal car, one going wild but two striking the tonneau. The man who did the shooting was arrested, but has not yet been identified.

Aldermen and Coal Dealers to Hold a Conference Tonight

Mayor Duffus has called a meeting tonight of all the aldermen and the coal dealers of the city for the purpose of discussing the coal situation in Peterborough.

The Chief Magistrate started out this morning on an investigation of his own, and has come to the conclusion that only by co-operation with the dealers can the needs of the citizens be supplied.

The idea of the meeting will be for the dealers to undertake to take care of a division of the citizens, and when they have all been given orders equal to their available tonnage and the wants of all not being supplied, the city will undertake to look after what is left.

The citizens will watch with great interest the result of the Mayor's initiative.

GALLANT CANADIANS HOLD OWN AGAINST GAS AND BOMB

Germans Pierce Line in First Attack But Troops from Canada Drive Them Back After Two Hours of Fighting.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Army Headquarters, France, May 8. — After a heavy bombardment, including the discharge of a large number of gas shells, the enemy this morning launched an attack in force in the region to the northeast of Fresnery village, held by the Canadian corps. In the first rush our line was penetrated. Germans did not long retain their advantage. Counter attacks were at once organized and by 7:30, after two hours of sharp fighting, the line occupied before the attack was re-established except for a small projecting angle at the east of the position.

ENEMY'S LOSSES HEAVY.

Severe fighting continues in the region about Fresnery. The enemy's losses were very sever. The seriously wounded as well as the dead had to lie where they fell in no man's land. Information obtained from enemy detachments and other sources believed to be trustworthy indicate that the enemy's losses were very heavy in the region between Hulluch and the Scarpe River during the past four weeks. MOTHER'S DAY NEXT SUNDAY

Next Sunday will be Mothers' Day, and will be commemorated by the wearing of a carnation in memory or in honor of our mothers. True, they should be honored every day in the year, but let next Sunday be a special day and let us create in our fair city an atmosphere of loving remembrance of those mothers who have gone from us, and honor for those who are still with us.

The Playgrounds Association will have for sale plenty of beautiful carnations. Their object is incidentally to help the Playgrounds, but primarily to establish Mothers' Day in Peterborough.

The flowers will be sold on Saturday from several centres and on the streets. Orders may be left by 'phoning 551.

Was 39 Years With Railway Company

CHARLES NOYES RETIRES TODAY AFTER LONG AND FAITHFUL SERVICE.

Mr. Chas. Noyes, who for the past 16 years has been the day gateman at the G.T.R. crossing at Charlotte Strtet, retires to-day on his 70th birthday. This concludes 39 years of service with the railway company. Mr. Noyes started to work for the old Midland Railway of Madoc, where after a few years' experience at the work he was placed in charge of a section gang, and held that position for a long time. He was moved to Peterboro at the time the late Senator Cox took over the Midland, and for many years was in charge of the Ashburnham section.

Mr. Noyes was always popular with the public as well as the railroad men, and all join in wishing him many continued years of prosperity. His brother John succeeds him at Charlotte Street.

FRENCH PLOW AND PLANT WHERE WAR RAGED LATELY

Fields That Were Taken From the German Invaders Only a Few Days Ago Are Now Being Seeded by Women.

PARIS, May 8.—The artillery of the Canadian corps has been engaged during the past few days in counter battery work. Instead of pounding at the enemy's trnaches for the most part it has been trained upon spots where his batteries are believed to be posted, with the object of putting them out of action. In such a war as this, where the guns on a narrow front may number hundreds, it is as necessary to destroy an entmy's artillery as his infantry.

Meanwhile the re-creation of the devastated region redemed by the blood of our men preceeds. On the historic fields behind our front, where two years ago, thousands of French and Germans died, land has been brought under cultivation. A few days ago at one of those points where, in early spring it meant death to show one's head above the trench parapet, is the thrifty owner plowing end planting potatoes in that part of the field not scared by trenches.

In another field could be seen an old Frenchman plowing, one of our soldiers seeding, and a young French woman barrowing. And, while the thunder of war still sounds, and its lightning flashes through the night, the patient industry of the French peasants already is bringing order from chaos, and producing greatly needed foodstuffs from land that has laid desolate since the autumn of 1914.

TRACTOR PLOW NOW HARD AT WORK ON WILSON FARM

Manufacturers Cannot Account for Delay and Assert That Machine Was in Perfect Condition When Delivered Here.

The tractor plow furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to aid in the production campaign is finally at work on the Wilson farm in Otonabee, and large crowds witnessed its operations today. As an agency for turning over the soil it certainly has everything on the horse-drawn implement.

The tractor sent to this county is Canadian made, being manufactured by the Massey-Harris firm in Toronto. A representative of the corporation called up The Review by telephone and declared that he was unable to account for the delay in getting the machine to work. When it left Toronto it was in as perfect condition as dozens of others sent out, all of which start operations without trouble. The expert who came with it took the machine off the cars and left it in working order. Some novice must have interfered and put it out of business, hence the delay.

The Massey-Harris have nearly a dozen tractors at work in Toronto aiding in the municipal gardening campaign. There are scores of others through the Province all giving satisfaction. The firm is willing to put their tractors in competition with those imported from the States. All they ask is a fair show. Agents for the American machines have attempted to belittle the Toronto firm's output, and some such influence may account for the trouble in getting the tractor to work here.

The Government recently refused to remove the duty on farm tractors. They have justification for this action. A tractor that fills the bill is manufactured in Canada, and the home industry is entitled to protection from foreign competition so long as the principle of encouraging home production is recognized by both political parties.

NEARLY 40 NEW MEMBERS JOIN THE TEXTILE UNION

Miss Kelleher and T. A. Stevenson Address Meeting in Labor Hall, Explaining Object of Organization.

Thirty-five young men and girls, with the latter in the majority, united with the Union of Textile Workers last night in response to an appeal made by Miss M. J. Kelleher, Scranton, Pa., for the International Union of Textile Workers of America, and Mr. T. A. Stevenson, secretary of the Toronto District Trades Council. There has been a local union of such workers in this city for some time, but the membership did not include more than eight or nine, all engaged in one institution in the city, an institution that a few years ago was moved to Peterborough from Toronto.

There were about one hundred at the meeting in Labor Hall last night, young girls predominating. Miss Kelleher spoke for an hour, telling the audience whet organization has accomplished for the workers in every branch of industry. The intention is to organize the textile workers in every town and city in Canada where such industry is carried on. The object of the organization is to secure more pay, shorter hours and better working conditions. Strikes are to be avoided unless forced upon the members by the employers.

There is nothing secret about the meetings. No employer need send a scout to the gatherings to ascertain what is being done and who among his own employes is taking part. The members of the firms will be welcome at any time to attend and listen to the discussions.

The initiation fee has been reduced from $5 to 75c, so as to give everybody a chance to join. The monthly dues, too, have been cut from 60c to 40c. In Toronto the most striking change in the industrial arena has been in connection with the textile trades. For years efforts have been made to organize men and women in the textile industry, but with little success. This year, however, the efforts of the representative of the United Textile Workers of America and the Toronto trades and labor council have resulted in the organisation of a very strong union, and already there has been improvement in the mills in that city. The union is growing rapidly, and its meetings and social gatherings are very successful.

Mr. T. A. Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson discussed the Workmen's Compensation Law, which he regards as one of the greatest victories organized labor has ever achieved. Union labor in Canada has 25,000 men in khaki.

The unions of the British Isles have sent 675,000, and in the Allied army altogether there are over three million. The Printers' Union pay the dues of their members who are in the trenches, and an insurance ranging from $75 to $400 to the dependents of every man who loses his life.

At the conclusion of the addresses a call was made for new members, and the response was ready. Another meeting will be held at the same place next Monday night.

G. L. Myland presided, and on the platform with him were the officers of the local union of Textile Workers.

R·M. WADDELL ISSUES WRIT AGAINST EXAMINER MEN

Alleges That Messrs. Glover and Dawe Purchased the Review Last Spring and Later Went Back on Agreement.

Mr. R. M. Waddell has, through his attorney, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, issued a writ against Mr. R. M. Glover, managing director, and Mr. D. D. C. Dawe, superintendent of The Examiner, claiming damages for alleged breach of contract.

Mr. Waddell, who was formerly chief owner of The Review, sold the paper to Messrs. Glover and Dawe last spring, at least that contention is the basis of the suit for damages now pending. Events, it seems, did not shape themselves just as the new owners had figured, and a fresh turn taken by their circumstances induced them to regard any agreement into which they had entered with Mr. Waddell as a mere scrap of paper, even though the sale had been approved by the courts.

Mr. Waddell subsequently sold The Review to its present owners, but at a price less by between five or six thousand dollars than that which Messrs. Glover and Dawe had, it is alleged, agreed to pay. The amount of the difference is now claimed by Mr. Waddell as damages.

The case, when heard in court, is likely to excite great local interest, not only on account of the issue involved, but by reason of the prominence of the parties in the suit.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry appear for the defendants in the case.

BUYING PANIC IN COAL MARKET

Speaking of the coal situation as it concerns his own firm, Mr. H. B. Taylor of H. B. Taylor and Son, says that they had more hard coal on hand in April than they ever had. It has all been bought up and it is impossible to get in enough at present to supply the demand. There is a buying panic on and the people are laying in a stock sufficient to carry them for months.

WILL BUILD THOSE WOODEN SHIPS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, May 8. — Chairman Denman fo the shipping board says the administration's wooden shipbuilding program is definitely under way and contracts for a dozen ships will be signed immediately on the appropriation by Congress of sufficient money to cover the cost of the program.

"Storie of our abadoning the wooden shipbuilding program arose from the fact that there is nothing more to be said about wooden building and we are trying to stimulate steel shipbuilding. The wooden program will be carried out as originally planned," he said.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MAY 8, 1917

MR. GORDON'S STATUS.

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION, acting on the advice of the Attorney-General, says that Mr. G. N. Gordon, being in the employ of the City Council, cannot legally sit as a member of the Board of Education. Mr. Edward Meek, K.C., who has for years been recognized as a legal authority, takes the same stand.

Against these two distinguished opinions Mr. Gordon sets up his own and hangs on to his two offices with a tenacity worthy a better cause. And he is not even satisfied with holding a double-decked position, but is reaching out for more honors and is on a still hunt for the nomination of his party in the next Federal election.

The longest lane has a turn in it somewhere. Every time organized labor hears the name of Mr. Gordon mentioned in connection with Parliamentary honors it gives its knife an extra rub on the grindstone by way of preparedness when the battle begins. Mr. Gordon probably by this time knows just why he lacks favor among that element of the electorate. A recent local disturbance that it required an official from the department of labor to settle was precipitated to a great extent by the arbitrary action of one individual.

PROHIBITION IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE ADVOCATES of a Dominion-wide prohibition law, to be passed by Parliament, cite in support of their contention that such action would be legal, the case of the United States. The American Congress has recently passed a law forbidding the sending of liquor into any state that has voted in favor of prohibition.

Congress has passed many a law involving the constitutional rights of states, only to have the enactments declared ultra vires by the Supreme Court. The same fate is probably in store for the legislation in question. The Constitution expressly provides that Congress shall do nothing to restrict commerce between states, or place any sort of an embargo upon it. All that the temperance people can hope for in this case is that when the law is reviewed by the Supreme Court it will be held that the Interstate Commerce Commission has the right to prohibit the carrying of liquor by the railroads to dry states. This would not mean that liquor could not be sent through other channels.

At all events the law is not yet declared constitutional. The United States Congress has made another lawsuit for itself, and until the question is disposed of the enactment cannot be taken as a precedent upon which the Canadian Parliament could base procedure.

AUSTRALIA AND CANADA.

LIBERAL POLITICIANS who argue in Parliament that because Australia attempted to control prices Canada should have and could have done the same are either superficial and ignorant or deliberately trying to mislead. Anyone who gives the slightest study to the geographical position of Australia cannot fail to realize that the problem which confronted Australia was nothing like that which confronted Canada. Australia is surrounded by water; her producers are cut off from the markets of the world by thousands of miles of ocean, and are forced to take the price fixed by the Government. Canada has a country with one hundred million people right across her borders; and if prices are fixed for the Canadian producer he can simply take advantage of the higher prices prevailing in the United States, thus rendering any attempt to control the cost of living by such a method absolutely futile. As a matter of fact the cost of foodstuffs has had a slighter increase in Canada in two years of war than in any other country in the world, with the exception of New Zealand.

THE COST OF LIVING.

DEALING WITH the high cost of living in Parliament last week, Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, had this to say:

> "It is probably safe to say that thirty million men, if not a good many more, have been withdrawn from production work to engage in destructive work. It is said these men consume at least fifty per cent. more than they would if they were civilians. That gives us the equivalent of 45,000,000 men consuming foodstuffs and producing nothing, withdrawn from productive labor and engaged in destructive labor. Before the war broke out there was just enough food grown to cover the world's consumption; we had not to throw any surplus food into the sea. Take 45,000,000 men from producing; set them to destroy life and property; take that in connection with the fact that last year, with slight exceptions in certain places, crops were short the world over, and with all this destruction and waste going on lessening production, and you have the main factors causing the advance in prices. Some people tell us that the rise in prices is due to cold storage and combinations. I admit that in some cases those things have had a slight influence on prices, but the main factors are those that I have stated."

The causes underlying present extra-normal prices have seldom been more clearly and concisely pointed out. The man who ignores the mighty events of the past three years in seeking for the basis of the high cost of living is incapable of forming an opinion about anything. And those who talk about effective control of prices just now could with equal reason demand control of the effects of an earthquake.

NEW ZEALAND AND CANADA.

FOOD PRICES in Canada have gone up less rapidly than in any other belligerent country with th eexception of New Zealand. Remember that when tempted to blame the Government for the high cost of living.

THE OPPOSITION STYLE.

A STRIKING SIDELIGHT was thrown upon the methods of Opposition attack in Parliament the other day. Hon. William Pugsley viciously assailed the Government for what he alleged to be a failure on its part to have potash allowed in Canada for fertilizing purposes. His object, of course, was to give Canadian farmers the idea that the Government was careless of their interests. After he had gone on for some time the following illuminating dialogue took place:

Mr. Edwards, Frontenac: "Where did the farmers formerly get that potash from?"

Mr. Pugsley: "From Germany."

Mr. Lalor: "Is this Government to blame for the German potash not coming in?"

There was no reply from Mr. Pugsley. Given enough rope, he had hanged himself. Knowing full well that war with Germany stopped import of potash from that country, he was willing, nevertheless, to take advantage of the situation to put the Government in a wrong light before the country. The incident is only one among many that occur every day, in the newspapers and Parliament, of vile, unfair attack upon the Administration.

PLENTY OF POTATOES.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE BURRILL said in Parliament recently that there were plenty of seed potatoes in Canada this year, and the Agricultural Department of Ontario has estimated the supply at two million bushels. An army of doubting Thomases has arisen to challenge his statement. "Where," they ask, "are the potatoes, and why are they not put on the market? Why does not the Government get busy and get the potatoes into the hands of the people?"

A resident of Prince Albert, Sask., writing to a friend in this city the other day, informed him that seed potatoes are selling out there at 90 cents a bushel. That statement sounds something like the situation that prevailed in the good old days when there was plenty of everything and no war.

There always has been an impression in Ontario that there was an unusually large crop of potatoes last season. In the fall and early winter of 1916 there was carload after carload brought to this city from the other Provinces. Then the cold weather set in and the shipments stopped. Potatoes are a risky article to handle when the mercury is away below zero. It was the cold weather that prevented the farmers of Ontario from taking their potatoes out of the pits and putting them on the market.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE WAR will not have been in vain if it stops the foolish system of international marriages.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Can't Dodge It.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Of all the foolish notions in the world, the notion that you can avoid war by getting married is the foolishest.

Uncle Joe Sees Right.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Uncle Joe Cannon may be a reactionary and have no soul for art, but recently, when asked for his opinion about the Irish question, he remarked: "The Irish question must be settled by the people of Great Britain."

Taking Our Credit.

(Watertown, N. Y., Times.)

The Canadian troops have covered themselves with glory, and from this side of the line we give them cheers for their valor and their victory, for we are really the same people, and the honor of the Canadian reflects upon us, for it shows that the American spirit is not held to a boundary line.

GOOD TIMES THAT ARE COMING

"They don't throw old shoes at newly-weds any more except in the moving pictures," observed Mrs. Ramble.

"Throw old shoes at brides!" her husband answered. "I should say not! Shoes are too scarce to be thrown at brides and cats and things. It's the same with rice and bricks. You might as well throw a spud at anybody as a handful of rice these days.

"The time for throwing old things around has passed. It doesn't pay. Last year a man slapped a fellow right behind the ear with a rotten tomato and thought he had done something smart. But some of the tomato seeds fell on the ground, and now they're growing, and the man who got soaked behind the ear has $18.90 worth of tomatoes in sight and the man that threw the tomato has nothing whatever. And tomatoes are something to eat nowadays all right.

"On April 1 some fellows thought they were doing something funny when they tied a lot of bricks up in newspapers and put them under old hats for passersby to come along and break their toes on. But one wise guy hired a wagon and gathered up enough bricks to build him a meat shop, and $99 worth of newspapers and $25.48 worth of old hats.

"Why, we can't even afford to move these days for fear we may lose a couple of fluting irons or a foot tub and be out about $10! There was a time when moving was a good stunt because you could lose so much old junk and so many family heirlooms that way, and there was no other way of getting rid of such things unless you had a fire.

"Why, a warming pan or a spinning wheel may be worth a couple of beans and a can of corned beef, and beans and corned beef are something to eat.

"Prodigal, wasteful wives used to bang their husbands over the head with iron skillets. But no woman would run a chance like that with a skillet nowadays. Iron skillets are worth something.

"Then, too, there was the custom of fastening tin cans to dogs' tails. But tin cans are now worth money and cannot be spared for such uses."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Ramble. "I expect dogs and cats are worth something themselves these days, and if things keep on who knows but what human beings will be worth preservation after a while?"

HUN RAIDERS PUNISHED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 8. — Today's official statement says the enemy's artillery was active at intervals throughout the night at a number of places along our front, particularly in the sector between Fresnery and Loos. Our artillery replied. We made successful raids during the night in the neighborhood of Neuv Chapelle and Fauquissart. Our positions northwest of Armentieres were raided yesterday evening by a party of the enemy. After hand-to-hand fighting they were driven out, leaving a few dead in our trenches. A few of our men are missing. Another raid south of Armentieres was repulsed.

BRITISH AIRMEN SCORE AGAIN.

LONDON, May 8. — Fighting continued yesterday in and around the village of Bullecourt, Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters telegraphs today. A party of 300 Germans who succeeded in forcing their way through to the southwest corner of the village were held up and punished heavily. British airmen had a good day, bringing down seven large German observation balloons, three of them in flames, and considerably restricting the enemy's means of observing our movements. The weather today is mild with a much needed rain falling.

FRENCH REPULSE ATTACKS.

PARIS, May 8. — The war office announces that German counter attacks near Vauxaillon and along the Cemin-des-Dames last night were repulsed. Violent artillery engagements occurred in Vauclere region and in the regian of Craonne.

HAROLD HILL LOST LIFE TRYING TO SAVE OTHERS

Went to Rescue of Wounded Comrades and Was Himself Killed by Shrapnel.

The following extract from a letter from Capt. Hamilton Munro to his brother, Reid Munro, shows that Capt. Harold Hill was killed while trying to rescue others who had been wounded. The letter, dated April 15, says:

I am sorry to say Harold Hill was killed on the first day of the battle. He was adjutant of the 38th Batt., and as that is not exactly a combatant job I did not expect anything would happen to him. In order to make sure, however, I looked up the 38th this evening. When I went into the hut where their orderly room was held, I found another chap acting as adjutant, and felt uneasy. I asked for Capt. Hill, and this officer said, "He is a casualty." I said "Wounded?" and he said "No, killed."

It is certainly too bad. The account he gave me of how it happened was to this effect: Harold, as adjutant of the battalion, was in the battalion headquarters which were in a tunnel. He did not go with the regiment when the attack was made, but remained with the colonel. After they got away he went out to have a look around, and saw some wounded men whom he went to help. This chap said that when Harold came back the colonel jumped on him for going out, but he had apparently seen some badly wounded man, and this was on his mind, so he slipped out again without saying anything and didn't come back. As a matter of fact it was only by questioning men who had seen him pass that they had any idea where he was. They found him two or three days later. He had been hit in the neck and shoulder by shrapnel.

If Mr. Hill would like anything done which I may be able to do, I will be very glad to do it, although there is nothing I can think of. You might ask him. As a matter of fact the colonel of the 38th will be writing to the Hills, or may have done so. He is slightly wounded himself, and will inform them fully as well as do anything there is to do.

battalion is known to have dwindled from 750 to 277 before its incorporation with two others in a composite unit.

The capture of an important sector of an enemy trench on Sunday morning stirred him up to vigorous action, which resulted disastrously for him. After heavy shelling of our new position to prevent its consolidation the Germans on Monday afternoon delivered spirited counter attacks across the open country between Avions and our line. Two columns took part in it, and, ot a man of the five hundred or more who attempted to recover the lost ground reached the first line trench. Rear waves, as they issued from shelter afforded by the Lens-Arras road, were caught by our barrage, which was quickly turned upon them. A thin line of men, all that were left of the first wave of the assault, reached the slope in front of our trenches. They thereby came under a concentrated machine gun and rifle fire, which destroyed all who persisted in going forward.

Billion Dollars for Merchant Fleet

CONGRESS TO MEET SUB. MENACE BY BUILDING NEW SHIPS.

Canada and the United States to Co-operate On Prices

OTTAWA, May 8—The regulation of food prices, the co-ordination of agricultural labor, the stimulation of food production and the shipping problem as affected by the submarine activity were the subjects in which Canada was specially interested at the allied war conference at Washington, and upon which there will be co-operation between Canada and the United States, according to Sir George Foster, acting premier, who returned from the United States Capital on Sunday. Sir Thomas White left on Saturday for Washington and will remain there until the end of the conference

World Knows von Bissing As "Butcher of Belgium" Was Second Duke of Alva

TO preserve the memory of General von Bissing, German Governor-General of Belgium, no monument of stone or bronze will ever be needed. For all time he will stand in history as the jailer and hangman of Belgium, one of the most execrated figures of the war. . . He was part of a machine which operated ruthlessly and with the sole purpose of crushing into abject submission a people that German autocracy had first wronged, then conquered. He had but one thought—in obedience to orders, to hold the Belgians underfoot. As a German, he did his work well. It was a brutal task, for which he proved his fitness, whether in starving the Belgians under his care or shooting an Englishwoman nurse in need of his mercy. Throughout all history his name will be coupled in the Low Countries with that of the Duke of Alva.

There is a touch of poetic justice in the story that von Bissing was haunted by his crime. A writer in The London Observer says: "A fortnight ago I met a diplomatist just returned from Brussels. In conversation the murder of Edith Cavell was mentioned. 'Von Bissing,' said the diplomatist, 'had never been the same man since Miss Cavell's murder. He could not sleep, and was a nervous wreck. He imagined her ghost was haunting him, and once he exclaimed: 'I can state before God that I was not responsible for her execution. It was Berlin.'"

The German press commented at length on the death of General von Bissing. The Berliner Tageblatt said:

"We are not permitted by the censor to pass judgment on his work as Governor of Belgium, but we can say that most of the measures taken under his Governorship created a worldwide sensation and aroused a worldwide interest. They were not taken by him, but in spite of his effort to prevent them."

This is an indirect reference to the putting to death of Edith Cavell, over which General von Bissing tendered his resignation to the Kaiser, as he personally disapproved of her execution, and also to the deportation of Belgian workmen. "Both of these measures were ordered from the Kaiser's headquarters," says The Tageblatt.

Who was it at "the Kaiser's headquarters" who ordered the shooting of Edith Cavell and the deportation of the Belgians? These three words are strange ones for The Tageblatt to use, when some euphemism would have tended to create more uncertainty. The Tageblatt could not give the name of the individual who issued the order.

Now, one of the shocking things about the Cavell execution was the manner of it, the haughty, autocratic refusal to hear a word, to give a moment's time, the contemptuous treatment of the efforts of neutral diplomats for delay. Whoever caused the death of that brave woman was some one who considered himself superior to all others, even to other nations as represented by their envoys. Something of this may be in many German officers, but there was something quite imperial about the Cavell proceedings that set them off a little from the usual German military manner. Von Bissing, from all we have learned about him, was a rather routine-minded soldier, whose mentality, as shown in his official explanations, was somewhat slow and clumsy. The manner of the deed in question does not seem to be characteristic of him. The brusqueness and haughtiness of the manner was that of some one accustomed to think, "I have said it; it is final; I am above all question." Whom does the cap fit, von Bissing or the Kaiser?

SPRING SUITS.

A Few of the Hallmarks of the New Tailor Made.

The southern season always brings out a certain number of spring tailored suits, but this year there is an unusually large display. There is nothing particularly new or startling about the advance spring tailored costumes, and whether the later openings will have any revelation to make remains to be seen. The chances are, however, that the suits of the spring will be similar to the advance designs now on view.

For the conventionally severe tailored coat the accepted lines promise to be very much like those of the winter season.

As is generally the case in the spring the Norfolk suit, although often having little in common with the Norfolk except its belt, is much on view, especially in the collection intended for country or sports wear.

Then there is the suit coat semifitted and rippling around the bottom. This varies in length from hip to finger tip length. Some of the new models are of hip length, with the front of the coat open to show the waistcoat in Breton or Louis XIV. style.

A fanciful tailored costume of black satin revealed a pearl gray waistcoat embroidered in silver. This coat had a belt of the material and pockets posed below the belt. There are also a few straight models, elaborately embroidered or braided.

The spring frocks multiply daily. A lovely model recently noted was of navy blue serge and navy blue and green checked material. The serge formed the upper part of the gown, which fastened down the side with froggings, meeting a skirt of navy and green checks. The collar and cuffs were braided.

Great vogue is predicted for braid trimming. An interesting model noted is of navy cloth and black satin. The long, straight fourreau opening over a black satin front is braided on the waist and at the neck, while the edges are trimmed with pieces of wide galloon, pointed at the ends and posed one above the other. At the waist similar pieces of galloon are arranged to allow a satin sash to slip under them. This sash is tied at the side and braided at the ends.

For more dressy frocks there is predicted a return of the vogue for taffeta. This silk is also much in demand for trimmings and combined with georgette crape and voile.

Frocks of satin are much in v Black satin intended for dress was appliqued with designs of In cashmere in medallion form, with taille embroidery on bodice fron-

The iris is supposed to be the fleur-de-lis, or flower-de-luce of the French coat of arms, but really has nothing to do with the design, this being of recent application. The origin of the design is not known, but it is generally believed to represent the head of a spear; by others the flower of a lily, the floral emblem of France.

NOW ABOUT POTATOES

Grow Some and Keep Down the High Prices.

TOMATOES ALSO A GOOD LINE

But All Danger of Frosts Should Be Passed Before Tender Crops Are Put in the Ground.

(By S. C. JOHNSTON, Vegetable Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Some of our vegetables are very tender and should not be planted until after all danger of frost is over. It must be remembered that because the soil is ready to receive the plants it is not absolutely necessary that the grower should set the plants out. Potatoes planted out between 24th May and even the first of June will give excellent results. Tomatos may be set out after the 6th of June and good returns expected, as some seasons a severe frost destroys many tomato plants as late as June 6th. Vine crops such as cucumber and squash may be planted after all danger of frost is over.

POTATOES. Potatoes are one crop which may be planted on land which is considered to be in a very rough condition. Possibly there is no better crop to be planted on land which has been in sod for a number of years. Medium-sized tubers of good quality should be secured and they should be cut so that there are at least two eyes in each piece or set. It is a good plan in a small garden to have the soil prepared fairly well, then cut the seed and commence planting. Furrows may be made with the hoe about six inches deep and two feet apart. The sets may be placed twelve inches apart in the bottom of the furrow and should be covered with two inches of soil. This will leave the young plant more or less in a trench. As the plants grow the soil will be gradually dragged up and the trench will be filled. It will be necessary to cultivate the soil between the rows so as to keep down weeds, and at the same time soil should be gradually drawn up to the tops in sufficient quantities so that the growing roots will not be exposed to the sunlight, which will cause them to turn green and be of inferior quality. If an early variety has been planted and a vigorous growth has resulted it is possible that some may be fit to dig in August. By removing some of the soil from around a hill with the hand one can tell whether they are fit to dig. If the potatoes are grown for winter use they do not need to be dug until quite late in the fall. The tops will die down at the first frost, but it is not absolutely necessary that they be dug immediately. They should, however, be dug before there is any severe frost.

TOMATOES. The tomato is one of the most popular vegetables either fresh or in a preserved condition. It may be grown quite easily in the backyard. The better practice with tomatoes is to purchase the plants ready for transplanting rather than attempting to grow these plants if one has not had experience in handling a hot-bed. Plants having a large root system are best, and the stock in any case should at least be the size of a lead pencil. The soil should be thoroughly prepared before planting time, possibly a crop of lettuce or radish may be taken from the same, but it is always advisable to have plenty of manure incorporated in the soil. A shallow hole may be made with the common hoe to insert the roots of the tomato plant. These roots should be thoroughly watered so that the soil will cling close to the roots when they are set out in the garden. The plant should be set fairly deep and the earth should be firmed around the roots. If the season is dry and hot, water may be poured around the plant in order to facilitate growth. These plants may be set two feet apart if they are to be trained on stakes and kept from covering a large space in the garden. These stakes should be preferably six feet long, two inches wide, and one inch thick. They may be driven into the soil a few days after the plant has been set out and the plants tied up to the stick with a piece of twine or cotton in such a manner that the tie will be directly under the leaf. As the plant developes in size in front of each leaf a slender growth called a side shoot will appear. These must be removed by pressing them out with the thumb when very small. Four or five ties will be necessary to support the plant. As a result of the staking fruits of a superior quality will ripen earlier than those grown on the ground.

CELERY Celery may be grown in many garden soils if they have been heavily dressed with manure. For the backyard gardener it will be much better, if the plants are secured ready for setting out about the 24th of May. All the plants should be set on the level from six to eight inches apart in the row and from two feet to thirty inches between the rows. It will be found necessary to water celery more than any other crop in the garden, and the soil between the rows should be stirred constantly. In the fall when the celery has reached sufficient height it will be found necessary to blanch it. Possibly the best method being to stand twelve inch boards against the rows of plants, holding them in position with stakes at each end. In from ten days to two weeks the celery plants will have grown considerably, and owing to the exclusion of the light will have become fairly well whitened, which improves the quality. The celery plants should be used as soon as possible after bleaching. Other methods of bleaching celery are the drawing of earth up around the plant gradually, commencing when the head of the plants are about four inches above the ground. Brown paper is sometimes tied around each individual head.

CHILD'S SEVERE STOMACH TROUBLE

Harriston, Ont., Father says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved his Child's Life.

Mr. Corby, Harriston P.O., Ont., writes: "Our little girl was weak from birth, and though we tried doctors' medicine and other things she got no better. She just lay in her cot and cried, and neighbors all said we could not save her. The doctors said she had stomach trouble, and that her chances were small, yet Dr. Cassell's Tablets cured her. They have been worth their weight in gold to us, for we were just giving up hope of saving our little daughter. I don't think there is any other medicine for children like Dr. Cassell's Tablets. ARTISTS AT THE FRONT

GIFTED MEN WHO ARE NOW WEARING KHAKI.

Painters, Cartoonists, and Illustrators Have Joined the Army and Are Serving in Various Military Capacities, Several Having Been Wounded While One Is Now Wearing a Military Cross.

THOSE who used to think that the artist's occupation cuts him off from military service have heard with interest from time to time of the activities of the Artists' Rifles in the Old Land. This corps was raised originally about sixty years ago by Lord Leighton, Robert Edis, and Val Prinsep exclusively for artists and sculptors, and at different periods men like Watts, Millais, Holman Hunt, William Morris, and Sir Edward Poynter have belonged to it. In time it was enlarged to include actors, architects, musicians, and writers, and with the coming of the Great War, the qualifications of the corps were made even more elastic. There is no organization in Canada that corresponds to the Artists' Rifles, and for that reason people in this country do not realize how many of our artists have put on khaki. We must bear in mind that among the younger men in the Dominion the number of artists is small, as that side of our national existence has only just begun to develope, but in comparison to its size, this fraternity is splendidly represented in the Canadian army.

James L. Graham was one Canadian artist who did belong for a short time to the United Arts Corps, of London, England. For three years prior to the outbreak of the war Mr. Graham had been living in Antwerp, saturating himself with the splendid tradition of Belgian art. During that time he kept in close touch with his native land, and frequently showed his pictures in our exhibitions. In July, 1914, Mr. Graham had the result of four years of study and hard work in his studio in Antwerp. Like other people of peaceful Belgium, he did not realize the meaning of the German avalanche until it was too late to save any of his pictures. When forced to escape with the other men who did not want to fall into the hands of the Teutons, he left many fine paintings behind him. Mr. Graham immediately enlisted with the United Arts Corps and remained with them until he returned to Canada last March. Three weeks after landing in the Dominion he joined the artillery, and is now in England with the prospect of being soon at the front, where he will do field sketching and signalling.

Two of Canada's best known painters have been wounded. One of them, Pte. A. Y. Jackson, is looked upon by many as the most conspicuous figure among our younger artists. Pte. Jackson came originally from Montreal, but after studying in the Julian Academy of Paris he settled down in Toronto. He quickly received recognition as a painter with plenty of ideas and marked originality. He showed himself to be unconventional in his work without running to extremes. So it was that he found himself classed among the progressive young painters without running foul of the critics who fear that the radicals are on the point of becoming eccentrics. It was typical of this clever young artist that he should have enlisted early in the war as a private in the 60th Battalion, raised in his native city of Montreal. He crossed to France early last year and was wounded in the spring push. Pte. Jackson did not put aside his brushes entirely when he enlisted, as the painting of "Mills at Leeds" in this year's Canadian Royal Academy testified. Pte. Jackson is an artist who understands how to put Canadian feeling into his pictures.

Captain Ernest Fosbery, of Ottawa, has also been wounded. Captain Fosbery is one of our best known landscape painters, and he also does an occasional portrait. His etchings have been seen in many exhibitions, and it is perhaps as an etcher that a great many art lovers know him best. He is a master of exquisite line. Ottawa has given the Dominion no more widely known artist than Capt. Fosbery in recent years, and his work will be greatly missed from the galleries so long as he continues to wield an officer's swagger stick instead of a paint brush. It was with the 77th Battalion that he entered active service.

One of the most marked individualities among the younger painters is Mr. Lawren Harris, now doing military work with the Headquarters Staff in Toronto. Canadian art has always suffered from the lack of young artists who are sufficiently independent financially to paint what they like. Mr. Harris is one of the lucky few who are not slaves to the public, but who can please themselves. It is certain that he will never get into a rut. At times he paints brilliantly; again he dumbfounds the critics; but he always displays originality and a determination to do just what pleases him. The general public first paid attention to his work when he painted studies of the old houses on Toronto's down-town streets that were once the homes of fashion, but have now fallen on evil days. These pictures were not only fine bits of color but they showed plenty of character. More recently Mr. Harris has been painting studies of hills and trees laden with snow. The general public does not like them so well as the old houses. They do not know what the artist is trying to do and why he should be doing it, but Mr. Harris continues on his way regardless of what the public wants. He has become a force in Canadian art.

A picturesque personality among the artists in khaki is Pte. W. J. Wood, of the 157th Battalion. Pte. Wood is a man with whom art has been his life's ambition, but he could only work very slowly towards his goal. He started out into the world very young and, in his own words, he has done "everything that a man can do with his hands." He has been a lumberman and a blacksmith, and when he went to Boston to get into touch with the art life there, he worked as a gardener. He lived as a boy in Ottawa, but in recent years his home has been in Midland. The reward of Pte. Wood's efforts was just commencing to come when war broke out. His etchings, crude but vigorous, were finding a place in the exhibitions, and some of them were to be seen last September at the Toronto Exhibition. He has continued to do a little etching since crossing to England, and with his devotion to his art and his faith in himself, he ought to succeed. Pte. Woods is a married man with a family.

A young Canadian artist, less widely known than those already mentioned, who has been doing an interesting work in France is Pte. J. W. McLaren, who paints in oils and water colors with a talent that promises well for the future. He went to England with a University Company and was drafted to the Princess Pats. He entered the trenches last March and saw three months of service there. Then his unique chance came. In June the major of the battalion asked him to get up an entertainment. The scheduled performance had to be postponed on account of severe fighting in which the regiment took part, but later on the "revue," as they called it, reached the stage, with such success that the Colonel suggested that it should become a regular feature of the army life. Pte. McLaren organized the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Comedy Company with the assistance of Mr. Percy Ham, son of Dr. Albert Ham, as business manager. With a company of clever lads, including several professional actors, Pte. McLaren has staged plays, sketches, skits, and entertaining fragments that we would look for in winter garden shows or similar conglomerations of vaudeville. He has an orchestra of 22 men, so that there is plenty of music for his reviews.

Some of the other painters in khaki are R. S. Hewton of Lachine, Que., who has a picture in the National Gallery; Sergt. Charles Maillard, of Montreal, whose paintings, "Poilu" and "Notre Dame de Paris" are in the Canadian Royal Academy this year; Lieut. W. G. Storm, of Weston, Ont., who went to the front in the Imperial Army, and who has received the Military Cross; and Captain Louis Keene of Montreal, who has been to the front in France, and who is now connected with military undertakings in the Province of Quebec. Captain Keene is a clever painter of figures, and has a picture "To Fill the Gap" in a prominent place in this year's Academy.

Among the etchers are Lieut. Cyril H. Barraud, who crossed to France with the 43rd Battalion of Winnipeg; W. J. Chester, formerly a teacher in the Toronto Technical School and recently invalided from active service; Pte. A. E. Waite, of Toronto, whose sensitive delicate work is widely known; and Pte. W. R. Stark, of Toronto, who, in addition to being an excellent etcher of figures, has been successful in painting animals and landscapes. Pte. Waite is with the field ambulances and Pte. Stark with a construction battalion. Two cartoonists are wearing khaki, Henry B. Leahy, of Halifax, and E. Wallcousins. Three young men of promise who have also gone are Luigi Nobili, an Italian who returned to his own country to fight against Austria; W. Smithson Broadhead, with the 1st King Edward Horse, who has a picture, "The Wayside Sketch," honored by a place on the walls of the Arts and Letters Club of Toronto, and Lieut. Gordon Payne, now with the Signallers in the Old Land.

Another Toronto man who has gone to England in connection with war work is Mr. F. Coates, who at one time made a hobby of staging small plays and fantasies presented by amateurs. Mr. Coates was interested in sculpture and designing, and he is now using his gift for modelling to aid in the restoration of the faces of men seriously wounded.

There are two women artists whose names must be added to this list. Miss Florence Carlyle, of Woodstock, is regarded by many of the critics as the most eminent of our women painters. She possesses an international reputation, her pictures having been shown and admired in New York, in the Paris Salon and the British Royal Academy. Miss Carlyle is working in an English munition factory. Miss Clara E. POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

Never Allow Yourself To Miss An Opportunity

A consensus of store growth would prove beyond all question of doubt that to publicity is the credit due for the great strides made during recent years by so many of our merchants and manufacturers. The people want to be informed—they are alert to the fact that information of every description is necessary to advancement—the enterprising merchant also realized this fact and through publicity he advances his business by keeping the public informed. The newspaper is the best channel of publicity—it enables the merchant to tell his story direct to the public—the news is fresh, therefore of immediate buying value. The buying power of the people is well worth every enterprising merchant's thought.

BUT The merchant who neglects to use ALL THE available newspaper publicity in his town is defrauding himself of the opportunity to talk directly to a large portion of the community who read the newspaper he is neglecting. Clear business foresight teaches that the regular use of newspapers stimulates business in any season. Make your bargains right and a buyer will be found. Use the columns of The Review and thousands of buyers will be attracted whom you cannot otherwise reach.

CANADIAN ARMY ACCEPT LOSSES AS INEVITABLE

Are Doing Their Full Share in One of Greatest Battles In History.

RUSHING A HUN TRENCH.

With Bomb and Bayonet They Drove Out Foe After Hard Fight.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, May 7—By a surprise attack early on Sunday morning the battalion holding that part of our front immediately south of the Souchez River captured an important sector of the enemy front line and support trench some distance to the east The whole region south-west of Lens, where the ground was gained, is dotted over with ruins of mining villages, and almost every house has been transformed into a miniature fortress by the introduction of machine guns operated from the shelter of strong emplacements The gunners who hold these posts do not surrender—they die at their places beside their guns, fighting to the end Germany still has men of that type, and they sell their lives for the utmost price they can exact

It was to avoid as much as possible the concentration of machine gun fire on our attacking forces that the enemy's trench was rushed. The assault was completely successful. Our men went in with bombs and bayonets and cleared the trench after an officer and 33 men. were captured Possession of this ground was regarded by the enemy as so important that twice during the night he counter attacked. Both efforts failed and the German losses are known to be heavy.

The ground won improves our position

The systematic burning of everything of value in and around Lens continues from day to day. The enemy seems likely to stay long enough to make good his boast that nothing of France's most prosperous mining region will be left but a smoking waste when he goes.

Certain comments in the Canadian press regarding recent operations of the Canadian troops in France, and which especially underestimate the possible casualties, make it necessary to say the corps is taking its full share in what history will record as one of the greatest battles of all time, and accepting its losses as part of the inevitable price of victory.

TO TAKE VOTE ON OVERHEAD BRIDGE BYLAW ON MAY 31st.

The Two Proposed Structures Across the River Will Cost $280,000 According to Estimates.

A number of by-laws were passed by the City Council ratifying the action of committee reports as follows—Ordering the issuing of debentures for the borrowing of $280,000 for the purpose of building a bridge across the river at Hunter Street, and across the river at London and Hazlitt streets. This is part of the agreement with the Quaker Oas Co., and will have to be ratified by a vote of the property owners to be held on May 31st.

The entering into a contract with the Peterboro Hardware Co. for the season's supply of cement.

Ordering the issue of debentures to the amount of $9,742.82 to pay for sewers constructed last year under Local Improvement Act

Proposed Changes In Names of Streets

Elm Will Be Known as Brock And Other Changes Agreed On.

Just as soon as the necessary approval of Judge Huycke is obtained a number of the streets of the city will have new names. A bylaw was passed at the council meeting last night making the change. The only objection to any of the changes was that of changing Elm to Brock. Ald. Langford said it would be confusing.

Ald. McIntyre was ready to accede to the wishes of the residents of the street, who had petitioned for the change.

Ald. Saunders did not think that the residents had sent in a petition for the change and opposed it.

The bylaw passed despite the objectors. The changes will be:

Cedar street changed to Murray street.

Brown street changed to Auburn street.

Park Lane changed to Harper street.

Princess street changed to Gladstone Ave.

Elm street changed to Brock street.

KIND WORDS FOR A FALLEN HERO

CANON DAVIDSON SPEAKS HIGHLY OF LATE PTE. HAROLD HATCHER.

Mr. James Hatcher, 139 Stewart street, whose son, Pte. Harold Hatcher, was killed in France last January, has received the following sympathetic letter from Major (Canon) J. C. Davidson:

No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital,
B. E. F., France, April 18, 1917.
Mr. James Hatcher,
139 Stewart street.

Dear Mr. Hatcher: I am very sorry indeed to see that your fine son, Pte. Harold Hatcher, 93rd, was killed in January. I got to know Harold pretty well, beginning when he was in the orderly room I used to see him every day. He was a nice, clean, reliable boy and I liked him well. He told me about you having had a severe illness and getting better. I am so very sorry that we have lost him. Your family has certainly done a splendid part for the country and Empire. I do hope your other boys will come home We shall be proud of Harold's spirit and sacrifice, even though our feelings are sad.

With deep sympathy for you, Mrs. Hatcher and the rest of the family,

Faithfully yours,
J. C. DAVIDSON,
Chaplain No. 3.

P.S.—Please accept enclosed memorial card. You must live near my friend, Mrs. J. Menzies. Please give her my warm remembrances if you see her.

The memorial card is beautifully inscribed. It says:

"Remember the Lord .... and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, your wives and your houses."—Neh. iv. 14.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE TO LOOK INTO COAL PROBLEM

Ald. Dobbin's Suggestion That the "Burning" Question be Referred to His Committee is Accepted---Some Aldermen Are in Favor of a Municipal Yard.

Mayor Duffus asked the City Council last night to take action to see if the coal situation in Peterborough could not be remedied. He had received a number of complaints that dealers were stocking up coal, and would not give any out to people who actually needed it. The dealers claimed that the coal now on hand was already contracted for. If there was anything that the city could do to help in the matter it should be done. The suggestion has been made that the city buy coal and help the small user that way, but the difficulty rose that it would be impossible to favor one person over another if the city had the coal. He would also like some consideration given to the question of getting a car or so of potatoes to be used in this district for seeding. Mr. W. Oke had expressed a wish to get a car for the city at cost.

A Municipal Yard

Ald. Smith informed the council that the Trades and Labor Council were sending around petitions asking the council to start a municipal coal yard, and it was being well signed. Something would have to be done. Then there was the question of potatoes and bread. In the latter something should be done to control the price of bread, the rise in the price of flour did not warrant the rise and the present price of bread. He had heard it said that the bakers held a meeting every Saturday night and fixed the price. This was wrong, and if it was so should be stopped. A combination of the bakers was illegal.

Ald. Dobbin thought that more would be gained by co-operating with the coal men than by starting a coal yard. A municipal coal yard was really class legislation. It was hard to say who should get the benefit of a municipal coal yard. The idea had been suggested that the Patriotic Fund purchase coal and give it out in place of money to the soldiers dependents.

An Expert Speaker

Ald. Weir shot straight from the shoulder and stated that as far as his firm was concerned they had no coal on hand and had yesterday received the first car of stove coal since the 20th. They had over-sold 500 tons all due to the people getting uneasy. There would be sufficient coal this summer but it would be hard to say what might happen next winter. There was no guarantee what the supply would be. One of the travellers had promised them that a tonnage equal to the supply last year would be given them. So far as the council purchasing coal was concerned the city would not get it except through independent dealers who charged about $1.00 a ton more than the circular price. The coal dealers have to furnish the Government with a statement of the amount of coal on hand and the amount received each month. The present price of coal was $9.00, but it should be $10.00.

Ald. Dobbin asked for an explanation of where the expense was as between the cost at the mine and the price delivered at the consumer's house. It apparently cost $6.16 to put the coal in the cellar in Peterboro from the mine.

Ald. Weir stated that freight from the mine to Buffalo was $2.00, and from there to Peterboro $1.30. There was ten per cent. loss in sifting. The coal teamsters got $2.75 per day, and then there was the coal mine profit to figure in.

Mayor Duffus could not understand why a coal man who had coal in his yard would refuse it to a citizen who was willing to take it away himself.

Ald. Worth thought that the Mayor should investigate the matter himself. The authority had been given by the Government.

Mayor Duffus pointed out that an investigation had been held, and nothing came of it.

Ald. Worth was very strong for the establishment of a municipal coal yard for the benefit of the poorer people.

Ald Stratton felt that something should be done, and moved that a committee be appointed to investigate and take what action they think necessary to remedy the trouble.

Ald McIntyre was in favor of a municipal coal yard that would supply all.

Ald. Smith told of seeing a quotation of $6.10 at the bridge for a ton, which would be equal to $7.00 f.o.b. Peterboro.

Ald. Saunders was confident the middleman was the cause of the fuel trouble.

Ald. Dobbin suggested that it was a "burning" question, and that it be referred to the Fire, Water, and Light Committee, and they took him at his word and added on an investigation of the price of wood with it.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

COLLECTOR IS AFFECTED BY HIGH COST OF LIVING

Contractor Graham Unable to Hire Men and is Behind in His Work---Suggested Relief Not Extended.

E. K. Graham, the contractor for the garbage collection appeared before the council last night, and told how the high cost of living was effecting the collection of garbage in the city, and the probability of a still worse state of affairs unless the city came to his rescue. The drivers of his rigs were all quitting unless they got an increase in wages of about 50 per cent. Then there was the high cost of horse feed. He thought that until things righted themselves the city could hire some teams and get the work done. He had tried to get men to fill the places of those who quit, but found it impossible. The garbage and ashes were getting the best of him.

Mayor Duffus thought that the Council should not impose any great hardship on Mr. Graham. The difficulties of the situation were known to all. He thought that it might be possible to get along with weekly collections until the work was caught up. The people would stand for that for a few weeks as long as it was understood.

Ald. McIntyre knew that it was impossible to estimate on the cost of a job these days, and would help Mr. Graham out, if possible. The ratepayers do not want a man to work for nothing.

Ald. Stratton thought that the Council should do all they could to help the garbage contractor, and would move that weekly collections be made for the next three months.

This did not get a seconder, and Ald. Dobbin's idea to refer it to the Property Committee was also voted out, and the matter was left as it was no action being taken.

$5.00 PER DAY

Will Be Paid The Teamsters On City Work

Alderman Taylor presented the report of the Committee of the Whole to the City Council last night, and the only change made was in clause 2, which read, "That 50 cents per hour be paid for teams and teamsters." On a motion of Alderman Saunders the clause will read, "That the city teams be paid $5.00 per day." This carried.

Big Batch of Communications Are Referred to Various Committees.

The following communications were presented to the City Council last night, and were referred to the committee having the matter in charge:—

From T. C. Westlake, asking permission to build a boat house at the inter-section of Dublin and Harvey streets. Property Committee will deal with this.

From G. N. Gordon, city solicitor, submitting plans of the property effected by the closing of certain streets, and asking that the consent of the owners of property on Hazlitt to the widening of the Street be secured.

From Tax Collector, giving a statement of the taxes collected on last year's roll. The balance due is $15,810.92. This was referred to the Finance Committee.

From the Governor General's Secretary postponing his visit. To the Reception Committee.

From G. N. Gordon, city solicitor, stating that he had submitted the draft agreement to Mr. Denham, of the Quaker Oats Company, and that it was satisfactory in most particulars. This went to the Committee of the whole.

From the Secretary of the Public Library requesting that the board be made the custodian of city deeds. Referred to the Legal Committee.

From C. Brisbois, asking for a sidewalk on the south side of Sophia Street. This went to the Board of Works.

From Dr. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health, pointing out that the city by-law recently passed to deal with the nightsoil collection was not satisfactory, as the collections should be not farther apart than ten days, and also advising that the scheme of payment was wrong, as the cost should be collected the same as taxes against the property effected. This was referred to the Property Committee.

From F. J. A. Hall, City Auditor, enclosing a statement of the city's finances for 1916. Later on the council ordered 200 copies to be printed.

The G.T.R. enclosed a plan of a siding into the Quaker Oats property in East City, and asking that it be approved. This went to the Committee of the Whole.

From the Hydro-Electric Railway Association of Ontario enclosing copies of their annual report, and drawing attention to recent legislation. The Railway Committee will peruse the document.

The Commission on Conservation inviting the Council to be represented at a convention to be held in Winnipeg, on May 28th, 29th and 30th. This was received.

The National Sanatorium Association informing the city that the charges for indigent patients at the institution had been increased from $1.00 to $1.25 per diem. The Finance Committee will find this on their file.

From the city solicitor stating that Judge Huycke had dismissed the appeal of D. Minicola.

Frm Miss Isabella Hay, on behalf of the widow and family of the late T. A. S. Hay, acknowledging the Council's resolution of condolence.

From R. Manley and other teamsters asking that they be paid $5.00 per day owing to the high cost of living. This was dealt with elsewhere.

From the Board of Health recommending that the standard of milk and cream for domestic use be raised. Referred to the Property Committee.

From the City Solicitor, enclosing agreement signed with the diocese of Peterboro.

From G. Henderson complaining of the road from the Lift Locks south to the C.P.R. on the east side of the canal and threatening damages in case of accident. It was the impression that this is a Government road, and not in the city. It was referred to the Board of Works.

From the Trades and Labor Council regarding the placing of the street names on the corner of the buildings, and not on the sidewalk. They also opposed the daylight saving scheme.

From the City Clerk of London, asking the city to co-operate in getting the Government to pay the taxes on public utilities. This was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

From the Dominion Railway Board in reference to tht sidings into the Quaker Oats Co. The Board of Works will deal with this.

From the City Engineer reporting on the cost of the sewers on Prince, Princess, and George Streets. The amount involved is $14,756.25. The Board of Works will consider the figures.

From W. H. Dunsford acknowledging city's gift to the British Sailors' Relief Fund.

STREET LIGHTS ARE ORDERED IN BY ALDERMEN

DARK SPOTS IN CITY TO HAVE LOTS OF LIGHT.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee recommended to the City Council last night that the following new lights be placed at the places named:—

Dublin and Downie Streets.—New incandescent light.

On Sherbrooke Street.—The arc lamp will be taken down, and incandescent lamps substituted.

Driscoll Terrace.—One light on the second pole north of Hunter Street, west side.

Sherbrooke Street.—One light on the first pole west of Turner Bros.' Card Factory, and one on the first pole east of Aylmer Street.

Chamberlen Street.—Remove the arc lamp at Scott's store, and place ten lights along the length of the street.

Lafayette Avenue.—Two lights on this street.

Albert Street.—Take out arc light and replace with eight lights along the street.

Corner of Simcoe and Rubidge Streets.—Place one light on the pole near the north-east corner or junction of these streets.

Corner of Simcoe and Stewart Streets.—Lower the arc light at this point six to eight feet.

Robinson Street.—Place a light on the first pole east from Burnham Street, south side.

Alderman Langford, before the report was adopted, raised some objection to the south and east wards getting all the lights and the rest of the city left in darkness. He thought a system of installing lamps should be adopted, and in addition, the north ward alderman pointed out the increased expenditure in this department.

NEW FLAG FOR CITY HALL

And It Will Have To Be Put Up Every Morning

The City Property presented its report to the City Council last night and the following recommendations among the others were adopted:—

We recommend that the rifles owned by the city be called in, and that the chairman enquire as to the present value of them, and report to this committee.

We recommend that the chairman be authorized to purchase a flag for the city building.

We recommend that the flag on the city building be taken down each night and put up each morning.

DAMAGED WHEEL IN TURNING CAR

SIMCOE STREET CONGESTED WITH AUTOS NEAR DUFFUS GARAGE.

Simcoe Street, in the vicinity of the Duffus Garage, presented a busy scene yesterday afternoon. The spacious garage, interior and yard were congested with Ford cars, as also was the highway. In fact so thick were these machints on the street that one driver in turning his car collided with another, and broke a spoke out of one of his wheels.

Mayor Duffus, while relieving the blockage, thought he had better phone his Norwood and Millbrook agents to send no more cars to Peterborough, as the streets were already overflowing with them.

"In fact," he jocularly remarked, "if business keeps growing in this way, we'll have to quit selling Ford cars. The country is full of them."

JUST THINK how convenient

No stooping necessary—cooking top, broiler and baking ovens, and warming closet, all at the right height.

The various parts — aluminized ovenand enameled splashbacks, nickel-plated toasting rack, rust-proof black enamel finish — may be wiped over with a damp cloth; this means delightful cleanliness maintained with the least possible effort.

A range having ample capacity, compactly built, equipped to do all classes of cooking quickly and well, it is a great labor and time saver.

Booklet free.

ONE RED CROSS DAY AMONG WEST AFRICANS

A British official gives the following interesting incident: Suddenly, almost startlingly, a deep, decided sound bursts forth. The town crier has news to make public to-night. Boom, boom boom, hammers his call for attention. Now he ceases his drumming, and in slow, sonorous sentences, audible throughout the listening town, he cries his news aloud.

"The Chief salutes all men. The Chief tells all men who are glad that the Germans are driven away this news. All men whose hearts are good, who thank Allah for the peace we now have here, hear this news. All men who thank the soldiers of the English King for eating up the German soldiers can now give alms to show thanks. Your alms will help the English soldiers who fought for you, who were wounded and hurt for you. Some of them you have seen here, but they are many. All who wish to give alms can do so on Friday next at the mosque. They may offer money or presents. Let the poor man who is thankful not be ashamed to give his penny. Let the rich man rejoice that he is still rich and give with good heart. So we will show our thanks. Praise be to Allah: Amen."

Such was the introduction of "Red Cross Day" in the North Cameroons, where for the [illegible] year I, as a British Political Officer, have been responsible for the administration of an area of some 10,000 square miles of this vast conquered German Colony. When Friday evening came the Chief and his suite brought me the results. A long procession arrived at my hut. First came the Chief himself with a bag of the silver collected, which he placed upon my camp table. Next came four strong men, each bearing upon his head a load of money, consisting of bags of tenths of pennies halfpennies and pennies. Following these came a considerable and very noisy herd of goats and sheep. Lastly came bearers carrying crates of fowls bundles of native cloth, pots of honey hoes, and lumps of the locally made tobacco. At the tail of these came a small and very skittish young bull calf, in charge of four struggling boys. During the next two days I held auctions in the town market place to dispose of these gifts for cash, and a very hot and patience-trying task it proved to be, though there were amusing incidents

BRAISED BEEF

Take 3 pounds of thick flank of beef, 2 carrots, ¼ pound tomatoes, 3 small onions, 2ounces fat bacon, a bay leaf, 3 cloves, some peppercorns, 1 ounce of cornflour or arrowroot, and pepper and salt to taste. Fry the bacon in the fat and fry the onions slightly, but do not allow it to brown, add the vegetables cut up small, and the seasonings in a muslin bag, place the meat, well seasoned and floured, on top of the vegetables and pour round sufficient stock to cover the vegetables only. Place in a casserole in a hot oven or over a low flame on top of the stove for three hours or more. Do not uncover the vessel during the cooking. At the end of the time take up the beef, and if not brown enough place in a sharp oven for 10 minutes to crisp, basting well lift out the herbs, and if the vegetables are not to be used as a garnish strain these off and add the thickening. The best way to treat the vegetables is to rub them through a fine sieve and add the purée to the gravy before adding the strach. This improves the flavor of the sauce and the texture also. A nice garnish to this dish is tomatoes or some boiled macaroni.

Bouffant drapes at the hip still appear here and there and unquestionably they are very attractive. A charming afternoon frock is illustrated It is of navy soiree silk with bright relief afforded by the white satin collar and cuffs. Silk stitching is introduced throughout the garment and a deep embroidered belt, snug at the waistline, accentuates the fullness over the hips.

"RED-HAIRED" GIRLS

Praise For Their Originality—Warning About Their Colors

Of red-haired girls the Jester writes: I will talk of "red-haired girls" to meet the request of a fair correspondent, but I don't know that I altogether like the term. I would no more use it towards a girl than I would revert to the discarded phrases of my boyhood days, to wit, "Ginger" or "Carrots." I think of Titian hair, auburn hair, flame colored hair, but red hair never!

Half the beautiful women of history had auburn hair, don't forget. Andromeda had, if my memory serves me right, Beatrice had too; so had Juliet if one depends on some who have portrayed her. [illegible], most lovable of all heroines, certainly had and so did Romola and Becky Sharp. If I were possessed of red hair I think I should be proud of it.

My experience of red-haired girls inclines me to the belief that they possess marked originality in many directions! They have usually decided opinions of their own, and also possess the courage of showing their convictions - from which, very possibly (who knows?), arises the familiar phrase, "Ginger for pluck."

But I do think that the average lady of auburn locks is inclined to [illegible] under criticism owing to the fact that she is not always as careful of her clothes as she might be. Or, rather, I should perhaps be more correct in saying, that she is not quite as careful in her choice of surrounding colors as her own personal coloring demands. Every color in nature is beautiful, but every color in art is not. She may, by careful blending of colors, make herself a dream or a nightmare. And she should choose ribbons above all things.

Household Helps

When roasting meat and there is danger of its becoming too brown, place a dish of water in the oven. The steam will prevent scorching and the meat will cook better. A piece of greased paper placed over the meat is also good. After fowl of any kind is cleaned the inside should be rubbed thoroughly with a piece of lemon before the dressing is put in. Steep one ounce of celery seed in half a pint of vinegar. A few drops of this will give a fine flavor to soups and in sauces for fowl.

For Burns

If you have had the misfortune to burn any part of the body dust it plentifully with dry baking soda. Over this tie a cloth moistened in water.

Admiral Once Fisher Boy

Much interest was aroused at St. Pierre, Miquelon, by the recent promotion of Admiral Dominique Gauchet to be Admiral-in-Chief of the Allied navies at Saloniki. Gauchet was born on Dog Island, one of the St. Pierre group in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. His father was a fisherman, and as a boy he was trained to that pursuit. In 1887 he went to France and joined the navy.

Canada's Meat For Troops

It was stated in the House of Commons that the Canadian Government had not found itself in a position to buy meat for the home Government, but had helped in various other ways. In five months Canadian firms have sent ten thousand tons of frozen meat for the armies.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

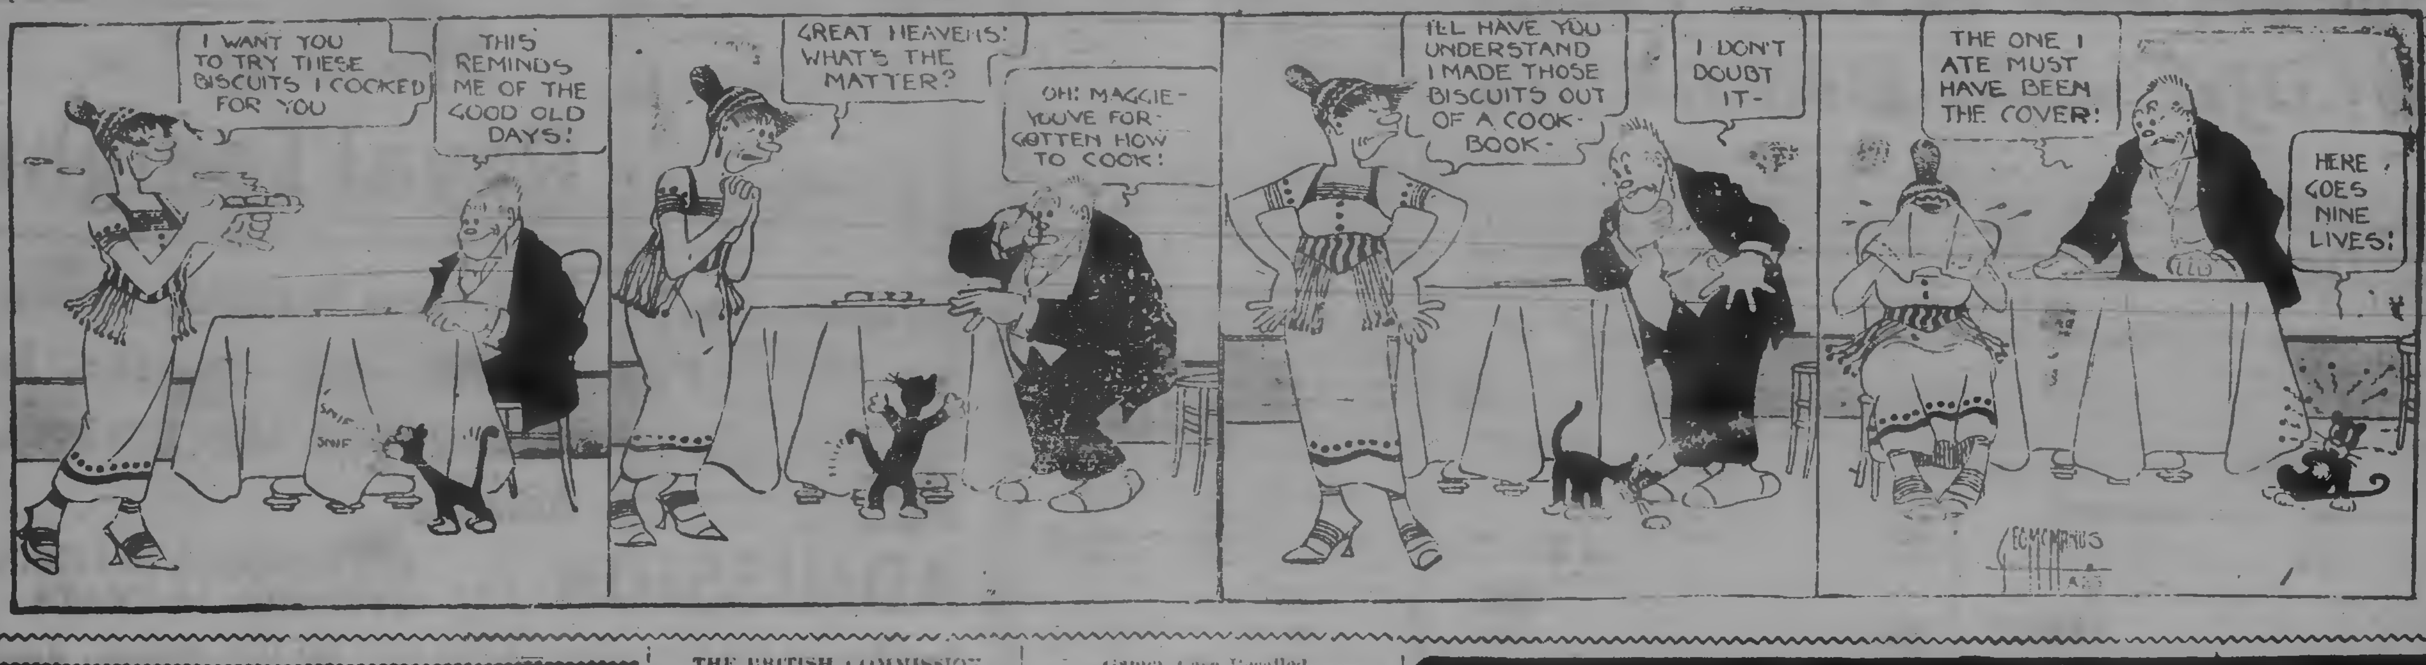
By GEORGE McMANUS



I WANT YOU TO TRY THESE BISCUITS I COOKED FOR YOU
THIS REMINDS ME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS!
GREAT HEAVENS! WHAT'S THE MATTER?
OH! MAGGIE - YOU'VE FORGOTTEN HOW TO COOK!
I'LL HAVE YOU UNDERSTAND I MADE THOSE BISCUITS OUT OF A COOK-BOOK -
I DON'T DOUBT IT -
THE ONE I ATE MUST HAVE BEEN THE COVER!
HERE GOES NINE LIVES!

HOW THE TEAMS ARE GROUPED

PRESIDENT LANCASTER OF O. A. L. A. BUSY ARRANGING PLANS.

Signs are not wanting that the changing of the age limits in the juvenile series of the Ontario amateur Lacrosse Association will cause considerable activity in the national game this summer. At the largely attended executive meeting in Toronto on Thursday last, special attention was given to the game among the boys. President Lancaster, of Norwood, is endeavoring to arrange for cheaper sticks for the Juveniles and Midgets, and if this can be accomplished it will materially aid the beginners in the game.

An active campaign is going forward to revive the national game wherever enough men can be secured for a team. and many old enthussiasts have shown a willingness to assist, so that prespects are bright for the coming summer in spite of the wartime handicaps.

The initial draft of districts of local interest follows. The final grouping will be made on the 16th inst.

Intermediate Series.

Group No. 6—Peterboro. Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood.

Group No. 7—Stirling, Madoc, Trenton, Marmora, Tweed.

Group No. 9—Orillia, Bracebridge, Gravenhurst, Midland. Port McNicholl. Barrie.

Juvenile Series.

Group No. 8—Tweed, Stirling, Madoc, Trenton, Marmora.

Group No. 9—Hastings, Campbellford, Norwood, Havelock.

Group No. 10—Peterboro City League.

Group No. 12—Orillia and Barrie.

Group No. 19—Carleton Place, Smith's Falls, Perth.

Army blue broadcloth develops this attractive suit built for maidens. The full skirt nevertheless manages to hobble in, and the Russian blouse takes a full peplum thrice tucked. Satin sailor collar and cuffs add a natty touch, as does the navy straw sailor hat.

The Geography of Japan.

Until Ino Chukei finished his labor of love in 1821 nothing like an authentic map of Japan existed. His career was remarkable, for it was not until he had reached the age of fifty-five years, having been a sake brewer from boyhood, that he turned his attention to surveying. His maps were found to be so good and so free from errors that they were adopted as the basis of the more recent trigonometrical survey of Japan. During his work he surveyed one hundred and thirty-seven thousand square miles, using instruments which he made himself, but he met with no reward during his life, for on the termination of his undertaking he was thrown into prison by the Shoguns, and he remained there until he died. He has since been honored by a monument, erected to his memory in Tokio.

THE BRITISH COMMISSION.

Many Celebrities Journeyed in Mr Balfour's Party.

The British Commission, headed by Mr. Balfour, includes several members who have won distinction in the war. One member of the commission is General Bridges. He it was who effected the co-operation between the Belgian and British armies and that probably was the triumph which brought to him selection for the mission to the United States. He more recently has been in command of the Nineteenth Division of the British army in France. General Bridges was the last British soldier to quit Antwerp when the Prussians occupied that city and he received one of his wounds at Yser.

Captain Spencer-Clay, General Bridges' aide, married an American girl, Miss Pauline Astor.

The airman of the British mission Major Rees, wears the Victoria Cross. It is told of Major Rees that he, single-handed, engaged ten enemy airplanes bent upon a night raid and destroyed four of them, pursuing the last three back to the Prussian lines. He received a shot in the knee as well as the Victoria Cross for that work. He is still lame.

The British party contains men who are experts in every branch of work of the war. For instance, there is an expert on food control and purchases. Alan Anderson, who is chairman of the board that buys all of the wheat for the allied countries.

Rear-Admiral Sir Dudley de Chair has been in command of the fast cruiser patrol in the North Sea. He is likewise a torpedo expert. He served in Washington as naval attache at the British Embassy in the 90's.

Gamey Case Recalled.

Only one or two of the chief actors in the celebrated Gamey case which is recalled by the recent death of the member for Manitoulin, are living to-day. Fourteen years have passed since the famous expose was made. Sir George Ross, the then Premier, and leader of the party against whom the charge of bribery was laid by the late Mr. Gamey, is dead. Sir James Whitney, leader of the party in whose interests Mr Gamey was elected, has passed away. Chancellor Sir John Boyd, who sat with Sir Glenholme Falconbridge on the Royal Commission, that investigated Mr. Gamey's charges, died a few months ago. Hon. James R. Stratton, against whom the most serious allegations were made, passed away last year at Hot Springs. Mr. Stratton's private secretary, Elgin Meyers, who figured as a witness in the investigation, has been dead some years. Hon. S. H. Blake who prosecuted in the hearing before the Royal Commission on behalf of Mr. Gamey, also passed away some years ago. Hon. W. D. McPherson, now Provincial Secretary, assisted Mr. Blake. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., had with him as associate counsel in conducting the case for the accused, the present Mr. Justice Riddell.

CHILDREN WITH NERVES

Must Not be Scolded—Should be Very Sympathetic

Children are not all "little animals." Some have such keen sensibilities, such acute imaginations, such teeming little brains that they should be treated with all the thoughtfulness and consideration given to adults of the same tendencies. Such children have to be tenderly and constantly watched, and their delinquencies met with an amount of sympathy that gains and holds their confidence. Those children who are scolded and punished for the least delinquency become hardened in wrong-doing or demoralized by fear. In the latter case, demoralized is certainly not too strong a term for the results which follow injudicious punishments.

A nervous child becomes so afraid of doing wrong that at last he loses the power of discerning between what is wrong and what is right, and he naturally chooses the course which he thinks least likely to lead to chastisement. He will descend to any amount of deceit and story-telling to save himself from the results of his wrong-doing, and it is entirely out of the question that if his first years are passed in such a mistaken and perverted way, he should ever grow up into an honest and straightforward man.

When children show themselves to be abnormally sensitive and nervous they should be treated in a totally different way to the others who are healthy and boisterous; but they must not be spoiled, for that would simply aggravate the evil. They should have the benefit of a frequent change of air, especially to the seaside. No stimulating drinks, such as coffee, tea and beer must be given. The food must be quite plain, but wholesome and nourishing—fish, eggs, vegetables, cooked fruit and plenty of milk and milk products. Above all avoid scolding them.

Pepper and Mint Salad

Bruise enough mint leaves to fill a large cup. Pour over a pint of boiling water and let steep for five minutes. Strain all the juice, add to half a box of gelatin with just enough cold water to cover and a cup of white sugar. Pour the mint liquor over all and stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved. Remove the seeds from red peppers and add them to the jelly when partially cool. Mould and allow to harden. Serve with mayonnaise into which a little whipped cream has been beaten.

A Beauty Spot in Nova Scotia

MOST centrally located town in Nova Scotia with a population of between eight and nine thousand, meeting place of railroads and home of large manufacturing industries. Truro is also a place of beauty and a joy to the visitor in its tree-shaded streets, its parks of winding pathways and [illegible], its surroundings of rich and beautiful farm lands. Here is the junction of the Canadian Pacific and Dominion Atlantic Railways, the home of a huge and ever-growing wool industry with a name nationally known, a condensed milk plant, hat and cap factories, machine shops and wood factories—all on a large scale and all prosperous. But here too are fine churches, normal and agricultural colleges, handsome public buildings, in beautiful settings of green lawns and shrubbery, on streets shaded by rows of spreading maples. Truro is a unique and most happy combination of material prosperity and aesthetic charm.

Settled first by the Acadian French, and later by sturdy colonists from New England, and hardy soldiers who had fought and won under Cornwallis and Wolfe, Truro is rich in its historical associations. Quick to realize the richness of the soil here—washed as it was by the tides of Cobequid, terminus of the fickle Fundy—the French Acadians built their dykes, erected a chapel, and settled. With the passing of the years, the tiny settlement grew and grew, becoming not only a community of rich farms, but also a resting place in the long trek from Port Royal to Louisburg or Quebec.

And then came the expulsion of the Acadians, their homes were burned, their flocks driven off and their lands made waste. Even to this day, pieces of farming or kitchen utensils are turned up by the plow, treasures hastily buried there by the French Acadians in the hope that some day they might return, reclaim them, and live again these happy and peaceful days so dear to the habitant farmer.

Years passed by and there came such men as Alexander Miller, Matthew Taylor, Capt. William Blair, Eliakim Tupper, Charles McKay, Adam Dickey, James Gourlay, ~~Samson~~ Moore, James Dowpey, Joshua Lamb, James Whidden, and Charles Dickson from New England, Capt. John Morrison and Col. Jonathan Blanchard from New Hampshire; Dr. John H[illegible] from Philadelphia, and soldiers from England, Scotland and Ireland—stout and hardy pioneers were they all. So strongly were they in sympathy with the American Revolution that when two justices of the peace tendered them the oath of allegiance in 1777, but five were willing to take it. Yet their descendants by the hundreds are now giving their blood and their lives in the great battle being waged for civilization.

No less delightful than the lawns and groves of the town itself, than the natural park with its paths winding in and out among trees of fir, spruce and pine, its miniature cliffs, its bridges over bustling and tumbling rapids, its sparkling waterfalls and its rustic benches overlooking them all—no less delightful than all these are the driveways through a country picturesque in rambling farm houses, huge barns, spreading fields of hay and oats; with afar off the waters of Cobequid, muddy from racing over the long flats, and dotted with ships, lumber laden and bound far south to the United States or east to Great Britain.

Charmed with its beauties and soothed with its cool breezes, the seeker after rest and peace will find in Truro a place to come to again and again.

Stole Auto While Owner Worshipped

Auto of H. G. Walker, Parked At George Street Church, Taken By Young Men.

Sunday afternoon Mr. H. G. Walker was attending the George Street Methodist Sunday School and he left his Ford on McDonnel street. When he came out the auto was missing, and upon making inquiries found that some young men had taken it.

The matter was treated as a joke for a while, but as the hours passed and no trace of the car was found, Mr. Walker notified the police. So far the machine has not been located.

Mr. Walker, who lives at 774 George street, will be glad to hear of the safety of the Ford. Its license number is 16008 and the number of the engine is 30009.

News of the loss has been wired to adjoining municipalities.

THE AUTO FOUND

Several boys were missing from on Sunday night and when they arrived home last night it was found that they had taken the auto, and had been joy riding up through the country. They ran out of gasoline at Fowler's Corner, and after getting a small supply started for Peterboro. The car was abandoned at Dixon's, near Jackson Park, where it was found later by the police.

The youthful autoists will appear before the Juvenile Court to-morrow morning.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

Toronto Man Entertains Music Dealers At Luncheon

A very pleasing function took place at the Empress Hotel to-day, when Mr. John A. Fullerton, director of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, lunched the local music dealers. Mr. Fullerton's main mission was to interest his guests in the great "Music in the home" movement, now strongly organized in many Canadian cities and towns. The idea is to secure the co-operation of Peterboro music dealers with the local press in keeping music loving citizens in touch with happenings and innovations in the musical world. With this end in view the Review will shortly carry a "Music in the Home" page one day each week, devoted to the general musical advancement of Peterborough. This page will be found exceedingly interesting and instructive, and replete with news of a musical character.

OBITUARY

ANTONIOU DEMETREE.

Antoniou Demetree died in St. Joseph's Hospital this morning after a very long illness. He was born in Prosena, Greece, twenty years ago. Previous to his illness he was employed with Yeotes Bros. on George street.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the undertaking parlors of D. Belleghem & Sons to the Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by a priest of the Greek Orthodox Church who is in the city.

JOHN McCARTHY.

John McCarthy died at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Joseph Beyette, 188 Lake street, this morning, after an illness of some duration. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Jos. Beyette, Mrs. Jos. Dinnault and Mrs. Ed. Keating.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heard Church and St. Peter's cemetery.

LEASH AND MUZZLE FOR DOGS ON PARADE

Many of the Aldermen have been approached by dog owners to have the rigid restrictions of the recent bylaw amended so that the dogs could be taken out for exercise.

Ald. Stratton moved that dogs be allowed out on leash.

Ald. Duncan would leave it as it was until the object of the bylaw had been fulfilled.

The matter was finally agreed on by ordering a bylaw to be prepared so that a dog can be taken out for exercise provided it is on leash and muzzled.

BRITISH RETAKING GROUND THAT WAS LOST TO GERMANS IN TUESDAY'S FIGHTING

Enemy Barely Holding Fresnoy Village Itself—Artillery Fire Disperses Forces Gathering for Attack—Positions Advanced at Other Points.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

British Headquarters in France, May 9. — The Associated Press correspondent wires: "Most of the ground lost by the British in the vicinity of Fresnoy has been regained. The Germans are barely holding Fresnoy village itself."

The official statement says: "Around Fresnoy hostile forces concentrating for an attack to the north were dispersed by our artillery. To the west we improved our position, and the night counter-attack regained us a portion of the ground lost yesterday morning. At night, slightly northeast of Hargicourt, we advanced our positions. Northeast of Cavrelle village yesterday evening the enemy attacked, but this was broken by our barrage and machine gun fire, and he was completely repulsed. East of Armentieres early this morning an enemy raiding party was driven off."

HOW FRESNOY WAS LOST.

An official communication issued from British headquarters and dealing with the reverse at Fresnoy, says:

"The enemy made heavy counter-attacks upon our positions in the neighborhood of Fresnoy. In the first of these they succeeded in gaining a foothold in our trenches northeast of the village, but the ground lost was shortly afterward regained by our counter-attack.

"Later in the morning an attack in force was delivered by two fresh German divisions east of Fresnoy. On the right of the front attacked the enemy's troops were repulsed with heavy casualtiesand our positions successfully maintained.

"On the left, after fierce resistance, our troops were compelled to withdraw from Fresnoy village and wood.

"Bombing operations by our airplanes continued, large quantities of explosives being dropped with good results. During the day seven of our airplanes carried out an attack on the enemy's captive balloons, seven of which were brought down in flames. Six German airplanes were brought down in the air fighting; two others were shot down by fire from the ground. Seven German machines were driven down out of control. Eight of our airplanes are missing."

LIEUT. W. WORTH WRITES OF VIMY RIDGE BATTLE

Is Now In Hospital in England With Ugly Wound in Face.

A STIRRING DESCRIPTON.

Troops Started Out to Engagement as Though Going to a Picnic.

Lieut. Worth, who was wounded in the Battle of Vimy ridge, and who is now in a hospital in England, has written the following letter to his friends in the city:—

Dear Folks at Home:—

Just a line to let you know how things are progressing with me. I dropped you a line on Saturday, as soon as I got in here, and also cable, which I had a reply to yesterday. I was so glad to hear you were not worrying too much, as it might have been worse, and by this time there will be many families received news of the death of their dear ones which took place in the same battle. Y o would notice from the tone of my letters lately that we were expecting something to come off, but of course did not exactly know the time. The last two weeks before Easter we were out training for it behind the lines and had everything taped off as the actual part we were to go over. We got a good idea about it that way. We were first informed that it was to be Easter Sunday, "the better the day the better the deed." However, it was postponed for 24 hours, and we spent Easter Sunday getting ready for it.

It was a lovely day and the bands were playing all over; you would have thought we were all going to a picnic. At 7.30 p.m. we all moved

GERMAN ATTACK WEAKENING ON FRESNOY FRONT

Canadian Troops Were Rearranged to Conform With New Battle Line.

FOUGHT WITH TENACITY.

Picked Bavarian Troops Were Pitted Against Single British Battalion..

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 9. — The night of Tuesday passed in comparative calm on the Canadian front, but to the south of the ground about Fresnery there has been heavy fighting. Concentrating the greater part of a division of his most trusted Bavarian troops against the Fresnery front held by a single British battalion, Prince Rupprecht attacked at dawn Tuesday and carried the village. Its over-matched defenders fought with tenacity and stayed the Bavarian advance well to the east of Arleux.

The Canadian front to the north was realigned to conform to the new line in the region about Fresnary, and the artillery set about its task of making the village untenable for the enemy. Counter battery work still engrosses attention to the Canadian front with satisfactory results. The enemy's fire from heavy guns mounted in the region of Lena has distinctly slackened. He makes extensive use of gas shells.

Aerial activity at present is great. The British supremacy in this department, challenged earlier in the season, is now assured.

TO STOP SUPPLY OF GRAIN USED BY DISTILLERS

Motion to That Effect is Made In Parliament By Liberal Member.

MR. BURNHAM FAVORS IT.

Debate is Non-Partisan, Prominent Members on Both Sides Supporting Proposition.

OTTAWA, May 9.—The House of Commons discussed the waste of grain involved in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Canada. The debate arose upon the motion of E. B Devlin, Liberal member for Wright, to adjourn the house for the purpose of discussing these matters of urgent public importance.

Mr. Devlin accompanied his motion with the statement that in view of the high cost of living and the necessity for conserving food for our own use and the use of our allies, the government should take immediate steps to discontinue the supply of grain to distilleries and brewers. He said that three million bushels of grain were consumed last year by the distillers and brewers, in addition to considerable quantities of sugar and molasses, and Mr. Robb Liberal member for Huntingdon, figured out that 125,000 acres of land were devoted to production of raw matter for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

Proposal Meets Support

Mr. Devlin's proposal met with general favor, and speeches in its support were delivered by Hon. Geo. P. Graham and by Messrs. Hughes (Kings, P.E.I.), Stevens (Vancouver), Proulx (Prescott), Burnham

FRENCH REPEL ALL COUNTER ATTACKS AND BATTLE FIELD IS STREWN WITH FALLEN FOE

Again and Again Germans Attempt to Drive French From Positions Recently Won Only to be Forced Back With Heavy Losses.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, May 9. — The war office announces that the French last night captured the first line of German trenches over a front of three-quarters of a mile northeast of Chevreux, near Craonne. The French took 160 prisoners. During the night the Germans made repeated counter-attacks in force against important positions taken from them on the plateau of Chemin-des-Dames and in the Californie plateau. Although the Germans were stopped by French artillery and machine guns, new assaulting waves resumed fire several times until the ground was strewn with German dead.

GERMANS LOSE HEAVILY.

There was heavy fighting all night along the Chemin-des-Dames, where the enemy attmpted at various points to eject us from positions captured recently. These attacks were made in force and preceded by violent bombardments. Everywhere they were repulsed. In the region of Cerny la Bovelle and on the heights near Hurtebise the Germans suffered two sanguinary checks. Further east a powerful effort was undertaken on the Californie plateau in a vain attempt. The Germans, mowed down by our artillery and machine guns, made several attacks, renewing these efforts in spite of considerable losses, to eject us from this important position. The enemy obtained a footing for a brief period in a salient on the northeastern part of the plateau, but was driven back in disorder by our bayonets. The number of bodies left on the ground by the Germans testified to the sacrifices made in vain by him. Our positions were maintained everywhere and we took prisoners.

Another Peterboro boy has fallen in battle and another home is mourning the loss of a loving husband and fond father.

PRIVATE WALTER PEACE.

The word reached Mrs. Walter Peace of Cameron street this morning that her husband, Private Walter Peace, had been killed in action on April 12th.

Private Peace enlisted with the 93rd Battalion but was in one of the first drafts sent to France.

PTE. SISSON MISSING.

Private J. A. Sisson of Cavan is reported among the missing in today's casualty list.

Total Now 16,015.

A despatch from the Record Office at Ottawa says: "The noon casualty list today numbers 283 names, of whom 141 are killed in action, thirty died of wounds, and fifteen missing. The total since April 9th is now 16,015.

SEPARATION ALLOWANCES.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin of the local branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund has been notified that the following separation allowances have been granted:

Mrs. Adelia Cross, Norwood.
Mrs. Hazel Manship, Indian River.
Mrs. Elizabeth Peterson, Blairton.

A CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.

The Militia Department are trying to recruit the old militia regiments as they existed before the war started, and with this end in view have issued an appeal to the commanding officers to get their officers at work and endeavor to recruit a militia unit. There is no pay attached to those who turn out for this work, but simply a drill as a sense of duty to the Dominion.

A number of the old officers, who for some reason or other were not able to go overseas, can now do their bit in another way.

Lieut.-Col. Walker received a copy of the order and will be glad to hear from any of the men who are willing to drill at night as in the olden days.

CITY WILL STORE 3000 TONS OF COAL AGAINST EMERGENCIES

Small Consumers Unable to Get Fuel From Regular Dealers Will be Accommodated by Municipality---Coal Instead of Cheques For Soldiers Wives.

Peterboro will have an emergency supply of 3000 tons of coal on hand at the beginning of next winter so as to be able to supply the people of the city who have not storage facilities and are unable to get delivery from the local dealers.

After listening to the opinions of the dealers last night the city council decided to buy 3000 tons of coal between now and the first of October. This coal will be purchased from whatever companies or company will deliver it and will be stored at some spot to be arranged for by the council.

The fuel will be sold to the small consumer at actual cost to the city. and this will be slightly higher than the dealers may be able to sell it but there will be no shortage of coal if the city can prevent it.

Mayor Duffus Explains.

Mayor Duffus stated that he had called the meeting for the purpose of considering the coal situation as it effected Peterboro. He felt satisfied that the local dealers at present were in the same position as he was. A man comes along and wants to buy an auto and wants to take one that is at the garage, but it is on order and the customer cannot have it. The dealers have so many advance orders that the supply on hand would not begin to go around. It is only because the labor supply is short that the coal now in the sheds of the dealers is not in the cellars of the citizens who ordered it.

Shortage In Sight.

Robt. Hicks, of the R. Hicks Co., frankly admitted that he expected to be about 3000 tons short of his last year's tonnage.

All of the dealers have been promised by their coal companies a tonnage equal to the supply given them last year. If this fails they will have to buy coal from the independent dealers.

Many citizens who have never stored coal for this winter's use have now got their bins full. This has caused the shortage. As Mr. Hicks stated, last year the dealers were begging the people to let them put the coal into the cellars, but this year they cannot get enough to put in.

Most of the dealers thought that the market would right itself and in a month or so, coal would be more plentiful.

For Soldiers' Families.

Ald. Dobbin stated that the local branch of the Patriotic Fund were thinking of putting in a supply of coal for the dependents of soldiers which would be given to them in place of their monthly check.

It was figured out last night that on the most careful management, it will cost the city $2 per ton to handle the coal after it is delivered in the car at Peterboro, and at the present quotation of coal from the Buffalo companies that will mean over $9 in Peterboro.

Some of the coal dealers are going to Buffalo today to see what the prospects are for their supply. Most of them are in favor of the city coal yard scheme as they feel that it will take the criticism to which they have been subjected away.

No Competition With Dealers.

The members of the council made it very clear to the dealers that the city was not going into competition with them in the coal business. If they would give the council a positive assurance that there would be no shortage of coal next winter, the city would give up the idea of a municipal yard. The local handlers of the dusky diamonds were none too confident that the promises made them by the miners' representatives would be carried out, so Ald. Archie McIntyre, who had all along stood for the city having a coal yard, moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the city purchase and have on hand by the end of September 3000 tons of coal and that a bylaw be prepared to provide for the purchase as required by the Legislature. This carried unanimously.

The dealers present at last night's meeting were Mr. R. Hicks of Scott and Co., Mr. A. Low, Mr. Wedlock of The Peterboro Fuel and Cartage Co., Mr. R. Wolstenholm and A. Weir of Weir and MPcCarthy.

CAME THROUGH BATTLE OF VIMY RIDGE UNHURT AND HOPEFUL

Harold Lebarr, the 19 Year Old Soldier, Writes to His Mother About Famous Engagement.

Mrs. L. W. LeBarr, of 160 Charlotte street, has received a letter from her son, Harold, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and was later sent to France. The young man, who is only 19 years old, was in the thick of the battle of Vimy Ridge and came through the ordeal unhurt. His father is also on duty in France, although the two are not in the same unit. The letter is as follows:

France, April 13, 1917.

Dear Mother:—

Just a line to say I am well and enjoying myself. How are you all getting along? I had a letter from Dad yesterday; he is well and says he can't complain.

We are having a rest now after the scrap of a few days ago. It sure was some smash and it won't take many more like it to finish the job. We didn't go over the top, but we were in it just the same. We carried ammunition up to the line after it was taken, so we weren't bomb proof.

Our company was lucky, as we didn't have a casualty. I don't know how he missed us, as he was dropping the odd shell pretty handy. Some of the 93rd boys in this battalion were wounded and two or three killed, but the casualties were light considering the size of the job.

Our artillery fire was terrible, but a fine sight nevertheless. Fritz's line was torn to pieces, and they were glad to be taken prisoners. There were bushels of prisoners, generals, colonels, corporals, cooks, batmen, all coming out in a bunch. All together it was a heavy blow on old Fritz, and I don't think he can stand it.

I met Eddie O'Toole yesterday, and we sure had some talk. We are going on a hunt for some other fellows today.

I got a parcel Gertie sent, about a week ago and sure was glad to get it. The pipe just came in time, as my old one was smoked out. I got some papers yesterday; they are always welcome, for the news of the old burg is always interesting.

How is business getting along? Good I hope.

How are the boys getting along at school? Tell them to be good boys and work hard, and, God willing, Dad and I will soon be home to help you.

How is Grandma, Uncle Ned and the rest of the folks? Give them my best love. Remember me to Harry and all the girls.

Well, mother, I will close now. Take good care of yourself and don't worry. Pray and trust in God to care for Dad and I. Best love to all and may God bless you.

Your loving son,
HAROLD.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 9, 1917

THE BREWERS' GRAIN.

CAPT. BURNHAM, M.P., spoke in Parliament yesterday in support of a motion introduced by Mr. E. Devlin, M.P. for Wright, recommending that in the interests of food conservation the Government take immediate action to discontinue the supply of grain to brewers and distillers. The stand taken by the representative of West Peterborough will surprise none of his constituents. He declared at a temperance meeting held in this city recently, when he met prominent workers in the cause for consultation, that he would support any measure calculated to prevent waste of any kind during the war, whether such waste meant the extravagant use of food or articles of attire such as fancy vests, top hats or the like.

The debate on Mr. Devlin's motion was entirely non-partisan, as it found supporters on both sides of the House. Its adoption would mean Dominion-wide prohibition, the end being reached by an indirect instead of a direct method. If there is any legal obstacle to giving such a measure effect, the responsibility can as usual be laid upon the British North America Act, which is made the scapegoat so frequently. To starve out the brewers and distillers would be one way of bringing about prohibition, but again the question of provincial rights would arise. Can the Federal powers enforce prohibition upon a province that elects to remain in the wet column either by direct legislation or by circumventing the real issue?

Our Federal system of government still presents its new problems in every important issue raised in Parliament.

SACRIFICES SUBLIME.

THE HEALTHY and vigorous reports of the fighting in Flanders that Stewart Lyon is sending daily to the Canadian papers emphasises the gallantry of the soldiers from this country. In calm, judicious phrases, free of sentimental gush, he speaks of the determination, the calm courage and the devoted loyalty of Canada's khaki-clad defenders.

Nor does he minimise the terrible toll that is being levied on the best manhood that this or any other country has ever produced. The price of victory is the sacrificing of thousands. But the men themselves accept the inevitable without a murmur, and no word of complaint is heard from the invincible phalanx.

Blessed indeed is the man who does his duty, and doubly so the one who performs it without unseemly self-laudation. It is the mark of a hero to accept the consequence without a murmur, just as Charlotte Corday or some of the sainted martyrs of the past yielded up life that their nation might live.

Peterborough has men in the military cemeteries in France, it has others whose last resting place will never be known, whose names will live with as bright a lustre as ever shone, when the history of the war comes to be written. There is the story of the brave young lieutenant who stood alone signalling to his comrades the position of the foe until death came to him, of the captain who died trying to save the wounded, and of the hosts of others whose sacrifice was as sublime. The rank of the fallen makes no difference. They were all soldiers, and as such are entitled to undying fame and the lasting gratitude of the nation they helped to save. One star may differ to a degree in glory from another but they are all wonderful.

SELLING AT COST.

EVERY DAY OR SO we read in the newspapers that some public-spirited council in an Ontario city has bravely taken up the high cost of living problem and has decided to sell coal, wood, or some other article to the citizens at cost.

Selling at cost is a myth, an iridescent dream. No private dealer can embark on such an altruistic policy and live. No municipality can take up such a line of work, lacking as it does the experience and the expert knowledge of the dealer, and still render justice to every man in the community. An investigation will generally reveal the fact that the man who buys at cost does so at the expense of the one who pays the regular scale.

It is all a matter of figures. A city council might be able to ship in coal and undersell the regular dealers, but the apparent saving would really mean a new draft on the general tax fund! When the receipts derived from a public utility are reckoned, account must be taken of the amount lost to the municipality on the tax roll. The same principle applies to a municipal coal yard or any other similar civic enterprise. What avails it for a city to furnish its citizens with cheap fuel if it puts some taxpayers out of business and so reduces the city's income to that extent?

Everyone knows that there is a combination among the wholesalers who deal in coal. Any private dealer who has the proper standing with the trust can get a supply cheaper than can the municipality that sets out to cut prices. That is the first difficulty that confronts the municipality that aims to upset established business conditions.

If the private dealer cannot handle small quantities of coal except at a loss, how can the city hope to do better, and who is to make up the deficit? The taxpayers, of course, but the taxpayers, as a rule, will not profit by any reduction in price to the few.

Any movement designed for the benefit of the families of soldiers at the front, however, is worthy of commendation. The dependents of the national defenders, so many of whom are of limited means, must not be allowed to suffer. The aldermen have solved at least one part of the fuel problem in deciding to store a quantity of coal for emergencies, the supply to be controlled by the Patriotic Fund. Any person who is unable to get coal from the private dealers can be supplied from the city's stock. Getting fuel when it is needed is really the first consideration. After all, the price is of secondary importance.

REFORMING THE SENATE.

NOW THAT THE LIBERALS find themselves in a minority in the Senate and without the means of blocking important legislation adopted by the party in power, they have renewed their agitation for reforming the Upper House. The question has not yet been disposed of, but the inevitable commission is likely to be created to look into the problem and draw up a plan.

There seems to be a general demand for a Senate, the members of which shall be elected from certain districts, just as they are in Quebec, but for a specified number of years. Another proposition is that the members of the Upper House be chosen by the Legislatures of the different provinces, the terms of such appointees to be limited to a period of seven years.

The independence of the Senate has always been its only excuse for existence. To put it on an elective basis would destroy the very element which is supposed to give it strength, whether the election was by direct vote or by the different Legislatures. The latter system has been tried in the United States and abandoned. Under it the plutocrat alone had a chance for senatorial honors. It was a comparatively easy matter for a multi-millionaire to so manipulate a legislature composed of a hundred members so as to bring about his own election. Buying a majority in a large constituency was, however, an entirely different matter.

A dual system of lawmakers in a democracy is simply a recognition of the class distinction made in European monarchies between the aristocracy and the untitled classes. The lower house is supposed to represent the masses, the upper house the plutocracy. While there are rich and poor the idea will always prevail that both classes are entitled to representation.

The democratic spirit of the age has insisted upon reform in the House of Lords in England until that venerable body is practically powerless. The best it can do under present conditions is to delay the enforcement of what are regarded as radical measures. The dual system of legislation, wherever it prevails, designed to safeguard the interests of the people, really effects nothing except bringing about the defeat of the wishes of the masses or in tying up the affairs of a country in exasperating deadlocks.

TO BATHE OR NOT TO BATHE

The Baltimore Sun printed a letter from a man who told how he had responded to the call of the land but had made only a short visit as there was no bath tub on the farm he honored with his attention and graced with his presence.

Mr. R. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers Record, read the communication and lost his temper.

Will the government, he asked, kindly provide bath tubs on the farms for all loafers who may give similar reasons for their objections to farm work?

The "conscientious objector" who wrote to the Sun may have been bitten by the hook worm in his youth or may have been born tired or just naturally acquired the habit of being tired.

However that may be Mr. Edmonds of Baltimore is unduly choleric in denominating all persons as loafers who object to bathless farm work.

What the American farm needs next to machine power, money and fertilizer is human comfort. It has been the dreariest, most God forsaken excuse for "Home" that an intelligent, prosperous people ever tolrated. It had few creature comforts.

It is beginning to be much better. It now has the telephone which has brought a glimmer of joy into the life of the women of the farm. It has the automobile. That has widened the horizon, made the world larger to everyone on the farm. It has the rural delivery system. That has been a blessing in adding to the literature of the farm.

But the farmer never has had an intimate acquaintance with one of the noblest institutions in America—sanitary plumbing. Greece may boast of her temples and her art of an age long before the Christian Era; Italy may be proud of what she has to show of Imperial Rome; France and Britain may have castellated piles that go back to the Crusaders but for the material welfare of man good plumbing means more than temples, historic ruins or memories of glories long past and never to return.

The Britisher never has reached the American height in the plumbing art. He has the American appreciation of the fact that cleanliness is next to godliness and in proof of this fact and as an indictment and in proof of all other lands except America he never had fared forth on journey unless he has his "tub" with him.

It is said that in all Paris there are not as many bath tubs as are installed in New York city in new buildings in a week. When a lady or gentleman in Paris indulges in the luxury of a bath an appartus almost as formidable as the hook and ladder equipment of a fire department is backed up in front of the establishment and water is pumped to the apartments while all the neighborhood gossips or speculates as to whether the patient will survive the operation.

The farm should add the bath tub to its charms.

The men and women of the farm should have every reasonable modern convenience and benefit possible for them to obtain. The bath is not a luxury, but a need.

Not all men who object to farm work without bath, are loafers, Mr. Edmonds, of Baltimore, to the contrary notwithstanding.

BOTANY FOR THE SCHOOLS

One way to interest the boys in farming is to have every public school teach botany, with practical demonstration in the fields.

Not one farmer's boy in a thousand, probably, knows the botanical name of even one plant on his father's farm. The plants not intended for food are simply weeds in his estimation, created to make more work for him in pulling them up or exterminating them with his hoe.

Botany would teach him how the plants grow and enable him to classify the various so-called weeds, and give to them a sort of dignity they do not now possess.

Around every farm there can be found growing many medicinal plants which the boy could save, and if taught how to preserve them, a source of income would open up to him which now he knows nothing about.

Teach the boys botany and the girls, too, because the boys won't stay on the farms unless the girls are willing.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: Re Sunday gardening and the proposal to ask the Government for a suspension of the Lord's Day Act to meet the shortage in food supply, permit me to make a few observations.

The Lord's Day Act, being a part of the criminal code, the Government cannot suspend it. Parliament alone has power to amend or repeal. That such a course is unnecessary, the provision of the statute for works of necessity and mercy on Sunday, and the requiremtnt that no prosecution can take place without the consent of the Atorney-General is made very clear. Thus every case must upon its own merits. Upon a question of a general permission Parliament pronounced when discussing the Lord's day Bill, by voting against the proposal to allow Sunday harvesting in bad weather.

The request has not, apparently, come from the farmers, though doubtless many desire the privilege. To grant such permission would not dissuade the great body of farmers from Sunday rest and the effect would be to offend and antagonise this class whilst throwing into the others' hands what they have long sought, the privilege of unrestricted Sunday labor.

During the past two and a half years of war, encroachments have been made upon Sunday that now seem to have been unnecessary. The manufacture of munitions is a case in point. The manager of a large milling company made such an admission in his case. The Sunday moving picture show, as such, in recruiting, none will now attempt to justify; and so the Sunday entertainment for patriotic funds.

Before expropriating the day for industry, all other possibilities should be exhausted. Beyond contradiction, Sunday has been made the scrapegoat for all the delinquencies of the week, our lack of foresight, diligence, system and enterprise. Such unlawful and hypocritical use of war-time pleas have been made by many; enquiry in this regard should be searching.

Conceding place on Sunday to works of necessity and mercy, and notwithstanding the Archbishop of Canterbury's recent concession, we venture to emphasize the present duty of attention to other than material considerations with respect to the war. Sir David Beatty, with others equally prominent, has appealed for this as a paramount present necessity. It is still true that no king can be saved by the multitude of an host, but the battle is the Lord's." In deed as in word let us deny the asphorism of Napoleon that "God is on the side of the heaviest battalions." Then too, the Lord of the Sabbath is the Lord of the Harvest. In the fields as well as in the soul, "Paul may plant and Appollos water, but God giveth the increase." Now is the time for the nation and the empire to prove the industrial and spiritual advantages of loyalty to the Day of Rest!

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine —Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. Mayme Asbach, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCasland, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. Osgood, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

first became prominent as the immediate commander of the attacking forces of the French with which the blows of Joffre, Petain and Nivelle were brought home to the Crown Prince. As a master of the tactics of attack this fierce leader of Colonial troops won promotion.

Haig and a Sergeant

Sir Douglas Haig, British Commander-in-Chief in France, has a keen sense of humor and a gift of repartee. A big blustering sergeant was cursing two men for being careless with ammunition and shouted. "You'll send us all up to Heaven like a rocket." Sir Douglas chipped in: "Unless you improve your language, sergeant, I'm afraid you may go in an opposite direction."

MANNERISMS IN COMMONS

Grey, O'Conner and Even Asquith Had Little Peculiarities

William O'Malley, M.P., who had 20 years' experience in the British House of Commons, writing about "Mannerisms in Parliament," said: "Mr. Asquith and Mr Redmond are very graceful in their actions they suit the action to the word, but their action is not very marked. When Mr. Redmond issues a note of warning he stretches out his right hand and points with his first finger, while Mr. Asquith rarely gesticulates at all. On the other hand, Mr. Balfour uses his arms and his hands a great deal, and the movements are distinctly awkward

"Augustine Birrell, late Irish chief secretary, has an extraordinary way of rubbing his hands together while speaking. I think it is due to nervousness, for although one of the ablest and best scholars in the house, he is as shy and modest as a school girl (old style).

"T. P. O'Connor, when making what may be called a 'big' speech, uses his arms a good deal. When his argument is reaching its climax he raises both arms at full length above his head and keeps them there for some seconds until his voice reaches the highest pitch, and then pulls them down with great force to clinch 'the argument.' The action is sometimes more forcible than graceful.

"Sir Edward Grey had a peculiar habit when addressing the House of slowly raising his right hand to his head and making a scratching movement with his middle finger. This he did at short intervals."

A MODERN PYGMALION

By BARBARA PHIPPS

Trimmingham got into the work of writing for the screen by becoming infatuated with moving pictures of Miss Jeannette Meadowcroft, the heroine of various plays. He followed her—or, rather, her photographs—about, attending every production, all the while sinking deeper and deeper into a love enthrallment.

Pygmalion fell in love with a statue which he himself created and which the goddess Venus endowed with life. Trimmingham fell in love with pictures of a living being.

Jeannette Meadowcroft's specialty was witchery. She could personate a child of nature to perfection. Endowed with the gift of poetry of motion, her smile marvelously winning, her face a mirror of her emotions, she seemed elfish rather than heroic.

Trimmingham had written fiction, but had never created a character that had been to him a real being. It occurred to him that if he were to write a picture play for Jeannette Meadowcroft he would be inspired. He fancied that he possessed just the faculties calculated to depict her personality and her gifts. He determined to undertake the work.

He had no acquaintance with the real Jeannette. He had never seen her. Before sitting down to construct his play he considered whether he had better come in contact with her or leave his impressions as they were—drawn from her pictures. After much thought he decided to defer meeting her until after his play had been finished.

He chose a plan with very little plot to it, fearing that a plot would circumscribe him in inventing situations that would best illustrate her peculiar capabilities. He decided to have her personate a girl in that sphere of life from which he chose her associates.

She was a born coquette, but perfectly innocent. A number of young men were in love with her, but she loved none of them. Nevertheless through pity she tried to love one man and consented to become engaged to him. The effort lasted a week, at the end of which she found she could get up no feeling for him that should be called love, and since such a union was repulsive to her she broke the engagement. Since it was so brief and without love on her part and she preferred to be able to tell the man she eventually married that she had never loved before she asked her discarded lover to keep their trial engagement a secret. To this he consented.

Then comes a man Jeannette really loves. Trimmingham tries hard to form in his mind's eye a picture of another man than himself, but finds it impossible. Once engaged to Jeannette, his leading man, Throckmorton, tells her that he has never loved any other woman. To this she replies in a half hearted way that she has never loved any other man than Throckmorton. Throckmorton later hears of her former engagement. He accuses her of having deceived him. Such innocence as hers is highly sensitive, and she is crushed at the accusation. She tries to explain, but he will not listen.

Going away from her, he leaves her a prey to a conscience that burns hot within her, while her lover pays marked attention to a very wicked woman in order to cause it to burn hotter, though she bears this brutal treatment in silence. Mistaking this silence for indifference, he acts more brutally than ever. The girl becomes a trained nurse. Her lover is injured while hunting and is taken to a hospital, where she nurses him so tenderly that he relents, listens to her explanation as to her previous affair, and all ends happily.

Trimmingham succeeded in getting his play accepted by a film company, with Jeannette Meadowcroft in the title role. She played her part to perfection, with the result that he was more in love with her than ever. The women of the audience wept at the pathetic parts, and Trimmingham wanted to punch the head of the male character he had himself created. At the makeup between the lovers he felt duly repentant and supremely happy.

Trimmingham now asked for an introduction to the heroine of his play. He was told that no introduction was necessary; that she was usually disengaged in the evening and all he had to do was to call upon her in her apartments.

He found her in these apartments—a poorly furnished flat—but failed to recognize her. On the stage she sometimes made up as a child and never for older than eighteen. She now appeared a woman of thirty, was poorly dressed, and her old mother, with whom she lived, evidently belonged to the lower class. Miss Meadowcroft, whose real name was something quite different, greeted him thus:

"I'm glad to see a man who has written a play for me. Sit down and make yourself at home. Let me take your hat. Have a cigarette?"

She handed him a box of cigarettes. He declined, but she took one, lighted it and puffed lustily. Trimmingham, who was greatly shocked, tried to get her to talk about the artistic features of the play, but she preferred to chat upon the salary she expected to get in consequence of having made a hit in it. "The film men can't get on without us players," she said, "and have got to come down with the dust. I won't sign next time for less than $800 a week."

Trimmingham went away cured of his illusion.

SHOULD PRODUCE MORE

Basis of Canada's Prosperity Are Her Farm Lands

The Saskatchewan Farmer says: Buying land at from $10 to $20 an acre, and doing nothing with it, expecting to make a profit from unearned increment is just as foolish as buying sub-division property that may not be required for building purposes for a quarter of a century. There are thousands of farm homes in Western Canada that have been improved for the last 20 to 30 years, and now owners would not sell for $50 or $60 an acre. In 1915 the crop on many of these farms gave a profit of from $20 to $40 an acre, and yet there are millions of acres in Western Canada, virgin prairie, that can be purchased at from $15 to $30 an acre. What is the explanation? Simply this, that for a number of years the great part of our advertising has been to induce settlers to come to our cities and towns to establish industries. The basis of all our prosperity—our farm lands—was ignored. To-day our farm lands are once more taking their proper place. "Produce more," whether it be more grain, more live stock, more butter, more poultry and eggs can only apply to farm lands.

WHY WE HAVE TWO EYES

With One We Could Not Judge Distance So Well

Because we have two eyes the things we see seem solid and not flat, with the result that we can judge their distance from us with fair correctness. Look through a window at a house across the street with one eye closed, and then with the other eye closed. The bars of the window frame will cut across the opposite house in different places. The two fields seen with the eyes separately, although in the main alike, differ. When you look at the house with both eyes open the two fields seen by the two eyes are combined and the house across the street assumes depth and relief.

Although we see a house with each eye we see only one house with both eyes. This makes the stereoscope possible—an instrument so designed that the two eyes are made to converge on a single point and yet to see two different pictures. If these two pictures represent a chair as it would appear to the right and left eyes respectively, they are percieved as one solid object.

CARELESSNESS WORST?

Crimes of Great Extent Are Laid to This Evil

Who am I? asks the Canadian Forestry Journal. I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world. I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the world. I am more deadly than bullets, and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest of siege guns.

I spare no one, and I find my victims among rich and poor alike; the young and old; the strong and weak; widows and orphans know me. I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railway train. I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage earners in a year.

I lurk in unseen places, and do most of my work silently. You are warned against me, but you heed not. I am relentless, I am everywhere; in the home, on the streets, in the factory, at railway crossings, and on the sea. I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me. I destroy, crush or maim; I give nothing, but take all. I am your worst enemy

I am carelessness.

TRADING WITH ROYALTY

List "By Royal Appointment" is Valuable and Well Protected

Once a year, in the New Year's "Gazette," appears a long list of tradesmen who are holders of Royal warrants. This list at the present time exceeds twelve hundred names. Since the death of Queen Victoria considerably over three hundred names have been added. It is a privilege greatly coveted and much envied—this of the Royal warrant, for it is not one lightly bestowed upon every tradesman who has supplied goods to His Majesty's household. It is distinctly a mark of Royal favor, and to some extent a testimonial to the excellence of the purveyor's goods.

Its principal outward sign is the use of the Royal arms over the shop front and upon the writing paper of the warrant holder, and it is an offence against the law for any person not being a warrant holder to use the arms. Apparently, however, its misuse is a common occurrence, for hundreds of cases of improper use have been dealt with by the Royal Warrant Holders' Association.

Khattak Is Brave Fighter

THE Khattak is impulsive, mercurial, easily excited, seldom dispirited, and, if so, only for a short time. His daring is sometimes a positive danger during an attack. At Sheikh Saad on the right bank on January 7 it was difficult to hold the Khattak company back while the regiment on their left was coming up; they were all for going ahead and breaking the line; and in the end it was a premature sortie of the Khattaks that precipitated the assault.

Shere Ali, a typical Bhangi Khel, was among these. Instead of enlarging upon the Khattaks in general, it will be better, perhaps, if I tell what I know of this boy and of his father, Shahbaz Khan. From these two one may gather a fair estimate of the breed. Shere Ali I saw wounded on a barge at Sheikh Saad. He was introduced to me by his machine-gun officer, who was wounded at the same time.

Father and son both served in the Khattak double company of the —th Rifles. Shahbaz Khan, retired Subadar, died after 18 months of the great war without hearing a shot fired. It was very galling to the old man to be out of it, for his idea of bliss was a kind of glorified Armageddon. He had fought in Tochi and Waziristan, but these frontier scraps were unsatisfying. It was only playing at war. "Sahib," he said, "I should like to be up to my knees in gore with thousands of dead all around me."

Shere Ali was with the regiment in Egypt, left the canal with them in December, 1915, and was just in time for the advance from Ali Gharbi. Shahbaz Khan came down to the depot, and dismissed his son with envious blessings. He had dyed his beard a bright red, and he carried himself with a youthful aid, hoping that the colonel might discover some subterfuge by which he could re-emerge on the active list. The colonel would have given 10 of his jiwans (young men) for him, and Shahbaz Khan knew it. But the rules were all against him. So the regiment went off and old Shahbaz Khan was left behind.

Father and son, as I have explained, were faithful to the type. The Khattak is the Celt of the Indian army, reckless, generous, improvident, altogether a friendly and responsive person, but with the queer kink in him you get in all Pathans, that primitive sensitive point of honor or shame which puzzles the psychologist. It is often his duty to kill a man. On these occasions the aegis of the British Government is a positive misfortune. For the Khattaks are mainly a cis-frontier race, and therefore subject to all the injustice and inequalities of our law. Citizenship of the Empire hampers the blood feud. A stalking duel started in British territory generally ends in the Andamans or Paradise. If you lose you lose; and if you win you may be deported for life. Nevertheless the instinct of honor survives this discouragement, and there is a genial colony of Khattak outlaws over the border.

Shere Ali, though a mere lad, had killed his man at Kohat before he fought at Sheikh Saad. Zam-Zam-Zar-Land, women and gold, according to the Persian proverb, are at the bottom of all outrage; and with Shahbaz Khan and Shere Ali as with nine Khattaks out of ten, it was Zan, and Zan (woman), too, was in Shere Ali's mind when he brooded so dejectedly over his wound at Sheikh Saad. He was hit in the foot and lamed the moment he left the trenches. This meant a 2-in. shortage, and as he believed, permanent crutches.

"I have never seen him so down in the mouth," Anderson, the machine-gun officer, said to me on the barge. "He has lost all his cheery look."

Shere Ali was certainly dispirited. He had his head and chest low, and all the wind taken out of him. He looked like a bird with its crest down and its feathers ruffled.

The Khattak thinks no end of his personal appearance. He dresses to kill, and loves to go and swank in the bazaar in his gala kit. He will spend hours over his toilet, peering at himself in the glass all the while without a trace of self-consciousness, though his neighbors may be almost as interested in the performance as he.

Every Khattak indeed is a bit of a blood, and Shere Ali was true to type. In his country a showy exterior betokens the gallant in both senses of the word. A woman of parts will not look at a man unless he has served in the army, or is at least something of a buccaneer. Of course, a wound honorably come by is a distinction, and Shere Ali should not have been depressed. He would return a Bahadur, I told him so, but he only smiled sadly. He was crippled; there was no getting over it. He would join in the Khattak dance no more. As for the dhol (drum) and serinai (oboe)—if that intriguing music had broken out just then, I believe we should both have wept.

We can't have too many Khattaks. Shere Ali, I am told, has quite a decent stride. He is no end of a Bahadur. And he is a sight for the gods in his white baggy trousers, flowery waistcoat, and Kohat lungi when he dresses to kill.—Edmund Chandler in London Times.

A Giant Bridge.

A bridge projected between San Francisco and Oakland will be the largest of its kind in the world. It will cost more than $2,000,000, and will carry three roadways and four railroad tracks. The supports will consist of sixteen spans, two of which will be large enough to allow the passage beneath them of any ship entering San Francisco harbor.

GOOD WESTERN LAND PRICES

Grand Trunk Pacific officials in Montreal are receiving reports indicative of the prosperous conditions which prevail in the great agricultural territory served by the line in Western Canada. One correspondent at Holden, Alberta, states that with good crops and high prices received for grain, the price of raw land is keeping up to about twenty dollars an acre. This is considered cheap, however, as many farmers are regaining from the soil in a single season the whole purchase price of their land. A settler in this Holden district of Alberta bought a quarter section of raw land in 1915 for $16.50 an acre. He broke up fifty-three acres and in 1916 sowed it to wheat, threshing $2,960 worth of grain. The price of the farm was $2,640, so that the one crop off fifty-three acres paid for the one hundred and sixty acres of land and gave the farmer about three hundred dollars in addition. With such opportunities awaiting the man who is willing to work on the land, the railroad authorities believe that tens of thousands of the best type of settler can be readily attracted to Canada under normal conditions

AGES OF DEVELOPMENT

Fur Trading Age Disappears in Parts of Canada

A hundred years ago, says the Winnipeg Telegram, the fur trade might be said to extend over the whole length and width of what is now the Dominion of Canada. Fifty years ago, a large portion of Quebec, of Ontario, of the Maritime Provinces, a considerable section of Manitoba, and a portion of British Columbia had been reclaimed from the wilderness; its quota of furs had fallen off with the advance of civilization, and the territory from which furs were being drawn had been circumscribed to that extent. Yet the supply of furs still kept up. Why? Because increased population, better transportation facilities, greater and more general knowledge of the country, and more highly organized effort on the part of the trading companies, had made smaller the mesh of the trading net, and the country still available as a source of supply for fur was being dragged more carefully and more completely.

To-day, that area is still more circumscribed. The southern half of British Columbia, of Alberta and of Saskatchewan practically the whole of Manitoba, and all that portion of Ontario and Quebec which lie south of the height of land, have been taken off the fur trading area proper. They have gained the stage where, if they are not given over to agricultural, mining, or other industries of civilization, they are in the half-way stage of their existence, neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor good red herring; neither a fur trading wilderness nor a full-fledged civilization. Their villages are half-store, half-trading post; their inhabitants, half-pioneer-farmers, half-trappers and traders; they can no longer make their living from the fur trade, and they have not yet arrived at the point where the demands of their civilization will enable them to live without it. It is beyond this area where the real fur trade is to be found. It is this still further circumscribed district that furnishes the raw material for the London fur market—that market which still levies an approximately equal tax to that of years past—but levies it on this restricted fur belt in lieu of, as formerly, the whole of Canada.

COLDS AS CONTAGIOUS

Treat a cold like any other contagious disease: the excretions of the nose and throat are infective, and are responsible for conveying the disease to others. Frequently one observes this kind of thing. One individual in a household develops a cold; in about two days a second person develops a cold also. In another day or so there is a third case, and so it goes until practically everybody in the house has been sick. This condition of affairs is usually looked on as quite in the order of things, and no particular thought given to the matter. The explanation is of course transmission inside of the household from one person to another through the transfer of infected mouth and nose secretions in exactly the same way as if the disease were measles, scarlet fever or diphtheria.

Safety First

Don't put ashes in wooden boxes or barrels. Use metal cans.

Don't throw hot ashes against fences or buildings.

Don't fill an oil stove after dark and never fill one while it is lighted.

Don't permit rubbish, paper, and greasy rags to accumulate.

After four years of work it is believed that Saint Paul's Cathedral in London has been made practically safe from fire.

The world takes off its hat to the man who does things, while it has only a smile of contempt for the chap who is always going to do something.

Never Allow Yourself To Miss An Opportunity

A consensus of store growth would prove beyond all question of doubt that to publicity is the credit due for the great strides made during recent years by so many of our merchants and manufacturers. The people want to be informed—they are alert to the fact that information of every description is necessary to advancement—the enterprising merchant also realized this fact and through publicity he advances his business by keeping the public informed. The newspaper is the best channel of publicity—it enables the merchant to tell his story direct to the public—the news is fresh, therefore of immediate buying value. The buying power of the people is well worth every enterprising merchant's thought.

BUT The merchant who neglects to use ALL THE available newspaper publicity in his town is defrauding himself of the opportunity to talk directly to a large portion of the community who read the newspaper he is neglecting. Clear business foresight teaches that the regular use of newspapers stimulates business in any season. Make your bargains right and a buyer will be found. Use the columns of The Review and thousands of buyers will be attracted whom you cannot otherwise reach.

N. MONAGHAN TO WORK WITH CITY

TOWNSHIP COUNCIL DECIDES TO PUT RESTRICTION ON DOGS.

The North Monaghan Council met in the Court House on Saturday, May 5th. All the members were present and Reeve Rye presided .

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. E. A. Peck, township solicitor, was present and read and discussed the judgment of the supreme court in the case of Lockie vs. North Monaghan. Mr. Peck's interpretation of the court's judgment is as follows: That the plaintiff Lockie is barred from further appeal, that the plaintiff did not establish his claim to the disputed road, and from the evidence produced, the courts decided that the disputed work is now a public highway, that the plaintiff is entitled to a reasonable amount of water for his stock and that the township has been negligent in this respect, that is in not maintaining the culverts in proper condition, that on account of the township being negligent in respect of maintenance of the culverts that the plaintiff, Lockie, be paid by the township $100.00. The amount awarded by the County Judge was $350.00 and each party has to pay his own costs.

On motion of Messrs. Dobbin and Bell a deputation from Smith was then heard. Reeve McKee said that complaints had come to the Smith Council that North Monaghan had been negligent in not properly maintaining its portion of the Smith boundary, especially the western end.

Mr. Geo. Moncrief, road commissioner for No. 5 division, was present and asked for a grant for his division. He asked the council to inspect the roads in his division and said that he would put the roads in good condition if the council would furnish him with the funds.

A communication was received from the City of Peterborough asking that the township of North Monaghan deal with the dog question.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Dobbin, that the clerk prepare a bylaw on account of the outbreak of rabies in the city, that all dogs in the township of North Monaghan shall be tied up after the passing of the bylaw for a period to be decided upon, except farmers dogs and they shall at no time be out of call.

The clerk reported re Joseph Drummond's taxes that the back taxes against the land assessed to John Henry in 1913 should have been returned against Lot 31, Plan 39, instead against lot 33 and 40, Plan 4[illegible].

The following bills were passed and ordered to be paid:

Sanitary Inspector for having buried dead dogs, $4.50; B. Morrow, searches, $1.25.

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Henry, that road commissioners be paid $3.00 per day; that Foster Moncrief have running control of the stone crusher and gravel pit; that the wages of men be $2.50 per day; that each team shall haul one and a quarter yards of gravel per load and shall be paid $4.75 per day of 10 hours.

The contract for the dump ground was awarded to H. F. Doig at $50 per annum.

On a motion of Messrs. Williams and Bell that a new bridge be built at the corner of McKellar and Park streets. The council to meet at this bridge some evening at a date to be arranged by the clerk.

The meeting then adjourned.

WILL OPEN NIGHT SCHOOL FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS

First Meeting Will be Held in Old Murray Street Collegiate Thursday Night---Those Anxious to Improve Themselves Are Asked to Attend.

It has come about that in the enquiry and effort to find places and positions for men returned from service and partially disabled, especially in cases of those who are prevented from taking up regular occupations, that certain requirements are needful. For instance, in the matter of ability to handle things which may be roughly defined as calling for some education. Not necessarily elaborate but rather fundamental and as covering ordinary acquirements.

To endeavor to supply a means whereby men could gain some knowledge in the plainer forms of education the Board of Education was appealed to and have assented to forming classes. The first meeting will be held at the old collegiate building, on Muray Street, east of St. Paul's Church, on Thursday evening, 10th inst. Mr. Clarke principal of the King Edward School, has consented to take charge of the classes of instruction. Those who wish to take advantage of the opportunity are asked to come on Thursday night to the preliminary meeting. There the matter will be blocked out and arranged, and an idea taken of the best course of study to adopt, and the one likely to meet the needs of the situation.

Those who wish to participate are urged to attend. If no interest is shown then the board will be quite justified in assuming that there is no general, or even particular wish for assistance. The help will be most cheerfully given No fees. Only a desire to be helpful. Come Thursday night.

LIEUT. W. WORTH WRITES OF VIMY

off, and it was a great sight to see all the men with all the extra equipment on for attack. The boys are certainly fine when it comes down to the real thing, and every man was there on time. It was an eight-mile walk up to the line, and with the enormous number of troops that were moving all round you had to stay close together in the dark. We got up into our position about 2 a.m., and the trenches were mostly knee-deep in water, so you can bet it wasn't any too pleasant to stay there till 5.30. It kept me busy saying a few words to the men, and see that they understood everything.

At 5 a.m. I issued the rum which warms you up, and just gives you that bit of extra nerve you require.

At 5.30 on the dot, our guns opened up, and you can't imagine it. It is just as though someone was turning a handle—just one continuous roar. We jumped over just as it was nicely started, and then the fun commenced. We slipped and fell all over the place. We had to keep waiting for our barrage to lift and then go a little further, and so on till we reached our objective about 600 yards. We then had to hold it for 40 minutes, and consolidate the position. I was feeling quite clever and thought I was safe and walked along getting my men together in one place and see that we were connected on the flanks. It was about 7 a.m. when I was hit. A machine gun got me, and I can remember the crash till the end of my days. I thought a tank was coming and going to run over me. I realized that I was hit in the head and thought it was all over with me, as I naturally bled very much. My stretcher bearer was handy and put me a dressing on, and by that time I felt that I could get up, and two men were detailed to take me back and the crazy beggars lost their bearings, and were taking me over to the German line.

It was a good thing that I was conscious enough to notice it. We finally got right and struck a German dugout where I decided to have a rest. The 21st Battl had taken it over as their advance headquarters and their doctor was there and gave me every attention. I stayed there a couple of hours till the fighting had moved further on and then got assisted back to our H.Q., but you may be sure it was a struggle as I was wet through to my knees and for every step I took I got cramps in my legs and you know that sensation, but I eventually got there, and our doctor looked me over and started me on my way..

I was sorry to hear there that my company commander was killed halfway across and another officer got a bad one through the chin before me, so that made 3 out of 4 which appears rather bad, but amongst the men the casualties was much lighter. From our headquarters I got a lift on a light railway and made some Fritzies push me for a couple of miles and after that between walking and ambulances I reached a decent hospital the following morning. It was a strange one, kept running into friends from different battalions and getting news about others. Jack Watt came over with a sprained ankle. All cases who are able to travel get through to England as soon as possible so as to avoid congestion. When you get here you are sent wherever there are vacancies and I was surprised to get here, although I am perfectly satisfied, as it is a lovely place and splendid staff throughout. The food is splendid and plentiful and I shall be glad when I can take everything. As yet I can only swallow liquids but am not starving. For breakfast I have a good portion of porridge and a scrambled egg. Lunch, soup and pudding, and dinner same, so you see I don't do so bad. The time passes away nicely as we are about 24 together in this room. I have my wound dressed 3 times during the day and same at night. The side the bullet went in and the hole is very small, but in passing through it took a few teeth and part of my jawbone with it and consequently made rather a gash on the left side. I have a tube in it and they keep getting a lot of stuff out each time and they say it is cleaning up fine. My gums are badly swollen yet, and teeth tender, so I am not exactly comfortable yet also you will know I cannot clean my mouth properly and have a nasty taste most of the time. However I notice an improvement each day and before long I should be more comfortable. The doctor does not say anything about an operation so far, there might be some little cleaning up to do inside later on. One thing sure I will have to see the dentist, worse luck. Well, never mind I am worth many a dead one yet, and I am out of it for three months anyway.

GERMANS TOOK FRIGHT

Press Had to Admit British Efforts and Success

When British advances in France became too serious to be ignored even by Hun papers here was interesting comment. The correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt at headquarters consoled his readers with the consideration that the British did not gain their success without fighting, and adds: "The British are fresh and strong, and they shrewdly economized their men, whom they employ with advantage now."

A correspondent of the Lokalanzeiger says the British gain is not considerable, but it cannot be denied that the lost positions had been well fortified for a long time. It is the old story that by means of wasting material destroyed positions can always be conquered. Most of the other papers preserve a noteworthy silence.

Major Moraht, however, in the Berliner Tageblatt says: "We must consider events as an earnest warning for the future, and do everything possible to assist the plans of our war organizers. The programme of Lloyd-George for concentrating enormous masses of munitions and guns has proved a practicable one. We must look upon it as our first task to utilize the millions of Germans still in the country to surpass even England's efforts."

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, May 9. — Mrs. M. Stinson returned to Omemee last week after a pleasant six months' visit with her son, Walter, in Detroit.

Mrs. Jack Murray returned to her home in Peterborough after a pleasant visit in Omemee.

Miss Bonnycastle of Campbellford was a visitor to Omemee on Friday and saug on Friday evening at a social in the Methodist church.

Messrs. Gliddon, Widdis and Evans of Peterborough called on Omemee friends on Friday. They were motoring through to Lindsay, where grand patriotic recital was given that evening. Mr. Evans taking part.

Mrs. Weir visited her sister, Mrs. McCutcheon, of Beaverton, last week.

Mr. Thos. Henderson left Omemee on Wednesday for Port Rowan, to visit his daughter, Mrs. Cronk, for a few days, after which he will go to Moosejaw, Sask.

Rev. Mr. MacInnis and Mrs. MacInnis are renewing acquaintances in Foxboro this week.

Word was received in Omemee this week of the death of Sergeant Marsh, who was recently killed in action. Sergt. Marsh was stationed in Omemee with B Co. of the 109th Bn., and will be remembered by the people of this vicinity as the man who gave such a splendid exhibition of the sword exercise at the farewell concert given by the boys shortly before leaving the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Sonuthworth were greatly surprised on Friday evening when a jolly party of young people took possession of their home and presented them with a handsome rocking chair, after which a pleasant evening was spent in games and dancing.

A social evening was spent in the basement of the Methodist church on Friday evening, when the Bible classes taught by Miss Millard and Mr. Kennedy entertained a number of their friends. A splendid program was rendered, after which ice cream and cake were served.

Among those who left for the West on Tuesday are Mr. and Mrs. David Magee and children, Mrs. Cottingham and daughters, Misses Isabel and Marion, and Messrs. George and Gabriel Balfour.

Pte. McNichol, who left Winnipeg two years ago with the 27th Bn., and who was wounded at the battle of Courcelette in September, has been invalided to Canada, and after having spent two months in the convalescent home at Toronto arrived in Omemee Friday morning and is renewing acquaintances. Pte. McNichol gives a glowing account of the treatment the Canadians receive all along the line.

Mrs. B. J. McQuade of Rochester, N. Y., who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Dornan, left on Saturday morning for Winnipeg, where she will spend the summer.

Mr. J. Bradley received a message on Saturday stating that Pte. Geo. Pollitt of the 709th Bn., is missing. Pte. Pollitt lived with Mr. Bradley prior to enlisting.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mulligan were the guests of Sir John and Lady Eaton over Sunday, when a family gathering was held, Sunday being the birthday of Lady Eaton's mother, Mrs. McCrea. Mr. Mulligan and also Master Timothy Eaton. "Many happy returns of the day" is the wish for each from the citizens in general.

On Saturday night a number of the ladies of the East Victoria Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. R. J. Weir to say "adieu" to Mrs. D. Magee, who has been a great worker in the society. A short address was read and a handsome cold-meat fork presented to the departing member, after which dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Weir.

Omemee has the proud distinction of being the only word that will rhyme with Vimy. Now watch Omemee grow famous.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Horner and children of Lindsay were the guests of Mr. B. Courtney on Sunday.

Mr. N. Clarke has returned to Toronto after spending a few days at his home here.

Mr. Wallace McQuade, whose trial was adjourned until his sanity was tested, has been declared insane by three Lindsay doctors.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lamb and family of Peterborough motored to Omemee on Sunday.

WILL HOLD GARBAGE COLLECTOR TO HIS CONTRACT WITH CITY

Contractor Graham Asks for an Increase of $500 But Request is Refused.

Garbage Collector Graham appeared before the Council last night, and informed them that he was at a standstill so far as the collection of the garbage was concerned. The men that were at work had left him and he had no prospect of getting any to take their place unless he was able to pay more money, which he could not do at the present price of feed, etc. If he had $500.00 more he would be able to go ahead with the work.

Several solutions were suggested by the aldermen. One was to have the citizens carry out the garbage to the street line and collect the garbage once a week until the heavy season was over. This did not meet with general approval.

Ald. McIntyre would take Mr. Graham at his word and give him $500.00 in addition to his contract price, and have the work done, and at least satisfy the citizens.

Ald Stratton agreed with this, and seconded the motion.

The motion failed to carry, and the Council adjourned without taking any action, so it is now up to the garbage collector and his bondsmen to get busy, and get the city cleaned up.

BEER ISSUE BEFORE BRITISH PARLIAMENT

LONDON, May 9.—The question of beer versus food was lengthily discussed in the House of Commons. Many of the speakers severely criticized the Government for still permitting the brewers to destroy valuable food in the production of alcoholic liquors. The debate elicited no statement on the Government policy with respect to the rumored control by the state of all public houses.

Historians are prophets whose faces are turned backward.

Sir Sam to Bring up Conscription Issue

Will Force The Government To Go On Record on Important Question.

OTTAWA, May 9.—General Sir Sam Hughes intends to test the attitude of the Government towards conscription, and has given notice that on the first fitting opportunity of going into committee of supply he will move in he commons the fol- opinion of this house the best interests of Canada, of the empire and of humanity will be served by the application of the Militia Act or by other action to raise troops for compulsory overseas service."

WILL PAY $4,500 TO SWEEPER CO.

THIS WILL DO AWAY WITH NECESSITY OF WATERING PAVED STREETS.

An agreement was made by the City Council last night whereby the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Co. will clean all the paved streets of the city from now until the end of the season for $4,500.00. The work must be done to the satisfaction of the city engineer, and it also provides that the gutters must be attended to as well as the roadway.

This is a little more than the Board of Works intended spending this year, but when the aldermen took into consideration that it will do away with watering the pavement, thereby lengthening the life of the asphalt, the agreement is regarded as a good investment.

LANDANDMONEY FOR SOLDIERS

GOV'T EXPLAINS ITS PLAN TO AID VETERANS OF THE WAR.

OTTAWA, May 8.—In the house, Monday, Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, explained at some length the legislation by which the Government hopes to place the returned soldiers upon the land. The soldier or the widow of the soldier who has fallen in the war not only gets 160 acres of land, but will be financially assisted up to $2,000 by a loan from the Dominion Government bearing 5 per cent. interest. The same financial assistance will be extended to the returned soldier who homesteads in any province where the crown lands are owned by the province, or purchases land for farming purposes. The land grant and financial aid will be extended to all soldiers and sailors who fought in the present war under the British flag.

MR. SPENCE RETIRES AS AGENT OF CHILDREN'S AID

Resignation Accepted at Meeting of the Board Yesterday---H. B. Cowan Elected a Member.

The resignation of Mr. C. A. G. Spence as agent of the Children's Aid Society, was presented and accepted at the regular meeting of the society in the Bank of Montreal Chambers yesterday afternoon.

In the absence of President Peck the members selected Mayor Duffus to preside.

There were present, Mesdames Stocker, Howard, Montgomery, Sanderson and Gibbs; Messrs. Joseph Wearing, W. A. Howard, Dr. D. C. King, J. Edgar, D. Thompson, Adj. McElhiney, and Rev. R. G. Peever.

The report of the purchasing Commitee was presented, and the following accounts were ordered to be paid when certified:—

C. A. G Spence	$11.24
A. Read	1.30
Mrs. Bromwell	6.00

Wm. Lytle	4.00
Mrs. Read	14.10
	$72.99

Mr. C. A. G. Spence gave a splendid verbal report of the work that had been attended to by him during the past month. In that time four children had been made wards of the society, the society had been appointed guardian of the children of a dead soldier pending a settlement of the affairs of the mother, and a number of the children who were at the Shelter were placed in good homes. During the month the agent held four meetings in the interests of the society, and had travelled 165 miles on the work connected with the care of the children. It was also drawn to the attention of the members that five wards of the society had joined the 247th Batt., and were on their way overseas.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, kindly offered the use of the paper to the society as a medium through which good homes might be found for wards of the society, and expressed a wish to become a member. By a unanimous vote the election of Mr. Cowan was carried.

The resignation of Mr. Spence, as agent of the society, was read by Mr. Wearing, and after some discussion it was accepted.

The board adjourned until the second Tuesday in June.

Mr. Maclean said that having preached thrift and production to the people of Ontario, he could not consistently oppose conservation of ou food products which would result from turning int human food and feed for cattle the grain which is now being consumed in the manufacture of intoxicating liquor. At the same time he was under the impression that a large quantity of the alcohol produced by the distillers went into the manufacture of high explosives.

AUSTRALIAN TRADGEDY

Pioneer Died Within Mile of Water—Pathetic Message

A typical story of the lonely Australian track comes from West Australia. A Shark Bay pearler, Louis Krasker, started off on horseback from a township called Denham for Hearid's Bight. He was a middle aged man, and he was handicapped by an artificial leg. Four days later the next traveller over this lonely track picked up the man's artificial leg, and further on, twelve miles from Denham and about a mile from a water tank, Krasker's body was found under a wattle tree. His notebook contained the following:

"I fell off my horse and broke my leg. I started back for the tank and failed. Where you will find me the thirst killed me. I am sorry to die before my time, ma cherie. I loved you until my last. I leave everything to you. Don't worry too much. Suppose everything for the best. I expected relief. I kiss you my last. Kiss my children for me, and also my parents. Your loving husband."

About a mile back, a searcher picked up one of Krasker's cards, on which was written "Four o'clock on September 22, and have not reached the tank. It is yet too long, and I suffer much from thirst." Still further on, a legging was picked up, on which was stuck a card with the words, "Fell off my horse and broke my leg. Trying to reach the tank."

TEST FOR CLEAN SEED

Farmers Should Use Seed From Their Own Farms

Very few farmers put their seed through the fanning mill three times, but quite a number clean it once or twice. A great many do not clean their seed at all. It is not at all necessary to buy new seed; in fact, it is more advisable for a farmer to use the seed produced on his own farm and properly clean the weed seeds out. In New Brunswick, I was once walking along the road close to a field where a man was sowing. I dipped my hand first into a stream close by and then into the bag of seed. When I took my hand out it was covered with weed seeds, showing that the man had not cleaned his seed at all. One of the best means for preventing the spread of weeds is to clean the seed thoroughly.—F. C. Nunnick, at Meeting of Canadian Commission of Conservation.

EXQUISITE HEROISM ALONE WINS THE V.C.

Super Heroes Not Often of Bull-dog Type—Who is the Bravest of All?

Victoria Crosses are dealt out as grudgingly as though they were composed of radium. This is because the honor is the greatest that can be won by a British subject, and also because in the present war all previous standards of gallantry have been surpassed, or rather what one man did in the Crimea and three in South Africa a hundred are doing in the present war. To give a V.C. to every heroic soldier in the British army would be to make the cross as common as corporals' stripes. So it is bestowed as cautiously as though the candidate for it were applying for canonization. Not only must the deed that wins the cross be of exquisite heroism; it must be as duly witnessed and attested as a signature to a will. A veritable court of enquiry sits on each case, and unless it presents some features far out of the ordinary even among heroic deeds, the supreme honor is withheld and a Military Cross or medal given instead.

Many Unsurpassable

The New York Sun says that the question as to the bravest deed that won the Victoria Cross will never be decided. There are a hundred deeds which no human devotion or courage or sacrifice could ever surpass. For valor in attacking a foe Michael O'Leary stands out with L.-Corpl. Albert Jacka, of the Australians, as unsurpassable in all military history. At Courtney's Post on the Gallipoli, Jacka, single-handed, shot or bayoneted seven Turks who tried to rush the trench he was defending, and he was the only man left alive or unwounded in it. Yet his bravery cannot rank above that of Private Potts, of the Berkshire Infantry, at Suvla Bay. Shot in the left thigh, he dragged a worse wounded comrade for three nights on an entrenching shovel, moving only a few feet with every effort, until he reached a British outpost. Lieut. A. V. Smith, of an East Lancashire Regiment, threw himself upon a bomb that had dropped out of his hand, and though he was blown to pieces, he saved the lives of his comrades.

The Immortal Dead

Major Yates, of the Second Yorkshire Light Infantry, was mortally wounded and taken prisoner at Le Cateau, while leading nineteen survivors of his battalion of 220 men in a charge, and Major George Wheeler, of the Seventh Lancers, at Shaiba, Mesopotamia, a born leader of forlorn hopes, thus met his death: "He was seen far ahead of his men, riding single-handed, straight for the enemy's standard." The writer in the Sun has been impressed by the photographs of some of these V.C. men, which have appeared in the London weekly papers. He says, "There is a quiet, steadfast look about most of the faces; seldom, if ever, a pose of conscious gallantry. . . . The V.C. man usually seems to be the soul of good nature. The bulldog type is hardly present at all. . . . The deathless Yates had a small chin, a keen, laughing eye, hair parted in the middle, and might have been taken for a frivolous society man. Potts has flaring ears, a twisted mouth, a flippant eye, and looks absolutely unheroic." So we would have them painted, like Cromwell, "wart and all," for our grandchildren to look at and reverence.

DEVONPORT---DICTATOR

Master of Strikers, Who Defied Assassins—Took Food Control

Although Mr. Asquith said in the House of Commons that he did not like that word "dictator," his Government had already decided that there should be a food dictator in England. The trouble was to find the man. It was said generally that he would be the most unpopular official in the United Kingdom, and that no man with any political ambitions would accept the task. Finally Lord Devonport was induced to take the office, and then it was suddenly remembered that he had vast experience in the dictating business. For several years he had been in control of the Port of London, and in discharging the duties of this position had won for himself the name dictator. He won national and even international fame at the time of the dockers' strike in 1912, when the shipping business of the port was paralyzed and London threatened with famine. The utmost pressure was brought to bear upon Lord Devonport to yield to the demands of the strikers, pressure comparable to that brought upon Sir Edward Carson regarding Ulster, but Devonport would not yield, although labor leaders like Ben Tillett openly advocated his assassination, and eventually he won the strike.

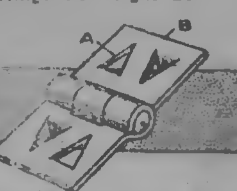
Hinge For Light Box



Hinges to be fixed into place with screws are often unsatisfactory for applying to light boxes. The hinge shown in the sketch was designed for use in such cases, and is inexpensive and can be quickly applied. No screws are required and the leaves of the hinge B are perforated with triangular holes. The portions cut out, as at A, are bent back and driven into the wood. They are set so that when driven in they tend to clamp against the strip of wood between them, making a secure fastening.—Popular Mechanics.

When Wind Shield Rattles

On many makes of automobiles the windshield is held in place by steel arms which protrude through the cowl being fastened on the under side by a nut and lock nut. Often these nuts work loose, due to vibration, with the result that the shield is allowed to move slightly. The first evidence of this is seen in cracked finish in the vicinity of the windshield supports. When the owner makes a periodic inspection for loose bolts and nuts, these windshield nuts should not be forgotten.

Canada Builds Wooden Ships

The wooden shipbuilding industry, long dormant, was revived at the British Columbia coast during the war, with a view to supplying tonnage to transport British Columbia lumber to the markets of the world. The passing of the aid to shipbuilding measure by the Provincial Government saw the Cameron-Genoa Mills Shipbuilders, Ltd., organized, and three vessels of the auxiliary schooner type were laid down.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

PRINTERS WIN THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE CITY BOWLING LEAGUE

Last night at the Water Street Alleys the C. G. E. and the Printers met in their last league match of the season. The pins were not working right for the Edison boys and the Printers grabbed all three games. Being without Cairns in the last game didn't discourage the Printers any as they rolled their best game of the evening, 861. Moore's performance in the last game was wonderful to behold, he rolling up the lovely total of 266, a record for a league game. Moore had a total of 614, and Henderson was second with 520. Bishop, for the C. G. E., had 512. A. Fielder was absent from the Can. Gen. lineup, which doubtless affected their scores.

The Printers have the championship tucked away, having lost only five games out of thirty, and the Grocers finish second.

LONDON, May 9.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen says Nikolai Lenine, a Russian radical Socialist, has been missing for two days and nothing is known of his fate.

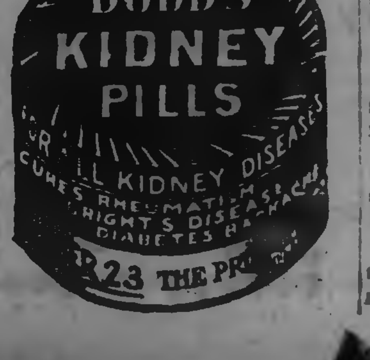
Dog vs. Kettle.

"I'll learn ye to tie the kettle to the dog's tail," Tommy's mother yelled in her wrath.

"It's not our dog," cried Tommy.

"No, it's not our dog," said his mother, "but it's our kettle."

Don't think in order to be forceful it is necessary to step on other people's toes.



WHY NEED BRUSHES?

Many Surfaces Best Cleaned by Brushing Out

Mrs. Christine Frederick writes: "Brushes! Why, I didn't use very many of them in my housework. Aren't dusters and brooms enough;" The truly efficient housekeeper finds that a great deal of the important work in the home can best be done with the aid of brushes and even though there is a great increase in the use of many fiber cleaning devices like fiber long handled mops, fiber short handled dusters, etc., the stiff bristle brush still fills its own niche of usefulness.

There is something in the way a brush acts upon any given surface that is quite different from the way a cloth or fiber device acts upon the same surface. The cloth or fiber excellently rubs off, while, on the other hand, a brush brushes out the dust or particle. No surface which is spongy, which is made of fabric or which offers a crevice or crack for the lodging of dirt, can be cleaned quite as effectively with a soft cloth as it can with a stiff bristle.

Indeed, the up-to-date cleaning closet may be filled with brushes for every purpose. There is, first, the brush on a long handle made of stiff fibers which is so excellent for sweeping hardwood floors, linoleum, etc., and which should take the place of the scratchy corn broom in almost every case. There is the short handle brush of similar bristle which is just the thing to clean window sills, window moldings, door trim and other crevice between a wall surface and the standing woodwork.

Red Currant Catsup

Strip from the stems, mash and boil until soft. Rub through a fine sieve to remove skins and seeds. To 5 pints of the strained currants add 1 pint of vinegar, 2 pounds of sugar, 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, a little red pepper, 1 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon ground allspice, 1 teaspoon salt. Boil until it begins to thicken. It will not be as thick as tomat catsup. Pour boiling hot into sterilized jars and seal immediately.

Apple Peanut Salad

Pare, core and chop slightly acid apples and mix them with half as much chopped celery. Mix a dressing of peanut butter, using 5 tablespoons of lemon juice to 1 tablespoon of peanut butter. Mix dressing through the apples and celery and season with salt and cayenne pepper. Chill the salad and serve on lettuce and garnish with peanuts.

Baked Apples

Wipe and core sour apples. Place in a baking dish and fill centres with sugar and cinnamon, allowing ½ cup of sugar and ¼ teaspoon of cinnamon to 8 apples. Cover the bottom of the dish with boiling water and bake in a hot oven until soft, tasting often, with syrup in the dish. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Pear Salad

Chill large, juicy pears and cut in halves, removing the core. Place each half on a lettuce leaf; fill the cavity in the centre with chopped nut or grated cheese; cover with a salad dressing made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

YOUTHS WERE LEADERS

Great Military and Political Caring of Romans and English

Noting that the average age of the successors to the Asquith Coalition Government was fifty-five, the Westminster Gazette, gave the following information. Octavius was nineteen when he divided the world with Antony and Lepidus. Nero, of whom we are apt to think as having grown old in wickedness, was thirty when he died. Caligula was twenty-eight. Henry V. was sixteen when he took over the command of the turbulent Welsh border. Edward IV. won the battle of Mortimer's Cross at the age of eighteen. Richard III. commanded the rear-guard at Barnet and Tewkesbury when he was sixteen, and as Constable of England ordered the execution of Somerset when he was seventeen. Warwick had reached the mature age of twenty-seven before he started "King making." Richard II. was fifteen when, courageously, he rode out alone to meet Wat Tyler's infuriated mob. Those were the days of the young. A man did not have to wait till he was fifty-five before he could prove his "push and go."

AFTER MANY MONTHS

Insistent Man of 60 Told He May Cut Down Trees

The journeyings of an over age business man up and down Whitehall in search of a Department which would accept his services on behalf of the nation was told in London. The patriot, who, although over 60, is so strong and active that he is known among his friends as "Ajax," has been rejected or kept waiting for some months by various Government Department. He had had 40 years' business experience in Mincing Lane.

At length he had an offer of employment. If he could get three other men to form a gang with him, "Ajax" might go to some woods in Kent and cut timber at the usual wood cutter's wage. "Ajax" accepted this offer and was last heard of trying to obtain his three men.

Economy

Many women think they are saving money by buying cheap tea, forgetting that it is not the cost per pound but the cost per cup that determines a tea's economy.

You may pay 5 or 10 cents more per pound for Red Rose Tea than for common tea. But because Red Rose Tea is a blend of Indian-Assam teas with Ceylons, consisting of the choice tender shoots and buds— the parts of the tea plant that yield the largest amount of liquor and the finest flavor—one-third less is required in the pot to make the same number of cups.

The cost per cup between Red Rose Tea and common tea is then practically the same. But the flavor —what a difference!

RED ROSE TEA
RED ROSE
TEA "is good tea"

And this distinctive and delightful flavor and rich strength is protected by the Red Rose sealed package. No air, odors or dust can get in to injure Red Rose Tea's splendid quality and economy.

When Cream Pitchers Drip

Fresh damask is often soiled by the cream dripping from the lip of the pitcher each time after using. To prevent this, just rub a little butter on the outer edge of the "lip." It will not show, and positively prevents any cream from running down the outside of the pitcher.

Spots on Table

When the kitchen table becomes spotted and discolored, cut a lemon in half and rub it over the entire surface of the wood. Rinse well with clear water. The result will be a smooth white top. Pastry boards and rolling pins may be treated in the same manner.

Apply with a rush a paste composed of equal parts of soft soap, quicklime and caustic potash and leave for several days. Then wash the paste off and dry and polish the marble with soft cloths.

Never allow fresh meat to stand in paper for it absorbs the juices.

JAPAN'S GRIP ON PACIFIC FLOUR TRADE

Control of Shipping Underlies Commercial Invasion—Au[illegible] Shares Triumph in Orient

According to the Seattle correspondent of The Modern Miller, Japan has not only succeeded in nosing Americans out of Hong Kong, but has completed the circle by shoving Chinese millers from Shanghai out of the same market, and it was accomplished without any special noise or comment. Cables and letters from representatives of North Coast millers permanently stationed in the Orient, established this Japanese invasion beyond any doubt.

The situation that confronts the North Coast miller in his efforts to regain his Oriental trade is plain. Japan exerts a powerful control on shipping space between Puget Sound and the Orient, dictating who shall or who shall not have space aboard ship, dominating tonnage rates with shifty quotations, at the same time enabled to cut prices under all competitors, yellow and white, through Government ships, subsidies and multiplicity of sailings. The lack of American ships is primarily the cause. Millers must load their flour almost exclusively on foreign bottoms, and are daily exposed to the caprices of the owners.

South America Also

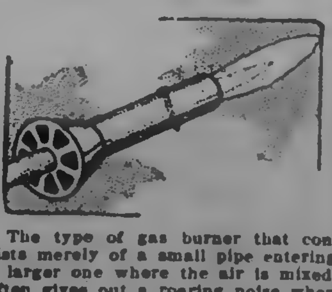
The coast millers are fearful that the thin end of the wedge will be thrust into the trade of the west coast of South America, the only field left open against challenge by the Japanese. Japan has taken such good customers as Hong Kong, Java, the Straits Settlements and Ceylon, driving out all competition but Australia, which is not in a position to work much flour, due to the embargo. All this was accomplished practically in three months.

Philippines Controlled

M. F. Loewenstein, President of the Pacific Commercial Co. of Manila, P.I., confirmed the facts regarding the domination of Japan and Australia in the Oriental flour trade. "Australia and Japan now dominate absolutely the Philippine market," he said. "The United States dropped out of the flour export trade so far as the Philippines was concerned as soon as the shipping rates started to soar. Japan has been sending flour to Java, the Straits Settlements and China, and she has started shipping flour direct to England. This is made possible because the Japanese are taking care of their own freight offerings first in preference to those of other nations."

Discussing the matter editorially, the paper quoted says: "Japan is gathering in islands in the Pacific, is building mills and is closing the China door as rapidly as she can, while Washington is fooling itself, and American shipbuilders are still asleep. Japan is out to take control of the flour trade of the Orient. She will divide it with Russia."

Silencing a Noisy Gas Burner



The type of gas burner that consists merely of a small pipe entering a larger one where the air is mixed, often gives out a roaring noise when turned on strongly. To stop this noise, drill a small hole through both sides of the larger pipe near the flame end and insert a nail. This simple expedient effectually quiets the burner.—Popular Mechanics.

Collar Galls

Tannic acid is one of the very best remedies for collar galls. It can be secured from any drug store and is easily applied by rubbing over the collar every morning and evening if the horse is working. Collar galls usually appear either at the top of the neck or at the point of the shoulder or where an improperly fitted collar rubs. It is important that the collar be kept clean at all times in order that it may be kept from cutting into the neck, but special care in keeping it clean is necessary after these galls start.

TWO HOSPITAL SHIPS TORPEDOED

CAPTAIN ROME PICARD IS LATEST MARTYR TO DUTY

Met Death in Action May 3--Lieut. Percy Stock Wounded.

Two very popular Peterborough officers are mentioned in today's casualty list, one has paid the supreme price and the other is wounded. Both of them were in the engagement on the same day as the reported date is the same.

CAPT. ROME PICARD KILLED.

Mr. Joseph Picard received the sad news this morning that his son, Captain Roumulus Emanuel Picard had been killed in action on May 3rd. Capt. Picard was one of the most popular officers of the 81st Battalion. It was only a few days ago that his father received a letter from him telling about being on a rest behind the lines after the previous battles. At that time (April 28th) he was in the best of health and looking forward to getting into action again.

Mr. and Mrs. Picard will have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their great sacrifice.

Capt. Picard was in Toronto at the time the 81st was formed and was one of the first officers to offer his services to the country. At the time of his death he was attached to the 3rd Batt., Canadian Expeditionary Forces.

LIEUT. PERCY STOCK WOUNDED.

Mrs. L. Stock received word from the War Office this morning that her husband, Lieut. Percy Stock, had been wounded on May 3rd. No particulars as to the nature of the wound was given, nor was the hospital he was in mentioned. Lieut. Stock was an enthusiastic member of the 93rd Batt. and his early recovery will be wished for by his many friends.

LIEUT. PERCY STOCK

Reported wounded in today's lists of casualties.

RECOVERING FROM WOUNDS

In a letter received during the week from Lance-Corporal Jeffrey Edwards to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Lindsay he states that he is now in hospital in England and that there are a few bones broken in his left hand. Lance-corporal Edwards received the bullet wound at the battle of Vimy Ridge on April 9th last. In his letter he states that he saw Pte. Joe Bailey, and that he is well and in good health.

GATEMEN GET RAISE.

The G. T. R. have increased the pay of watchmen and gatemen in Toronto from $1.50 to $1.70 per day. An effort was made to have the increase made to $2.

GERMANS EXPOSE PRISONERS TO ATTACK FROM FRENCH AIRSHIPS

LONDON, May 10. — Progress was made by the British last night in the neighborhood of Bullecourt, east of Gricorut and south of the Souchez River, says today's official announcement.

EXPOSE FRENCH PRISONERS.

BERLIN, May 10. — An official statement says: "In reprisal for the placing of a German general and fifteen staff officers on a French hospital ship in the Mediterranean, the German authorities have placed thrice this number of French officers of corresponding rank at points in the western industrial districts which are especially subject to aerial attacks.

HUN AIRPLANES FALL IN FLAMES.

PARIS, May 10. — "During the night the enemy attempted without success several rather feeble counter-attacks at various points along the Chemin-des-Dames. All his efforts were defeated by our fire. A counter-attack in great force against positions carried by us in the region of Chevreux met with the same fate, and did not prevent us from making further progress and capturing a fortified point of support. Prisoners and machine guns remained in our hands. On the northern slopes of the Vaucleric plateau we carried out operations which enabled us to enlarge our gains and take prisoners belonging to the division of troops which arrived recently on this part of the front.

"Artillery fighting continues actively in the sectors east of Hill 108, near La Pompelle, and north of Bezonvaux. In the region of Metzral, patrol skirmishes and grenade fighting occurred. Information now at hand shows that five German airplanes are reported damaged seriously.. Yesterday our pilots caused two German airplanes to fall in flames."

GERMAN NAVY MAY COME OUT TO GIVE BATTLE

Reichstag Assured by Expert That Victory Is Now at Hand.

BOASTS OF SUB ACTIVITIES

British Say Merchant Vessels Are Being Armed as Fast As Possible.

London, May 10.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, quoting Berlin advices, says:—

"The Reichstag has begun its second reading of the navy budget. Dr. Pfleger, naval reporter of the Budget Committee, declared that the submarine booty for April would not be less than 1,100,000 tons, and added that the Reichstag looked forward to activity by the German navy with a confident hope of a speedy and victorious peace. Vice-Admiral von Capelle, Minister of the Navy, who followed Dr. Pfleger, said: "This recognition is new stimulus to us to fulfill Germany's expectations regarding the U-boats, which have faced enthusiastically the great task of decisively intervening alongside our victorious army. The boats will persevere until the end. We have the necessary boats, a trained personnel, fuel and all accessories.'"

"The U-boat crews are equal to all demands. We expected an average monthly U-boat booty of about 600,000 tons; actually the result for three months totals 2,300,000 tons. This is 55 per cent. above our expectations. Altogether, in three months thirteen hundred and twenty-five ships have been sunk How long this will continue is the enemy's affair. The U-boats guarantee our holding out."

Arming Merchant Vessels.

The submarine menace and the steps which the Admiralty is taking to deal with it were brought before the House of Commons in a series of questions. In reply Thomas J. Macnamara, Financial Secretary of the Admiralty, said it was not in the public interest to disclose what proportion of vessels sunk had been armed. He said, however, that merchant vessels were being armed as rapidly as possible.

GIFTS BROUGHT COMFORT TO THE WOUNDED HEROES

Parcels Sent by St. John's Girl's Auxiliary Gratefully Received in Hospitals in France---Major Davidson Writes.

Mrs. Conway, president of the St. John's Girls' Auxiliary, has received the following letter from Major Davidson in reference to the Auxiliary's donation of quilts to the hospital. He encloses a very appreciative letter from one of the patients.

My dear Mrs. Conway:—I was most delighted with the kind letter received from the Girls' Auxiliary, and the list of the names—so well known—who brough many remembrances. I took the nice quilt at once to the matron.

Yesterday I saw your former quilts with two from the W. A. and two from Campbellford, also sent to me, covering patients in the annex of one of our shell-shock wards. They quite brightened up the room, and the men spoke, or rather stuttered, with great appreciation. They are all sergeants there. Many of these patients come in quite dumb with shell shock and dazed—some out of their mind. They are put under ether as a rule in which state they speak more easily and when they come out they are able to say a few words or to stutter them which lasts quite a time; but in the end most of them come right. One man said, "It shows . . a great deal . . of interest . . to sew all that . . for us."

The weather has been cold, damp and miserable up to now following extreme cold before—a snow storm two days ago. This is Holy Week, and one misses the regular devotional services which we can't well have, though I have prayers in wards when possible, and had services on Good Friday. With personal affection.

Most warmly yours

JOHN C. DAVIDSON.

THANKS FROM A PATIENT.

Fsance, 4-4, 1917.

Mrs. W. E. Conway.

Dear Madam:—I have much pleasure in writing to thank you for your splendid gifts to the above hospital. Writing as a patient I feel I cannot express in words forceable enough, my admiration of your association's great work and labor of love. The impetus for such work and love can only be obtained from one source, I am sure. Your bed spreads now decorate this ward. Here there are 8 beds. Each occupied bed sends its greatest appreciation and thanks to all who has a hand in the work. The swastikas upon each covering wishes us good luck. The words wish us God speed in our duty, and every stitch in the fabric reminds us that there are friends across the sea thinking and possibly praying for us that are temporarily laid aside from this righteous war. The whiteness of the fabric dispels depression and so nicely worked with the red gives us all a gay and bright appearance.

I could well write your association a sermon on their handiwork but sermons are for those who need them. I think you all have taken to heart some sermon of love. We are all N.C.O.'s here in this ward and we all thank you and admire your work much One or two men who had said very little for days previous to the arrival of your gifts became quite eloquent in their admiration and praise.

I conclude by wishing you Godspeed in all your work and trust that in days to come your association may receive God's richest blessings.

I remain, yours sincerely,

F. T. RIDGEWELL,

GOVERNMENT TO AID TECHNICAL TRAINING PLAN

Grants for That Purpose May Be Made to Each of the Provinces.

CAPT. BURNHAM APPROVES

Claim That Nothing Should Be Done Until After War Is Not Favored.

Ottawa, May 10.—The government intends at an early date, probably at the present session, to promote technical education by financial grants for that purpose to the various provinces. The announcement came in the nature of a surprise after a debate which lasted the entire afternoon.

The subject came before the house upon a resolution offered by Mr. Lemieux, calling upon the government to at once carry out the recomemndations of the royal commission on technical education. Hon. T. W Crothers, minister of labor, speaking for the government, said that no expenditure along this line could be attempted until after the war. This announcement met with a storm of protest from both sides of the house.

In the end Sir George Foster proposed a substitute resolution, and pledging it to promote technical education at the earliest practicable opportunity. Sir George explained that the government did not wish to be bound down to the recommendations of the royal commission, many of which were not of a practical character.

Capt. Burnham spoke in favor of the resolution. Sir George Foster intimated that assistance would be given the province to establish technical schools when the proper time came.

ANNOUNCEMENT IN PARL'T

British War Office Not Dismayed by Recent Events at Fresnoy.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 10. — Two further hospital ships have been torpedoed by German submarines since the British airplanes raided the town of Freiburg, as a reprisal for the previous sinking of hospital ships, Bonar Law announced today in the Commons.

LONDON, May 10. — Further reports show that he fighting in the neighborhood of Bullencourt yesterday was severe and continuous. We made progress in spite of repeated and costly efforts of the enemy to shake our hold on his positions, none of which met with success. During the night our line was advanced by local fighting east of Gricourt and south of the Souchez River, where we captured a portion of the enemy's front and support lines with a number of prisoners. Hostile raiding parties were driven off last night northeast of Lievin and south of Hulluch. North of Givenchy les Bassee we made a successful raid.

The recent partial success of the French at Fresnoy has not upset the British plans of operation nor has it caused surprise, said Major General Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office today. As a matter of fact, the General added, the British staff has been surprised that the Germans have not succeeded before in making gains, in view of the tremendous counter-attacks which they have been hurling against the British front.

TRACTOR CAN TUR EIGHT ACRES OF S

Is Now Working Well on the in Otonabee---Some Misunder Are Cleared Up.

The farm tractor is working splendidly on the farm of Mr. J. A. Wilson in Otonabee, and no attention is paid to union laws but the machine remains on duty while there is daylight to operate it. The tractor draws a plow of three furrows and turns over three feet of soil at once. Eight acres of land can be plowed in a day.

The tractor, it seems, is made in Minneapolis. The Massey-Harris Company of Toronto are agents for it but have recently secured the Canadian rights and will soon begin the manufacture of it in their own factories, provided of course that no liberties are taken with the tariff. The Massey-Harris people already manufacture a tractor plow so that they will soon be in a position to turn out a rig complete.

The plow now in use on the Wilson farm was made by the Cockshutt Company in Brantford and is giving entire satisfaction. It is so attached to the tractor that if it encounters an immovable object it becomes automatically separated from the motive power before any damage is done. A failure to adjust this erly caused a break c layed the work, but no is moving smoothly. Th Company have recently order from England for tw of these plows to be deliver the next four months.

Gasoline is used as fuel wh engine is warmed while coal oil stituted thus effecting a savin over fifty percent in the cost of eration. The expense to the farm who uses the tractor in the wages and board of the operator, which puts the cost of the work at about 34 cents an acre. Mr. W. H. Walters, of Toronto, is in charge of the tractor. He holds a license as a marine and stationery engineer from the British Board of Trade. Mr. J. A. Wilson, however, an expert machinist himself, can handle the outfit with the best of them. Mr. C. J. Bateman, representative of the Cockshutt Company, looked after the interests of his firm in the trial and it was due to him that everything was finally got into satisfactory working order.

EXPERTS IN PUBLIC LIFE.

THE WORLD would be different, affairs of the nation would be vastly better, if the same standard of efficiency was required of public men as is insisted upon by the managers of private business enterprises. Usually, a man is chosen for an important place of trust and influence, not with any regard to his fitness, but simply because of the political prestige that he may possess. How many votes he may bring to his party is invariably the paramount question. In private business none but the expert is put in charge, if the enterprise is to succeed.

Canada has in the Dominion Cabinet a minister who is a standing illustration of the value of an expert in public office. Sir Thomas White, at the head of the Finance Department, is a born financier, and has been distinguished in that line of endeavor for years, the outstanding figure in big monetary transactions in Canada. Fortunate indeed was this country to obtain his services in a public capacity, under any conditions, and doubly so to have him at he head of the nation's financial affairs during the war.

Sir Thomas White has brought the country through the greatest crisis it has ever passed. Every emergency has been met. His management has made him famous among the financial giants of the United States and Britain. In his own country he is accorded the distinguished honor of the confidence of all classes. He has on three separate occasions called for popular loans, and all were promptly over-subscribed. No higher compliment could be paid a public man, no more encouraging sign could be given that the public have confidence in his policy and in the country's financial status under his management.

"ECONOMIC UNITY."

THE TORONTO STAR sneers at the Conservative party for opposing reciprocity in 1911 and preaching "economic unity" with the United States in 1917.

Perhaps The Star will admit that conditions have changed somewhat during the past six years. The relations that exist between the two countries are entirely different. In 1911 there was a healthy competition between them, to supply the world's markets. Now there is only one market and the resources of both are taxed to the utmost to meet the demands. The Allied counries of Europe are crying for foodstuffs. Any combination to answer the call is not an admission that the policy of the Conservatives was wrong in 1911. It is simply an emergency measure, a step necessitated by the changes wrought by a war of nearly three years' duration. When that war is over the old rivalry in commerce is likely to be resumed.

COMPETING RAILWAYS.

THE CHICAGO NEWS says that the war has forced Canada to a new realization of the need of co-operation by its railroads as a means of providing better service for the public. In a report by a royal commission appointed to inquire into transportation conditoins in the Dominion the recommendation is made that all the railroads in Canada except the Canadian Pacific be consolidated into a single system. Adoption of this carefully considered plan is urged as a means of averting congestion of traffic.

Railroads in the United States have been developed according to the theory of competition. That theory in large measure is still embodied in the law of the land, though the railroads have practically freed themselves of those forms of competition which to them are most offensive, demoralizing and destructive. By community of interest, so far as financial control is concerned, they guard against the frantic rate wars which were common thirty years ago. In important respects, however, the principle of individuality still rules their management.

One result of this state of things is that the railroads in the United States cannot be marshalled suddenly for such effective unified service as has been obtained from the railroads of Germany, which were developed upon the principle of operating unity. However, under the careful direction of the transportation experts whom the federal government has called to its assistance, comprehensive plans are being prepared for the inauguration of service so unified that it should increase enormously the operating efficiency of the nation's great railroad systems.

Public utilities, whether national or local, are not properly competitive in their nature. The lessons of public utility control which have been learned by progressive cities must be taken to heart by the nation at this time of stern trial. The principle of competition in transportation service must give way definitely to the principle of unity and effective co-operation.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Let Nothing Be Lost.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Gather up the scrub apples and revive the almost-forgotten home industry of drying apples over the kitchen fire this autumn. If the apples are too poor for this, can them; if they aren't even good enough for this purpose, save them in the swill-barrel to help fatten the pigs and sweeten the pork.

And what is done in the apple matter should be done with everything else that is eatable. "Gather up the fragments that nothing be lost."

Hints for Amateur Gardeners.

(New York Sun.)

The more brilliant plaids will be worn by potato bugs this year.

Little soft toads will be popular in many gardens this year. They are useful in catching insects, and when they are not so employed the baby will like to play with them.

Plant poison ivy around your watermelons, and then when they are stolen later in the season you may get a clue as to which one of the neighbors' boys is the culprit.

Bonfires in the orchard will keep the mosquitoes from the trees and from the same time bake the apples so that they are ready for the table.

Brandy in liberal quantities is a good antidote for almost any sort of food you will raise in your first garden.

$200 FOR FARMER AT BANK TO HELP BUY HIS SEED

The sum of $200 will be available at the nearest bank for every Ontario farmer who desires to increase his acreage and needs the money to buy seed.

No farmer in Ontario need go without seed this year.

Loans will be repayable with interest at 6 per cent. on the 1st November, after the farmer has sold his crop.

If the crop fails and the farmer is unable to repay the money, the Ontario Government will make it good.

These are the main features of the arrangement made by Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, through the Organization of Resources Committee, with the Bankers' Association, for loans to Ontario farmers who need seed and have no money with which to buy it.

There are 175,000 farmers in the Province of Ontario, so that if every one takes advantage of the arrangement the sum of $35,000,000 is involved.

Details of the scheme were outlined yesterday by Dr. A. H. Abbott and Mr. J. J. Gibbons of the Provincial Resources Committee. Other important matters relating to the campaign for increased production of foodstuffs were also discussed, following a meeting of the Provincial Resources Executive Committee.

Want Big Harvest.

The Executives of the Committee has been meeting almost daily for the past six weeks, and has succeeded in establishing in every community in the Province a Committee for Food Production. These various committees have provided a very large amount of labor for the farms, and the reports indicate that while a number of men have been supplied for the season, a very large number of men have offered themselves for the harvest. It is the unanimous feeling of the committee that there will be no difficulty in handling the harvest, no matter how large the crop may be.

In addition to providing a comfortable quantity of labor to meet the pressing demands of the farming communities, arrangements have also been made for providing seed, and it appears that in no instance has any request for potatoes in carload lots not been met. Provision is being made for a supply of the other seeds that may be sown up to the 1st of July.

Terms of the Loan.

While labor and seed are essentials in connection with the greater production campaign, the committee have also arranged with the Bankers' Association to secure a larger amount of credit for farmers, and it is expected that by tomorrow details will be in the hands of every branch bank manager in Ontario of the plan under which special loans will be made to farmers for buying extra seed. The sum of $200 will be available for every farmer who desires to increase his acreage, upon the distinct understanding that he plants it in seed, so that no farmer in the Province need go without seed this year. This will not apply to those farmers who have already obtained loans for seed purposes from the Loan Commissioner for Northern Ontario. All loans made under this arrangement will be repayable with interest at 6 per cent. on the 1st of November, after the farmer has sold his crop.

The food shortage which the world is facing at the present time cannot be met in one season, and it will be at least three years before conditions will be at all normal. The work of the committee is, therefore, being planned along large and permanent lines. Looking to the future, great attention is being given to the experiments being made with farm plow tractors, and upon these experiments proving successful, it is expected that there will be a large number of these secured so that every possible acre will be under cultivation by the fall of this year.

BRAVE MARTYRED CITY: RHEIMS DEMOLISHED

One of the World's Greatest Masterpieces in Ruins—Rheims, Though Broken, Refuses to Die

A neutral writes: I have just made a pilgrimage to the martyred city of Rheims, the holy city of France, and I have returned impressed by its beauty and heroism. Rheims refuses to die. For years German shells have been falling in its streets. They have destroyed the pride of the town, the glorious cathedral, they have left no stone untouched of the old palace of the archbishop and they have set fire to houses without number.

"Joan of Arc" Unscathed

In the square outside the Cathedral stands the equestrian statue of Joan of Arc. Her sword has been slightly bent by a shrapnel bullet, so that it now points north towards the British line, but otherwise she has passed unscathed through the hail of shells. A tour of the streets of Rheims is like walking through a graveyard, with the difference that now and then a tomb opens and living creatures emerge. Entire streets lie in ruins, but the quarter around the Cathedral has suffered the most. In many places canvas walls have been put up to prevent the Germans from looking into the city and firing at the people passing by the gaps.

Play With German Shells

The people that have remained have been made immune to fear of shells through years of intermittent bombardment. Little children are playing among the ruins. A golden-haired boy whom I saw, was rolling along a German shell he had just found. Life is going on as usual. The inhabitants sip their aperitifs in front of the cafes and eat their meals in the restaurant, undeterred by the possibility that a German shell may drop into their soup, but when night comes they have to return to their cellars. Everybody sleeps underground, and many of the apartments are both cozy and comfortable. The great champagne vaults are practically shell-proof.

To Improve Your Health

Take an early morning walk and breathe deeply. Deep breathing is naturally an accompaniment to walking. So if you walk well you will also breathe well. In walking hold the chest high and head erect, not tipped back or inclined forward. Take a firm light stride. The body should be balanced on the hips without swaying. Keep the mouth closed and breathe through the nose.

Red Apple Salad

Make apple cups of bright red apples containing a little lemon juice until time to fill them. Mix some of the apple pulp with celery, grapefruit carpels and mayonnaise dressing, and fill the apples. Garnish with red Maraschino cherries that have been drained and stuffed with blanched hazelnuts. Serve on lettuce leaves with cream cheese mixed with tomato catsup.

Lemons Keep in Water

Lemons may be kept a long time without becoming dry if put into a jar of water with a lid. Change the water once a week if the lemons are to be kept long. When used they will be found quite as firm and juicy as when fresh.

SANDWICHES ENOUGH FOR ALL THE FAMILY

Great Variety of Sandwiches For Many Times and Purposes and Persons Herein Described

Long evenings lead to light lunches on the way toward bed, and as usual sandwiches are chosen in preference to any other hasty bite or snack. If you are putting the sandwiches out for the man of the house, by all means make a salmagundi. These are thin slices of white bread, brown bread and rye bread, spread lightly with butter, and then with minced ham moistened with mayonnaise. Put a slice of white on a slice of rye, and these two on top of the brown bread slice. Press together and put on a platter with a Bermuda onion and a few pickles.

Sweet Sixteen just loves bread and butter sandwiches, with veal or chicken filling, and thin slices of dill pickles. Sweet sandwiches with hot chocolate are also appreciated by bread and butter misses. Quince jelly and chopped nuts, or pecan nut meats and melted marshmallows, make an ideal filling for them.

For Big Brothers

Big Brother loves a Dutch supper, and the sandwiches for this are invariably made from rye bread. Chopped roast beef, chicken chopped with ham, or any cold meat dipped into mustard and put between the bread, delight him. But sausage in its various flavors has always been considered the proper sandwich filling for Dutch suppers. A layer of pumpernickel, a thin slice of bologna sausage, a slice of bread, and then a slice of cheese and another slice of pumpernickel, makes the sandwich just right.

Chicken Sandwich Popular

After the theatre, hot cream chicken sandwiches fill the bill, and here the chafing dish performs. Of course, Big Sister has the chicken chopped and seasoned and everything ready for the cream sauce long before she leaves the house, so all she needs to do is to stir the flour into the butter that is melted in the chafing-dish, add the cream, and while it bubbles smoothly stir in the chicken. As for the sandwiches ... well, in this case they are baking powder biscuits probably made by Dinah, and the rest of the lunch Mother prepared, but all the young folks think "Sis the best cook in the bunch."

GOOD TOMATO CATSUP

Wash and cut up thoroughly ripe tomatoes. Boil until soft in the preserving kettle. Rub through a sieve to remove seeds and skins. To each gallon of the strained pulp, add 3 level teaspoons salt, ½ tablespoon red pepper, 2 large onions, whole, and the following tied up in muslin: 2 tablespoons whole allspice, 4 tablespoons unground mustard seed, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 oz. cinnamon stick, 2 ozs. ginger root. Bring all to a boil and stir frequently to prevent scorching, when it begins to thicken add to each gallon 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 pint vinegar. Continue boiling until when a little is placed on a plate no water runs from it. When ready to pack remove the spice bag and the whole onions, and pour the catsup boiling hot into sterilized jars and seal immediately.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

From The Review of May 10, 1900:

Rev. R. Geil began a series of revival meetings at the Murray Street Baptist Church.

Council made a grant of $300 toward a celebration on the twenty-fourth of May.

T. E. Bradburn was elected president, D. W. Dumble, vice-president, R. Fair, treasurer, and T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary, of the Board of Trade.

EULOGY OF JOFFRE

Victor of Marne Destined to be a National Hero

Stephen Lauzanne, editor of the Matin, Paris, writes: The General Staff of the French army, established and directed by General Joffre, has wonderful achievements to its credit. During the opening weeks of the war it accomplished the entire work of mobilization without a hitch, without a flaw, with a perfection that elicited a cry of admiration from the entire universe. Thereafter it directed the military operations preceding and during the battle of the Marne with a firmness and certainty of vision that were without a peer. To it goes part of the credit for the victory of the Marne, which saved France, Europe, and civilization.

General Joffre, likewise, has won for himself the eternal gratitude and the unchanging affection of France to the very end of all the generations of Frenchmen. He is the man for whom, through centuries, French hearts will beat as they beat when you speak the name of Joan of Arc, of Turenne, of Hoche. The Marshal is the man who will have his statue in every hamlet of France whose name every Frenchman will pronounce from the very cradle.

CHIEF OF STAFF'S VIEW

"Every Day Our Position Becomes Better," Said Robertson

To Mr. Ben Tillett, who visited the front, General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the General Staff, wrote: "We shall win the war all right if only we do the right thing. We had a very bad start because we did not make any preparation worth the name, and it takes a long time to make up our shortcomings at the beginning. Every day our position becomes better, and, like Sir Douglas Haig, I continue to remain an optimist."

No-conscriptionist Jailed

Clifford Allen, the late chairman of the No-conscription Fellowship, was released from Wormwood Scrubs after serving 112 days for refusal to obey an order. He was met by representatives of the fellowship and accompanied by them to Newhaven, where a military escort conveyed him to rejoin his unit.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

Some women hold to the idea that bread-making is a long and difficult operation, but this is a mistake, for with Royal Yeast Cakes, light, sweet bread can be made in a few hours with but little trouble.

BRITISH PERSISTENCE

Four Months of Patient Preparation For a Battle

A French account of how Britain makes war is welcomed. The Matin of Paris says: "Our allies never abandoned their intention of breaking through the German front above the Aucre. For four months they multiplied preliminary operations with that object. They have carried out a great number of aerial reconnaissances destined to ascertain, exactly the nature of the obstacles accumulated by the enemy and his effectives. By the explosion of numerous mines they have been enabled to seize important points d'appui in the German first line.

"By frequent raids over the whole front, notable in the regions of Gommecourt, Arras, La Bassee, and Armentieres—in one day they carried out no fewer than sixteen between Ypres and Neuve Chapelle—they felt their way so as to profit later by favorable circumstances. Our allies also executed strenuous bombardment by heavy artillery not only on the first line enemy trenches but on his depots in the rear, and his communications."

"Cheero, Guildford!"

"Flourishing, Cheero, Guildford," was a telegram received by Weybridge parents—the first news for twelve months—from their son, taken prisoner in Kut.

MUSICAL ECHOES

ico Caruso, Famous Tenor, Now On Tour

Enrico Caruso, famous tenor, in junction with the Cincinnati Sym- ny Orchestra, has started on a cert tour. A particular element interest is added to Caruso's ap- rance from the fact that for the t time in his career he will sing h a symphony orchestra.

Clarissa Zomerdyk contralto solo- to sing in company with John Cormack, in a musical festival at terson, N.J., worked in that city in r childhood as a millhand. Her markable vocal gifts have been refully and faithfully cultivated.

The Aborn Opera Company, ap- aring recently in Toronto, began a e weeks' season at the Bronx era House, New York, on May 7. lton and Sargent Aborn have an broken record of fifteen completed asons at this opera house.

It is said that quite a half of the teen's Hall Orchestra. Sir Henry ood, conductor, London, is now mposed of women, so many men ving gone to the front.

John M[illegible]ck, Irish tenor, has ught a home at Collander's Point, oroton, Conn., at a cost of $125,- 00. The property consists of eight cres of land, a house of English ype, a gardener's cottage, stable and rage, tennis courts, and a pier and athing beach.

A Subtle Joy of Life

WE are here introducing a new feature department in the interests of all lovers of music in the home, and their number is legion. We hope to make these columns attractively interesting, instructive and replete with local and world happenings of a musical character.

Music is a subtle joy of life, which has these days taken so firm a grip upon every community that its claims for educational and social recognition can no longer be resisted. It is generally recognized now that home is not a home without the presence of God-given music in one form or another, and that one's education is incomplete without at least some knowledge of this adorably expressive art. Abundant opportunities for indulging an inherent craving for music are offered in this century, hence the call for increased activity in enhancing the general musical advancement of Canada through the development of music in the home, church, and school. With this end in view, The Review has undertaken, at some expense, to join in a press propaganda throughout Canada to stimulate and encourage the growing appreciation of music and all pertaining thereto. In this effort we, of course, confidently look for sympathetic and practical co-operation on the part of all concerned. Contributions suitable to this "Music in the Home" department are confidently looked for, which, together with the cheerful support of music dealers, will encourage the maintenance and progressive development of this very desirable feature page.

MUSIC'S CLAIM FOR EDUCATION

Possibilities of Player-Roll and Talking Machine Record.

That some knowledge of music is essential to a well-balanced life is now an almost established fact. Music, let it be noted, is the instinctive impulse of the human being from the cradle up, and it reverberates the world over. It is the adorable gift of God, which instinctively seeks to express itself in a manner more fundamentally natural, perhaps, than speech itself.

Who has not been attracted by the cooing music of the cradled babe long ere it sought to utter a word. Does it seem natural to instinctively crave to express one's every sense of feeling in speech? The claims of music for greater educational recognition are so manifold that one wonders that it is not given more prominence and taught more thoroughly in our public schools.

What magnificent opportunities there are for pupils of to-day to enhance their musical education as compared with the hard striving times of the old masters, who had to content themselves with such limited instruments as the old harpsichord. Can you imagine how manifestly grateful Bach, Handel, and other old masters would have been had they at their disposal such high-grade pianos, as manufactured to-day, capable of responding to every motion? It is difficult to conceive how it was possible for these old masters to give to the world such beautiful and immortal works, handicapped, we might say, with such inferior instruments. Were they in possession of such perfected instruments as we have to-day, who could conjecture what undiscovered form of music might have been handed down to us.

From the educational standpoint how potential would be the influence to-day if the wonderful mechanical musical instruments, with their appliances, we now have, existed two hundred and fifty years ago, thus enabling Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, and other illustrious old masters to relegate to posterity faithful reproductions of their performances by means of the player-piano and phonographs.

Inasmuch as it would be of priceless value to have such recorddings at this time, present day pupils and teachers will find, and some have already found from experience, that the records made by some of our eminent artists of to-day afford possibly unequalled facilities for acquiring certan phases of musical knowledge. The teacher of musical history when reviewing epochs and events, giving biographical sketches of composers and classifying the different schools and forms of music, will find the player-piano and phonograph, or either one, invaluable by demonstrating the record suitable for the occasion. When studying tonal effects of the different instruments, the phonograph record would indeed be very helpful and highly interesting.

While perhaps being efficient in the art of voice production there are many teachers who are far from being masters of interpretation, especially in some of the grand opera arias, for the reason that they have not had the opportunity of witnessing performances by artists of the highest rank. In many vocal studios is the phonograph finding itself useful as a coach, as also it is in the homes of many pupils.

It is questionable that the potentialities of the player-piano and phonograph have been fully realized. It was an extremely delicate and difficult matter to convince such artists as Patti, Melba, and other prominent artists of the possibilities of the phonograph, as likewise it was Paderewski, Greig, Moszkowski, etc. in regard to the player piano. It is said that so highly are the master rolls and records of some of these masters valued that they are carefully stored away in specially-constructed vaults in Paris and elsewhere for revelation to music students in years to come.

Music, the subtlest, the most powerful joy of life, that in which solace is found, lives within all. Within many it is dormant—it needs kindling.

GRAND PIANO WAS OUT OF TUNE

And Deplorable Lack of Harmony Reigned Supreme "Along the Potomac."

For centuries parents have searched in vain for the cause of elopements; and and for a preventative. For the same number of years have lovelorn youths and maidens scanned the faces of cold and unfeeling parents for the consent and the blessing.

Wordd has reached us that in a suburb an elopement has taken place all because the piano was out of tune.

We have promised not to give the names but the truth—the facts, are what are sought. The young man and the maid had found the one person in all the world after diligent search. They were engage. Father and mother of the prospective groom called on father and mother of the bride-to-be, and the process of appraisal was progressing satisfactorily until it was discovered by the visiting "in-laws" that the piano was out of tune.

It was a beautiful grand piano, but it was out of tune. The secret was out. Appearances were deceptive. The young man's parents could think of but one thing:—"There could be no culture or refinement in a home where a piano was out of tune." Parental consent was withheld to permit of further investigation of the girl's ability to assume the role of their daughter-in-law.

But love brooks no delays. So Dan Cupid took the reins the taxi took the couple and the parson took the fee. The telegraph took the message to his disapproving parents.

It is to be hoped the piano is now in tune and that harmony reigns "along the Potomac" as well as along the keyboard.

This simple tale bears a portentious moral and one that is well worth bearing in mind in the spring season when "a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

MUSIC IN THE DRAWING ROOM

A Room Full of People Gives the Sound of Many Waters.

Music seems to be a wonderful stimulus to conversation. Men and women whose natural tendency is towards self-repression may stand in any drawing-room modestly taciturn. The moment any one is called upon to play the piano the foundations of silence are broken up. The glint of epigram and the sparkle of repartee vie with the electric lights. At first the talk is low and restrained, but as the music rises towards a climax it becomes necessary to speak more and more loudly lest one's words should be drowned by the clamor of the instrument. A room full of people under such circumstances has the sound of many waters.

It is to be regretted that some pianists are in the habit of taking an unfair advantage of the guests at such a time by varying the dynamies of the music. A sudden descent to a ravishing pianissimo causes far too much embarassment and one of those dramatic pauses for which Chopin is famed is almost rude. At such a time it is not unusual for the company to hear remarks that were not intended for public distribution. Think of the annoyance to the young man caught saying to a charming girl, "But, Agnes, I cannot live without you!" Consider the difficulties which might arise if the hostess heard one of her guests say, "Her musicales are all right, but her dinners are impossible, my dear."

Musicians are so inconsiderate. They seem to imagine that their performers are worthy of attention, even in a drawing-room, a curious obsession for which there seems to be no adequate explanation.

LITTLE FOLK ENJOY RECITAL

This Musical Reunion Offers a Suggestion for Peterborough.

Compensating advantages come to the children who have to live in Kalamazoo, Mich. The school teachers' club of that city determined to have a violin recital for the children and engaged Maud Powell, the eminent American artist. Madame Powell sent on ahead a list of the compositons she probably would play, and the children were encouraged to try pieces on their home and school phonographs. The compositions were available, for Madame Powell is under contract to one of the phonograph companies, and is enthusiastic over the opportunity of making records.

The children became interested at once. On the afternoon of the recital more than 2,000 little folk were present, listening with 4,000 ears. As the well-beloved strains of Mozart, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Massenet and Vieuxtemps stole from the sweeping bow of the artist the children were on the pinnacles of delight. Their applause was thunderous. Said Madame Powell, "This is one of the most attentive and appreciative audiences of my career."

Here is an idea for Peterborough. In Toronto there is under Mr. L. Rees a public school musical organization that could hardly be bettered. Once a year they have in Massey Hall a remarkable concert, when the various school choirs and double trios compete for primacy in singing. The rivalry between the several schools and the musical supervisers of them is keen and wholesome. But the whole attention of the children is centred on vocal music. Suppose a piano recital were given once a year in Peterboro for school children, or a violin recital. Let the music to be presented at such a recital be played for the children on successive Friday afternoons on the phonograph. Then give the recital with blank programs. Let the children fill in the name of each composition played by the recitalist, and give a couple of prizes to the best scores returned. The advantages of a competition of this sort would be too many to count. Not only would the artist find an exceptional and eager audiences, which would draw the best out of him, but the growth of general interest in good music among the cousins and the aunts of the children would be remarkable. Perhaps, also, but this is only whispered, the dealers in phonograph records and sheet music might profit from the competition. So far as one can see no one would have the slightest reason for objection.

THE MUSIC MAKER

Baltimore Pianist Played 5,595 Notes In Four Minutes

A Baltimore mathematician has calculated that in a presto movement by Mendelssohn the pianist played 5,595 notes in four miuuutes and three seconds. Like most mathematical calculations this remains supremely uninteresting until one sees the meaning of it. There were 72 muscular movements per second, and (according to physiology, phychology, anotamy and half a dozen other isms and ologies), 200 transmissions of nerve force in the time, to say nothing of the work performed by the memory cells of the brain. The average citizen might be inclined, on reading this, to say, "Let George do it." George being a player-piano on the tubular pneumatic principle. Music students on the contrary will regard the information with a certain respect, and perhaps understand for the first time the real meaning of technical "grind" work. If the facts as set forth were widely circulated we might hear less of these wonderful gentry who promise to teach anyone to play the piano in six weeks, with no drudgery of practice. It is amazing to think that in an age comparatively enlightened so many people are fooled by Royal Roads to Learning. "Learn to play Rag-time. I teach you how," says the advertisement. Perhaps King David had just finished such a course, on the harp, when he said in his haste, "All men are liars."

MAKING SHAMPOO JELLY

Ingredients and Methods For a Good Mixture

Good shampoo mixture is made by scraping three or four ounces of castile soap and pouring over it a pint of boiling water, keeping the liquid at boiling point, without cooking, until the soap is dissolved. It is poured into a wide-mouth jar, and when cold is jelly. To a tablespoonful of this, when the time comes to use it, may be added one raw egg and a pinch of bicarbonate of soda, the ingredients being beaten together. The mixture is rubbed well into the scalp and over the hair before any water is put on.

Chocolate Gingerbread

Mix together three tablespoonfuls of melted butter and one cupful of molasses. Add one teaspoonful each of sifted ginger and cinnamon, one quarter of a teaspoonful of cloves and a half-cupful of thick sour milk. Grate two squares of chocolate, melt over hot water and add, then stir in one pint of sifted flour, and, last of all one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one teaspoonful of lukewarm water. Beat, pour into a shallow buttered pan and bake about 25 minutes in a hot oven.

The Most Wonderful Piano in Canada

The MÆSTER-ART (ELECTRICALLY DRIVEN) PIANO

Will be on Display TO-NIGHT and TO-MORROW in the spacious show window of the J. M. CREENE MUSIC CO., Limited, Charlotte Street.

Here is a piano you never dreamed possible. A piano that reproduces the playing of the great pianists perfectly.

You are invited to come and hear this remarkable new instrument, which eliminates the laborious pumping, as it is operated by electricity. Be sure to come and hear it.

H. M. S. PINAFORE.

The comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," will be presented in the opera house on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 15 and 16, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon. A local chorus and orchestra comprise the company.

Prospects are bright for a thorough organization of local music dealers in the interest of a "Music in the Home" propaganda.

An inspection of pianos, player pianos, victrolas, etc., in the new Heintzman Hall, Royal Bank building, Hunter street, affords both profit and pleasure.

The soloist at Trinity Church next Sunday will be Miss Mincer, of Exeter. Mr. Crane will preside at the organ.

Never Allow Yourself To Miss An Opportunity

A consensus of store growth would prove beyond all question of doubt that to publicity is the credit due for the great strides made during recent years by so many of our merchants and manufacturers. The people want to be informed—they are alert to the fact that information of every description is necessary to advancement—the enterprising merchant also realized this fact and through publicity he advances his business by keeping the public informed. The newspaper is the best channel of publicity—it enables the merchant to tell his story direct to the public—the news is fresh, therefore of immediate buying value. The buying power of the people is well worth every enterprising merchant's thought.

BUT The merchant who neglects to use ALL THE available newspaper publicity in his town is defrauding himself of the opportunity to talk directly to a large portion of the community who read the newspaper he is neglecting. Clear business foresight teaches that the regular use of newspapers stimulates business in any season. Make your bargains right and a buyer will be found. Use the columns of The Review and thousands of buyers will be attracted whom you cannot otherwise reach.

OWNERS OF VICIOUS DOGS ARE WARNED BY SMITH COUNCIL

Must Pay Full Value of all Sheep That May be Killed by Their Canines.

The members of the municipal council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Saturday, May 5th at ten o'clock, summoned by call of the Reeve. All the members were present with Reeve McKee in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. S. T. Millburn addressed the council re some sheep lately destroyed by dogs. Reeve McKee pointed out that as the owners of the dogs were known the matter was practically out of the control of the council and that damages could be collected by the owners of the sheep.

By motion the clerk was instructed to write any party or parties who were known to own or harbour any dog or dogs that were suspected of chasing or worrying sheep that they were doing so contrary to Sheep Protection Act, and were liable to a fine.

A number of accounts were received from ratepayers residing on the first concession, about the bad condition of that portion of the Boundary Road, which under agreement belonged to Monaghan.

By motion the clerk was instructed to write the Monaghan Council re the bad repair of the Boundary Road under their jurisdiction, requesting that steps be taken at an early date to have it repaired.

By-Law No. 753 was passed as follows: Whereas owing to the serious danger of an outbreak of rabies in the district it is desirable to take stringent measures to regulate the running at large of dogs in the municipality. Therefore the council enacts as follows:

I. In this By-law dog shall include bitch unless contrary intention appears.

II. No dogs shall be permitted by any person to run at large in the Township of Smith and for the purpose of this by-law a dog shall be deemed to be running at large when found on a highway, or other public place in the Township and not under the control of any person.

III. The word person in this by-law shall be deemed to include anyone who permits a dog to remain about his premises or who harbours or has in his possession a dog.

IV. Any dog running at large contrary to the provisions of this by-law may be seized and impounded by any constable or any officer appointed by the corporation for that purpose, or by any person upon whose land dog may be so running at large and may be disposed of as in section V. hereof.

V. Any dog so seized or impounded may be redeemed by the owner thereof within forty-eight hours after such seizure on payment of the sum of five dollars, and any dog so seized and impounded and not so redeemed shall after forty eight hours of the time of such seizure be destroyed.

VI. No person shall keep, harbour or have in his possession in the township a dog which is dangerous, or has attacked any person in any highway or other public place in the said township or has done damage to any person or property or which is in the habit of running after, barking at or attacking pedestrians, or persons riding on bicycles or a horse or horses which any person may be riding, driving or leading in any highway or other public place in the said township, and on complaint thereof being made to a Justice of the Peace such Justice of the Peace may, if satisfied that such complaint is substantiated and that such dog is dangerous or has attacked any person or horse, or has done damage to any person or property or is in the habit of doing damage or running after, barking at or attacking pedestrians or persons riding on bicycles or horses in the highway or other public places in the said township, order such person to destroy or remove the same out of the township within such time as the order may direct, and if such person shall neglect, or refuse to obey such order within the time in said order mentioned he shall be deemed guilty of an offence under the by-law.

VI. Any person convicted of a breach of any of the provisions of this by-law shall be subject to a fine not exceeding the sum of $25.00 for each offence exclusive of costs, and in default of payment of the said fine and costs the same may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender and in case of there being no chattels found out of which said fine can be levied the offender may be committed with or without hard labor to the common gaol of the County of Peterborough for any period not exceeding ten days unless said penalty and costs are sooner paid.

The treasurer was instructed to pay the following accounts:

W. H. Pearson, work on road, 1916, $18.60; J. W. Blewett, work on road, $9.01; A. Fairbairn, work on road, $5.00; J. R. Northey, work on road, $10.00; H. Pearson, work on road, $11.25; Fred Heard, work on road, $7.20.

The council adjourned to meet again as a Court of Revision of the assessment roll on Saturday, May 26th.

Are The Four Fruits Used in Making "Fruit-a-tives"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. Thus, it is manifestly unfair to say, "I won't take Fruit-a-tives because I have tried other remedies and they did me no good". On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. "Fruit-a-tives", is composed of the active principle of fruit and the greatest nerve tonic ever discovered. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

The funeral of the late James Carter was held on Monday afternoon, and was well attended. The late Mr. Carter was 70 years of age, and for the past few years had been a resident of New Ontario. His early days were spent in the vicinity of Hastings, where he was well and favorably known. Service was held in the Methodist Church, and was led by the pastor, Rev. Isaac Snell, assisted by Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. There remains to mourn his loss his widow, daughter, and brothers, who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in this their sore bereavement. Mr. John Carter, town, is a brother, and Mrs. McMillen a sister of the deceased.

A very representative gathering of the citizens was held in the Town Hall on Sunday evening to hold a memorial service in honor of the late Private Parker (whose parents reside here), who so nobly offered up his life in the cause of liberty and freedom. The meeting was led by Reeve Fowlds, who called on Rev. Mr. McKim, Rev. Fr. Bretherton, Rev. Isaac Snell and Rev. D. A. Thomson to address the people. Each of the above-named gentlemen spoke very feelingly to the parents and family of the deceased, bidding them be brave and to feel proud of their noble son, who had given his life's blood for a cause so great.

There passed away on Monday morning, at his home here Mr. Patrick Brennan, at an advanced age. The funeral took place Wednesday.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, the Rev. Isaac Snell officiating.

The quarterly board meeting was held on Monday afternoon, when the business of the conference year was reviewed and settled.

District meeting will be held in Campbellford, May 17th.

Lieut.-Col. Gillespie, of Kingston, was here on Wednesday to inspect the Hastings Cadet Corps.

The regular monthly meeting of the local chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Holland has moved her store furnishings to the south side of Front Street.

A number of our people attended the motor show in Peterboro recently.

Mr. Hartley Ennis who has been in connection with the Union Bank here, for the past two years, has been moved to Hillsboro, and left on Friday to take up his new duties. During his stay here he made a large circle of friends, who regret very much his removal, and who follow him with best wishes for a successful career.

Those who attended the patriotic concert given in Norwood on Friday night by a company of Keene amateurs report a good program.

Mrs. H. Dodd and family have moved their household effects to the house formerly occupied by them in the north part of the village.

Mrs. Martin and son have returned from an extended visit with her parents in Collingwood.

Rev. Mrs. McKim has purchased a new motor car.

ACTIVITIES AT Y.M.C.A.

We are requesting every friend of the association to support the Mothers' Club in their patriotic work by purchasing tickets for the concert on Friday evening, May 11. The ladies have been working for weeks running the knitting machine presented by the late J. W. Bennet, and are now in need of yarn to keep up the good work.

Every person who will attend the concert is assured of a good time, for the programme contains the names of Miss Telgman, violinist; Mrs. Widdis and Miss Gertrude Stevens, soloists; Miss Harvey and Master Johnstone recitations. Two special numbers by the members of the Y.W.C.A. will also be presented. All seats will be rush, and a good attendance is anticipated.

Every member of the Y.M.C.A. employed staff is getting the pace in vacant lot cultivation, an office schedule having been adopted to allow each employee three periods off each week for the production effort. The boys of the association are really as earnest in their vacant land cultivation as they have been in any feature of the "Y" work this season.

A Useful Holiday.

It would seem that the Toronto Board of Trade had hit upon a practical scheme in its plan to turn employes of factories and business houses into the harvest fields for three weeks next summer. The problem of getting enough help at just the right time is a serious one to farmers; even in ordinary times, and the solution offered in Toronto will no doubt be welcome, particularly as the Canadian Government has promised to assist in every way possible in the allotment and distribution of workers.

Arid and Semi-Arid.

The boundaries of arid and semi-arid United States roughly include two-fifths of its continental area, exclusive of Alaska.

A Rash Promise.

There is a man in Grand Mere who is going to be asked to go to the front. He is going to be asked to do so because of his own representation on his National Service card that he would do so if a certain condition was fulfilled. That condition was that Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster-General, should enlist. That condition has been fulfilled. Mr. Blondin is going to the front, accordingly the Grand Mere citizen is to be asked to carry out his promise and do likewise.

Flying in Peru.

The Peruvian Government has appropriated $25,000 a year for the next three years for the establishment and maintenance of a civil and military aviation school at Lima.

Story of a Spendthrift

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Jimmie Temple was the son of a very rich man and inherited at his father's death a large fortune. This was at the beginning of the nineteenth century, when $100,000 was considered a gigantic sum. But it was not too big for Jimmie to get away with in a few years. He spent it in every conceivable way. First and foremost, he was devoted to horses; second, he doted on dogs; third, he was fond of cards; fourth, he was always wanting to fight some one. Jimmie veered between these attractions as a weather cock swings between the four points of the compass. By the by, this reminds me that he was also given to cockfighting.

Well, after Jimmie had run through all his money he continued to spend on tick. This lasted till he heard the bailiffs were after him, when, in order to escape them, he enlisted in the cavalry and was sent to his regiment fighting Indians in a territory which is now called the middle west. This gave him one of his favorite amusements, for he was on a horse all the while. Occasionally there were races at the post, and he figured as a jockey.

There was no reason why Jimmie Temple should not have continued to serve indefinitely in the army, where he was very happy, for he secured a commission, except that he loved a girl in Baltimore. Miss Belle Ashurst was the daughter of a rich man, but his wealth didn't do her any good, so far as uniting her to Lieutenant Temple, for her father had no idea of permitting his daughter to marry such a scapegrace. But the lovers pined for each other, and Belle was continually writing Jim to come back, just as if he could go where he pleased.

So it was that in time Jim resigned, and when his resignation was accepted headed straight for Baltimore.

Naturally enough, Jim's creditors were on the lookout for him, and as soon as he appeared in Baltimore some of them got wind of the fact. Jim realized that if he was to enjoy the society of his girl he must keep out of limbo, so he went into hiding. He kept dark during the daytime and, like the animals of the forest, did his prowling at night. An attorney employed by his creditors discovered his lair, but dare not force an entrance, for this would render him liable to action for trespass.

This attorney—Markham was his name—having learned about Jim's idiosyncrasies, especially his fondness for horses, one morning sent a boy in the uniform of a jockey to ride a horse that was anything but a racer back and forth before the debtor's abode. It was not long before Jim threw up a window and called out: "Hi, you, there! Do you expect to win a race with that bundle of bones?" Markham, who was under the window, began to read Jim a summons, but he had not read half a dozen words before down came the sash.

This ruse having failed, Markham bethought himself of another. One bright morning he and a deputy brought a couple of cocks to a vacant lot beside Jim's hiding place and set them to fighting. The cocks were furnished with steel spurs, but a spur on one of the cocks was turned so that it was useless to the bird who wore it. Jim watched the fight from behind blinds, and when he saw one of the birds being slaughtered for the lack of a properly fixed spur it was too much for him. Throwing open the blinds, he called out: "What do you want to treat a cock that way for? Don't you see"—

He got no further. Some one on the ground beneath the window thrust a pole under the sash so that Jim could not lower it, and a voice began to read a legal document. Jim jumped out the window, knocked the paper out of the hands of the reader, sent the man who held the pole sprawling, in a jiffy was back through the window, and the sash came down.

One night when he was leaving Miss Ashurst's home he was accosted on the street by a gentleman, who said to him:

"My friend, I have been playing the bank at Watson's recently. I have invented a system by which I expect to break it. I am in love with a young lady whose father has informed me that if I ever enter a gambling house again it shall be all up between me and his daughter. Would you kindly consent to play for me tonight?"

The man gave Jim his system, and Jim was seized with a desire to see how it worked. He took $100 the man gave him and suffered himself to be conducted to Watson's. He had scarcely entered the well lighted rooms when he was bereft of his disguise and, being recognized, was forced to listen to the reading of a summons, for the door was locked behind him.

Jim spent a term in the debtors' prison, which was ended by the death of his girl's father. The day after the funeral Belle paid her lover's debts. He was released from the prison and appeared on the fashionable promenade of Baltimore with a beautiful buttonhole bouquet in his coat with not the shadow of a blush on his face. On the contrary, he appeared to be very proud of himself.

Not long after this he married Miss Ashurst. But before the wedding it was stipulated that he should limit his expenditures to an allowance. Home influence cured him of his spendthrift habits and he became a prominent citizen socially of Baltimore.

Wife of a Retired Chicago Lawyer Will Head Permanent Adjunct of the Democratic National Committee Was Also a Prominent Clubwoman.

For the first time in the history of American politics a woman's bureau is to be established as a permanent adjunct of the national committee of one of the big political parties.

MRS. GEORGE BASS.

On March 6 Mrs. George Bass of Chicago was selected by the Democratic national committee as chairman of the woman's bureau and will have her headquarters with the rest of the committee in Washington.

Mrs. Bass is the wife of a retired lawyer of Chicago. During the recent presidential campaign Democratic leaders accorded Mrs. Bass the lion's share of credit for having carried ten of the twelve suffrage states of the west and middle west for Mr. Wilson.

One of her devices was to have circulated throughout these states copies of the handsomest photograph obtainable of Mr. Wilson.

HORSE MARKET.

Toronto, May 10.—Buying of horses for the British Government has hardly gotten under way in Toronto yet, on account of the fact that farmers are busy seeding, and also by reason of the fact that horse buyers want to get an idea of the requirements of the British army before they make extensive purchases. There were four loads of about 100 horses inspected at the Union Yards Horse Exchange last week. Of this number there was a percentage that arrived in rather bad condition, and which will be inspected again later. The number accepted was 55, but in view of the conditions, the actual number of rejects would be more fairly placed at 25 than 45. While shipments are expected to be light this week, dealers expect that the inspectors will examine 100 horses a day within a couple of weeks.

The French have been buying at the Repository, but they have not been taking many horses. Peddlers, and delivery horses are being bought at prices ranging from $125 to $200.

While the commercial trade is dull just now, Manager W. H. Smith, of the Stock Yards, expects that this will pick up when the army buying becomes more active. The only class of shipping that is being encouraged is for army horses, the rejects will be sold for commercial purposes at weekly sales.

SAVING MONEY ON FATS FOR KITCHEN

Vegetable Fats Often Cheaper Than Animal Fats—How to Lessen the Butter Bill

The fats we most commonly use are either vegetable or animal in origin. In the vegetable fats we have olive oil, cottonseed oil, the oils from various nuts like the peanut and several commercial preparations like lard in appearance, but which are directly vegetable in origin. Of the animal fats, butter comes first, then lard, "drippings," and the much discussed product, oleomargarine. In no one place in the kitchen is there such a chance to economize as in careful handling of this and frying materials.

"Render" the Left-overs

The housewife who attempts to use all print butter in the cooking will run up a big bill and will not always give her family healthful foods. Many modern housekeepers seem too lazy to "render" various small quantities of fat and a shameful waste goes on of beef suet, pork trimmings thrown into the garbage. A better way to render small quantities of fat than the usual frying pan method is to put the kettle in a slow oven, which will render it just as perfectly without as much odor or unpleasantness. A good plan is to have four or five separate small cups to jars for each kind of fat to save and add to them whatever meat fats are left over.

Use Cottonseed Oil

Few housewives seem to like frying in a liquid fat like olive or cottonseed oil. But a good cottonseed oil or peanut oil makes the best of frying materials, and one generally far less expensive than lard or butter. Indeed, the dislike for a high grade of cottonseed oil must be overcome. It is not olive oil, but it is in itself a good oil and one which can find many uses in the kitchen.

Similarly many of the commercial vegetable products are more wholesome than lard and sell also at a lower price. It is only necessary for the housewife to look around a bit and find several good vegetable and animal oils and fats, which she generally overlooks. Because the ody demands more fat in winter does not mean the exclusive use of butter. It means saving fatty portions of meat, preserving thenby useful rendering, and a wider use of many of the lesser known vegetable and nut oils.

DO YOU KNOW THIS?

A few drops of ammonia in a cup of warm water, applied carefully, will remove spots from paintings and chromos.

To remove fruit stains from the hands wash in clear water, dry slightly and then hold them over a lighted match.

After having the hands in soapsuds wash them in vinegar to make them soft and white and prevent their chapping.

To keep nickel and silver ornaments right rub them with a woollen cloth saturated with spirits of ammonia

If the color has been taken out of silk by fruit stains, a little ammonia will usually restore it.

AFTER BRITISH CHARGE

Officers Must Poke Around For Buried Dug-outs

An English correspondent with the British armies writes: I saw an officer wandering among the shell heaps that constitute Beaumont Hamel. He was picking the earth with his cane, and occasionally lifted a clod or a shell case or a piece of planking, and looked solemnly underneath. You might have thought he was looking for bait. I asked him if he had lost something. "No," he replied, "but I am looking for something. What I want are dug-outs." He went on prodding the ground "What you look for," he explained, "is a hole, or any sign of timber sticking out of the mud."

"What's that by your foot?" he suddenly asked. He poked his stick at a cleft between two clumps of clay, no bigger than a walnut. As he worked his stick in it a clump became detached and fell into the bowels of the earth, leaving a jagged hole a foot in diameter.

"What ho! I think we've struck one," he said, as he poked down another clod. Then he tapped one side of the hole underground, and there came the unmistakable sound of solid timber. "Got one!" he said excitedly.

When the hole was cleared of clay and old shells and unexploded bombs and other litter, there lay revealed a fine dug-out. Its walls were lined with the stoutest timber. It had cubicles and a main passage many yards long—sleeping room and shelter for quite a number of men.

ELIMINATE WEEDS!

Robert Elsom, Weed Inspector, Gives Advice Re Weeds

As nearly all our cropped areas are more or less infested with weeds injurious to growing crops, it is absolutely necessary that some kind of cultivation be given that will destroy the young plants near the surface of the soil, thereby giving the various grains a chance to obtain a good start before the weeds get a chance to take control of the ground. Such cultivation can best be done by a broad shared cultivator, as it cuts the ground at a uniform depth and practically moves all the soil in which the young weed plants have begun to grow. It is also wise to use a good flat harrow, going, if possible, crosswise of the cultivating, thereby leveling the ground for the operation of the seeder. The leveling of the ground is one of the absolute necessities for an even crop, so that the seeder may deposit the seed at a uniform depth in the soil.

The disc drill of late years has almost entirely superseded the hoe drill, and while there is claimed for it a great many advantages, one point in favor of the hoe drill is that it very materially assists in the soil cultivation during the operation of seeding. However, this is only an opinion, and is not given in any way to dictate what kind is best. I am offering these suggestions not because I do not think the majority of our farmers are doing all they can to keep the weeds under control, but there are always some that need reminding of their duty, and others that are absolutely careless and negligent. These are the ones this letter has reference to. Every year there are quite a number of newcomers who are either renting or buying farms. They are wholly unacquainted with the nature of the weeds that may be in the land they have newly occupied, and it is with this thought, relative to these different classes, that I offer these suggestions. A word to the wise is sufficient. From The Canadian Horticulturist.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

UNION TO SAVE CANADA

View of Western Church and Social Service Leader

If organized effort is needed in the country, how much more in the city? asks J. S. Woodsworth of Winnipeg. In every line of activity, it is the key to success. How business men continue to support such unbusiness-like methods of church and social work as prevail remains a mystery. In the religious and charitable work of the down-town districts of our larger cities, we find chaos and inefficiency. Owing to the shifting of population the old church buildings are now in the heart of a semi-business district which, however, is more densely populated than ever before. The difficulty is that the present residents are "boarders," "labor people," "Old Country immigrants," and "foreigners."

Under such circumstances many of the churches sell their buildings to advantage and follow their members to the better residential districts. Others maintain a struggling existence—each with its faithful little band attempting to support a poorly-paid minister, who is breaking his heart trying to do the impossible. In the meantime the problems are steadily growing and becoming more menacing. Moral and political corruption are eating their way into the very heart of our civil life. Yet the church stands helpless. Social injustice goes unheeded; yet the church offers no leadership.

United organized effort would work wonders. It would prevent duplication and waste. It would increase efficiency and multiply results. Not only would the church present a united front to the forces of evil, it would be dominated by a new ideal. The very union would be the domination of a new ideal! No longer would it be "the community for the church," but rather "the church for the community."

The various denominations may have been admirably fitted to meet the needs of the countries which gave them birth, or the needs of an earlier day in this country. We submit that they do not adequately meet the needs of Canada to-day. The Church Union Movement is, at bottom, a reaching out toward an organization that will save Canada.

WHY FARMING ESSENTIAL

Despite Its Poor Profits This Industry Affects National Life

W. C. Good, B.A., of Paris, Ont., addressed the Empire Club of Toronto as a practical farmer and also a student of the economic problems underlying agriculture in Canada. He pointed out that agriculture is not merely an occupation which some individuals follow for profit, but it is a great national interest, determining in a dominant way the fortunes of this nation and the opportunities and character of our population; hence the improving of agriculture affects the status of Canada, its outlook and destiny. He made a comparison between agriculture and manufacturing as to profits, showing that if five per cent. were allowed on the capital investment of the farmers there would be a deficit in the year's operations of $110,000,000, the value of their annual product being estimated at 1,000 millions. The manufacturers had a surplus of $260,000,000 on their year's business in addition to the five per cent. on capital invested. Thus is revealed one of the chief reasons why boys leave the farm.

Yet agriculture is the most important industry which contributes to man's welfare, besides being the one which supplies leaders in all other lines of life; city life in a few years would become extinct without the constant stream from the country. The seed bed of the whole population is the rural life—including farming, lumbering and mining—because these occupations have a monopoly of fresh air and sunshine, and the farm affords the very best opportunity for an abundant supply of good food. In the life of the growing generation these [illegible] things are of supreme importance.

Cup Cake

Put 2-3 cup of butter and 2 cups of sugar into a bowl, and stir until well beaten, then add 1 cup of milk and 3½ cups of flour mixed and sifted with 4 teaspoons of baking powder and ¼ teaspoon of mace. Bake in individual tins. Cover with white or chocolate frosting.

Apple and Banana Salad

Slice bananas and roll in lemon juice and sugar, mix with an equal amount of sliced apples. Serve with boiled dressing or with mayonnaise dressing.

SOME GOOD SAUCES

Hot chocolate sauce is made in this way. Melt together a cupful of granulated sugar and three squares of chocolate. When completely melted—over hot water, of course—gradually add, stirring constantly, three-quarters of a cupful of hot water and boil carefully for about five minutes, until smooth and thick. Add a little vanilla and serve.

Whipping cream sauce is made by putting together the white of an egg, a cupful of cream, half a cupful of powdered sugar and vanilla or sherry to flavor. Beat all together to a foam and serve.

Marshmallow sauce is made by making a quarter of a pound of marshmallows in a double boiler with two tablespoonfuls of water and then adding a cupful of jelly or jam or thick chocolate syrup.

Orange sauce can be made by creaming together half a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar and a cupful of orange juice. If desired an orange can be diced and added.

Many evening gowns are shown in light colors and elaborately embroidered in spangles of vivid shades or irridescent colorings. Usually the foundation lining is in one tone to be found in the shading of the embroidery. In the gown illustrated the foundation is of rose metal cloth, this glistening through the folds of rich silver lace and apron tunic of spangle embroidery. The bodice is sleeveless, featuring rich beaded medallions and a draped basque of rose metal cloth.

KEROSENE TO CLEAN

Puts Shine on and is Good For the Hands

A spoonful of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water will make windows, window glasses and picture glasses look bright and clear, says cook. Use a small clean cloth, wring it dry, and rub it over the glass, after wiping down the framework with an oiled cloth. Then proceed to the next window and treat it in a similar way. After that go back to the first one and wipe it dry with a large, clean cloth.

Kerosene will clean your hands better than anything else after blacking the range. Pour a little in the water, wash your hands in it, then wash them in tepid water and finally with plenty of soap and a stiff nail brush, in hot water. Finish by rubbing the hands with lemon, rose water and glycerine.

Baked Eggs

Make a good luncheon dish. Butter a dish and lay on it [illegible] of cheese. Break in [illegible] eggs, add a half cupful of cream and a half cupful of grated cheese, seasoned with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake until brown.

An egg beater, also any vessel that contained raw egg or milk, should first be washed off with cold water.

REVENGE IS STRONG MOTIVE OF SERBIANS

Grim, Apparently Discouraged, Army Drives Fast—Each Man Has His Own Tragedy to Nurse

A correspondent with the Serbian army in the Balkans writes: Last night a flute was being played in camp. It was a queer sort of a flute—cut out of a corn stalk or some such thing—and the flute player was being accompanied by another soldier on a weird country fiddle. It had only a stick for body and a bridge and a single string. The combination was of minor strains, dolorous in this dark camp. The night was overcast and gloomy. In perhaps half a dozen of the tiny tents feeble candles flickered. A company of soldiers were breaking a night march on what in peace times would be the parade ground. Most of them were stretched at full length on the damp earth, their tired heads resting on their blanket rolls. Few talked. In passing one only heard the clink of cooking cans rattling against musket barrels as the men changed their positions.

Expect to Die For Homes

"A discouraged army," a stranger might have been pardoned for thinking. Just the contrary is the truth. It is a bitter army, a sad army, an army in which one rarely hears laughter or song. But it is my conviction that there never was a more savagely determined army in the field. These men are not fighting for sport, or because of a more or less nebulous [illegible] of patriotism, or because the [illegible] feel he "must do his bit," praiseworthy as those motives are. Each man is fighting for that little home across the hills in Serbia, and for a cherished personal vengeance. I do not [illegible] many of these men, in their heart of hearts, believes he will come out of the war alive. His aim is to do the most he can before he goes.

Their Sad Stories

"The Serbs go ahead too fast," is the comment one hears from the [illegible] of the other allies. "They take too many chances." That is a matter of opinion, and when one considers the ground the Serbs have gained in comparison with their total and their relative losses, my own belief is that the Serbs have a good defense for their apparent recklessness. Their spirit is readily accounted for. Almost every man with whom I have talked has his own story to tell. At the headquarters of the Second Army is a Croatian lieutenant who would be a notable artist if he had the chance. Some of his battle drawings are worthy of reproduction in any magazine.

The man who sits at my left at [illegible] was rich three years ago. He only knows that his father died in a concentration camp and that his home was pillaged and that his mother and two sisters were penniless a year ago. The grey haired lieutenant at yesterday's luncheon camp knows only that his wife was killed. It is by accident that these stories come out. The men never speak of them voluntarily. When they do speak it is without outward sign of emotion. One dimly comprehends of what they are thinking during their silences. No army was ever so grim of aspect as the Serbs.

KEEPING WELL GROOMED

Carelessness Spoils All Chances of Being Beautiful

Grooming, they say, counts for more than beauty to-day. Which is only partially true. Many a homely woman has saved her reputation for looks by appearing only when perfectly dressed—her hair beautifully coiffed, each strand just as it should be, her hat at the latest angle, her suit without a wrinkle, her gloves and boots perfect—and she has passed for a pretty woman. Beauty in out-of-date or soiled clothes has less chance than plainness well furnished.

There are few hopelessly plain women. Most are bad looking only because they're careless. It is within every woman's power to possess a good complexion, to arrange her hair to make it look thick, even if it isn't, to stand well, sit gracefully, walk easily. Don't "fall into your clothes." It's worth an extra five minutes to be sure you have fixed your blouse and fastened your skirt so they meet snugly and neatly, so your tie is well arranged and your hair done nicely.

A cheval glass is invaluable, it will show you where your dress does not hang right, will give you an impartial look at yourself from top to toe. And you should not be content with even a front view; you should take your hand mirror and revolve before the glass, studying yourself from all sides. And when you are sure you are as prettily dressed as possible, you are ready to meet your fellow citizens and to be sure of praise instead of criticism.

SHRAPNEL HIT HIM.

Pte. Mathison Had Close Call At Vimy Ridge.

Reeve Mathison, of Havelock, has received a letter from his son, Pte. Harold Mathison, wherein he relates the extent of his wounds received at Vimy Ridge on Easter Monday. His wounds were all caused by a shrapnel shell bursting behind him. One went through the muscles of his shoulder, two through his left leg above the knee, two through his right hip one through the muscles of his abdomen, and a piece of casing through his right foot and right hand. Harold's letter is very cheerful in tone and he says that he is fine and dandy except for the soreness of the wounds, and that he was sure lucky not to have any bones broken. He is in No. 1, Ward, War Hospital, North ampton, England.

Mrs. Troop reported for the Mission Band Work, and $1.00 was given over to the society. Letters of thanks were received. Mrs. Carlisle gave an interesting reading

FOR HONOR AND FOR HER.

Capt. H. J. Latimer, who is Chaplain to the Canadian soldiers on leave in London, has sent a copy of a poem composed by a New eZalander, and published by Lady Perley to the local papers for publication.

Somewhere a woman, thrusting fear away,
Faces the future bravely for your sake;
Toils on from dawn till dark; from day to day.
Fights back her tears, nor heeds the bitter ache;
She loves you, trusts you, breathes in prayer your name;
Soil not her faith in you by sin or shame.

Somewhere a woman—mother, sweetheart, wife,
Waits betwixt hopes and fears for your return.
Her kiss, her words, will cheer you in the strife.
When death itself comforts you grim and stern.
But let her imagine all your reverence claim,
When base temptations scorch you with their flame.

Somewhere a woman watches—thrilled with pride,
Shrined in her heart, you share a place with none.
She toils, she waits she prays, till side by side,
You stand together when the battle's done.
O keep for her dear sake a stainless name,
Bring back to her a manhood free from shame.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES

(By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.)

Lack of strength is about the first symptom of violation of the laws of health. There come nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped comes complete prostration. In this condition the sufferer is indifferent to all things—and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view.

It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from nerve exhaustion, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, a depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, wakeful nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable and restless, the why and wherefore of which they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to.

Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that (if the power of realizing is left him), when he becomes a hopeless victim to one of the many diseases which follow in its path.

Those suffering from nerve exhaustion or loss of energy as a result of overwork, mental worry or violation of nature's laws are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatments. Dr. Ward's office is located at 79 Niagara Square, Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always free of charge.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

My father died when I was twelve years old, leaving me a good property in the care of my uncle, John Brough. His name should have begun with a "G," for he was the gruffest spoken man I ever knew. I was sent to boarding school till I was seventeen and then to college. Upon graduating I received a letter from my guardian uncle to come to his house.

When I reached it, leaving the auto in which I arrived with my hand luggage, I saw looking at me through an upper window a young girl evidently about seventeen, the sweetest face I had ever seen. I was thrilled at the idea of being in a house with such a lovely creature, being of an age to be easily struck by a pretty girl.

On entering the house I saw another face, the antipodes of the first. It was that of my uncle. His face was square, his mouth curved down at the corners, his eyes set deep in his head and overhung by beetling brows.

"How old are you?" was his first remark to me.

"I will be twenty-two next September."

"By the term of your father's will you are to have $10,000 the day you are twenty-two years old; $20,000 the day you are twenty-five and the balance when you are thirty. In the matter of marriage, you can't take a wife of whom I do not approve. You may live in this house with me as long as you like, but I have a warning for you. I have a ward who has been left in my care by her father who was a bosom friend of mine. He left her a fortune with the provision that she should not inherit it if she married without my consent, and her father charged me to bring about, if possible, a marriage with a young man who is part owner in certain property which will fall to her. I care nothing about the wife you select except this girl. In her case it is hands off."

With the last words my uncle looked at me so savagely that I believed if I married his ward there would be infinite trouble. This gave me deep concern, for it struck me that the girl I had seen at the window was this same ward, by whom I was already stricken.

My uncle's bark proved worse than his bite—that is, on all subjects except my interfering with the plans laid down for his ward. Of course the forbidden fruit was altogether too tempting for me, and I soon learned that she had received a warning similar to mine, which had a like effect on her. But our guardian seemed singularly obtuse to the interest with which I and Edith Sterling inspired each other. At any rate, he made no effort to prevent our being much together. We drove, played tennis and rode on horseback together without a word of remonstrance from him. Edith and I talked over his action, or, rather, want of action, and came to the conclusion that since by the terms of our inheritances he held the whip hand of us he did not propose to interfere with our temporary relations. When the time for action came we would feel his power.

When September came and with it a legal age for me I received $10,000 of my estate. Nothing could have been more adverse to the plans laid down for me and Edith Sterling. The possession of this money brought with it an added temptation. I sounded Edith to learn if she would give up her fortune for me and this first payment of my patrimony, which, if I defied my guardian, was all I could hope for. She was not only willing, but eager to do so. I should not have permitted this, but I was young and deeply in love. Indeed, I felt guilty in having suggested such a thing, and found it difficult to look my uncle in the face. This feeling was enhanced from the fact that his harshness was all on the surface and was often used to render more effective certain bursts of humor.

Well, the inevitable result of putting two youngsters of opposite sex under the same roof forbidding them to love each other, followed. One morning I took Edith out to ride, and driving to a town across the border of the state we were married. I telegraphed my uncle of the fact, and awaited his reply. It was very short, simply, "Shall expect you for dinner." "Which means," I said to Edith, "if you, too, choose to give up wealth for love, it is no concern of his."

We reached my uncle's house half an hour before dinner. He was not at home, but expected soon. When he arrived he found us in the library waiting for him. He shook hands cordially with me and kissed Edith, then led the way into the dining room.

The moment we entered it both Edith and myself were astonished. It seemed to have been set for a wedding feast. A bottle of champagne was in a cooler beside my uncle's chair and as soon as we were served with food it was uncorked, and our glasses being filled my uncle raised his glass.

"To the folly of youth," he said. "Those who put you two under my management found one who, understanding these same follies, has been well able to carry out their designs. This marriage was planned for you long ago, and when I consented to be your guardian I consented only on condition that I should have my own way as to bringing you two together. Had I told you that you must marry, you would have turned your backs on each other. When I told you you should not marry, with the penalty of each losing a fortune, I drove you into each other's arms."

THE CANADIAN SURPLUS.

How Our People Have Responded to the National Call.

The sudden call to new duties in August, 1914, and the undertaking and performance of tasks that would have seemed to our people impossible of accomplishment before that call was heard, have made a new country out of Canada. This fact has been so evident, of late, that it has been the theme of much comment on both sides of the Atlantic. It seems like repetition to point to the testimony which supports the statement that Canada has made greater strides in the development of its energies and resources in the last two and a half years than it had made in the preceding two and a half decades.

In 1914 Canada was almost in a state of financial panic because its overseas creditors, who had helped with the building of its railroads, were calling in their old loans and refusing to make new ones. In 1914, Canada was unable to see what it could do, since the outside financial help it had always been receiving was now withheld. We stopped building railroads. We suspended all kinds of national, provincial, and municipal improvements. We stood still. Thousands of its workers were idle. A problem in every one of its industrial centres was, how to take care of the unemployed.

Then came the war, and with it a desire on the part of the Dominion to do its bit. But how? The Treasury statements were already showing deficits. Canada ventured, however, upon a loan, and was surprised by the ease with which it was raised. Since then the nation has floated two other loans. It has contributed liberally to the Imperial Treasury. It has spent money like water on the equipment of an army. It has gone on with development. Enterprise has been given a fresh impetus. Interest on municipal, provincial, and national indebtedness, meanwhile, has mounted to what once would have been a most alarming figure. Yet we have this statement from Ottawa:

"After paying off all current indebtedness, including interest on all war expenditures and all pensions, there will be $50,000,000 left in the Dominion Treasury on March 31, at the end of the fiscal year, to assist in paying off a portion of the capital expenditure incurred during the war. The year's revenues will amount to $230,000,000, $50,000,000 more than last year, and $100,000 more than for the first year of the war."

No doubt there will be many things to arouse wonder when peace returns, but not many of them will be more marvelous than the new birth, in war time, of the Dominion of Canada.

Broad throngs may be cut from other people's leather.

CHINA VOTES TO REMAIN NEUTRAL

GERMAN RESERVES PRESSED IN SERVICE ON AINSE FRONT

Military Resources of Enemy Are Being Exhausted to Meet the Steady Strain of the French Offensive---More Gains Today.

PARIS, May 11.—The official statement says: Yesterday evening we captured a strong German position in the region of Chevreux. Counter attacks with grenades were repulsed by our fire. A more vigorous attack directed by enemy against salient north-east of the Californie plateau was repulsed after a spirited engagement in the course of which enemy suffered serious losses. Artillery fighting was rather heavy last night on the front between Cerny and Hurtebise. Surprise attacks by the enemy northeast of Berry-au-bac in the sectors of the Navarin Farm and Auberive and south of the Ste. Marie Pass were checked easily. We took prisoners.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, May 11.—German submarines stopped the Norwegian steamers Tiger and Leikanger in Spanish territorial waters, escorted them beyond territorial limit, and sank them.

English airplanes bombarded Zeebruggee early Thursday morning.

CHINA REMAINS NEUTRAL.

PEKING, May 11.—After riotous session lasting throughout Thursday night the House of Representatives refused to pass a resolution declaring war on Germany.

TORPEDO BOAT WAS HIT.

AMSTERDAM, May 11.—A Flushing correspondent of the Telegraf says the German torpedo boat was badly hit in the battle between the British and German destroyers early Thursday morning.

GERMAN RESERVES IN ACTION.

PARIS, May 11.—The official summary operations on Aisne front says between May fourth and sixth, four fresh German divisions were observed. This was irrefutable proof of how rapidly these effectives are being used up. German losses in these three days exceeded all estimates.

Marcel Hutin, recognized as a well informed writer, says: "The number of submarines put out of action in the last few days has risen in a very satisfactory manner.

LITTLE DANGER OF STARVATION IN ENGLAND

ABUNDANCE NEXT YEAR.

Premier George Made Cheering Speech at Secret Session of Commons.

LONDON, May 11.—The official report of the secret session of the House of Commons issued last night, says that Winston Spencer Churchill opened the discussion and dealt with the general military situation, with special reference to the position in Russia, the development of the struggle on the Western front, the strength of the United States and the question arising out of the submarine attacks.

Premier Replies Fully.

"The Premier dealt seriatim and fully with the points Mr. Churchill raised. He commented upon the internal situation in Austria and the military position of Germans, in respect to her reserves, contrasting it unfavorably with our own. He cited opinions of the British and French military conferences in session as the results of the recent combined operations on the Western front.

"The premier then explained how it proposed to satisfy the War Office demands for further reserves and also gave figures of the British tonnage sunk month by month since last August, and gave an encouraging account of the methods adopted to meet the submarine attacks. He announced figures of the new tonnage which could and would be built during the next twelve months.

"Upon the food question, the Premier pointed out that with judicious economy in consumption and increased productivity in home supplies, there need be no alarm as to starvation, and that in 1918 we should be self-supporting. There appeared to him no necessity to restate the allies' war aims, which were well known and were the same as had been repeatedly stated during the last two years.

Former Premier Asquith, who followed Mr. Lloyd George, expressed his full agreement with the Premier, but depreciated the secrecy of the sitting, in which, he affirmed, hardly anything had been said which could not have been said openly. He concluded by inviting the Premier to publish to the country the greater part of his speech."

MOTHERS' DAY NEXT SUNDAY

Next Sunday will be Mothers' Day and will be commemorated by the wearing of a carnation in memory or in honor of our mothers. True, they should be honored every day in the year, but let next Sunday be a special day and let us create in our fair city an atmosphere of loving remembrance of those mothers who have gone from us, and honor for those who are still with us.

The Playgrounds Association will have for sale plenty of beautiful carnations. Their object is incidentally to help the Playgrounds, but primarily to establish Mothers' Day in Peterborough.

The flowers will be sold on Saturday from several centres and on the street. Orders may be left by 'phoning 551.

NIGHT CLASSES FOR THE SOLDIERS NOW OPENED

Work Was Started Last Night With a Score of Pupils in Prospect---Reading, Writing, Arithmetic and Spelling to be Taught.

Six bright and industrious young men who have seen actual service in the trenches and who now hold the proud position of honorably discharged soldiers, appeared at the old Collegiate Institute on Murray street last night. They came in response to the invitation that had been extended them on behalf of the Patriotic League, supported by the Board of Education, to attend night classes which it has been proposed to start for the benefit of the men who have served their country to the limit of their capacity overseas and who are now at home again. Those who were in attendance last night said that they knew of at least a dozen others who will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity to supplement their educational equipment.

Mr. M. J. Clarke, principal of the King Edward School, who has volunteered to conduct the classes, was present last night and arranged a program with his new pupils. It was decided to hold the sessions on Monday and Friday evenings of each week, these being the evenings when other engagements are not likely to conflict. The three R's will be given the preference in the curriculum, with spelling added. Work will probably begin with the third reader. When they are brushed up in these subjects the students will be able to fill more important and desirable positions than they held before they enlisted.

They were certainly a presentable and promising lot of students who attended last night, and the education of none of them has been entirely neglected. When they recorded their names they demonstrated the fact that every man among them is considerable of a penman, and all they really lack in this regard is a little more speed to enable them to hold down office positions.

One pleasing feature of the service for which they volunteered and in which every man of them has made some sacrifice is their ambition to better their condition in life. They are asking no favor of the public. If they do aspire to better positions they are anxious to qualify themselves for them.

The Board of Education will be asked to furnish the supplies required for use in these night classes.

GARBAGE COLLECTION IS NOW BIG PROBLEM WITH ALDERMEN

Contractor Graham Cannot Get Drivers and Work is at Standstill.

The city council will meet this evening at 8 o'clock for the transaction of general business.

The most important matter to be dealt with will be taking action to get the garbage of the city attended to. From one end of the city to the other enormous piles of rubbish are to be seen in front of the residences. The Sanitary Inspector is at a loss as to what action to take, as it seems an impossibility to get drivers for the wagons.

City Solicitor Gordon has prepared a bylaw dealing with the municipal coal and wood yard.

The agreement with the Quaker Oats Co. will be submitted to the aldermen for their approval. The company have approved of the draft as now made.

AUTOGRAPHS ON QUILT LIKE SO MANY LETTERS

Major Davidson Sends Letter of Thanks for Unique Remembrance.

NOVEL CITY DIRECTORY.

Compliments Artistic Work of Mrs. Hounsell, Who Designed Centrepiece.

Some time ago the members of the 57th Chapter, I. O. D. E., undertook the work of making an autograph quilt, at the same time raising money for their various patriotic operations. The sum of ten cents entitles the contributor to have his or her name inscribed on the quilt, the centrepiece of which was designed with true artistic taste by Mrs. R. T. Hounsell. In this way a fund of over $100 was raised. The quilt was completed, and there are over one hundred names upon it. It was originally designed for the personal use of Major J. C. Davidson in France, and it has reached its destination, as the following letter shows:

The Quilt Committee,
57th Chap., I. O. D. E.

Dear Mrs. Rush and Mrs. Merrill:

I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the beautiful quilt which arrived yesterday, following Mrs. Rush's kind letter a few days before. Nothing could more effectively remind me of Peterborough and our fellow citizens than this interesting collection of names so artistically arranged. It is quite a directory of the city. Mrs. Hounsell's skill as an artist shines forth in the centre panel. I did not know what I was expected to do with it, but feel that I would appreciate it more than anyone else. I put it on my own bed, at least for the present, and it is beside me as I write. I was most interested in going over the names yesterday. The annex of one of our wards (shell-shock) has its beds covered by Peterborough quilts, and one of the medical officers remarked the other day that they must have a good publicity committee in Peterborough. Please convey my warm thanks to the officers and members of the Chapter for this speaking reminder of you all, and particularly please accept my thanks yourselves for all the trouble you have taken with such good results.

Sincerely yours,
J. C. DAVIDSON.

GERMANS CLAIM AIR VICTORIES

BERLIN CLAIMS EIGHT ALLIES AIRPLANES WERE CAPTURED.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, May 11.—Mutual artillery firing of the greatest violence prevailed over the entire Arras front in France yesterday says the official statement issued today by the German headquarters staff. Eight British and French airplanes were brought down yesterday on the western front.

BRITISH ARE MAKING BITES INTO GERMAN DEFENCES AND ARE CREEPING NEARER LENS

Enemy's Strength, Especially in Artillery Constantly Increases and Use of Gas Shells is Prodigious---More Praise for Canadians

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 11.—The increase in strength of the enemy on this front, especially in artillery, continues. His use of gas shells is prodigal.

On one small area of trenches held by Canadians north of Arleux over five thousand gas shells fell and men holding the line were under the necessity of wearing their gas masks continuously. Despite these features continuous ground is gained. Yesterday morning in the region of the Wood of Swallows, south of the Souchez river an important sector of the enemy's trench was taken in a surprise attack from a point of vantage. The assaulting force attacked with grenades and bayonetts.

The enemy put up a strong resistance but the element of surprise placed him at a disadvantage. In very short time three hundred and fifty yards of his front line of trenches and support were in our hands. They have now been incorporated in our lines which by these bites into the German defence are creeping nearer Lens. A few prisoners were captured and from them it was learned that the Germans on this part of the front should have been relieved several days ago but were told they would be given no period of rest in billets till they recovered the trench taken from them early this week. Several spoke of our artillery fire as unendurable.

Canadians recently in action around Arleux and Fresnery were reviewed this morning by the Corps Commander who afterwards expressed his admiration for their disciplined valor and urged new comers in the ranks to remember that not by courage alone could battles be won. The wastage of the last few weeks is rapidly being made up by drafts.

THREE RAIDS REPULSED.

LONDON, May 11.—The official statement says: "Early last night the enemy attacked our position east of Arleux and south of Souchez River. He was repulsed in each case by our artillery and machine guns. At the latter point the enemy made another attack later in the night assisted by flame throwing machines. He was again driven off. We made a successful raid last night east of Ypres. There was artillery activity on both sides during the night at a number of points on the battle front.

GAIN ON MACEDONIAN FRONT.

LONDON, May 11.—On the Macedonian front, Wednesday night, after a heavy bombardment, the enemf attacked our new positions south-west of Krastali three miles south-west of Doiran town. He obtained a momentary footing on Goldies Hill which we hold as an advanced post on the front of the centre of this line and he was immediately driven off by our counter-attack. On Thursday a second attack was repulsed by us with loss. Our airplanes made four successful bombing raids and dropped large quantity of explosives on the enemy's dugouts, dumps nd transports.

AUSTRIAN SUBS SUNK.

NEW YORK, May 11.—A News Agency despatch from Washington says, thirteen Austrian submarines have been sunk in the Mediterranean in the past three weeks by Italian naval forces.

COSTLY ENCOUNTER FOR FOE.

LONDON, May 11.—The Reuter correspondent at the Front wires that last night the fighting was very costly for the Germans. It began with an attempt to force the British positions between Gavrelle and the Souchez river. British gunners opened fire on them and although they made an advance under their own barrage the attempt cost them dear and resulted in a complete surprise. South of the Souchez River two formidable attacks were launched. Liquid fire was employed and large bodies of infantry thrown in. Fierce fighting followed as the Germans came on with great determination but they finally fell back under a hail of shrapnel and did not attemnt to renew the attack. Early this morning Germans advanced on trench captured by the British Wednesday. The result of this attack was not known at the time the despatch was filed.

TURKS, TOO, ARE WORSTED.

PETROGRAD, May 11.—An official statement says that rifle fire and reconnoitering occurred in the Western and Roumanian front. On the Caucasian front in the region of Sakhkiz the Turks attempted to attack the Russian advanced position but were dispersed with loss.

SERBIANS WIN TRENCHES.

SALONIKI, May 11.—The Serbians have captured the enemy's advanced trenches in the neighborhood of Bohroholye on the Macedonian front with fifty-five prisoners.

An umbrella with a handle that clamps over the wrists like a bracelet has been invented for the benefit of women shoppers.

VICTORIES FOR ALLIED FORCES ON SERB FRONT

Capture Teutonic Trenches on Front Two Miles In Extent.

HOLD WHAT THEY TAKE.

Success of the British Troops Is Shared by the Serbs and Russians.

London, May 11.—Attacking on a front of about four miles in the Lake Doiran region of Macedonia, British troops on a front of two miles, and on the other flank advanced on a front of about a mile, which gain they were unable to hold, according to a British official communication.

The report, taken in conjunction with those issued from Paris and Berlin, indicate the resumption of an allied offensive on a wide front in the Macedonian theatre, Berlin's report claims the repulse of all allied attacks, and adds that the fighting surpassed in violence all other fighting on this front.

The British communication, which is dated Saloniki, says:

"After artillery preparation lasting several days our troops attacked the enemy's trenches from a point south-west of Lake Doiran from a point south-west of Lake Doiran on a left we captured the enemy's trench-front of about four miles. On the es on a front of two miles and advanced our line to an average depth of five hundred yards and consolidated our new position.

"On the right we captured the enemy's trenches between the lake and Petit Nouronne on a front of about a mila. The enemy, however, heavily counter-attacked our new position on this part of the front. After determined hand-to-hand fighting, in which our troops inflicted severe losses, they were forced back by superior numbers to their own trenches.

"Bombing raids by airplanes on enemy tents, sheds, dugouts and transports have caused much damage. One and a half tons of explosives were dropped with good effect."

PTE. ABOUD EZERIC OF THE 93RD KILLED IN ACTION

Pte. Cecil Kyle's Name Appears in List of Wounded Today.

There are not many names of Peterboro soldiers in to-day's casualty list. Two was the toll for the day as follows:—

PRIVATE EZRIC KILLED

In the list of casualties published to-day appears the name of Private Aboud Ezeric, of Peterboro, as having been killed in action. He enlisted with the 93rd and was transferred to another battalion after going to France.

PRIVATE KYLIE WOUNDED

Mr. Martin Kylie, 556 Rogers St., received word this morning from the record office that his son, Private J. Cecil Kylle had been admitted to No. 7 General Hospital, Stomer, on May 2nd, with a gunshot wound in the cheek. It is only a week since that his mother received a letter from him and at the date of writing he well.

MINISTERS ASKED TO AID PRODUCTION CAMPAIGN

Secretary Wearing Suggests That Every Pastor Preach a Sermon Encouraging the Movement.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, Secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Organization of Resources Committee, has sent the following circular, which explains itself, to every minister within a radius of fifty miles of this city.

Dear Sir: I have been instructed to write to every Minister in this district urging that a sermon be preached next Sunday (May 13) or the Sunday after, embracing the question of increased production. It is vital to the successful prosecution of the war and the welfare of the Empire that every possible acre be sown this year. Labor is scarce and the farmer is handicapped because of this difficulty. The problem can only be solved by a whole-hearted endeavour on the part of every man to do his full duty though it means long days and hard labor. The situation is so serious that only a wide-

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1917

HANGING A BOY.

THERE IS IN MANITOBA a boy, 16 years of age, living under the black shadow of the gallows. He has been sentenced to death for a double murder. He is a moral degenerate, according to the alienists, and as such is a menace to the community. The shortest and cheapest method of getting rid of him is to put him to death.

This boy was reared in the slums of London. His first glimpse of earthly things was a world of vice and sin. Another handicap was heredity, but the boy was not responsible for his ancestry or his environments. He came into this world as his Creator made him, lacking the endowments which enabled him to distinguish between right and wrong. In his estimation immorality was the normal attitude of humanity.

Taken up by philanthropists, the youth was brought to Canada, a premium probably paid for him, too. The change failed to work any betterment in his nature. He committed a crime, the very atrocity of which bespeaks the degenerate. And now the State takes his life, commits a deed only a trifle less barbarous than the one for which it demands expiation, and lacking the excuse that it has not been taught to take a more humane and merciful part.

Parliament has missed another opportunity to abolish capital punishment. The reproach to a civilized nation remains.

BRANCH ROADS NEEDED.

SIR WILLIAM MACKENZIE, in a Toronto interview, says the opinion that in Canada we have more miles of railway than is needed is not a correct one. In the West the people are clamoring for extensions and have been for two years.

Certainly the people in the West are clamoring for more railways, but it is for branch roads rather than trunk lines. Three transcontinental railways avail little when they leave thousands of farmers without anything like adequate transportation facilities.

The reckless railway construction in which the Laurier Government embarked was a good thing for two parties to the policy. For example, the building of the eastern lines preserved the political solidity of Quebec, and the promoters were given a fat chance to accumulate gigantic private fortunes, even if the roads themselves eventually went into bankruptcy.

HALF-HEARTED, INDEED.

> Sir Robert and his party are preparing for an election, and that soon, but the preparation is half-hearted and the outlook dark. They may get sympathy, but support promises to be waning.—London Advertiser.

HALF-HEARTED is right. The Premier and his party are concerning themselves just now with higher things than an election that, if it comes, will be thrust upon them. Better the heart which feels for the Empire than the one which fails to enthuse except at the prospect of partisan success.

ECONOMY IN PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

W. B. NORTHRUP, Conservative member of Parliament from East Hastings, is certainly a worker. At every session he introduces some measure of reform. Even if these are voted down by his fellow members, they serve to show the disposition of their sponsor and the tendency of the times.

Mr. Northrup has just introduced a bill, the aim of which is to secure a more economic administration of public affairs. A committee of five Conservatives and four Liberals is to be appointed to draw up a plan, and to make suggestions as to how expenses may be pared.

It has long been an open secret that the administrative machinery of Canada is costly. No private business conducted on the same system could possibly survive the first period of depression. It is the unlimited resources that it has at its command that alone saves Parliament from a receivership when the commercial life of the country shows signs of disarrangement. Hansard is an expensive record of a good deal of what might better have been left unsaid or unchronicled even if spoken. Usually the members of the House work short and easy hours and vote themselves frequent recesses. So long as there is no necessity of declaring a dividend at the end of the year, economy is something to be spoken of, not practised.

But Parliament is not to rush into economy. Changes are to be made slowly. The bi-partisan committee will require at least another year to consider the grave problems that have been referred to them. Then there will follow the inevitable majority and minority report, another dreary debate in the House, the adoption of the suggestions of the five as against those of the four members of the committee, and Parliament, true to its habit of running around in a circle, will find itself at the same old starting point again.

Parliament could work economy to some purpose if immediate steps were taken to amend the Constitution so as to reduce the number of representatives by about one-half. It is easy to compute the amount of public money that could be thus saved in a year by such a reform. Parliament as it exists today is a cumbersome and unwieldy body. Not more than half the members are anything more than mere voting machines. They are never heard from in debate, but perhaps that fact is in their favor rather than otherwise. Their most onerous duty is keeping their ears strained for the crack of the party whip. Occasionally a new and ambitious member, with really high ideals and unselfish purpose forces himself to the front, only to be promptly squelched by his colleagues.

But it is idle to hope for any immediate economy in Parliament by a reduction of the number of members or otherwise. The pork barrel will be preserved in its integrity. Few men would care to favor a measure that would tend to land them, more or less hard and dry, out of public office.

WHAT THEY HEAR.

THE LINDSAY WARDER says the Liberals have their ears to the ground. Probably. But what they hear is not an insistent demand for an election. It is the rumble of the conflict that is now raging around the village of Fresnoy, the outcome of which would be affected if Canada relaxed in its support of the soldiers to indulge in an unseemly scramble for office.

OUR REPUTATION ABROAD.

WHEN A MAN is placed on trial for his life in Peterborough County or elsewhere, in order to secure him an impartial hearing a judge from outside is sent here to weigh the evidence, and an attorney from some other place is selected to represent the people in the hearing. The prophet in his own country is still bereft of honor. A man's neighbors and associates are not regarded as unbiased judges of his conduct.

As with individuals, so with nations. Public men and governments are usually higher in the popular regard among the people of countries other than their own. Mr. Burton J. Hendrick, a leading American journalist, has this to say of Canada's efforts in the war:

> "But, properly to appreciate the magnitude of this effort, let us seek comparisons that will bring it nearer home. The continental population of the United States—exclusive of dependencies—is about thirteen times as large as that of Canada; if we, therefore, multiply all these items (figures of Canada's participation in the war) we shall have the magnitude of Canada's performance, measured in terms of our own capacity. That is, if we should do no more than Canada has done, we should enlist roughly 5,000,000 men, send overseas 3,-6,400,000, of whom 2,275,000 would have already seen service at the front. We should constantly keep in the firing line fifty-two divisions, or about 1,000,000 soldiers. Our casualties would have reached up to date 910,000, and nearly 200,000 Americans would have sacrificed their lives. Certainly, if the United States could show any such record as this we should probably think thta we had made a solid contribution to represent precisely what Canada has done."

Mr. Hendrick has no axe to grind. His opinion is unprejudiced because he is not on a sly hunt for votes when he discusses the subject. The most of us will accept his conclusions rather than those of the newspaper at home that never loses an opportunity to speak of its country and government in terms of reproach.

Mr. Hendrick in his article falls short in one particular. He might have added that in order to equal Canada's record the United States would also have to raise nearly twelve billion dollars for war purposes, Canada having voted nine hundred millions.

It is really too bad that there are slackers in Canada. It is a matter of further and infinite regret that there are in this country rail-fence politicians who place party above country and persist in misrepresenting their own people and government.

An American magazine recently cabled Lord Northcliffe asking him if he had any suggestions to make as to how the United States could do something worth while. The eminent journalist sent back word that the Americans could learn a great deal from the example of Canada.

Suppose the magazine in question had applied to our George Street neighbor for advice. We can easily imagine it venturing the opinion that the Government has done nothing for recruiting, even in the face of the fact that there are over four hundred thousand men under arms, and the cable every day burns with the story of Canadian valor and is freighted with the records of the names of dead and wounded.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. School Teacher Ejected from House in Indian Reservation

A very interesting trial took place at Chemong Village yesterday before Magistrate R. J. McCamus, of Keene.

It appears that Mrs. W. J. Haines the school teacher, had been notified by the Indian department that her services as school teacher would not be required after the 31st of March last, and giving the Haines family until the 2nd April to vacate the Mission House. They paid little attention to the order to vacate and remained in possession in spite of several requests to leave. Last Tuesday morning two constables were sent to demand the key of the house, and were refused and abused by both Mr. and Mrs. Haines. A warrant for arrest was then issued.

Magistrate McCamus remarked that Haines had cut some of the shade trees on the property, and he felt that the property was in danger as long as the Haines remained on it. Two men had been placed to guard the property from damage.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appeared for Mr. Haines, pleaded that the defendants be allowed to go upon paying the costs.

Magistrate McCamus stated that Haines left himself open to a severe fine for not vacating when notified. He accepted Mr. Gordon's plea and dismissed the case upon defendant paying all the costs, about $10.00, and leaving the reserve immediately.

Chief Dan Whetung was the complainant in the proceedings.

TRIALS BY JURY

To Be Avoided If Possible Owing To Shortage Of Labor

The Attorney General's department has addressed the following letter to the judges and Crown officers of the province:

"In view of the present labor conditions in the county, it is thought that where possible it would be advisable to avoid jury trials. The time of the Sessions being fixed by statute, there is, of course, no power to interfere directly with the holding of these courts, but it is thought that the judges of the different county and district courts might be able to arrange with the profession that no jury cases should be tried at the ensuing Sessions. It is the desire of the Attorney-General and the Government that, if in your power, you will arrange accordingly in your county."

THE CASE AT CHEMONG.

Editor Review:—

There has been drawn to my attention an untrue and misstated report sent in from Chemung of what purported to be a trial at the Mud Lake Reserve yesterday. The Methodist Missionary and his wife, who is a teacher, were asked by Chief Daniel Whetung when they intended to leave, and Indian Agent McCamus intimated that he would find this was notice to vacate and he issued warrants for the arrest of this woman and her husband, and sent an Indian from the Reserve to make the arrest.

If either of these parties had been arrested off the reserve the arrest would not have been legal, as the Indian Agent had no power to issue a warrant for an arrest outside the Reserve. At the trial the Indian Agent said no information was laid, but from his own observation and what he had heard he was satisfied as to the guilt of the parties. Although Mr. Haines and his wife were taking steps to move and had part of their stuff packed, proceedings were taken against them by the Indian Agent as trespassing on the Reserve.

Rather than stand the badgering and annoyance of these proceedings $10.00 was paid which it was represented by the Indian Agent that he had paid to two men to watch the premises.

There is another school teacher, who is a single man, boarding at the Whetung's home and the Mission House being vacant will prove very useful to the Whetung family when the American tourists come there, if the Indian Agent allows them to use it. Of course if the Indian Agent allows them to use this large Mission House this summer, it may indicate in some reason the anxiety on the part of some for the Mission House to be vacated.

AS TO A DOG CATCHER.

Editor Review: How does it happen that the aldermen have so far passed up another opportunity for patronage and failed to appoint an official dog catcher, to give effect to that canine bylaw recently passed? Has the supply of available candidates who are members of a certain denomination and closely associated with a particular church been exhausted?

Cannot the police add the oversight of dogs to their present duties? Nothing could be more edifying than the spectacle of a 200-pound member of the force making his way down George street at top speed and armed with a net, in hot pursuit of an unleashed and unmuzzled dog that had broken his parole. The exercise would be good for the constable, even if the dog escaped.

The police, I believe, are required to shoot mad dogs. I doubt their skill in marksmanship and fear that the innocent bystander is threatened with a new danger. Let the police be given target practice with the revolver. They could be taken to the country and lined up within speaking distance of a barn. When they had become sufficiently expert to avoid missing the side of the building they could train their weapons on the door.

ANOTHER FRIEND OF POOR OLD TRAY.

Editor Review Well worthy of note is the one feature of thriving Peterborough that needs no boosting to be ever before us and our visitors. That its burden is the accumulation of a long winter's deposit of equine and canine fecal matter, ashes and debris of every sort with the consequent danger to health and comfort, does not detract from the attention it merits.

Boosting committees might well address their efforts to the bettering of the surfaces of our streets to a depth of, say, one inch, before reaching out in other directions in an effort to induce others to come and join us in our discomfort.

City street dust, the ghost of inefficient civic administration, cannot be "laid" by resolutions and conversation.

Thanking you,

FOOD PROBLEM IN BELGIUM

While terrible stories of German vandalism come before our eyes in almost every printed page, "not one that I have read," says a leading British journalist, "has even approached the awful truth." And when he said this he had just returned from a trip through some of the territory long held by Germany. The particular result of this vandalism and of war in its general aspect that Montreal is studying at present is the two-meals a day ration of the Belgian children. In Courtrai city and district alone there are in round numbers forty-three thousand children starving on two meals a day. This is all that it has been possible to provide for them so far, and now Montreal has promised to become foster-mother to these children so that they may have a noon meal as well as breakfast and tea. I don't know what the breakfast and tea consists of, but on war-rations they are doubtless very poor meals. In our comfortable homes, with a good solid Canadian breakfast and "supper," who would like to have the care of a dinnerless child even for a few days? The long underfeeding of the "poor Belgimums" as a tiny friend of mine calls them, is resulting in tuberculosis and death among these little ones. One dollar a month will provide one meal a day for a Belgian child for that period of time. When we next feel inclined to be fussy about any curtailment of extras on our food list due to their price, let us remember the little "two-mealers" in Belgium.

Breakfast.

Broiled Ham.—Use slices of cold ham. Have them cut a little thicker than you would to serve cold, and broil over a quick fire. Spread with butter, pepper and salt and garnish with a few sprigs of parsley.

Oatmeal Cookies.—Melt a tablespoon of lard in a cup of warm water. When dissolved add two cups of oatmeal and half a teaspoon of soda. Roll out thin and bake in a rather slow oven.

Dinner.

Beet Mold. Boil five small beets. Skin and chill. Save a quarter of a cup of water in which they were boiled and, when cold, add three heaping teaspoons of cornstarch, five teaspoons of sugar, seasoning and half a cup of vinegar. Boil until thick, stirring all of the time and pour over the beet while hot. Turn into a wetted mold, and, when cold, turn out on lettuce and serfe with a mayonaise dressing.

Russian Apples—Pare large, sour apples and core them, fill with mince [illegible] bake in slow oven.

RHUBARB AND RAISIN JAM.

Three cups stewed rhubarb, three cups sugar, one cup seeded and chopped raisins. Juice one orange juice one lemon. Cook until thick in porcelain-lined kettle; pour in sterilized jelly glasses and seal in manner usual for jellies. Dates, figs, bananas, prunes, dried peaches or apricots may be used in place of raisins.

RAISIN PIE.

Boil one pound of raisins, one cup of molasses, one quart of water together for one hour. Then add one tablespoon of flour, a small piece of butter, spice to suit the taste, and bake with two crusts. This quantity makes three pies.

RHUBARB JELLY.

Use only the tender, unpeeled stalks of the rhubarb for jelly. Wash them, cut them in small pieces, and place them in a kettle over slow heat. Do not add water. Simmer the rhubarb slowly until it is perfectly soft, and then strain it through a jelly bag. Use from one-half to three-fourths as much sugar as juice; the degree of acidity determined the amount of sugar required. It is sometimes difficult to make rhubarb jelly of the proper consistency. All difficulty may be overcome, however, by combining rhubarb juice with certain other fruit juices. Some general proportions are as follows: One part sour apple juice, three parts rhubarb juice; or, one quart currant juice, six parts rhubarb juice; or one part red plum juice, one part sour apple juice, three parts rhubarb juice.

RHUBARB SAUCE.

Peel and cut up the rhubarb, and pack it as tightly as possible into a jar. Fill the jar to overflowing with a hot, heavy syrup made of twice as much sugar as water and cooked until the syrup forms a thread when dropped from a spoon. Adjust the rubber and the lid, but do not seal the jar. Sterilize the jar for fifteen minutes on a rack in a covered pan of boiling water. The water around the jar should come to within about one inch from the top of the jar. Seal the jar, remove it from the water, invert it on a cloth, and allow it to cool. Store it in a cool dark way. Rhubarb canned in this way makes good sauce or filling for pies.

NEW BOOKS AT LIBRARY

The following new books have just been received at the Public Library. They are the remaining volumes of the series entitled the "Chronicles of Canada," and can each and all be confidently recommended to the public as pleasant and profitable reading:

Days of Sir Wilfrid Laurier — Skelton.

Railway Builders—Skelton.

Fathers of Confederation—Colquhoun.

Cariboo Trail—Laut.

Winning of Popular Government—McMechan.

"Patriotes" of '37—DeCelles.

Father of British Columbia — Wood.

Acadian Exiles—Doughty.

Jesuit Missions—Marquis.

Fighting Governor—Colby.

Attention is also drawn to the fact that the Library is often in receipt of most interesting pamphlets supplied by the Overseas Club and also by the Board of Trade. The first-named are valuable as supplying entirely authentic information in regard to various aspects of the war and the latter as giving valuable data concerning the conditions of trade and commerce in various parts of the world.

The pamphlets regularly supplied to us by the Bureau of Education at Washington have a value, many of them, above and beyond that attached to them as educational factors in the teaching profession.

NO MORE STRIKES

The Chicago Federation of Labor at their last regular meeting decided to endorse President Samuel Gompers on no strikes in war time.

ORCHESTRA ALONE WORTH THE COST OF ADMISSION

Local Musician Compliments Musical Aggregation at Conservatory---Pinafore at Opera House Two Nights Next week.

The entire cast for the production of "Pinafore," which will be presented in the Grand Opera House Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, held a very successful rehearsal at the Conservatory of Music Wednesday night. A local musician, after listening to several numbers by the Conservatory Orchestra, declared that that feature of the entertainment in the opera house will alone be worth the price of admission. There will be about 25 pieces in the orchestra, and the music-loving public who have heard that organization may count on a richer treat than ever at the coming entertainment.

The members of the cast have been indefatigable in their practice for weeks, and all are now perfect in their various parts. No expense has been spared in preparation, and the results are apparent. The object of the entertainment—to raise funds for the 57th Band—is certainly a worthy one, and there should be no difficulty in filling the house both evenings. Local talent of the highest order will be heard, and the stage management will be in the hands of Mr. Stanley Adams, of the Canadian Academy, Toronto, a sufficient guarantee of perfect arrangement. Mr. Adams has been in Peterborough recently to drill the members of the cast, and was highly pleased with the showing made.

The 57th Band require no special mention. It is famous not only at home, but throughout the province as one of the most efficient musical organizations in Ontario, for which standard the work of Prof. R. Gordon is responsible. The band is now called on at patriotic functions, and the open-air concerts, so popular in the past, will soon be resumed. It is certainly entitled to the support of the public.

Final Dress Rehearsal.

The Conservatory orchestra will rehearse Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock, and the principal's and men's chorus at 9 o'clock. The final dress rehearsal will be held in the Grand opera house on Monday night at 7 o'clock sharp. Mr. Stanley Adams of the Canadian Academy, Toronto, who is superintending the stage management, will arrive in the city Monday morning and will remain until Thursday morning.

Rehearsals have been held each evening during the week, and a fine production of the old opera may be looked for. The box office will open tomorrow morning.

There may be nothing new under the sun, but there are always a lot of fresh people.

OVERSEAS TOBACCO FUND HAS BALANCE OF $412.86

Subscriptions Have Fallen off Owing to Failure of Recipients to Acknowledge Packages.

Treasurer H. Dearle, of the Overseas Tobacco Fund, has submitted the following report of the various amounts received and distributed.

Amount Collected, 1915...	$ 702.84
Amount Collected, 1916..	$1314.50
Amount Collected, 1917..	$ 699.53

We have a balance on hand of $412.86, part of which will be sent overseas this week, and the balance as soon as the necessary cards can be prepared to accompany the packages.

This amount represents 10,868 packages containing 543,400 cigarettes, 2174 lbs. of tobacco, with with papers, matches, etc., or sufficient smoking material to last an ordinary heavy smoker 208 years.

Assuming that we have 1000 Peterboro men in the trenches in the various services, we require to send them a package a week—$1000 a month—and we are not averaging $200.

All the main reason for the falling off of subscriptions seems to be the failure of the recipients of the packages to acknowledge the receipt of them on the card which is provided for this purpose. There are obviously many reasons why these cards are not returned, but these do not seem to be readily apparent to the average subscriber, who appears to consider that his own contribution should at any rate be acknowledged.

There also seems to be trouble in having packages delivered personally to individuals, and some subscriptions have been lost on this account. Letters have been received from men at the front that they have not received any tobacco although we know packages have been constantly addressed to them personally.

I have made these matters the subject of several letters to Mr. Evelyn Wrench, the secretary of the fund in London, England, and have also written several men at the front to ensure that so far as possible the cards are returned to the donors of the tobacco. No replies are yet to hand.

A display of the cards we have received to date might with advantage be made, or a space reserved in the papers for the reproduction of one each evening.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

A SMILE ALWAYS BEATS A FROWN

When you have to strain the eyes in order to make out what you are looking at, the face unconsciously wrinkles into a frown that is not pleasant to see. When Dr. Fowler fits you with a pair of his high-grade "PEBLO" Glasses, using the eyes becomes a pleasure, and smiles take the place of the frown, which is a great improvement.

GEORGE M'CLELLAND SELECTED

Will Represent Poultry Men At June Meeting in Guelph.

A meeting of the Poultry Association was held last night in the Labor Hall with President Fred Browne in the chair. Mr. George McClelland was the choice as representative to the meeting of the Poultry Confederation which is to be held two days in June at Guelph.

There was a nice showing of birds and the three sweepstake prizes were awarded as follows:

Best colored pair, Geo. Buller, Black Orpington.

Best colored pair, J. Kelly, Barred Rocks.

The third prize went to Mr. Tudhope for a young pair of artridge Rocks two months old. Birds at the next meeting will be all varieties of Leghorns and Bantams.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Sanol Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wide reputation.

These powders are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter Street.

Butter Wrappers

If you are in need of butter wrappers, printed or plain, leave your order with The Review, where you will find a supply of the regulation parchment paper. In printing, we use adhesive ink which will not blemish the butter, and give you designs which reflect credit on your dairy. Good butter is worthy of an appropriately printed covering. Give us a call, and see what we have to offer in this direction. You will not regret it.

Charged With Telling Fortunes

A local woman appeared before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning to answer to a charge of practiceng witchcraft, sorcery, fortune-telling, etc. Through her counsel, Mr. Gordon, she entered a plea of "Not guilty," and as the chief was not ready to proceed with the case an adjournment was granted till Thursday.

The spectators contained a number of women all anxious to hear the evidence.

MARMORA GIRL IS APPREHENDED SERIOUS CHARGE

Upon a warrant issued by Mr. J. B. Pearce, J.P., Norwood, Minnie Burns, of Marmora, was arrested on Sunday last and brought to Norwood and placed in the village lock-up. The charge against her was that of obtaining by misrepresentation a [illegible] letter from the Norwood Post Office addressed to Mrs. M. Arnold. She represented herself to be Mrs. Arnold and signed the book as Mrs. Arnold. It appears she had previously visited Norwood early in April and [illegible] the post office and inquired for mail for Mrs. Arnold. Miss Calder, who was in charge, told her there had been three registered letters to that address received but as they had not been called for within the usual period they had been returned to the Militia Dept. at Ottawa. The woman expressed disappointment and said the reason she had not called was that her child was sick. She said she had told her sister, Miss Burns, to call for her mail but that she had forgotten. She then wrote a letter and handed it to Miss Calder to address to the proper Dept. at Ottawa and at the same time requested her to let her know at Marmora if a letter came to her, adding "you can address your letter to Minnie Burns and she will give it to me."

Later an unregistered letter came addressed to Mrs. Arnold which Miss Calder forwarded to Marmora. This was followed soon after by a registered letter and on the 20th of April the woman called at the office here for it and signed as above stated. The letter contained a cheque from the Militia Dept., and this she took to Mr. Geo. Salome and asked him to cash it. It appears that on her previous visit to Norwood the woman called at Mr. Salome's store and told a pitiful tale and managed to borrow 75c from him, promising to send it to him when she got home. She told Salome she had been unable to send him the money but that if he would cash this cheque she would pay him. This he did, and the woman after making some purchases, took her departure.

It seems that this same woman called upon a number of Norwood citizens on one of her former visits and through the medium of a story of "hard luck" managed to borrow a few dollars. Among those who took pity on her were the Rev. Mr. Noble, the Anglican clergyman, who loaned her $2.00 and Rev. Irwin, Methodist minister, from whom she secured $1.00.

When arraigned before Magistrates Pearce and Squire she denied that she had ever been in the Norwood Post Office. Unfortunately for "Minnie," however, she was positively identified by Miss Calder, Rev. Mr. Noble, George Salome and other witnesses, and was remanded for trial before County Police Magistrate Langley on Monday next, the 14th inst.

FARMER'S WIFE ON PRODUCTION

"As far as I can see we'll produce only half what we did last year and I know we should double last year's crops."

The farmer's wife rested her hand lightly on a basket of eggs. She was beautiful with that infusion of intellectuality which adds nameless charm to physical grace.

"I've thought it all over, but I don't see how we can do otherwise. I've five girls, the oldest fifteen, and they're all at school, but baby. We can get no help. My husband's as badly off outdoors as I am in. The cold weather has kept seeding back, and it looks as if we'd have to plough under the fall wheat, and he declares he won't re-sow it, for seed grain is so hard to get, and so high-priced."

Killing Young Stock

Then the talk drifted to the slaughter of young animals.

"It's next to a crime," she said, now. "Only yesterday we killed a young heifer ourselves—she'd have been milking it in a few months. I said all I could, but the men don't seem to see things the way the women do. They kill because of the high price of beef, and then grumble because they pay a lot for a milch cow. It seems to me that there ought to be a law prohibiting the slaughter of young heifer calves. There's always money in butter and milk, with a certainty of beef later on."

"You say you need help if guaranteed help could be sent you would you take it?"

One waited a little anxiously her reply. It came from the husband standing near.

Dubious of Help

"They're more bother than they're worth," he said. "It's easier to make less work to do than to make more and pay somebody to help you do it." His vision of need for sacrifice was less clear than his wife's. She looked troubled.

"The girls—" she said hesitatingly. "Another girl put amongst them sometimes makes trouble."

"No, no, not a young girl like that," one interposed hurriedly, "but a woman who realized that it is as much her patriotic duty to help you wash dishes and cook and care for the children as it is the patriotic duty of you and your husband to raise more food this year than ever before. If we could find such women for you, would you welcome them? Women, you know, who would help you plant and care for a good-sized vegetable garden, too."

"I think, I know we would," said the calm-browed mother of five. "Perhaps the Women's Institutes can help us in working out the scheme."

And with that we parted, to meet again next week, hoping that each night report even a little progress made.

HANDY HELPS FOR GARDENERS

Before you get too busy with planting, cultivating, weeding and fighting plant enemies, get your labels and stakes ready. If you are ingenious you may plant these and make them quite ornamental. The sticks with birds and other figures at the tops are much liked by many persons.

For those who like a less conspicuous stake there is a good one no thicker than a pencil, but very strong. It is made of Japanese bamboo, dyed green, and may be had for fifty cents a hundred.

An excellent one is of special water proof iron, galvanized and japanned black so that it cannot rust, and will be very durable. The strong stem is eighteen inches long and pointed so that it goes into the ground easily. The top plate is of the same material as the stem and forms a frame for the celluloid card on which the name of the plant may be written with a soft pencil. This is protected by mica. Extra cards and mica covers can always be obtained These labels cost $3 a dozen.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE

That backyard gardener who says he has put forty dollars' worth of work into his patch and taken out ten dollars' worth of products is lost. He is betrayed by applying conventional business thought to an affair that should be as far from business as fishing for catfish is from making a real estate deal, says the Detroit Journal.

The least valuable thing that the amateur gardener gets out of his plot is vegetables. Infinitely more important is the exercise, the interest in growing things, the association with black soil, cutworms, mysterious fungus diseases and new forms of worry. The man who leaves a problem downtown and tackles another kind of problem back of the kitchen goes through a training in proportion. The man who flees from the irritation of competitors and tackles the competition of wet ground or neighbors' hens learns a fact of value to all men, that few thing are acquired without a struggle. "If in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread" is true, it is equally true that only through work and watchfulness shall you make a garden patch bring forth its increase.

Gardening is the thing, not the yield; clean, honest toil in the sweet open air, not the radishes and onions and tomatoes.

THE PRICE OF TEA

The cold miserable weather that is the lot of some parts of Canada at this late season offers us the consolation that at least we can do without our summer ice supply the longer. If the ice bill is to be as appalling this season as we are led to expect, every day taken off our ice supply is an economy, unless we happen to offset it by extra fuel used. A lack of ice, or what is the same thing, the impossibility of having any because of its price, is serious in the heated season more especially in crowded cities, so an attempt has been made here to obtain a lower rate for the very poor than that asked by the dealers. While of course the "very poor" are not usually able to buy ice at any price, nor do their uneconomically spent pennies buy more than enough food for immediate use to require ice to keep t, still there are charities that supply them where the need is great as in times of illness, and their work will be curtailed; the added expense to hospitals, too, will be considerable. So taken all round we are apparently going to learn this summer just what a valuable health commodity ice is. As householders and housekeepers we are getting things "rubbed in" pretty hard, are we not?

FOR BLIND SOLDIERS.

The Military Hospitals Commission has had placed at its disposal a patented automatic writing appliance for the blinded Canadian soldiers. It is the gift of its inventor, Miss Edith Ferguson Black, who now lives at Pasadena, Cal. The device was patented in 1897. It has been endorsed by the principal institutions for the blind in the United States. The object is is to enable the sightless man to write in a straight line across the page. Miss Black has forwarded to the Commission a sample of the article, and the fifteen jigs, dies and tools necessary to manufacture others.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

KING EDWARDS WON

An interesting game of baseball was played on King Edward School grounds yesterday afternoon between King Edward and Queen Mary Junior teams. King Edward won the game by the score of 16-10.

The batteries were, for Queen Mary, Turner and Davis, Reid and Conway, and for King Edward, Moore, Manley and Howden. Mendel Braund umpired satisfactorily.

CENTRALS, 14; KING EDWARD, 6.

The Centrals won from King George Juniors. Score:—

King George ....3101001— 6
Centrals ....250205 —14

Batteries—King George, Hagerman, Hay. Central, Stephens, McNabb.

Umpire, Mr. Thirnbeck.

WANT HOLIDAY GAME.

"Cap" Simpson is in receipt of a letter from A. E. Mahood, of Peterboro, representing a baseball team in that city. He is anxious to arrange a game in Lindsay on Victoria Day. Parties interested may see correspondence by calling on "Cap" Simpson.—The Post.

SCORE 14 TO 2.

On the Queen Mary grounds yesterday afternoon, the Queen Alexander team defeated the South Central team by a score of 14 to 2. The batteries were, Queen Alexandra, Gilchrist and Jordan; South Central, Fuller and Pettick. Mr. Reginald Cole umpired.

NORWOOD LACROSSE CLUB.

The Norwood Lacrosse Club has been formed and will enter a team in O. A. L. A. Junior series. Officers were elected as follows: President, Mr. M. H. Monroe; Vice-President, Mr. J. R. McKelvie; Sec.-Treas., Everett Finlay; Manager, Mr. Alex. Kempt.

When man has reached the point where he can see no good on this earth it is time for him to get off.

GROCERS TOOK 2; WEST ENDERS 1

Last night the Grocers took two out of three games from the West Ends, and thus are second in the league standing. In the first game the Grocers won out by a margin of 20 pins, but in the second the West Ends came back and won by 57 pins. In the last game the Grocers rolled a total of 920 pins, which is a record for the present league. Thompson was high man for the West Ends, having a total of 628 pins, which is also a record for the league. He also had high single of 256. Matthews for the West Ends had a 525 total, and Heard, Outram and Fitzpatrick for the Grocers all reached the 500 mark. Ross and Fitzpatrick for the Grocers and Heaslip for the West Ends made hard spares. The following are the scores:

GROCERS

Heard	178	150	207	535
Outram	158	131	219	508
Gillespie	160	137	173	470
Ross	152	191	158	501
Fitzpatrick	160	145	163	468
Totals	808	754	920	2482

WEST ENDS

Thomas	164	148	144	456
Matthews	173	192	160	525
Routley	151	139	151	441
Heaslip	135	125	164	424

NEWS OF THE DIAMOND

Omar, Unior j.

When Bill steps up the fans all yell
with joy;
He's got the name, the pitchers are his toy,
Now watch him swing, and—miss!
The same old tale.
You've got the name, but not the game, old boy.

Habits are generally not to be encouraged, but Walter Pipp should not be held back from his swatting habit. He's getting to be a regular home run fiend.

Maybe it was a draw that Jim Coffey, the Roscommon boy, fought with Carl Morris, but Jim deserves credit for standing up as he did under the hammer blows of the Oklahoma giant, who weighed more than 41 pounds heavier than the Irishman.

Jeff Smith, king of the middleweights! Jeff will have to look out for himself. There are lots of contenders around, and besides, kings don't last very long these stirring days.

Here's John McGraw trying to prove at this stage of the game that his Giants will carry of the pennant. Which reminds one of political claims two months before election day. Will you send a telegram of congratulation to the winner next October, Jawn?

There's a disappointment on the Pacific coast, particularly in Oakland over Allie O'Mara, former Robin. Ollie has had a slump in his fielding. He's like one of those patent lighting things that never work when you want to show it to your friends.

Grouchy Gus says: "Strikes me a lot of the talk about suspending baseball games during the war emanates from that section of the community which puts up a roar over having to pay war-tax on their passes."

There once was a young man named
Paul
Who took to the games, one and all.
His girl named Yvette,
But she doesn't know yet
What's a bat and what is a ball.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH"

Mayor Duffus and the members of the City Council are launching a Publicity Campaign in the interests of the Overhead Bridge Bylaw.

The aldermen in each ward will be in charge of the formation of the ward committees, and will call a ward meeting at an early date to arrange for the getting out of the vote.

The first meeting of the campaign will be held in East City tonight, when a meeting of the Ashburnham Municipal Association will be held to consider the bylaw. Aldermen Weir and Smith will be present with City Clerk Armstrong to explain the agreement to the ratepayers.

Mayor Duffus has postponed the Council meeting until nine o'clock so that the members can attend the Ashburnham meeting and also the address or the Electrification of Steam Railroads at the Oriental.

Mayor Duffus will also call a meeting of the Greater Peterborough Association at an early date next week.

OBITUARY

THOMAS LANCASTER

The funeral of the late Thomas Lancaster will be held from the family residence, 21 Water Street, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30.

MRS. PATRICK SULLIVAN

A very sad death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning, when Minnie Young, wife of Mr. Patrick Sullivan, of Ennismore, passed away. The deceased had only been ailing for about three weeks, and it was not thought that the sickness was likely to be fatal. Mrs. Sullivan was born in Ennismore, being the daughter of Reeve Young. She was 33 years of age, and was one of the most popular matrons of the township. In her husband's store her kindly disposition won her many friends who will join in extending their sympathy to the bereaved husband as well as the mother and father.

Surviving her are her husband and three small children, the mother and father, six sisters, Mrs. William Young and Mrs. Frank Cavanagh, of Ennismore; and Miss Annie, of Detroit; and the Misses Clara, Dean, and Monica, who live at home, as well as four brothers, Messrs. Frank, John, Cecil, and Michael Young, of Ennismore.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Sunday afternoon, to St. Martin's Church and Cemetery.

PRAYER SERVICE AT ARMY TEMPLE

CORDIAL INVITATION TO ALL TO ATTEND THE MEETINGS.

The week of prayer goes on apace at the Salvation Army. Special interest is evident everywhere, and new vigor is being enthused into every branch of the work.

Sunday will be a great day of continuous prayer and thanksgiving for the goodness and protection of Providence; also for the sorrowing and needy ones, both here and at the battle's front.

The Sunday program is the heaviest bill-of-fare ever attempted at the Temple. Starting at 7 in the morning it will be kept up every hour of the day and on into the night. The leaders for the different hours of the day will be as follows: 7-8.30 a.m., Adj. McElhiney; 8.30-9.30 a.m., Rec.-Sgt. Joseph Thomas; 9.30-11 a.m., Y.P.L.M., R. C. Braund and Assist. Y.P.L.M. Wilfred Boorman; 11-12.30 p.m., Adj. and Mrs. McElhiney; 12.30-2 p.m., Sgt.-Major T. Blunt, Sr.; 2-4 p.m., Sabbath School and Bible Classes; 4-5 pm., strangers cordially invited, Secretary J. Cunningham and Treasurer Wesley Boorman; 5-6 p.m., Bandmaster Smitt and the Temple Band Locals; 6-7 p.m., C. C. Guardian Mrs. T. Laing; 7-9.30 p.m., Adj. and Mrs. McElhiney.

Do you want prayer? Do you want to be prayed for? Have you anyone or anything to pray especially for? Come to any or all of these meetings on Sunday. Something is going to happen. Come.

THREE OTHER NATIONS KEEP OUT

MUNITIONS DEPOT IS BLOWN UP BY FRENCH

Heavy Bombardment is Kept up on German Positions.

PARIS, May 12.—The French official statement today says: "The enemy's artillery fire along the Chemin des Dames was less active last night, our batteries kept up a destructive bombardment of German organizations and caused the explosion of a munitions depot north east of Juvincourt. Patrol engagements occurred in region of Pantheon south of Pargny, and in Champagne in the wood west of Carnillet.

"On the left bank of the Meuse, (the Verdan front) there was violent artillery fighting all night in the region of the Avocourt Wood with no infantry actions. Our detachments penetrated the German lines north of Besovaux and at several points in Alsace, in the sector of Ammertz-Weiler we took a number of prisoners. On remainder of the front night passed in quiet."

HAS STATUS DEFINED.

PARIS, May 12.—President Poincare has signed a decree defining the status of the new post of the chief of the general staff to which General Petain has been appointed. General Petain is the delegate of the Minister of War for the study of all technical questions concerning military operations and for the direction of military services on French territory.

RUSSIAN WORKMEN AND SOLDIERS DECIDE TO HOLD ALOOF.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, May 12. — The executive committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates have decided by a vote of 25 to 22 not to participate in the formation of a coalition government. The question will be referred to a plenary meeting of the Council. It is understood that ministers of munitions, labor, and relief will be created in the coalition government.

AUSTRIANS ASKED TO HOLD ON TILL AFTER HARVEST

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, May 12. — An exhortation to the Austrian people to hold out until the new harvest gives relief is made by Emperor Charles in an autograph letter to Premier Clam Martinic of Austria, which is published in the Zeitung of Vienna. The Emperor writes:

"The third war winter, with all its hardships, is behind us, and though there are still many months before us until the growing seeds give us food, we may expect that spring will bring us relief. Until then we must hold on, and in this we shell doubtless be successful, though encountering reat hearships."

The Emperor praises his people for all that has been done, and appeals to them to continue to do their utmost for the welfare of the Empire.

ALL SHIP YARDS IN CANADA ARE BUSY TO LIMIT

Sir George E. Foster Makes an Important Announcement in Parliament.

TO MEET SUB MENACE.

Every Effort Is Being Made by Government to Replace Lost Vessels.

OTTAWA, May 12.—"I cannot go into particulars, but I can say that today every shipyard in the Dominion of Canada which is able to build ships and is equipped therefor has not only the opportunity, but has the actual contracts for building every ship and every vessel it can turn out, and that today the building of vessels in this country for the specific purpose of warding off and fighting the submarine peril is being carried on in all this shipyards in this country. And in regard to the building of wooden ships, an arrangement has been completed and is being carried out whereby anybody or any company that can undertake to build wooden ships and complete them within a certain time will get an opportunity over and above the cost of building the ships they will have a reasonable profit guaranteed to them."

This was the emphatic statement made to Parliament by Sir George Foster, Acting Prime Minister, in the

CANON CORNISH PRESENTED WITH $200 AND DESK WATCH

Congregation, Young and Old, All Sympathetically and Practically Unite in Appreciation of Their Minister and Friend.

St. John's Church Sunday School was crowded last evening, when members of the congregation, Sunday School and Bible Class gathered together to demonstrate their unstinted appreciation of the Rev. Canon Cornish and Mrs. Cornish, on the eve of their return to their old field of Christian labor in Yorkton, Saskatchewan.

In March, 1916, Canon Carnish accepted the call to spend twelve months in charge of St. John's parish, in relief of Canon Davidson, the incumbent, who was under orders for the front as chaplain major of the 93rd Battalion. And although great pressure has been brought to bear upon the Bishop of Toronto and his Lordship of Saskatchewan to arrange for Canon Cornish's retention here until Canon Davidson's return, unfortunately for Peterborough and to the gain of Yorkton, the prior claims of the departing lady and gentleman's old home cannot be denied. Hence Canon Cornish will preach his farewell sermons next Sunday, and, with his estimable lady, leave for Saskatchewan on Tuesday. During their stay in Peterborough these exemplary visitors have by their gentle, Christian spirit, lovable disposition and whole-heatred application to the duties of St. John's parish won the fullest measure of esteem and respect. They have made a host of friends, and their departure is regretted by both the church and the community in general. The spiritual and temporal interests of St. John's parish have been considerably enhanced by Rev. Canon Cornish's ministrations and the temporary citizenship of he and Mrs. Cornish has been of influential and tie-binding effect.

Presentations.

It is pleasing to note that the appreciation of Canon and Mrs. Cornish's sojourn here, by St. John's congregation, was of a substantial as well as a sympathetic nature. On behalf of the congregation, the people's warden, Dr. W. T. Halloway, presented the reverend gentleman with a very serviceable folder wallet, containing $200; on behalf of the Sunday School, Superintendent W. R. Scadding tendered an elaborate desk watch; and Miss Margaret English, superintendent of the Primary School, presented to Mrs. Cornish a beautiful and costly bouquet of flowers, in the name of the little folks.

The Tie That Binds.

The Rector's Warden, Mr. W. F. Johnston made a very acceptable chairman of the proceedings; and prepared the presentations in a brief but appreciative address, in the course of which he touchingly referred to the unqualified esteem and affection in which Canon and Mrs. Canon and Mrs. Cornish are held by the men and women and boys and girls of St. John's Church. He wished them both God's speed and continued success in their old parish again.

The people's warden, Dr. Holloway, also expressed his warmest appreciation of the reverend gentleman's work for St. John's and exceedingly regretted his departure.

Superintendent Scadding tendered the Sunday School's affectionate regards, and assured the Canon that the scholars and teachers had sung his praises every Sabbath.

At this juncture, the gathering rose and sang with heart and voice, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Canon Cornish's Reply.

On behalf of Mrs. Cornish and himself, Canon Cornish regretted that on this occasion, although accustomed to public speaking, he could not fittingly express his warm appreciation. During nearly fourteen months' ministration he had discovered many warm and loving hearts belonging in the congregation of St. John's Church. He was leaving people whom he had learned to love very deeply indeed, and his association with them would always remain one of intense joy and satisfaction. He came a stranger from the far west and found a congregation far from cold or distant, and this had made him realize that he was a friend as well as pastor. "I shall," he said, "go back to my old parish feeling that I am leaving in Peterborough a large number of very warm friends. It is impossible to express my deep sense of gratitude for the great measure of kindness you have showered upon me, and I cannot believe I can have possibly deserved all that has so generously been said of and done for me. St. John's is a lovely parish, full of lovely people, among whom it has always been a real pleasure to work because of the warm heartedness I found on every hand. In looking back over my thirteen months' happy residence here I find that there has not been one cloudy day, and that my connection with you has been that of a friend as well as a clergyman. On behalf of Mrs. Cornish and myself, please accept my assurance that you have made this portion of our lives one of unbounded joy and happiness which we can never forget. And in conclusion, I can only say, God bless you all, may God richly reward you for your kindness to us both; and God prosper you in your future lives. We shall always be your friends and, with you, fortified brothers and sisters in that great Communion of Saints to which you and I belong."

"Blessed be the Tie that Binds," was here heartily sung by all.

The Program.

The Sunday School entertained the congregation with a very pleasing programme, consisting of lantern slides showing "How British pluck won through at Mons," agreeably punctuated with concert numbers.

Greater and more hearty and sympathetic co-operation on the part of both young and old has never yet been in evidence in St. John's. In fact the function, may be classed as an agreeably varied innovation, tinged only by regret at the coming loss of a broad-minded and warm-heatred Anglican minister and friend.

LETTER CARRIERS TO GET AN INCREASE IN WAGES

New Scale to Date From April 1—Trent Canal Employes and Those of Inland Revenue Included.

The letter carrier, the employes of the Trent Canal and all those in the outside civil service will be given a raise of salary at once owing to the high cost of living. According to Finance Minister White provision will be made in the supplementary estimates. These ordinarily are brought down towards the end of the session. The extent of the increase is not yet known, but whatever it is will be retroactive to April 1st, the beginning of the fiscal year, or longer. In the inside service the maximum salaries of lower grades are to be raised $100 and those who have been at the maximum of their class for several years will be paid the extra amount they would have received had the new scale been in operation. Possibly the action in regard to the outside service will be similar.

TWENTY-TWO KILLED IN ACTION, EIGHT DIE OF WOUNDS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, May 12.—There were 29 names in the noon casualty list today. Twenty two were killed in action and eight died of wounds.

No local casualties were reported so far as heard from.

THE LATE PTE. COONES.

The following letter has been received at Lakehurst by the family of the late Pte. Coones, who was killed in action in March:

France, March 11, 1917.

Dear Miss Coones:

By the time you receive this you will have received the sad news that your brother George was killed in action on March 5th. I was his platoon officer and thought you might like to have a few lines from me. He was one of the most popular boys in the platoon and always ready to do his share, and his loss will be felt by all. Five of my boys were killed by the same shell, including my sergeant, and of course I have been greatly cut up about it.

Your brother is buried in a very pretty little military cemetery near here. I am not allowed to give you the location in a letter, but if you were to write to the Canadian Pay Record Office in England they would give it to you. The French people around here put flowers on the graves very often, and you may be sure your brother will not be forgotten by his comrades.

I am enclosing this with a letter written before he was killed

Please express my sympathy and feeling of loss to all your family, and believe me,

Yours sincerely,
R. H. BROWN.

LIEUT. STOCK IN HOSPITAL.

Mr. Harry Stock received a cablegram from a relative in England yesterday stating that Lieut. Percy Stock had arrived there and was in a hospital seriously, but not dangerously, wounded in three places and that the patient was doing well. This will be good news for the many friends of the popular lieutenant.

LONDON, May 12. — The Daily Telegraph's Parliament lobby correspondent says that owing to the unfavorable turn in Irish affairs several members of the Nationalist party are threatening to resign their seats in the House of Commons.

Heavy and Continuous Gunfire Heard at Holland Town Gives Rise to Exciting Rumor---Reports From British Front Today Tell of New Successes.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, May 12.—Flashes of lightning calling attention to another aerial attack on Zeebrugge were observed between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, a Reuter despatch from Flushing, Holland, reports. Later on heavy and continuous gunfire was heard from the west. It is believed a naval engagement was in progress.

The German admiralty announces that a British destroyer was sunk in the engagement on May 10th between German light forces and British cruisers and destroyers. The announcement says the British Admiralty already has asserted that it has disclosed the facts in connection with the engagement.

TOOK HUNDREDS OF PRISONERS.

LONDON, May 12. — Today's British official statement reads: "Very successful operations were undertaken by our troops last night and early this morning. Attacks were delivered on the Hindenburg line in the neighborhood of Bullecourt, also astride the Arras-Cambrai road and to the north of the Scarpe River. We gained our objectives at all points and have taken some hundreds of prisoners."

TURKS PRESSED BACK.

LONDON, May 12. — "Since May 2nd no events of importance have occurred in Mesopotamia," says an official statement issued today. "Our mobile columns operating in the basins of the Shatt el Adhem and Diala Rivers have pressed the enemy back into the Jebel-Hamrin range, which runs in a northwesterly and southeasterly direction some sixty to eighty miles from Bagdad."

THREE MORE FOR NEUTRALITY.

STOCKHOLM, May 12. — An official announcement in regard to the result of a three days' conference by Swedish, Danish and Norwegian ministers says the conference determined unanimously that the three countries should maintain a policy of impartial neutrality.

SUCCESSES IN MACEDONIA.

LONDON, May 12. — Serbian troops have won further successes in the operations now in progress on the Macedonian front, capturing and holding against counter-attacks several trenches in the region of Dobropolye, says today's official report.

After a period of inactivity, the British force, which has invaded Palestine, is becoming more active, the British war office announces.

DENY STORY FROM BERLIN.

LONDON, May 12. — The British Admiralty today made the following announcement: In reference to the German official statement that a British war vessel was sunk during the recent naval engagement, the British Admiralty stated the facts in regard to the engagement May 10, and they are not altered by Germany's attempt to distort them in order to explain the precipitate flight of their ships before a numerically inferior British force.

WARN WORKERS NOT TO STRIKE IN WAR TIME

British Government Tells Idle Engineers They Must Resume Work.

MUNITIONS ARE NEEDED

Stoppage of Labor Cannot Be Tolerated When Success Depends On It.

LONDON, May 12.—The government has issued a grave warning to munition workers saying that it cannot permit strikes to continue and aggravate the delay in the production of munitions.

All loyal citizens, therefore, are called upon to resume work immediately, and the government gives notice that all persons inciting to the stoppage of work on munitions are liable under the defence of the realm act, to conviction for an offence entailing the penalty of live servitude or less punishment, as may be awarded.

The notice, embodying the warning, has been posted in all affected centres and explains the stoppage of work, which it says was clearly unauthorized by the trade unions, and occurred at a time when, in view of the present offensive on all fronts, there is greater need for munitions than at any previous time.

War Party Have Won Over Socialists to Their Way of Thinking.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

COPENHAGEN, May 12. — Germania, the organ of the Clerical party, indicates that Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg does not intend to make a statement with regard to peace terms before the Reichstag. The Chancellor has evidently won over the Centriste and part of the National Liberal delegation to his view that a discussion of peace terms at the present time is inadvisable. In view of the general attitude of Philip Scheidemann and other majority Socialist leaders, it would not be surprising if the Socialists also abandoned their intention of forcing a peace debate. The result of the proposed interpellations is very probable to be a controversy between the opponents and supporters of the Chancellor rather than a debate on peace possibilities. The Conservatives are daily growing more desperate as the work of the constitutional revision committee proceeds without any intervention from the government to dam the wave of reform which threatens the political influence of the junkers.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1917

SIR SAM HUGHES' CHARGES.

WHEN SIR SAM HUGHES was renominated at the convention in Lindsay recently he made a notable speech to his constituents explaining just why it came that he was asked to resign as a member of the Cabinet. Sir Sam had had that address under his hat for a long time, and had promised something of the kind to his neighbors ever since his resignation. He went further than he did when he made a statement in Parliament. People will naturally wonder why he did not make on the floor of the House, where be was face to face with those who figured in his nomination speech, the charges that have attracted so much attention from the Liberal press.

The members of the Opposition who assailed Sir Sam with partisan and unwarranted bitterness when he was in power, are now disposed to hail him as a martyr, and are attempting to make of him a political proselyte. They have added his Lindsay speech to their stock of campaign thunder. The other day it was brought up in the House by D. D. Mackenzie of Cape Breton. What is made to appears as a serious charge was brought against Sir Robert Borden, who is now in England. When he returns there is no doubt of his ability to clear up the situation.

One of the statements made by Sir Sam Hughes and relayed in the House by the Opposition is that more than a year ago the Government, and especially Premier Borden, had interfered to stop recruiting. That is a serious statement when considered alone.

If The Examiner, which makes much of what is now referred to as the Hughes charges, will take the trouble to look up its files of over a year ago it will find that the Imperial authorities were calling for munitions rather than for men. That was the period when preparations were being made for the memorable drive that began on July 1 last. The British army was up to the required strength. All that wis lacking was munitions, and urgent appeals were made daily to the manufacturers, in Canada and elsewhere, to speed up their operations. The man making shells was hailed as doing his bit for the Empire just as much as was the soldier in the trenches. The Examiner did its full share, too, in promulgating this somewhat new creed.

There is nothing to be wondered at, there is certainly nothing criminal in a suggestion from high quarters, even from Premier Borden himself, that for the time being the resources of the country be devoted to the making of munitions, the necessity for which was so urgent, rather than to the raising of recruits. If Sir Robert Borden did make any suggestion of the kind, he was simply acting in accordance with the clearly expressed wishes of those in the British war office. Sir Sam Hughes' charge—or insinuation—accordingly falls flat.

The most serious charge made by Sir Sam Hughes was that the Ross Rifle was discarded by the Government and its agencies, not because there was anything wrong with the rifle, but because of the malign influences of "German gold"—thus insinuating that his colleagues and others in authority accepted bribes from the enemy.

The statement is characteristic of its author. It is too flimsy and ridiculous to merit serious attention. The Ross rifle was condemned, not by anyone in Canada, but by the experts in Europe. German gold may have been employed to debase and mislead some Britishers, but it is a safe conjecture that none of it was wasted to secure the disuse of a weapon which Canadian soldiers themselves declared unsatisfactory as compared with the rifles in use in the British army. Whatever the Ross rifle may have been in target practice, it was the test in actual warfare that decided its fate.

Sir Sam Hughes is especially hard upon Sir Thomas White, whom he charges with undue interference in the affairs of the Militia Department. It is easy to imagine that when the war broke out Sir Sam attempted to carry everything with a high hand and that he insisted upon being supreme in his own line.

The task which confronted Sir Thomas White in August, 1914, was as stupendous as that which fell upon the shoulders of Sir Sam Hughes himself. The latter raised an army, the Finance Minister had to find money to meet the new and tremendous outlay required. There should have been co-operation between the heads of the then most important departments of the Government. Sir Thomas White would have consulted with his colleague, but it would only have been characteristic of the latter to resent anything like a suggestion from any source whatever.

Sir Sam Hughes' administration has been criticized by his own party papers. It is hard to believe that these papers were influenced by German or any other kind of gold.

The public have faith in the integrity of the ex-Minister of Militia and appreciate the indefatigable energy with which he discharged his public duties. They are not insensible, either, to his defects of disposition. As stated in these columns only the other day with reference to a local incident of a somewhat parallel nature, excessive official zeal has proved the undoing of more public men than a lack of efficiency itself.

TORONTO'S PENNY BANKS.

THE SCHOOL BANKS that certain enthusiasts would have thrust upon the education system in Peterborough are not working out satisfactorily in Toronto, where they have been on trial for years. Some new business method must be devised if the system is to survive. The cost of collection is ten per cent. of the amount of deposits, and no financial institution can continue on such a basis. Nor is this expense the only objection. The banking interferes with the regular work of the schools and imposes additional burdens upon the already overworked teachers.

It is now proposed to remodel the system in the interests of economy and to so arrange the plan of operation that there will be no suspension of regular school duties while the children are depositing their pennies. The probability is that after another experiment along new lines the school bank will go to the discard along with so many other educational fads.

There is some excuse for penny banks in the rural schools. They are certainly an unnecessary adjunct in the cities, where there are savings banks in every business block in the downtown district. It is fortunate for the pupils, for the teachers and for the taxpayers of Peterborough that the Board of Education was not stampeded into introducing a fad for the glory of any individual or newspaper.

THE GARBAGE MUDDLE.

THE ALDERMEN were certainly up against it for fair when the work of collecting the city garbage came to a sudden stop owing to the inability of Contractor Graham to get drivers for his wagons. His excuse was valid, as everyone who knows anything about the labor market must admit. Men could be obtained at a higher rate of wages, but the contract price would not stand the unexpected expense.

Two courses were left the aldermen. They could have allowed the contract to lapse and come on Mr. Graham's bondsman for damages, then have the work done under civic management.

The city would have met with the very same condition as Mr. Graham himself if it had been decided to take up this work. The municipality can seldom do anything that does not respond to individual effort. Men are scarce, no matter in what quarter the demand for their services may arise.

The other alternative—the one eventually accepted—was to give Mr. Graham the $500 extra which he asked for, this to be expended in raising his scale of wages. It may be a dangerous precedent to establish, this raising the price to a contractor after the agreement has been signed, sealed and delivered, but if an exception is justified in any case it is certainly so in a matter in which the health of the city is involved. If an epidemic of disease broke out, the $500 bonus allowed the contractor would not go far in defraying the cost that would be thrust upon the city.

The aldermen wisely attached a string to the bonus. It is not to be paid until the contract has been completed and the work has been performed to the satisfaction of the city fathers. At all events the accumulated garbage is to be removed at once, and that is what will chiefly interest the citizens for the immediate present at least.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Three Surprises.

(Toronto Star.)

Three big surprises of the war have been the German siege guns, the French 75's, and Britain's power to transform unreadiness into action. Britain's army is even more wonderful than Britain's tanks.

Sir Oliver Lodge Pleads for Greater Food Production

LONDON, May 12.—Sir Oliver Lodge, the eminent scientist, in an appeal for greater state aid for scientific research, declares his belief that England can grow all the food necesary for feeding her people, if proper scientific methods are employed. He says:—

"People state that the area of the British Isles is too small to feed the inhabitants. The effort has never been made. The area is certainly inadequate if in the twentieth century we use the methods of the twelfth. But it must be known that of late years discoveries of the utmost importance have cropped up in sporadic manner through individual enterprise and at private cost, though application of these discoveries on large scale has still to be made. And no one can doubt that a multitude of other vital truths are awaiting discovery at the hands of biologists and chemists.

"Either we must grow our own food, or we must labor at other things to provide the wherewithal to purchase it from abroad. How dependent we are on other lands the war has shown, but the mistake of thus depending on them is a continuous folly.

"Let scientific men be encouraged not stingily, but lavishly, to attack the problems connected with the fertility of the soil, and the best means of utilizing solar energy in the production of the right kind of vegetation, and good results are bound to follow. What the nation chiefly lacks in this matter is faith.

"The satisfactory promotion of scientific discovery is an affair of millions of pounds sterling. The nation can afford to be lavish. The young energy and the brains are ready ;the means and equipment are lacking. Even now, in war tme, the ancient stranglehold of official parsimony is tight in many instances.

Vancouver Barber Once Shaved Kaiser

He is Sorry Now That the Razor Did Not Slip and Save the World.

VANCOUVER, May 12.—A man who once shaved Kaiser Wilhelm is working in a Pender street barber shop. J. R. Cuddeford, who lives at 145 Eleventh avenue west, is the an whose keen razor edge once scraped the jugular vein of the war lord. It was at Ilfracombe, North Devon, England, where Wilhelm, in 1878, was visiting with his tutors, and a retinue of Prussian Guards. Through some mischance the official barber had been left behind in London, and the members of the suite had to repair to the little barber shop conducted by Mr. Cuddeford's father, where they blusteringly ordered shaves and shampoos.

The Crown Prince, as he was at that time, could not be expected that time, could not, of course, be expected to take his seat in a barber shop, so young Cuddeford was "invited" to proceed to his room and make Wilhelm's jowls presentable. The future butcher of Europe was far from an easy subject for the wielder of the razor, being almost covered with pimples and having very high cheek bones. While young Cuddeford was busy at his task a stalwart Prussian guard stood on each side of the chair holding a lighted taper so that there would be plenty of light for the delicate job.

Though at that time the barber considered himself honored by being allowed to shave the then august personage, he had far from a pleasant task. He found his customer extremely restless, twisting about in his chair and running risks of getting his royal epidermis nicked or his august ear cut. But unfortunately Mr. Cuddeford's hand did not slip, for which he he has blamed mimself for the past three years. Before, during and after the shaving the barber did not hear a civil word from either his customer or the latter's guards.

A List of Don't's

Little Timothy went to visit his aunt Elvira, a dignified and severe woman, who owned a parrot. One morning, coming unexpectedly upon Timothy and the bird, she was horribly shocked to hear the little boy using some profane words.

"Oh, no, I'm not, auntie," the boy replied, "I'm just telling it what it mustn't say."

No doubt about the Surprise

An Indiana farmer bringing his products to town, had found the market high for the first time in several years, his pockets were bulging with coin. Then he recalled how his wife had goaded him to buy some clothes and he had felt he couldn't afford them. He looked at his worn shoes, his frayed trousers, his faded coat, chuckled, and said: "I guess I'll surprise Eliza." Going in the general store, the farmer bought an outfit, put the bundle under the seat of his wagon, and drove away wearing his old togs.

A mile from home he left the wagon, where a convenient bridge crossed the creek, set the bundle of clothes down on the floor of the bridge, and slipped under the structure to remove the old garments. One by one he threw them into the creek—shoes, trousers, coat, and hat—and watched them float down the current. Then he reached around the corner and over his head for the new togs.

They were gone. A cloud of dust down the road suggested that they were not likely to return soon. The farmer waited until the sun went down, then climed to the wagon seat in undraped humility, and as he cracked his whip at the horses, remarked, "Well, I guess I'll surprise Eliza, anyhow."

THE HAND THAT PLAYS THE PIANO

"Matilda has great talent for music'," declared Mrs. Ramble. "As soon as the professor saw her hands he exclaimed: 'Oh, Mrs. Ramble! Those are the very hands for the piano! The length of the fingers. Their slender suppleness!' So very much depends upon the hands, you know!"

"Everything," agreed the visiting lady; "the shape of the hand indicates the power of execution."

"Then why execute?" demanded Ramble, as he dealt the cards. "Why not just exhibit?"

"That would be satisfactory to me," observed the visiting gentleman. "Just let musicians show their hands and the best hand wins. There is no need whatever of playing the thing out when you can show a winning hand."

"That's the idea," continued Ramble. "No need of execution at all. No occasion to go to such lengths. If a girl can show the right kind of fingers she has talent. No argument. We are all willing to admit it. It is only when a demonstration is insisted upon that opposition, antagonism and spleen arise."

"But," insisted the visiting lady, "there is something more to music than mere execution. Two people can play the same piece in perfect tune and time and still there will be a vast difference in the enjoyment among the hearers."

"The difference," declared Mrs. Ramble, "lies in the player's ability to thoughts. Every musical composition interpret the composer's mood and his expresses a mood and an idea and the pianist who best gets the composer's idea will make it most plain to the audience."

"The feelings of the composer reach the pianist through the notes of the music and the pianist conveys them to the audience—"

"Like fellows passing the buck in a card game!" suggested Ramble brightly.

"Not exactly," continued the visiting lady, "because after all it is not the composer's mood, but the mood of the pianist, which is conveyed to the listener. It is her own joys and sorrows which she passes out to the hearers."

"It doesn't work out that way with me!" declared the visiting gentleman. "The girl next door sits at the piano in a state of blissful rapture. A smile spreads itself over her face and her heart leaps for joy. But when I hear the piece my mood is altogether different. I gnash my teeth and stamp and swear—I am anything but joyful."

"Deal the cards," directed the visiting lady.

Y.W.C.A. FINISHES YEAR WITH BALANCE ON HAND

Encouraging Reports Submitted by Various Officials at Annual Meeting Held Last Night.

The annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A. was held last night in the lecture room which was well filled by those interested in the work and by a number of young girls who have availed themselves of the excellent home offered by the institution. The president, Miss Marion Dickson, presided and devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. R. G. Peever.

After the singing of Hymn 25 and the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting, the management report was read as follows:

In submitting this annual report it is quite impossible to present a complete tabulation of the work accomplished, and the progress made during the year, as the religious, intellectual and physical influences diffusing from this association work, are not easily measured. Your Board of Managers has held fourteen meetings with an average attendance of thirteen. The executive, consisting of the president and officers and the following members: Mesdames Cressman, Wood and Walsh, has been called for eight meetings.

Mrs. Douglas, who returned to the work in September as general secretary, and in consideration of whose services a resolution of appreciation was recently passed by the board, is assisted by Miss Winnifred Parker of Toronto. Miss Littlefield as physical directress, has maintained the high standard of efficiency which has heretofore characterized her labors. The gymnasium closing exercises recently held, even eclipsing those of last year in point of proficiency. The kindness of Murray Street Baptist Church, the Salvation Army, George Street Methodist and St. Paul's Presbyterian churches as well as that of the Y. M. C. A. Board in helping to make this "closing" a success, was appreciated by your board.

Owing to ill health, Miss Beamer was compelled to resign from the position of House Superintendent in January. The Board deeply regretted it being necessary to accept this resignation.

There have been eight public meetings held during the year. The Rally in September assumed the form of a social evening, when the guests included members of the Girls' Auxiliary, the Girl Guides, Industrial Classes and Normal students to the number of two hundred.

A series of helpful and inspiring meetings for girls was arranged, and carried out by Mrs. Scott and her committee in October, when Mrs. Frank Ray came as the special speaker. Important improvements have been made in the building and others are proceeding. Decorations, furnishings and repairs to the amount of eight hundred dollars have been placed in the House.

After thoughtful consideration and consultation with the Advisory Board, your Board of Management decided to build a swimming pool. This, it is expected, will be first class in all its appointments, and will doubtless meet with hearty public support.

The following gentlemen from the Advisory Board were appointed to award the contract for the same: Messrs. W. G. Morrow, T. F. Matthews, A. W. Cressman, W. H. Hill and J. J. Turner.

The Board would thank all who have rendered gratuitous service in any department of the work, especially Drs. Harvey and Cameron, who have had charge of the St. John Ambulance work.

During the year the House has been practically filled to its capacity, and the fact that there has been no illness in the institution is a cause for grateful thanks.

We are very much indebted to the indefatigable efforts of our president, Miss M. Dickson, for the success of the year.

F. D. CRUIKSHANK, Secretary.

Balance of $58.61.

The total receipts for the year from all sources were $1209383 and the expenditure $12035.22, leaving a balance on hand of $58.61. This report was audited and confirmed by D. R. Fleming.

Mrs. W. I. Chisholm read the report of the nominating committee. The following will compose the Board of Management for the coming year, the officers to be elected at the first meeting in June:

Mesdames Walsh, Cressman, Wood, Roger, Hill, V. Eastwood. Robt. Neill, Morrison, Nugent, Chisholm, Gardiner, Scott, Reg. Turner, Denham, Cruikshank, Adam Hall, Matthews, Greer, Geo. Macdonald, Harvey, (Dr.) Eastwood, Widdess, LeClair; and Misses Dickson, E. Morrow, L. Rush, Aldridge, Cameron, Williams, Edna Ferguson.

Secretary's Report.

Mrs. Douglas, the secretary, submitted her annual report as follows:

In gathering up the various threads of the year's work in order to weave the web of the annual report, it has been a pleasure to find advancement along all lines, even though there is ever present with us the realization of the smallness of the work with what one had planned at the commencement. The war has turned the thread of thought, and of necessity our policy has had to change somewhat. This has been especially true in planning for our industrial clubs, owing to girls working so much at night. Also, our volunteer workers have had less time to devote to association work.

Religious Work.

Our Religious department is not as strong as in many associations, especially the Sunday Vesper service, owing to the fact, we are happy to say, that so many girls attend Sunday School. Last October the Committee arranged for a series of meetings to be conducted by Mrs. Frank Rae. The meetings were not as largely attended as we had hoped, the aggregate attendance being one hundred and eighty. A Vesper service at 4.15 was held up till Christmas time, but as it was found that the attendance were girls who attended Sunday School the service was discontinued. Miss Edna Ferguson has conducted a Bible Class on Thursday evenings with an average attendance of fourteen, aggregate attendance, three hundred and ninety-two. Prayers are conducted every evening after the tea hour.

Educational.

Two classes in St. John Ambulance Brigade work, First Aid and Home Nursing, with a registration of thirty-six, were conducted by Dr. Harvey. Enthusiasm has been such that a Nursing Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade Overseas is to be formed by members who have diplomas in Home Nursing and First Aid.

Library.

It has been most interesting and gratifying to note the growing appreciation. Girls coming in to clubs and classes have made use of the privilege. One hundred and thirty cards have been filled out, and seven hundred and eight books have been read. In April the Girls' Auxiliary held their annual book shower, adding about fifty books to the library.

Russia Class.

The Educational Committee had a very excellent program for a series of evenings on Russia. Three meetings were held. The attendance was appreciative, but somewhat too small to continue the program.

Membership.

The membership report is not what we would call satisfactory, being only three hundred and seventy-six. Of this number eighty-one are juniors. As this is the main basis of support of the Public Department, we would like the enrollment of every woman who is interested in the welfare of the girls.

Physical.

The Physical Department has come to mean a large force in our curriculum, and this year we have reached the highest standard of our work. Two hundred and ninety have been enrolled in classes during the year. Eleven classes have been held weekly, with an aggregate attendance of six thousand, two hundred and forty-six. The closing held in the Y. M. C. A., April 26 and 27, was most successful from every point of view doing credit to both instructor and girls. One hundred and ninety-two dollars, realized, with twenty-eight dollars expenses, leaving a balance of one hundred and sixty-four dollars.

Social.

We have had eight social events during the year, with an attendance of nine hundred and eighty-nine. Each class has also had its own social function.

Junior.

One hundred and twenty-two children were enrolled in the Saturday afternoon class, with an average attendance of seventy-five. The work this year was entirely gymnasium and supervised games. About thirty children paid their membership of fifty cents. We are indebted to Miss Morphet and Miss Jessie Cressman of the Girls' Auxiliary for playing for each Saturday afternoon. Also Miss Cressman for a delightful surprise party of ice-cream and cake for the children. The Board provided the usual Christmas party, oranges and candy, and members of the Girls' Auxiliary assisted in making candy bags and helping with the party. We feel that this work is more than worth while, "the children of today are the men and women of tomorrow." These children are our future club members, and we hope to keep them interested each year in the Association.

Clubs.

The Girls' Auxiliary might be called the Secretary's "right hand." I feel I cannot fully express my gratitude to the girls who have always responded to every call. In the last two sad years since war began every girl has given her time to "war" work, and in this way many have not had the time to devote to the association. It is interesting to note that six of our Auxiliary girls have gone to train for nurses; others have entered the worlds of matrimony or business. However, their interest in the Association and Auxiliary is just the same.

Good Comrade Club.

The Good Comrade Club is mostly composed of girls from the Quaker Oats. After the fire of last fall the girls became scattered, quite a number leaving the city, others being absorbed in the various industrial centres. It has been most gratifying to know that although the girls have not met regularly for club meetings, yet they have spent many evenings at the Association rooms, and letters have been sent to secretaries in associations in other towns to which these girls have gone.

Loyalty Club.

A few meetings of the Loyalty Club have been held, but as nearly all the members of this Club have either left the city or are in factories and have been working at night, it has been impossible to hold the usual meetings. Some of the girls have joined the gymnasium and first aid classes.

Athena Club.

The last but by no means the least is the Athena Club, our newest club, with a membership of 35, which has for its motto "self-reverence, self-knowledge, self control," which is doing, and hopes to do, great things. The girls meet for tea after which they have gymnasium and club work.

Office.

No statistics have been kept of the numbers of telephone calls or the numbers applying for domestic help. (which could not be supplied) the numbers of girls who have come in and out of the association rooms. Had these been kept it would no doubt have been a surprise to many and would have shown how much time the secretary has spent in answering the phone, and in talks with girls, etc.

Our rooms have been used during the year by a number of organizations, including the 57th, and Otonabee I. O. D. E., Business Girls' Club, W. C. T. U., and Local Council of Women.

We desire to express our gratitude and thanks for the many kind acts shown us throughout the year. Donations large and small and the splendid assistance of volunteer workers. We owe much to the city papers who are ever willing and interested in doing anything in their power to further our work. We appreciate the brotherly co-operation of the staff of the Y.M.C.A. and every one who has in any way contributed towards the association during the year.

I could not close without expressing my appreciation of the work Miss Litlefield has done in the Physical Department. Our work throughout the year has been marked with one word, success, yet we are only touching the fringe of the work to be done in this city. I think it has been proved many times that the Peterborough public only need a reminder that their co-operation is needed for any good work, and the response is forthcoming. Therefore, to the City of Peterborough we commend the Y. W. C. A., we need your sympathy, co-operation and support. We do indeed hope and plan, and expect great things. We know full well that the work of the Peterborough Association is not our work for young women, but His work for young women. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

Miss Lane's Address.

Miss Kate Lane, the Dominion Secretary of the City Department of the Y. W. C. A., gave an interesting address on the work of the Association and spoke briefly of the efficiency of the local branch.

Miss Mann rendered a solo and after the singing of the National Anthem refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was spent.

THE CHIEF CHARM OF LOVELY WOMAN

Soft, Clear, Smooth Skin Comes With The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

NORAH WATSON
86 Drayton Ave., Toronto.
Nov. 10th, 1915.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure Blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. After using "Fruit-a-tives" for one week, the rash is completely gone. I am deeply thankful for the relief and in the future, I will not be without "Fruit-a-tives".

Strenuous Work - Soon Tells on You

When worry is added to overwork men soon become the victims of nervous exhaustion—neurasthenia —the doctor calls it. Some have no reserve strength in their systems to bear the strain; others overtax what strength they have. If you find that you are nervous and not sure of yourself, that you sleep badly, and wake up tired and aching, your nerves are out of order. Other signs are inability to take proper interest in your work; your appetite is fickle; your back feels weak, and you are greatly depressed in spirit. One or more of these signs mean that you should take prompt steps to stop mischief by nourishing the nerves with the food they thrive on, namely the rich, red blood made by Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills have cured thousands of cases of nervous disorders, including nervous prostration, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance and partial paralysis. Here is an example. Mr. P. H. Callan, a well known business man in Coleman, P.E.I., says: "I owe my present health, if not life itself, to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had always been an active man, and when I began to run down in health paid little attention to it as I thought it only a temporary weakness. As time passed, however, I found myself growing worse, and consulted a doctor, who said that I was not only badly run down, but that my nervous system was badly shattered. I lost flesh, my appetite was poor, I slept badly and notwithstanding the doctor's treatment grew so weak that I had to leave my business and was confined to the house. This went on and I was steadily growing weaker, and my friends were all greatly alarmed for my condition. In this condition I was strongly recommended to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the doctor's medicine was not helping me I decided to do so. By the time I had used three boxes I could tell that they were helping me. When I had taken eight boxes of the pills I felt able to attend to my business again, and people were surprised to see me out. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken twelve boxes, by which time I was feeling as well as ever I did, and was being congratulated by all my friends on my full restoration to health. I feel now that if I had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the outset I would not only have saved much money spent in doctor's bills, but would have had renewed health sooner. I cannot speak too highly of this medicine, and would highly recommend it to every man who feels weak, nervous or run down."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

From all parts of the world we receive words of praise for Gin Pills as the great remedy for Kidney troubles. The following is from Jamaica where Gin Pills enjoy a very large sale.

"I was a clerk in a store in Jamaica but had to give up my position on account of kidney trouble. I purchased one box of Gin Pills from a local Druggist and before it was all finished I was entirely better and able to return to my work. I recommended them to a friend who was also in a similar condition and he tried them with the same good results.

I may tell you I tried many remedies in Jamaica before I got your Gin Pills.

Yours very truly,
Thomas Price, Bog Walk, Jamaica."

If you suffer from backache, swollen joints, constant headaches, rheumatism, sciatica and other diseases due to kidney trouble, write for a free sample. Or buy a box from your druggist—50c. a box, 6 boxes for $2.50.

"WE WILL HAVE THEM"

Motto of French is Made Good—Hun oMrale Fails

In a letter from the front Stanley Rutledge, of Fort William, says: Billboards in every part of France have held a striking poster inscribed, "On les aura" (we will have them) The artist has been inspired. The figure of the "Poilu" with bayonet fixed is the incarnation of almost demoniacal energy. It seems as if this soldier of France, flushed with the knowledge of victory, was about to leap from the canvas. There is a wonderful light in the eyes, in fact, the whole face glows. The hands are clutching the rifle as if in death. "We will have them," is a phrase we all feel. The result of the offensives on the Somme have justified these posters. While the allies have not broken through in the sense that the German defence lines are shattered, yet they have caused indescribable havoc, and the morale of the field grey is weakened.

Have you read some of those captured documents? In one order issued by a battalion commander there is ample evidence that the esprit de corps of the German army is causing much anxiety. "The men must not run when the French attack," is one sentence—what a confession! The superiority of our artillery, of our infantry, of our aeroplane service is openly acknowledged. Such an order of course was never intended for enemy eyes.

And then there is the Crown Prince interview. He descants on the terrible sights in this sad region of the earth—his heart is broken—"would that I could be home with my family for the Christmas season." And this is the idiotic youth who swanked about Berlin. Aha, how his spurs clicked when he told how the Germans were going to benefit humanity by inculcating their kultur! "A jolly war for me!" says he. But now the tall boy is sad. Home—the comfort of his men—the palliation of woe is his tune. "On les aura," says the poilu. He is right. "Up guards, and at them." reiterates the Tommy.

MUSKOKA LAKES

The Muskoka Lakes enjoy an international reputation, and have won a firm hold on the affections of a large number of discriminating tourists and travellers from all over the world. As this wonderful summer region is just a step from the homes of residents of Ontario, there should be a heavy influx of Canadians to Muskoka this year. There are golf links for those who enjoy this royal game. Good hotel accommodation to suit pockets of all. Interesting descriptive publications telling you all about it free on application to C. E. Horning, D. P. A., Toronto, Ont.

Teacher—Harry, can you tell me the function of the pores of our bodies?

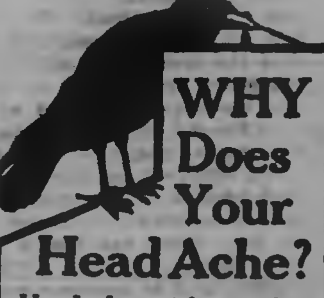
Harry—Yes'm; they're the things we catch cold with.

The young bride looked dejected as she set the mince pie before her husband

"I intended to have some sponge-cake, too, dear, but it has been a total failure."

"How was that?" he asked in a disappointed tone, for he was fond of sponge-cake.

"The druggist," she explained, "sent me the wrong kind of sponges."



WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

One pill at bedtime, regularly. Larger dose if there's a suspicion of biliousness or constipation.

GARBAGE MAN GETS $500 BONUS TO CONTINUE WORK

This Will be Paid at Expiration of Contract if Collections Are Satisfactory—Clean-up Began Today

The citizens wereg reatly pleased this morning when the garbage collectors commenced the removal of a week's accumulation of refuse. A satisfactory ending to the unpleasant condition of affairs was found at the meeting of the City Council last night.

Mayor Duffus called the aldermen together in Committee of the Whole and the matter was thoroughly discussed by the aldermen and the collector. The difficulty of the labor situation was realized and that of getting men who would do good work on the collecting wagons was pointed out. All the large contractors were paying such high wages to their drivers that Mr. Graham was not able to hold his men unless he could give them higher pay, which was impossible at the price at which he had taken the contract from the city. The fact that horse feed had increased 110 per cent. was also referred to.

Many of the aldermen were of the opinion that the systematic collection of garbage would never be right until the city took hold and did the work itself, under the supervision of the Sanitary Inspector.

Mayor Duffus was very insistent that the city must be cleaned up over Sunday, no matter how it was done or at what cost.

Ald. Dobbin suggested borrowing the forces of the Board of Works and in the interval get a new contractor.

Ald. McIntyre thought it was a poor time for the city to take hold. They should do something to help the contractor out of the difficulty.

Ald. Weir thought that the wrong man had the contract. There had been all kinds of complaints ever since the contract was signed. He was strong for the city to undertake the work, but would suggest a compromise with Mr. Graham by reducing the number of collections.

Ald. Smith did not think that the work would be at all satisfactory as long as the present contractor is on the job. There had been a lot of fault finding. He was willing to compromise if an assurance was given that the work would be completed according to schedule.

Ald. Saunders was in favor of the municipality cleaning up the city unless Mr. Graham went on with the work.

Ald. Worth would like the city to take hold. He felt that the other tenderers for the contract must have sized up the conditions, as they had quoted $750 more than Mr. Graham who was willing to go ahead if he got an extra $500. He would be reasonable and would give Mr. Graham a bonus when his contract expired.

Ald. Langford did not think that Mr. Graham deserved much sympathy. He got his money up till the end of April, and then comes to the Council and makes a "holler" about labor and other conditions.

Ald. Taylor felt like helping Mr Graham out if the Council were given a guarantee that the work would be contiued satisfactorily.

Ald. Stratton believed Mr. Graham hit the city at the worst possible time. Conditions were such, it was almost impossible to get teams or men He would be willing to give Mr. Graham $500 to help him out and would consent to weekly collections until the end of May.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton, on being asked his opinion, stated that he had got along first rate with Mr Graham, who had done lots of things in removing rubbish that he did not have to do. The trouble with the matter was a lack of system on the part of the colector. The men were the bosses. Some of the drivers had been impolite to citizens. Then the citizens did not seem to assist. He would suggest that at least five teams be at work collecting.

Ald. Worth felt sure that eventually the city would have to do the work under the supervision of Mr. Stapleton.

Mr. Graham and his sureties were then heard and the whole situation again canvassed.

Ald. McIntyre moved that the garbage collector be paid $500 over his contract and that the money be paid monthly. Ald. Stratton seconded this.

Ald. Worth was quite willing to give the $500, but would make it a war bonus, to be paid at the completion of the contract. Ald. Dobbin seconded this.

A little discussion followed on the amendment, which finally resulted in Ald. McIntyre withdrawing his motion, and the amendment carried. It was also stipulated that there will be two colections a week during the summer and weekly collections in the outlying districts during the months of November and December.

The garbage in all cases must be brought out to the street line.

Alien Women Must Be Naturalized

DUTIES OF NEW VOTERS ARE EXPLAINED BY PREMIER.

TORONTO, May 12. — Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, paid tribute to the British North America Act and its framers, in Convocation Hall, in an address on The Machinery of Government. It was the last of a series of lectures on "Women and Citizenship." President Falconer of Toronto University presided.

Must Be Naturalized.

In speaking of recent legislation, the Premier outlined for his hearers the changes brought about by the granting of votes to women in the Province, which Act was proclaimed on Thursday. After pointing out that all persons over the age of 21 years will have a vote in the next Provincial election and also soldiers under that age, he explained that there are certain women who will have to be naturalized before they can vote. The general principle that a woman assumed the nationality of her husband does not apply. She must be naturalized in the same way as a man or appear before a judge and secure a certificate before she can get her name on the list. To obtain this certificate she must pass the necessary test under Section 2 of the Immigration Act, which is really a literary test.

Overland

Back of this season's new Overland Big Fours and Light Sixes is a direct line of nine preceding models from which they were developed.

They directly continue the line of models that made the Overland name stand in the public mind for integrity of value.

Overland policy has steadfastly sustained that integrity of value in the car throughout its entire service in the hands of owners.

Over three hundred thousand of these cars are now in use and the helpful suggestions of their owners and of the more than four thousand dealer and factory-branch organizations that sold and served them, are largely responsible for the balanced greatness of this season's Big Fours and Light Sixes.

Their new beauty, their perfected easy riding qualities, their proven sturdiness and mechanical excellence, their admitted tire, fuel and oil economy make them worthy of the confidence we enjoy, that they will still further enhance Overland prestige.

They embody the wisdom of the unmatched Overland experience in building cars of this type.

They are dominant values, cars of proven dependability and sterling worth.

Let us show you these cars and demonstrate them.

Mother's Club Concert

A very excellent concert was given in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night under the auspices of the Mothers' Club of the Y. M. C. A. with a view to raising funds with which to purchase yarn for the soldiers' socks. The attendance was not as large as had been hoped for although more than one hundred and twenty five tickets were sold but every one who was privileged to be present certainly enjoyed the treat provided for them.

The program consisted of a Spanish Mazurka nicely presented in costume by the Intermediates and Senior School Girls of the Y. W. C. A who had been well trained by Miss Littlefield. This was followed by a dumb bell drill by the Junior School boys of the Y. M. C. A. Miss Mignon Telgmann played very pleasing violin solos in her usual accomplished style nicely accompanied by Miss Lily Simpson Miss Gertrude Stevens sang with excellent voice Ici Bas by Victor Hugo, and Memories, by Gustave Kahn, and was well accompanied by Miss Stella Young. "Maw's Auto Ride" was recited in very humorous style by Miss Muriel Harvey and she graciously responded with an encore, "The Hindu's Paradise." Mrs. H. R. Waldess, as usual, delighted her audience with two selected solos accompanied by Mrs Buchanan.

The hit of the evening, however, was made by Master Hughson Johnson, a boy of eight years of age, who appeared in two recitations His first number was Robert W. Service's "Jean Desprez," a patriotic selection showing the criminal treatment of the prisoners by the Prussians. The second was a humorous selection showing the trials of a small boy.

Mr. G. H. Roper was the very excellent director of the program which opened by singing "God Save the King" and closed with "O Canada."

The ladies expect to clear in the neighborhood of twenty dollars from the effort which is a great credit to the ladies of the club, especially Mrs. W. R. Scadding, who was responsible for the concert and Mrs. C. N. Meserve, the president.

SIR ADAM BECK TO SPEAK

Will Deliver An Address In Peterboro At An Early Date

Sir Adam will be invited to address the citizens of Peterboro at an early date. Just before Sir Adam left on his trip to California he expressed a wish to visit this district during the early summer. Mayor Duffus will ask the founder of Hydro to fix a date.

NO CONTRACT WITH SWEEPER.

The City Council decided last night that they would not enter into a contract with the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Co. to clean the paved streets of the city. City Engineer Parsons was instructed to put the "White Wings" at work at once. The Sweeper Co. wanted $4500 to clean the streets until the close of the season.

ASK CAPT. BURNHAM

When The Canal Will Be Opened To Lake Ontario

The City Council last night decided to write Capt. J H Burnham. M.P., to get information as to when the Trent Valley Canal will be ready for opening from Peterboro to Lake Ontario, so that the city could celebrate the occasion.

The building of the railway gridge at Campbellford is the only thing in the way.

MOTHERS' DAY AT MURRAY ST.

The services at Murray St. Baptist Church in commemoration of Mothers' Day will be of a most interesting character. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, will preach at both morning and evening services. The men's association have arranged for the use of many automobiles, which will bring to the church those who would not otherwise be able to attend the special services. Mr. Asa Huycke has planned suitable music for the day.

Thankful Mothers

Mothers who have once used Baby's Own Tablets for their little ones are always strong in their praise of this medicine. Among them is Mrs. Marcelle Bourdeau, Mizonette, N.B., who writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine I know of for little ones. I am very thankful for what they have done for my children." The Tablets regulate the bowels and stomach; cure constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers; in fact they cure all the minor ills of little ones. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARE OF FINGER NAILS

"Five Minutes Per Day" Method For Working Girls

Many a busy working girl, while she is desirous of caring for her nails, is unable to devote much time to this all-important function—and may like to know a simple method which would occupy only a few minutes daily. Any one will find the following method simple to understand and requiring a few minutes only to perform, and although, of course, you cannot expect to obtain the same results as when your nails are submitted to a professional manicurist, yet after a few weeks you need never be ashamed of them again. Soak the fingers in warm, soapy water, so as to soften the nails and the surrounding cuticle. Then dry them on a soft towel, and, taking an orange wood stick, deftly insert this under the nails to extract any colored matter. Next trim the nail with a pair of curved scissors, and then, with the rough side of the file or emery board sold for this purpose, finely bevelling it with the finer side.

Now for the cuticle; this must be loosened with a cuticle knife which should be blunt-pointed, or the orange wood stick may be used for the same purpose. Care should be taken not to bruise the nail during these processes, or little opaque spots of white will appear. Now dip the fingers in a toilet cream, wiping off with a soft towel or tissue paper. Then take some polishing powder, and, sprinkling on the nail, briskly apply the polishing pad. When finished, see that none of the powder remains on the nails. And never use a knife or any sharp metal instrument in cleaning your nails. They only scratch little fissures into the nail substance, in which lodge particles of dirt and dust that are very difficult to remove and keep the nails discolored and gray looking.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

A SMILE ALWAYS BEATS A FROWN

When you have to strain the eyes in order to make out what you are looking at, the face unconsciously wrinkles into a frown that is not pleasant to see. When Dr. Fowler fits you with a pair of his high-grade "PEBLO" Glasses, using the eyes becomes a pleasure, and smiles take the place of the frown, which is a great improvement.

WARN WORKERS

British cabinet without portfolio, on Thursday issued a statement revealing the existence of strikes of engineers in various parts of England. Mr. Henderson's statement was given out after a conference of trade unionists connected with the engineering and shipbuilding industries. Government ministers addressed the conference, and declared that the measures adopted by the government for the dilution of private labor were only emergency war measures. The conference passed a resolution depreciating the strikes.

LAND BREAKING UP WELL.

First of Last Winter Made Soil Mellow.

The reports of the district representatives of the Department of Agriculture are to the effect that the land throughout the Province is breaking up better this year than it has for many years past. Some peculiarities of the winter or spring are responsible for this, just what, is not known, but the land is more mellow and is working a great deal easier than it did last year. Mr. C. F. Bailey, of the Department of Agriculture, says that this spring is 1,000 per cent. better than last for crops, although warmer nights would be a great help.

C.P.R. MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED WITH NEW HOURS

SETTLEMENT MADE DOES NOT SEEM TO SUIT ALL.

The settlement recently made by the C.P.R. engineers does not appear to satisfy all. "The eight-hour work day," said one of the general committee, "is all right, but in this case, with the other conditions attached, it does not work out to the advantage of some."

One committee man was heard to remark that when he got back to his division he would have nothing more than a cigar to hand to the boys. The passenger engine men are not overjoyed with the change.

Despite all this, however, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will make their settlement on the eight-hour day basis. The general committee, which has been this week talking it over with the members, will assemble again on Monday in Montreal to give the new schedule the finishing touch. This committee represents the eastern lines—that is from Fort William east to Halifax. This will also mean about a 20 per cent. increase for 20,000 trainmen. The C.P.R. has about 3,500 locomotives on the eastern lines. It is expected that the new agreement will go into effect June 1st.

BOY MURDERER ESCAPES DEATH

CLEMENCY IS EXTENDED TO YOUTHFUL DEGENERATE.

OTTAWA, May 12.—John Spain, the 16-year-old boy who was to have been hanged Tuesday next for the murder of a man named Vincent and his wife at Stonewall, Manitoba, will escape the gallows. The youth of the boy is the only extenuating circumstance, as never in Great Britain or Canada has the death sentence been inflicted on such a young criminal. The boy's father is at the front. There have been many petitions, and the matter has been discussed in the house of commons.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER HAS NOT DONE HIS DUTY TO EMPIRE

Minister Sevigny Blames Liberal Leader for Failures of Recruiting in Quebec.

OTTAWA, May 12.—"We must prove to the whole country that we are able ready to do our part in sending men and subscribing money for the war. We must show them we are in sympathy with those who have made such sacrifices in the war. It is our war and we have to do our duty."

Thus summed up, Hon. Albert Sevigny the new Minister of Inland Revenue, in an address to a big French Canadian Conservative gathering.

Mr. Sevigny blamed Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the lack of Quebec recruiting.

"I am convinced," said Mr. Sevigny, "that my compatriots would have listened to him had he appealed to them to participate in the war. Has he done this? Has he told them 'Here is your duty, do it?' He has held meetings, but they have been more of a political nature than for recruiting. He has allowed the Liberal press in Quebec to come out and denounce conscription. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had made appeals to his compatriots, I know that all would be prepared to take up arms for the cause for which Belgium, France, Great Britain and the United States are fighting.

"If there is any cause to blame the French-Canadians for not enlisting, it is because Sir Wilfrid Laurier has not done his duty."

Referring to the school question, he said it could only be settled by mutual concessions.

Controller Champagne, ex-M.P.P., vigorously denounced the methods of Senator Belcourt and Sam Genest on the school question. Mr. Belcourt, he said, had received $14,100 for legal fees collected by French-Canadians and first paid his son-in-law, an architect, $1,500 for plans for new schools before the separate school backers were paid.

VOTERS' LISTS DOUBLED

Owing To The Granting Of Women's Suffrage

At provincial elections in Ontario in the future it is estimated that there will be 800,000 voters on the list instead of 400,000 as in the past. This is because of the granting of votes to women. Officials at the Parliament Buildings estimate that it will cost $150,000 and require three months' time for the preparation of the voters' list. Already some centres have made a start on their lists. It is pointed out that at the present time the women are in control, and would dominate any election with so many soldiers overseas.

It must cost the Government a little more to conduct an election in future, stated one of the ministers, but the great burden of increased cost is going to fall upon the candidates, who will have 8,000 instead of 5,000 voters to reach.

MARKET PRICES

The market this morning was a fairly large one for this time of the year when the farmers are so busy. Eggs were up and the supply was good, but the buyers had fixed a price and the ladies governed themselves accordingly. Butter was unchanged, but the supply was not very great, and the tendency was for a little higher prices.

There was no change in the prices of other commodities.

Hogs are quoted at $16.40 for next week's delivery.
